Alumni Memberships Pass Goal of 1,000

A TOTAL of 34 new life members and 374 new annual members were added to the General Alumni Association during the year 1938-39, President J. Brainerd Kremer, '97, reported at the annual meeting of the Association on Alumni Day, June 3.

Bringing the total number of members for the year to 1,054, the year's increase exceeds the goal of 1,000 members set by Mr. Kremer a year ago when he was elected president of the Association. With 223 life members, the Lemuel T. Appold Memorial Endowment Fund, into which the life membership subscriptions are deposited, now totals $9,233.51.

Officers were elected and the results of the mail vote for alumni trustee and members of the Alumni Council were announced at the meeting of the Association. Mr. Kremer was reelected president; Dr. Harry D. Kruse, '22, secretary for the past several years, vice-president; C. Wendell Holmes, '21, secretary, and Rev. Dr. Harry B. Stock, '91, was reelected treasurer.

The largest vote in several years was cast in the mail balloting for alumni trustee and members of the Council. S. Walter Stauffer, '12, was reelected an alumni trustee for a four-year term ending in 1943; and Kremer, Holmes, Marjorie L. McIntire, '10, Rev. Dr. J. Merrill Williams, '08, and Carl B. Shelley, '17, were elected members of the Council for a three-year term. Bernard J. Kotulak, '39, was named to the Council by the graduating class as its representative.

In his annual report to the Association Mr. Kremer pointed to some of the Council's achievements of the year. Not only was the membership roll lengthened and the financial condition of the Association in consequence improved, but the constitution and by-laws were revised and more careful plans for Alumni Day were adopted. This year these plans included a band concert on the night of Alumni Day and a faster-moving program for the alumni luncheon, where, instead of eight or ten short speeches by representatives of the five-year reunioning classes, there was one longer address. Dean M. Hoffman, '02, is chairman of the Alumni Council's committee on the Alumni Day program.

Three More Lifers

Three more alumni have sent in subscriptions for life membership in the General Alumni Association sending the total number of names on the life membership roll to 226.

They are Robert L. Ganoe, '16, of Philadelphia, who has been with the sales department of the Atlas Powder Company since his graduation from college Dr. Edwin D. Weinberg, '17, past president of the Dickinson Club of Baltimore, who is instructor of orthopedic surgery in the Johns Hopkins Medical School and an orthopedic surgeon of Baltimore; and Harry C. Zug, '34, of Philadelphia, where he is associated with Lybrand, Ross Brothers and Montgomery, accountants.

The Council set November 11 as the annual Homecoming date and directed that it tender a dinner on the evening of November 10 to the faculty of the College, members of the Board of Trustees, and the presidents of the various alumni clubs.

Association Issues Directory of Living Alumni

As part of this number of the DICKINSON ALUMNUS, a copy of the 1939 Directory of Living Alumni of the College is being sent to every paid member of the General Alumni Association.

Authorized by the General Alumni Association and the Board of Trustees last year, the 190-page publication supersedes that issued by the Association in 1931. It follows closely the plan of the earlier directory, however, listing all alumni of the College, graduate and non-graduate alike, by class, geographically, and alphabetically.

During the progress of the compilation, which was carried on in the College offices, many errors which appeared in the old directory were found and corrected. As alumni, however, are constantly changing their addresses, the directory is not up to date in this respect beyond August 15, when the copy was sent to the printers. Notice of changes of address and of marriage received since that time will not be printed.

The historical foreword, points out that this is the third catalogue of living alumni issued under the auspices of the General Alumni Association and stands last in a long line of catalogues of alumni issued by the College since 1810.

Alumni who detect errors and omissions in this latest directory will do a service by calling them to the attention of the alumni office, so that they may be corrected in the next edition.

Phi Beta Kappa Names Officers

President Fred P. Corson, '17, was elected president of the Dickinson chapter of Phi Beta Kappa at the annual meeting of the fraternity in June. He succeeds Rev. Dr. Edgar R. Heckman, '97, who retires after 23 years' service as president.

Under a new provision of the chapter by-laws, the president and vice-president of the society may not serve more than three consecutive years. Other officers elected were Hon. Edward M. Biddle, '86, reelected vice-president, Professor Clarence J. Carver, '09, reelected secretary, Ruth E. White, '04, assistant secretary, Professor Horace E. Rogers, '24, treasurer, and Professor Herbert Wing, Jr., historian. Professor Rogers succeeds Professor Forrest E. Craver, '99, who resigned after 29 years as treasurer, the longest term of service of any officer of the chapter since its establishment more than 50 years ago.

During the summer a new roster of the Dickinson chapter of Phi Beta Kappa was printed and mailed to all members of the chapter. It was prepared by Professor Carver, chapter secretary.

Improve Mooreland Campus

The houses at the northeast corner of the Mooreland campus, one of which was occupied by the late Miss Amy Fisher, '95, and the other of which was formerly known as the Mooreland Inn, were razed during the summer, rounding out the 12-acre Mooreland tract acquired by the College in 1932.

These properties, once owned by Dr. Charles Nisbet, first president of Dickinson College, were acquired by Boyd Lee Spahr, Esq., '00, president of the Board of Trustees, in 1930 and in last March and were presented by him to the College. The removal of the building and the grading of the corner has improved the appearance of the campus and gives an unobstructed view from the main campus to the Baird Biology Building in the heart of the Mooreland campus.

Although no steps have been taken looking toward the further improvement of the corner, it is likely that in the future one of the classes may wish to erect a memorial gateway on that site, similar to those built on the main campus.

Alumni Give $10,282 In Annual Campaign

THE greatest number of alumni in the four-year history of the Alumni Fund contributed $10,282.67 in the annual drive for funds which closed on May 31. This year there were 658 donors, as against the previous record of 640 set in 1937.

Setting a goal of $10,000 and aiming to increase the number of subscribers over that of any previous year, the campaign directors were successful in both objectives. The total amount subscribed is larger than last year's sum, although still short of the $12,035.19 given by 640 alumni in 1937.

By direction of the College Board of Trustees, $750 of the sum raised will be added to the permanent endowment of the Dickinson College Library Guild, whose income is used for the purchase of new books for the College Library, while the remainder will go to the College's current fund, to be used largely for scholarship-loan grants.

An analysis of the 1939 Alumni Fund was presented in the July Dickinson College Bulletin, which was mailed to all alumni of the College. This showed that five classes had at least 50% of their members contributing, that the gifts of three classes exceeded $500, that four classes had more than 20 subscribers, and that every class but one from 1880 to the present was represented.

The classes of 1867, 1872, 1874, 1878, and 1886 had half or more of their membership as subscribers to the Alumni Fund, while the class of 1890 was the only class since 1880 which was not represented.

The class of 1900 led all classes in the amount of money subscribed, with $2,080, while the class of 1895 was a close runner-up with $1,778, and the class of 1894 was third with a total of $576.

Leading the classes in total number of subscribers for the fourth consecutive year was the class of 1915 with 27 members contributing, while the class of 1935 was again in second place with 26. The classes of 1914 and 1938 were a close third and fourth with 25 and 24 subscribers respectively.

In his letter of thanks to the alumni for their contributions to the Fund President Fred P. Corson expressed the belief "that there is a definite relation between the splendid $10,282.67 total for the Alumni Fund and the increased activity of alumni groups."

Presents Historical Papers

Four pieces of interesting Dickinsoniana have been recently presented to the College by Boyd Lee Spahr, '00, president of the Board of Trustees. All relate to alumni prominent in national life.

Two James Buchanan items are among the four now exhibited in the Dickinsoniana Room in West College. One is an envelope franked by Buchanan and the other is a letter written by him as president to the postmaster of Baltimore, requesting the latter to come at once to Washington on some business.

Almost forgotten today, Ninian Edwards, of the class of 1792, was a prominent figure in the life of the rising West at the beginning of the last century. Mr. Spahr acquired a signed statement of provisions issued to some troops commanded by Edwards as territorial governor of Illinois during the War of 1812.

The fourth item is the notes of Professor William H. Allen's lectures in physics, biology, and chemistry taken by John A. J. Creswell, of the class of 1848, later postmaster-general of the United States. The notes, taken during Creswell's senior year, are clearly and carefully written, containing diagrams, formulas, and definitions. In form and content they are similar to the lecture notes taken by students in the classes of Presidents half a century before.

Trustees Elect Two Alumni to Board

J. B. KREMER

GEORGE C. HERING, JR.

J. BRAINERD KREMER, JR., '97, insurance broker of New York City and president of the General Alumni Association of the College, and George C. Hering, Jr., '17, attorney of Wilmington, Del., were elected to membership on the College Board of Trustees at the annual meeting in June.

At the same meeting the Board re-elected all trustees whose four-year terms expired and reelected all officers for another year.

A native of Philadelphia, Mr. Kremer was born in 1876 and prepared for college at the Dickinson Preparatory School. At College he was a member of Sigma Chi. From 1896 to 1922 Mr. Kremer was in the insurance business, first as special agent for the Reliance Insurance Company and subsequently as special agent, agency superintendent, and deputy manager of the Liverpool, London and Globe Insurance Company. He also served as assistant secretary, secretary, and vice-president of the Star Insurance Company of America. Since 1922 Mr. Kremer has been in the brokerage business with Starkweather & Shepley, general insurance brokers, of New York.

Elected president of the General Alumni Association of the College in 1938, Mr. Kremer during the past year visited the annual dinner meetings of the alumni clubs and pushed to a successful conclusion the announced goal of the Association to have 1,000 paid members.

A graduate of the College and the Dickinson School of Law, Mr. Hering has practiced law in Wilmington, Del., since 1922. He was born in Felton, Del., in 1894 and was educated in the local high school and in Dover, Del., Academy. At College he was a member of Phi Kappa Psi, president of the Union Philosophical Society, and president of the senior class.

Mr. Hering was assistant city solicitor of Wilmington and subsequently deputy attorney general of Delaware in charge of tax litigation. He is a former president of the Wilmington Kiwanis Club and of the Philadelphia Alumni Club of the College. In 1936 he was Republican candidate for lieutenant-governor of Delaware, running with Harry L Cannon, '99 of Bridgeville, who sought election as governor on the same ticket.

During the World War Mr. Hering served two years in Italy with the American Air Corps and was decorated with the Italian War Cross.

The return during the month of September of between 30 and 40 million Americans, young and old, to our schools and the beginning of a major war in Europe should fix our most serious attention upon two facts: First, that a design for education works, and second that our fathers had a design for education whose objective is the desire of every true American and whose effectiveness and perpetuation is the responsibility of all citizens and the special responsibility of all who have had the benefits of American higher education.

In 1933, the Reich Youth Leader, Baldur von Schirach said, "Give me a child of six to educate and he will belong to me for life. Every boy and girl in this nation will be made a National Socialist." These statements indicated a definite design for education, the details of which have been widely publicized.

Dorothy Thompson, observer of world affairs, after war had begun, made the statement that the war had not been started because of hunger, but because of ideology. Ideas were responsible for it. The design for education had worked.

Only the most superficial observer will discount the effect of a design for education upon the achievement of a nation and the character of a people. The awful evidence of its truth will, I fear, be a daily horror for some time to come.

Education, even though it may be called by many other names, holds the key to what people think and therefore influences how they act. Education designs the future and the school becomes the training camp for citizenship.

Now the second fact to recall is that our fathers had a design for education believed necessary by them for the preservation of democracy, and for the production and expansion of the happiness and well-being of the individual and of society. John Dickinson enunciated it in the founding of Dickinson College, Thomas Jefferson wrote it into the Constitution of Virginia, and Noah Webster evangelized America with this Gospel of Education as he plied his occupation of itinerant book peddler.

This design for education has and is being attacked by those who confuse method with objective and wish to scrap the principle in order to eliminate certain antiquated procedures and by those who wish to substitute a new and incompatible principle of life and government as the objective of our design for education.

Clear thinking and definite action are important. The objective of the American design for education is the production of citizens capable of ruling themselves, acquainted with their rights, conscious of their responsibilities and appreciative of their privileges, trained both in values and in skill, so that they may know the good and be useful in its production and preservation, and developed in character to supply and maintain that moral binder essential for the unity of personality and the progress of ordered society.

This is a big order. It requires brains and morality in leadership. The price in dollars and in mental perspiration on the part of our citizens is far greater than present expenditures. It calls for a wider recognition of the wisdom of our past and a more serious devotion to the creation and application of methods for its maintenance and perpetuation.

The attitude of every citizen toward the American design for education is not only an intellectual but a patriotic concern.

F. P. CORSON.

Name Patterson Professor Emeritus on Retirement

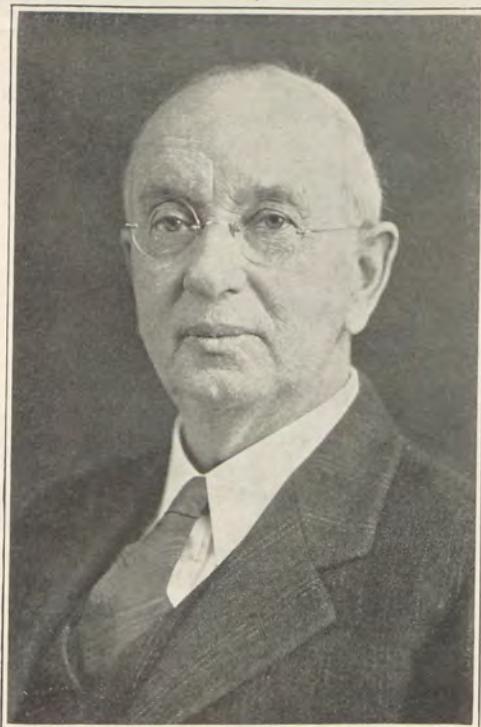

PROFESSOR Gaylord Hawkins Patterson, for 24 years a member of the faculty of the College, retired from active teaching at the close of the last school year and was named professor emeritus of sociology.

Coming to Dickinson in 1915, when one man taught economics and sociology, and political science was not part of the curriculum, Professor Patterson alone for several years offered courses in all three subjects, dropping politics in 1925 and economics in 1930, as additional men were added to the faculty. Until 1930 Professor Patterson was professor of economics and sociology, but in the latter year he was named professor of sociology.

Born in Slippery Rock, Pa., on August 18, 1866, the son of Dr. Asa M. Patterson, Professor Patterson attended Allegheny College and was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University in 1888. Two years later he received his doctorate from Yale University, in 1892 he was graduated from the Boston University School of Theology, and in 1893 he received a master of arts degree from Harvard University.

For the next 14 years Professor Patterson was in the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, but in 1907 he became professor of history and economics at Willamette University, Salem, Ore., and three years later he was made dean of the college and professor of social science at the same institution. After a year at the University of Wisconsin, where he was a fellow in sociology, Professor Patterson was elected to the Dickinson faculty.

Professor Patterson is a member of the American Sociological Society and of Phi Beta Kappa, and is the author of the following works: The Social Significance of the Heaven and Hell of Islam, The Chief Aim of High School Education; and "The High School Course of Study in relation to the Elementary Course from a Social Point of View," in the Proceedings of the Oregon State Teachers Association.

PROF. GAYLORD H. PATTERSON

Professor Patterson was married in 1900 to Miss Millicent Louise Webber, of Toronto, Canada, and they have one daughter, Mrs. Louise Patterson Rowland, '27.

Professor Patterson is the second man in the history of the College to be named professor emeritus upon retirement. The first was the late Professor Bradford Oliver McIntire, who retired in 1929 after 39 years' service.

Appoint Jones Federal Circuit Judge

CHARLES ALVIN JONES, '10L, was nominated in July by President Franklin D. Roosevelt and confirmed by the United States Senate to be judge of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals.

The third circuit, on which Judge Jones has now taken his seat, exercises jurisdiction in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware. For many years until his recent retirement the senior judge of this circuit, as of the entire federal judiciary, was Joseph Buffington, who received the honorary degree of doctor of laws from Dickinson College at the time of the sesqui-centennial convocation in 1933.

An interesting sidelight on the confirmation of Judge Jones by the Senate is that the chairman of the judiciary sub-committee appointed to consider the nomination was Senator James H. Hughes, of Delaware, uncle of the late James H. Hughes, Jr., '11, Wilmington attorney, who entered College in the same year in which Judge Jones entered the School of Law.

Born in Newport, Pa., in 1897, Judge Jones was educated in the public schools of that borough and prepared for college at Mercersburg Academy. Upon his graduation from Williams College in 1907, he entered the Dickinson School of Law and completed his course three years later.

During the World War Judge Jones was an ambulance driver and subsequently was attached to the communications division of the aviation branch of the Navy.

Until his recent elevation to the bench, Judge Jones practiced law in Pittsburgh as a partner in the legal firm of Sterrett, Acheson, and Jones. He was a member of the borough council of Edgeworth, a suburb of Pittsburgh, where he makes his home, and more recently he served as a member of the five-man commission appointed by former Governor George H. Earle to draft a proposed revision of the Pennsylvania State Constitution, as special counsel for the Public Service Commission, and as county solicitor of Allegheny County.

In a bitterly contested primary last year, Judge Jones won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, but was defeated in the general election by his fellow-Dickinsonian, Judge Arthur H. James, '04L.

Judge Jones was married in 1918 to Miss Isabella Arrott, of Glen Osborne, near Pittsburgh, and they have three children.

Named U. S. Prosecutor

George Mashank, '21L, of Sharon, Pa., was appointed Acting United States Attorney for Western Pennsylvania early this month. He had served as assistant district attorney.

A native of Johnstown, Mashank went to Sharon as a boy and returned there to practice law following his graduation from the Law School. From 1932 to 1936 he was assistant district attorney of Mercer County and on February 1, 1937 was named assistant U. S. district attorney.

Football Squad Preparing For Nine Game Schedule

After a ten day training camp session, Coach A. D. Kahler brought his football squad to Carlisle on September 19 to train his warriors for a nine game schedule which opens on September 30 against Blue Ridge on Biddle Field and will close on Thanksgiving Day, November 23 against Gettysburg in a game to be played at Hershey, Pa.

The Gettysburg game was originally scheduled for November 30 at Hershey. With the change in Thanksgiving Day to November 23, the athletic authorities of the two colleges agreed to the earlier date, and continued the plan to meet in the new Hershey stadium. Reserved seats for this annual conflict will cost $1.65.

A new concrete stadium seating 15,000 spectators has been built this year at Hershey. Many leading high school and college games will be played there this year. Dickinson and Gettysburg athletic officials regard this year's meeting there as an experiment, though it is thought Hershey is nearer the alumni geographical center of both colleges than Carlisle or Gettysburg.

Early season training indicates that Coach Kahler, who begins his fifth year as Dickinson mentor with eight returning lettermen, plans to mold a team which will be largely composed of sophomores. He has been devoting a good bit of his time to these men who showed promise on last year's strong Freshman team. He is being assisted by R. H. McAndrews, George Shuman, '37, and the Binder twins, '37, who will coach the Freshman team again this year.

For the first time, the Dickinson eleven will be led by co-captains. They are Harry W. Wilson, outstanding center, and Gerald Darr, fleet back, both seniors.

Albright will be the opponent at Homecoming, Saturday, November 11, which is also Armistice Day. Dickinson and Albright have not met on the gridiron in some years. Reserved seats for this game will cost $1.25.

Dad's Day, which is growing in popularity yearly, will be observed on Saturday, November 4, when Washington College will journey from Chestertown, Md. to Biddle Field. The reserved seat charge for this game will be $1.10.

Two relatively long jumps face the team. One is the journey to Washington, Pa., to meet Washington and Jefferson's eleven, and the other to Salem, Va., to meet Roanoke for the first time in the history of the two colleges. The Dickinson Club of Pittsburgh plans a luncheon meeting in Washington, Pa., on the day of the W. & J. game.

Another opponent of former years, Western Maryland, appears on the 1939 schedule after a long absence. The relations will be resumed in a game at Westminster, Md. on November 18.

All of the other elevens to be met were on last year's calendar when Blue Ridge, Susquehanna and Delaware were opponents. The season again opens against Blue Ridge and the following Saturday, Susquehanna will return to Carlisle. Reserved seats for both of these games will be 75 cents.

Alumni desiring seats for any of the games can place their orders with George Shuman, Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa. A reserved season ticket for the four games to be played in Carlisle is being sold for $3.00. This assures the purchaser of the same seat at midfield for all home games.

Eight Football Games To Be Broadcast Over Radio

EIGHT of the nine football games to be played by the Dickinson team this fall will be broadcast by the Atlantic Refining Company. At the microphone will be David Bennett.

Beginning with the second game on the schedule, against Susquehanna on October 7, all remaining games will be broadcast in play-by-play descriptions. The dates, opponent and radio stations are as follows:

Oct. 7	Susquehanna	WKBO
Oct. 14	Delaware	WDEL; WKBO
Oct. 21	W. & J.	WKBO
Oct. 28	Roanoke	WKBO
Nov. 4	Washington	WKBO
Nov. 11	Albright	WEEU; WKBO
Nov. 18	West. Md.	WKBO
Nov. 23	Gettysburg	WKBO; WORK

Following its yearly custom for the fourth time, the Atlantic Refining Company has acquired broadcasting rights to the most important collegiate football contests to be played along the Atlantic Coast and as far west as Columbus, Ohio.

Year by year the program has grown larger until this season all records for commercial collegiate football broadcasting are topped with a total of 191 games to be heard over seventy-five radio stations and voiced by fifty-two play-by-play and commercial announcers. Twenty-five spotters, or observers, will complete the complement to make an aggregate of 102 men on the broadcasting staff.

This season's schedule of broadcasts includes the complete or complete home lineups of twenty-seven colleges located along the Eastern Seaboard from Massachusetts to Florida and as far west as Columbus. The gridiron activities of 108 schools will be heard over Atlantic's network. This figure includes the opponents of the twenty-seven institutions mentioned.

Eight Soccer Game Schedule

An eight game schedule faces the soccer team, which will be coached this year by Harry Brown, former star of the West Chester State Teachers College, who is physical director of the Carlisle Y. M. C. A.

Few lettermen remain from last year's soccer team and Coach Brown will mold a practically new combination.

The Soccer schedule is as follows:

Oct. 11	Delaware at Carlisle
Oct. 14	Gettysburg at Gettysburg
Oct. 20	Ursinus at Carlisle
Oct. 28	Temple at Carlisle
Nov. 8	Western Maryland at Westminster
Nov. 15	Gettysburg at Carlisle
Nov. 17	F. & M. at Lancaster
Nov. 25	Bucknell at Carlisle

Add New Stands to Biddle Field

Permanent bleachers which increase the capacity of Biddle Field by 500 seats were erected on the College athletic field last month, taking the place of some of the removable stands which were formerly used.

Located on the east side of the gridiron, the new stands are seven rows high and extend between the 35-yard lines. They are of the elevated type.

The stands will be reserved for the Dads' Day and Homecoming football games with Washington and Albright Colleges on November 4 and November 11 respectively.

Governor Appoints Alumnus Judge of York County

Robert M. Laird, '27L, was appointed by Governor Arthur H. James, '04L, in July as judge of the court of common pleas of York County, Pa. He will serve until January 1, and has announced his candidacy for the full ten-year term.

Judge Laird was admitted to practice before the courts of York County in 1928. From 1932 to 1936 he was solicitor of York County and has also been solicitor of the borough of Hanover and of the Hanover school district. For a number of years he was chairman of the York County Republican committee.

Born in Petersburg, Pa., in 1896, he was educated in the local public schools and entered Gettysburg College. His education was interrupted by the World War, during which time he served in France, and he was graduated from Gettysburg in 1920. For several years thereafter Judge Laird conducted an insurance business in Hanover, but in 1924 he entered the Dickinson School of Law, where he was a roommate of Judge W. Clarence Sheely, '26L, of the Adams-Fulton counties courts.

Judge Laird has been commander of the Howard Bair Post, American Legion, of Hanover, and has served as district commander of the Legion. He is active in Boy Scout work and was president of the old Hanover club of the now defunct Blue Ridge baseball league.

Drawing New Plans For Changes to Bosler Hall

A SUGGESTION to change the plans for the rebuilding of Bosler Hall led finally to so many differences that a completely new set of plans are being drawn by W. W. Emmart, Baltimore architect. These will be let out for bids and the work of reconstruction probably will not start until next April. It had been planned to begin the work during the past summer.

Mr. Emmart had practically completed the original plan which had been approved by a sub-committee of the Board of Trustees and then by the Executive Committee last April. During the Commencement discussions among the members of the Board, proposed changes were suggested and this led to other studies being made of the plans.

To avoid a building project being carried out through the whole academic year, President F. P. Corson has recommended to the Board of Trustees that construction be deferred until next April.

At the opening faculty meeting he instructed the faculty to plan student work so that collateral reading which is done in the library be completed by April 1.

The new plans will not be greatly different from the original ones. Outwardly, the building will closely resemble the drawing which was printed in the May number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS. The top of the T-shaped front of the new structure will be changed a little and will be placed several feet further to the west than had been planned. This will assure an unobstructed view of Old West from High Street, and at the same time will not reduce the floor space of the addition as the two wings at each end of the T will be of the same depth as first planned.

The plans and specifications will probably be ready for bidders early in October, and possibly by November 1 the Trustees will be able to award the contract for the construction of the new Bosler.

Class of 1914 Establishes Scholarship at 25th Reunion

ONE of the highlights of the Alumni Day luncheon at the last Commencement was the presentation by Rev. Frank Y. Jaggers to President F. P. Corson of a check covering gifts from members of his class to establish the Class of 1914 Scholarship. The total of the fund which is now held as part of the permanent endowment of the College is $1,370.00.

Beginning some years ago, officers of the class solicited gifts for this purpose and at the 20th reunion of the class in 1934 approximately $800 was turned over to the College to be held in trust. In this year's 25th reunion other gifts were added, and at the meeting held in June it was decided to ask contributions in an effort to raise the total to $2,000.00 by the 30th class reunion.

While the 1914 scholarship is available for any student of the College, the donors asked that through the years first consideration be given to any son or daughter of 1914.

The following report of the silver anniversary of 1914 was prepared by Carlyle R. Earp, of Baltimore:

With 33 alumni present out of a possible 57, plus numerous spouses and offspring, the Class of 1914 forgathered at

Makes Bequest to College

From the appraisement of the estate of the late Robert H. Conlyn, '72, who died on June 1 in Carlisle at the age of 86, it is indicated that the College will eventually receive between $10,000 and $15,000 under a bequest contained in his will.

The will creates a life estate for his brother, Dr. Edward S. Conlyn, '78, and directed that a number of public bequests be paid when the life estate is terminated. The residue goes to a niece and nephew.

The estate is to be divided into 135 shares, of which the College is to receive ten shares, and the Dickinson Library Guild of which Mr. Conlyn was for many years a director, one share. It is estimated that after the payment of taxes and other expenses each share will be worth not less than $1,000.

Commencement for its 25th anniversary reunion. Its two principal meetings were at the Alumni Luncheon when Rev. Frank Y. Jaggers, class treasurer, presented to the President of the College the balance of the 1914 Scholarship Fund and the reunion dinner at the Carlisle Country Club on Sunday afternoon. In between times there was almost constant good fellowship among the classmen and the "life of the party" was Florence Strock Bickley of Wisconsin, most youthful-looking of the group.

Dr. C. E. Wagner, Wilmington, Delaware, the president, called upon many at this dinner to tell the story of their many interesting activities since graduation. Principal among these was Rev. Raymond E. Marshall, who with Mrs. Marshall came from California to attend his first reunion since 1914. Mr. Marshall related many entertaining episodes associated with his missionary work in Panama Canal Zone, South America and the Philippines.

Nineteen Fourteen is proud of three "class distinctions"; its sustained class spirit, its class scholarship that it plans to increase and, best of all, the four double marriages of boys and girls in the Class, who seemed even more happy than at any previous reunion.

Presents Old Photographs

Rev. Louis Hieb, '95, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Ogallala, Nebr., has recently presented to the Dickinsoniana Room of the College a set of pictures of about 40 of his classmates and other students of the College of 45 years ago.

The photographs, most of which were made in Carlisle studios, for the most part show the subjects wearing senior cap and gown. Nearly all the subjects are identified.

Mr. Hieb's gift is not the first of its kind to be made to the College. Recently an album containing photographs of the members of the class of 1871 was presented to the College and placed in the Dickinsoniana Room in West College.

Homecoming in November

Homecoming will be held Saturday, November 11, which is also Armistice Day. The feature of the day will be the football game with Albright on Biddle Field.

Homecoming will begin on Friday, Nov. 10, when the Alumni Council will tender a dinner to the faculty. The fall meeting of the Council will be held that evening. Fraternity social events will be held on Saturday evening.

Dr. Morgan Improved in Health

Former President James Henry Morgan, '78, who was ill at his home in Carlisle during most of the summer, is now improving.

Dr. Morgan was unable to take part in any of the public commencement exercises this year and early in June became ill. He rallied after two or three weeks and was sufficiently improved to be up and about again, but in July he suffered a further attack and spent most of the remainder of the summer in bed.

Dr. Morgan's grandson, James M. McElfish, son of Russell C. McElfish, '14, and Margaret Morgan McElfish, '14, is a member of the entering class of the College this year.

Teach in Summer Schools

Three members of the College faculty taught in the summer schools of as many colleges and universities during July and August.

For the 13th consecutive summer Professor Wilbur H. Norcross, '07, head of the department of psychology, taught psychology at the Johns Hopkins University summer session in Baltimore. Professor Milton W. Eddy taught biology at Brooklyn College, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Professor Mulford Stough, of the department of history, offered courses in history at the summer session of Pennsylvania State College.

Names Head of Boston Club

HOWARD W. SELBY

President J. Brainerd Kremer, Jr., '97, of the General Alumni Association, has announced the appointment of Howard W. Selby, '13, general manager of the United Farmers' Co-operative Creamery Association of Charlestown, Mass., as president of the Dickinson Club of Boston to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Colonel William A. Ganoe, '02; who has been transferred to Pittsburgh, Pa.

With A. Norman Needy, '16, secretary-treasurer of the Boston group, Mr. Selby is planning for a meeting of Boston Dickinsonians at his home in West Newton, Mass., early this fall.

Dickinsonians who are students in and about Boston are requested to advise A. Norman Needy, 35 Llewellyn Road, West Newton, Mass., of their addresses, so that he can send them notices of meetings. In many cases, the College has only home addresses.

More Contributors

MOST alumni have seen the report on the result of this year's Alumni Fund campaign. The amount, $10,282, is not the highest of the four years of the Fund, nor is it the lowest, but it was more successful than that of any other year because there were more contributors.

The "top" year in money was in 1937 when something more than $12,000 was raised by 640 contributors. This year 658 contributors were in the list and that is more gratifying than the grand total.

With more than 4,000 alumni, to find only 658 of them contributing is not the kind of thing which creates ecstacies, but it is a substantial percentage over the number of contributors the first year and, as stated, it is the largest since the Fund was organized.

It is quite possible that there is no relation between the relatively small number of contributors and the friendly and loyal attitude of the alumni body. Not included in the 658 are many alumni whose means do not permit giving what they think they should. Unquestionably there are no "soreheads" in the contributors' list. Outside of it are many thoughtless, some indifferent.

What perhaps the alumni body needs to know most is that in the modern trends of economics and the rapid development of tax-supported education, the small college of somewhat limited endowment cannot face the hazards of the future without the generous help of its alumni.

There are predictions that there is an end to the so-called large fortunes from which the small and large privately endowed institutions gained so much of their sustenance. Tax measures and other social developments are reducing if not wiping out such gifts.

Running in the same direction to the handicap of the small college is the attraction tax-supported institutions of learning have for college students. There is no possible way for the private college to compete in tuition fees with the large state university, even if it chose to do so.

The small college must maintain its standards of excellence. It must plow its own field of service so well that on that account alone boys will want to become its students. Since college tuition fees never match tuition costs, the margin must come from endowments or such easy-giving methods as Alumni Fund campaigns.

For that reason such campaigns at Dickinson and similar institutions assume importance far beyond the sentimental level. They have become necessary if quality of service is to be maintained. They may even become vital to the permanency of the institution. More than ever the small privately managed institution must depend on its alumni for students, for sustenance, for life itself.

It is natural to conclude that once the graduates of Dickinson understand the facts in the case, they will not permit their ability to give $5 but inability to give $10 keep them from giving anything at all. Dickinson could not long be proud of its product, once the alumni body recognizes the inescapable need, if that gratifying group of 658 contributors to this year's Alumni Fund did not next year or soon thereafter double or triple itself.

Class Gifts

CLASS gifts made a reappearance on the campus last June. The lack of them over recent years when so good a beginning was made, has been disturbing to those who realize what a weld between a class and its alma mater a gift becomes.

This year it was the class of 1914 which gave its loyalty expression in a $1500 cash gift to be used as part of the general endowment fund for scholarship purposes, first to descendants of their own members, and second to other students.

This follows somewhat the pattern of the class of 1902 which established a fund creating an Award but which also in its covenant with the College provided that ultimately its gift shall be merged with general endowment.

Class gifts should be encouraged not only in the interest of the College but of the class. Human nature being what it is, members of a class probably would prefer to give in that capacity rather than as part of the general army of alumni. It is quite possible that if class officers would emphasize this idea more in their own groups, the return of class gifts at Commencement time could be guaranteed.

New Directory

PART II of this issue of The Alumnus is the catalogue of living alumni, the second published by the General Alumni Association. Its publication is timely. The last such volume bore the date of 1931. Much has happened since then which the present volume can correct.

Here is a service to the general campus and alumni interest of which the Association can be proud. It is a genuine contribution to the kit of working tools which every college must have to do its work well.

Subscribers to THE ALUMNUS will find it a very interesting and helpful volume.

Start Now

EVEN though these words, if read at all, will be read in September, now is by no means too early for officers of classes and alumni clubs to get the year's program under way. Delay in preparations has killed more good alumni club dinners and successful class reunions than any conceivable lack of interest.

The practice in too many instances is for both class and club officers to wait until after the holidays to plan their dinners or arrange class reunions. Such procedure is fatal. It does not get results.

The right kind of a club dinner and the right kind of a class reunion are not pulled by magic from a hat. In both instances effort and time are required and when they are furnished there need be no anxiety about the outcome. Experience has shown that if alumni clubs let their dinner dates slip out of the winter season into the spring, there is small chance of success. One club which did that last year, had to abandon its dinner entirely because of lagging interest.

THE ALUMNUS can offer no better counsel to the alumni clubs and classes which are scheduled for reunions next June, than to urge them to start to work AT ONCE.

Trustee Reveals English Philanthropists' Attitude

A VALUABLE sidelight on the history of the efforts of the first trustees of the College to secure funds for the infant institution is contained in a letter of William Bingham to the Board, which has recently been acquired by the College.

Written from London in December, 1783, less than three months after Dickinson was chartered by the State of Pennsylvania, the letter is Bingham's formal statement of the impossibility of securing contributions in England at that time.

Bingham, who was one of the charter trustees, was in Europe at the time the Board organized, and he was at once commissioned to solicit and receive gifts for the College. This he was unable to do, as his letter reveals, partly because of the low economic state of England as a result of the long war with America and with more formidable European enemies and partly because of a rather natural jealousy of the success and promise of the recently rebel colonies in America.

The complete text of the letter is as follows:

London, Decemr. 29th, 1783.

Gentn.

Previous to my Departure from America, I received a Letter from Mr. Jno. Montgomery in behalf of himself, & the other Friends of the Institution, which you so warmly patronize, requesting me to recommend its Interests, to the humane & benevolent of this Country.

My Attachment to its Prosperity inclined me on my Arrival here, Sedulously to exert myself in favor of Such Views; —But it gives me Pain to inform you, that my Disappointment has been as great, as it was unexpected.

I have the honor to inclose you a Copy of what I wrote Mr. Montgomery on the Subject, which will communicate the Prospects I then had before me.

On receipt of the Letter which you have done me the honor to address me, with the Several Inclosures, empowering me to Solicit & receive Donations from the Friends of Literature & Humanity, that might be inclined to contribute towards the Support of this truly Catholic Seminary, I renewed my Applications, & more assiduously interested myself in its Behalf.

I Sought those Characters, whose Reputation Stood the highest for Liberality of Sentiment, & who, from the purest Principles, had befriended the Revolution of America,

I informed them of the benevolent Views of the Founders of this Establishment, & of the beneficial Effects that would result to Humanity, from planting the Seeds of Knowledge in that Western Country, at present removed from all Access to the Improvement of the human Mind.

They have invariably informed me that no Success could now be expected in this Undertaking;—That whilst the Effects of the American War were So visible in the Marks of public & private Distress, that universally appear, all Sollicitations for the Support of American Establishments would be ineffectual;—That Such Applications would lead reflective Minds, that were applied to, to contrast the Situation of the two Countries, which would Show America in all the Vigor of Youth & Constitution, making rapid Strides to Riches & political Importance, whilst this Kingdom exhibits all the Appearance of a declining Empire.

I confess that I have been exceedingly disappointed in my Expectations;—from the bountiful Contributions that have hitherto been received, in aid of Such Establishments, there Seemed to be Room for the indulgence of a Belief, that very effectual Assistance might Still be procured.

But the material Change of Situation that the two Countries have undergone, is the principal Obstacle to a Successful Application.

Pennsylvania no longer constitutes a

Part of the British Empire;—the Improvement of her Citizens in Knowledge & literary Acquirements was once an Object of Consequence with the British, as the Advantages derived from them, were only relative, & eventually centered in this Kingdom.

But the general Opinion at present, is, that we are hostile to their Interests;—So far from a Spirit of Conciliation having already taken place, & a return to their old Good Humor, there Seems to be but a very languid Disposition towards it.

This may appear Surprizing, when it is considered how advantageous it would be to them, to cement a friendly & intimate Connection with the Inhabitants of the United States;—But various Reasons of a political Nature continue to operate against the Measure.

Similar Views of procuring Assistance from this Country, in Aid of the Same Plan of founding a College, had been anticipated by the People of New Hampshire, who commissioned Dr. Wheeler for this express Purpose;—After travelling thro this Country, & Several Parts of Europe, I am informed that he has returned to America without procuring a Sufficient Subscription to Support His Expenses.

Even an Institution of Learning to be established in Nova Scotia, the Retreat of the Loyalists, which is warmly recommended to the Patronage of the Public, & which has a just Claim to their Generosity, has procured as yet but very feeble Success & Support.

However, altho from the advice of our warmest Friends & Well Wishers, I shall at present decline any further Solicitations, I do not despair of Seeing a more favorable Disposition towards us take place, which I shall gladly improve to the Advantage of your benevolent views,—wishing you to be assured, that the Institution has not a Sincerer Friend, nor one that will more readily contribute to every Species of Aid & Assistance that it may eventually require, than

Wm. Bingham.
