My Dear Sir

To day a friend has sent to me the Fredricks Herald - & I perceive that articles in relation to me have been inserted there mainly for the purpose of being transcribed into the opposition papers in other places to be represented as my character in the place where I am best known. The articles are not intended for the Fredricks market but have been concerted elsewhere by the Bank agents. - It is necessary therefore that my friends in Fredricks should do me justice - I am represented as pecuniarily indifferent to pecuniary matters & the impression intended to be created by that expression, ^{is} that I was reckless in that respect

I suffered myself to be involved in Debt & my private affairs to become entangled and embarrassed. - It is true I have never spent my money where family connections made it or the calls of Charity or any public object required me to use it - and the slaves which I owned all of which I have since emancipated, were treated with the indulgence of children. - But you who know my habits as well as I know them myself will bear me witness that I never spent any thing beyond my income - I did not hoard money but I never went in Debt - No Merchant or Mechanic that I recollect ever found it necessary to call on me a second time for his ^{unless the urgency of professional business prevented me} account - and I believe that my punctuality in the payment of any accounts against me was as much relied on by the citizens of Frederick as the punctuality of its Banks - or any Banks - & while I lived there I never had a dispute with a merchant or Mechanic about his Bill - However I am not disposed to give my own character for no man is an impartial judge in his own case. - All I wish of you is that this intrigue should be disfruted & my true standing whatever it may be made known. - If the Frederick community were the only persons who would read that article I should not think it worth contradiction - but it was manufactured by directions from abroad - I will be immediately inserted in the Bonds papers throughout the union as the evidence of my standing at home - If any of those who call themselves my friends, are amusing themselves in the manner stated - I know who they are and you know how well I have for some years understood the insidious character of their pretended friendship - You may show this letter to Selby but do not show it to any one else -

Very truly your friend

My dear sir:

Today a friend has sent to me the Frederick Herald—and I perceive that articles in relation to me have been inserted there precisely for the purpose of being transcribed into the opposition papers in other places represented as my character in the place where I am best known. The articles are not intended for the Frederick market, but have been concocted elsewhere by the Bank agents.—It is necessary therefore that my friends in Frederick should do me justice—I am represented as proverbially indifferent to pecuniary matters and the impression intended to be created by that expression, is that I was reckless in that respect and suffered myself to be involved in debt and my private affairs to become entangled and embarrassed. It is true I have never spared my money where family connections needed it or the calls of charity or any public object required me to use it – and the slaves which I owned all of which I have since emancipated, were treated with the indulgence of children.—But you who my habits as well as I know them myself will bear me witness that I never spent any thing beyond my income—I did not hoard my money but I never went in debt—No merchant or mechanic that I recollect ever found necessary to call on me a second time for his account, unless the urgency of professional business prevented me from attending to it—and I believe that my punctuality in the payment of any accounts against me was as much relied on by the citizens of Frederick as the punctuality of its Banks—or any Bank—and while I lived there I never had a dispute with a merchant or mechanic about his bill—However I am not disposed to give my own character for no man is an impartial judge in his own case.—All I ask of you is that this intrigue should be defeated any my true standing whatever it may be made known.—If the Frederick community were the only persons who would read that article I should not think it worth contradiction—but it was manufactured by directions from abroad—and will be immediately inserted in the Back papers throughout the Union as evidence of my standing at home—If any of those who call themselves my friends, are amusing themselves in the manner above stated—I know who they are and you know how well I have for some years understood the invidious character of their pretended friendship—you may show this letter to Schley but do not show it to any one else—
