BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Born in 1912, Sarah L. Rowe graduated from Dickinson College in 1934. Throughout her life she held teaching jobs at various schools, instructing primarily in English. She taught at Taylor School in Philadelphia, a high school in Paoli, and was professor at West Chester State College until 1977. One of her earliest jobs was a position with the Philadelphia Association for Retarded Children. It was through this job that she came to love and admire the work and person of writer Pearl S. Buck, who spoke on a number of occasions for the association. Upon Buck's invitation in 1952, Rowe went to live with Buck and her husband. Pearl wanted a talkative companion, and she was also very interested in helping Sarah with her writing. This arrangement lasted two years. In 1958, Buck appears to have ended her relationship with Rowe, though the circumstances surrounding this break are unclear. Rowe continued to teach and to write short stories and poems throughout the remainder of her life. In 1970 her collection of short children's poems, entitled Jungle Jingles, was published. It appears to have been a great hope of Sarah's to write a biography of Pearl S. Buck, but this was never fully accomplished. Sarah L. Rowe died Oct. 3, 1992.

Pearl Sydenstricker, born in 1892 in West Virginia, was raised in China, the child of Presbyterian American missionaries. She returned to America to attend Randolph Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg, VA, graduating in 1914. In 1917, she married John Buck. Though she later divorced Buck and married Robert Walsh, she continued to keep her first married name professionally. Pearl S. Buck wrote numerous books, mostly works of fiction. (She also published a few works under the pseudonym John Sedges.) Her love for China and the compassion she felt for people was evident in her works. The Good Earth is her most famous novel, winning the Pulitzer Prize in 1932. In 1938, she was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature. Following World War II, she established the Pearl S. Buck Foundation, an adoption agency to aid the illegitimate Asian children of U. S. soldiers. Pearl S. Buck died in 1973.

COLLECTION DESCRIPTION

The Sarah L. Rowe Collection is composed of books authored by Pearl S. Buck, as well as correspondence. This collection was acquired through a bequest of Sarah Rowe. The books are individually cataloged and accessible through the online library catalog; a list of these books is also included as an appendix at the end of this collection register. A number of these books have been signed by Pearl Buck, and some include marginal notes penned by Sarah Rowe.

The correspondence are housed in one document box and are arranged into categories for Sarah Rowe and Pearl Buck based on authorship or receipt. Within these two categories, the correspondence are identified as "letters sent" and "letters received," and then arranged chronologically. A portion of the correspondence are indicative of the friendship between Rowe and Buck in the 1950s. Their letters involve discussion of writing, vocation, the Philadelphia Association for Retarded Children, and visiting plans. Also included in the collection are numerous letters from Rowe to other friends and acquaintances. In these, Sarah often discusses Pearl S. Buck and their friendship. A great deal of the later correspondence has to do with research that Rowe was involved in while preparing her biography of Pearl S. Buck, a work which was never completed.
