Student Teams Visit Churches In New Program

TEAMS of undergraduates under the direction of Professor William D. Gould and Mr. J. Wesley Robb, of the College department of religion and philosophy, have been engaged since early fall in a "Christian Service Project" which carries them into Methodist churches of the Central Pennsylvania and Philadelphia Conferences to help those churches in their work and to provide experience for students interested in the ministry and other forms of Christian service.

When Mr. Robb was named to the faculty last spring, he was then in California and was asked by President Edel to make a report on the student service work now being carried on in two California colleges. The Dickinson program is based substantially on that of the University of the Redlands, of which Dr. George H. Armoacost, '26, is president; while some ideas have been taken from the program of the College of the Pacific.

Professor Gould has been serving as chairman of the project and Mr. Robb is acting as its secretary. The work proceeds according to a fairly well defined pattern.

Each minister in the Central Pennsylvania Conference received a letter from Professor Gould in October asking him if he wished to make use of a deputation team. In February the ministers of the Philadelphia Conference received a similar letter. If an affirmative reply is received, Mr. Robb then sends out a questionnaire asking the minister precisely what he wishes the Dickinson group to do. The team then plans its activities.

A normal program will begin on Saturday night, when the team, consisting usually of five students and a faculty member, arrives at the host church, has supper, and puts on a program of recreation for young people. Hospitality for the night is provided in the homes of the congregation. On Sunday morning the members of the group almost invariably teach Sunday school classes and sometimes the faculty member conducts the morning worship service.

On Sunday afternoon the team does whatever the local minister wishes. Sometimes this has been to visit young people who are prospective church members; at other times the team members have met with members of the Church School Board to give what counsel and advice they can. In the evening the students conduct the youth meetings and often one of the student members of the team will conduct the evening worship service.

After the team has returned to Carlisle, the minister is sent another questionnaire asking him to evaluate critically the work of the deputation team. These critical evaluations are then used when planning new trips.

Because of limitations of time and faculty personnel, a deputation cannot be sent out each week. About 60 students have indicated their interest in participating . Teams have been sent to the White Haven Methodist Church, White Haven, Pa., St. Paul Methodist Church, Danville, Grace Methodist Church, Altoona, First Methodist Church, Milton, First Methodist Church Ardmore, and other places. One minister described the week-end as the signal event of his church year and another church has invited the student group to return in the spring.

Becomes Chaplain of Senate

The Rev. Dr. Frederick B. Harris, '09, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church in Washington, has been elected Chaplain of the United States Senate. He formerly held the post, but did not serve in the session of the 80th Congress.

Noted Biographer to Join Faculty in Fall

C HARLES Coleman Sellers, member of the library staff of Wesleyan University since 1936 and author of a number of biographies of early American figures, has been appointed to the faculty of the College as curator of Dickinsoniana. He will assume his duties in September.

The author of a two-volume life of Charles Willson Peale, prominent portrait painter of the late eighteenth century, Mr. Sellers is also a descendant of his subject. Since Mr. Sellers will probably teach a course in American painting, Dickinson will have one of its art courses taught by a descendant of one of early America's great artists, who painted the portraits of some of the founders of the College.

At Wesleyan University Mr. Sellers has been the associate of Fremont Rider, Wesleyan librarian, in the development of several of the revolutionary library techniques, like micro-cards, for which Mr. Rider is well known. At Dickinson Mr. Sellers will help adapt some of these ideas to a smaller college library.

Born in Philadelphia in 1903, Mr. Sellers was educated in the schools there and was graduated from Haverford College in 1925. He received a master's degree in history from Harvard University in 1926 and remained at Cambridge another year, as he puts it, "to learn to write history." He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa at Haverford in recognition of his achievements in biography.

The first product of his learning to write history was a biography of Lorenzo Dow, the most famous of the eccentric preachers of the early nineteenth century. Although never formally accepted into the Methodist Church, Dow contributed much to the spread of Methodism through the United States. Of this book, published in 1928, a critic wrote that Dow had "never been written about more interestingly or with greater force of authority."

Two years later Mr. Sellers published a biography of Benedict Arnold: The

CHARLES COLEMAN SELLERS

Proud Warrior, which the Boston Transcript described as "honest biography all the way through" and which moved other reviewers to comment especially on the author's literary skill. In the same year he published a short biography of Theophilus R. Gates, a contemporary of Dow, a Connecticut Yankee who preached perfectionism and founded a sect known as the Battle-Axes.

The first volume of Mr. Sellers' biography of Peale was published in 1939. This was reissued with the second volume in 1947 under the auspices of the American Philosophical Society. "When American art, and its relation to the political, social, and artistic development of America secure the scholarly attention they have so long deserved but so seldom received," declared the reviewer in the Saturday Review of Literature of the first volume, "The Artist of the Revolution will be required reading." A third volume on Peale's paintings and their subjects is now in preparation.

Mr. Sellers is also the author of occasional magazine articles and of two plays produced by little theater groups. One of these is a dramatization of the life of Lorenzo Dow and the other, The Devil of Pisa, is based on an incident in the life of Shelley.

For two years Mr. Sellers was in the antiquarian book business.

He is married to the former Helen Earle Gilbert, the author of poetry, plays

Former Missionary Oldest Living Graduate

WHILE Dr. Edward S. Conlyn, of Carlisle, a non-graduate of the Class of 1878, is the oldest living alumnus, the Rev. Dr. Frank D. Gamewell, of Clifton Springs, N. Y., who received his diploma from the college in 1881, is the oldest living graduate. While these statements are based on class reckonings, the titles become confused when birthdays are studied. Dr. Gamewell, born in Camden, S. C., on August 31, 1857 is six days less than four months older than Dr. Conlyn who was born in Carlisle on Christmas Day of that year. An objection might be entered by Philip S. Hills, of East Hampton, Conn., for while he graduated in 1882, a year after Dr. Gamewell, he was born more than six months earlier in Salona, Pa., on February 3, 1857.

There are four alumni who are in their nineties, the three already named and John M. Rhey, of the Class of 1883, college trustee, of Carlisle, who was born in Ebensburg on August 8, 1858. Samuel F. Snively, '82, of Duluth, Minn., who was born in Greencastle, Pa., on November 24, 1859 and will celebrate his 90th birthday on Thanksgiving day of this year.

The copy of the alumni directory published last May listed two graduates in the class of 1881, Dr. Gamewell and the Rev. George M. Cleckner. It has just been learned that Mr. Cleckner died in June, 1942.

One of the distinctions Dr. Gamewell can claim is that the college conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Philosophy upon him. When he was so honored in 1901 he became one of the few to receive that degree. Heralded just and children's books and at present a member of the Connecticut legislature. Mrs. Sellers is writing a biography of Prudence Crandall, whose school for colored girls at Canterbury, Conn., became in 1833 one of the battlefields of the anti-slavery controversy. They have two children.

the year before as "Hero of the Boxer Rebellion," he was the outstanding figure in the defense of the British Legation at Peking during that uprising. At that time he was professor of physics in Peking University, having been in China since his graduation and after five years as superintendent of the West China Mission. Recognizing his mastery during the months of the Boxer siege, Syracuse University conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon him and Columbia University made him a master of science.

After the raising of the siege, Dr. Gamewell returned to America, and served on the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Church four years as field secretary and four years more as Executive Secretary.

In 1909, he returned to China and for years until his retirement was Superintendent of Education for the Methodist Church and Executive Secretary of the China Christian Education Association, an interdenominal and international organization aimed to bring all the Protestant churches and missions in China into a homogeneous and effective educational system. For ten years he was editor of the Educational Review, a quarterly published at Shanghai.

Professor Stough Ill

Prof. Mulford Stough, of the department of history, suffered a slight stroke just prior to the Christmas vacation and has been confined to his home, 23 West High Street, Carlisle, since then. His condition has improved greatly though he will be unable to resume teaching during the present academic year.

THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS

DR. PAUL R. BURKHOLDER, '24, AT WORK IN THE OSBORN MEMORIAL LABORATORY AT YALE UNIVERSITY WHERE HE IS EATON PROFESSOR OF BOTANY AND FELLOW OF SILLIMAN COLLEGE.

Finds Drug in Common Soil To Cure Mankind

"IN A BIT of common soil taken from a Venezuelan field Yale scientists have found a new and spectacularly successful weapon for the battle of man vs. microbes. The discovery of the new drug, called Chloromycetin, came (as so many scientific achievements come) from patient, systematic trial and error rather than sudden insight or lucky accident. It was the payoff of a medical treasure hunt in which Yale Botanist P. R. Burkholder examined earth from nearly every country in the world (left) to find new germ-killing molds." So proclaimed Life in the issue of November 29, 1948 on page 61 on which appeared a picture similar to the one (left) which was furnished by the magazine for the exclusive use of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS.

The Life caption accompanying the photograph read "Soil samples from all over the world are tested by Botanist Burkholder in Osborn Memorial laboratories of Yale University. Each sample is mixed with a nutrient substance which permits mold spores in it to grow. After the minute plants have developed, each species present in that particular soil is transplanted to a separate glass tube and grown as a pure culture. The pure strains are then tested against living germs."

The "Yale Botanist" is Dr. Paul R. Burkholder, who received his A.B. from the college upon his graduation in 1924 and a Ph.D. from Cornell University in 1929. Joining the Yale faculty in 1940 he is now Eaton Professor of Botany, and Fellow of Silliman College. He is also a member of the Standing Committee on the University Library.

As far back as October, 1947, Science reported the work of Dr. Burkholder and a few weeks later Time hailed the discovery of chloromycetin as "a promising new weapon against tuberculosis," and said "the drug has performed brilliantly (in the test tube) against the bacteria of tuberculosis, undulant fever and a variety of other tough germs."

Following the publication of the Life article last November, the New York Times and other daily newspapers have carried reports of Dr. Burkholder's research. The February 5 issue of Collier's in a feature article "The Greatest Drug since Penicillin" reports the cure of 16 typhus patients in Puerto Acosta, Bolivia, the cure of 25 gravely ill of 'scrub' typhus on the other side of the world in the town of Kuala Lumpur in the Malay States and the cure of 17 people in a Baltimore hospital who were suffering from Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

In the November 29 number Life explained that "Out of 20,000 molds cultured from 6,000 samples of soil and tested against the germs of virulent diseases, only a few showed any effect. One of these produced the drug Chloromycetin. Purified and tested by Parke, Davis & Co., it proved potent enough to cure lethal scrub typhus in laboratory mice. The drug's effectiveness on humans was demonstrated when typhus flared up several months ago in Malaya. Army doctors, using their new-found cure, saved every patient they treated. Even more important, they accidentally treated, and cured, two cases of typhoid fever-a disease no other drug had cured before.

"How many diseases will eventually fall before Chloromycetin is not yet known. More tests may well reveal more cures. But though the drug's potentialities are still being carefully explored its commercial production is being hastened. By next spring Chloromycetin will be in the hands of family doctors to give them their first effective weapon against some of the worst of human diseases."

The son of a minister when he entered the college in the fall of 1920 from the Chambersburg High School, Paul Burkholder planned to follow in his father's footsteps and become a clergyman. In those days the biology laboratories were in Denny Hall and he spent much of his time there with Prof. Milton W. Eddy, the son of a missionary, but they didn't discuss theology. The young student quickly developed an avid interest in biology and then felt destined for a career in forestry. While an undergraduate he and Prof. Eddy went to the University of Chicago one summer where he took a 12 week course in field botany while Prof. Eddy was taking a course in ecology. After his graduation from the college he did work at Cornell where he received his doctorate of philosophy in lymnology.

While an avid scientist, Dr. Burkholder finds time to exploit his hobbies of sailboating and collecting antiques. For some years he had a cottage in Maine and after selling it sailed his boat to Connecticut. During the trip he nearly lost his life in a sudden wild storm at sea. He moved a salt house from Maine to a spot near his laboratory and has it fully furnished with antiques.

At the moment the scope of his experiments is widening for some of his associates are in South America seeking new soil samples to be studied in the research of molds which may hold possible cures for cancer and other dread diseases.

Host To Chemical Unit

The College acted as host in January for a dinner-meeting of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Section of the American Chemical Society with Dr. E. A. Vuilleumier and Dr. Horace E. Rogers in charge of the function.

Following the dinner in the College Commons, a meeting was held in Bosler Hall when Dr. Walter G. Frankenberg, research director for the General Cigar Company, Lancaster, spoke on "The Chemistry of Tobacco." During the afternoon, the visitors were taken on conducted tours of several industrial plants in Carlisle.

38 Graduate From Law School

The degree of bachelor of law was conferred on 38 graduates at a midwinter Commencement of the Dickinson School of Law held on February 11 at a dinner in the Hotel Hershey. Judge W. Clarence Sheely, president of the Board of Trustees, awarded the degrees, the candidates being presented by Dean W. H. Hitchler.

Former Governor Arthur H. James, '04L, was the speaker and Eugene D. Siegrist, '99L, president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, was a guest of honor.

During the war, the law school held a Commencement at the Hotel Hershey when high officers of the Army and Navy accepted the diplomas of the men then in the service. These dinners were so favorably received that the custom has been continued with the graduates and their families attending as guests of the school.

One of the features of the function was the presentation to Dean Hitchler of the first copy of a new law school year book Res Ipsa Loquitur, which was dedicated to him. Richard Humphreys, '45, '48L, editor-in-chief, made the presentation. For some years the law school had a section in the college Microcosm and this is the first exclusively law school book.

Heads Scientific Society

Dr. Milton W. Eddy, head of the Biology Department, was elected president of the Pennsylvania Entomological Society at the annual meeting last month in Harrisburg. He helped to found the Society 26 years ago and has been an active member through the years. William H. McGee, instructor in biology, who joined the faculty last fall, was admitted to membership. The Society is for entomologists engaged in research, teaching or inspection.

Called A Key Man In Metal Salvage Industry

JOEL CLASTER, '14, '16L, who is president of Luria Brothers and Company, Inc., Philadelphia, a metal scrap brokerage firm, is referred to in Fortune magazine as one of the key men in the vitally important billion dollar metal salvage industry.

According to an article, "The Scrapmen," in the January issue, Mr. Claster's firm is by far the largest in the industry, with 14 branches and six preparation yards reaching westward to the Coast. The concern does perhaps a seventh of the nation's scrap brokerage business which in 1948 supplied the steel industry 30 million tons of scrap valued at considerably in excess of $1 billion.

The article mentions that Mr. Claster came to Luria 29 years ago "after Dickinson College and the Law School." (Actually he practiced law in Harrisburg for three years before entering the industry.) The writer describes as "conservative" an estimate that Luria's net before taxes was $1,050,000 in 1948.

In commenting on the leadership of Mr. Claster and his firm, Fortune states: "In addition to their early start, long experience, countless contacts and trading sagacity, their success has depended on a persistent plowing back of profits into branch offices that have pursued the steel industry as far west as San Francisco and an incentive bonus system that now embraces as many as 30 of the firm's executives."

The giant Luria business has been in the family for four generations. Mr. Claster's son, Stanley, who is manager in San Francisco, is the great grandson of the founder, Hirsch Luria, an immigrant, who started the salvage business in Reading, Pa.

As president of the largest salvage brokerage firm, Mr. Claster finds himself in the very center of an industry described by the article as "one of the most important, prosperous and peculiar elements" in the national economy. Its product is a commodity crucial to industrial civilization. "Yet," Fortune observes, "the masters of this key material have remained obscure figures in the American industrial scene; apparently they have been the subject of very little curiosity and certainly of little publicity." The article goes on to describe these "masters" and the first to be mentioned in detail is Mr. Claster.

The article notes that a major concern of the U.S. steel industry is the fact that so much material for metal salvage lies in the countries which were most heavily damaged by war. Mr. Claster referred to this fact while participating on the business and industry panel at the College's 175th anniversary celebration last May. In one of the most lively and dramatic moments of the entire celebration, Mr. Claster spoke sharply of the Army's neglect to allow scrap now in Europe to be returned to this country for processing. Turning to Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, a key administrator in the ERP, and Congressman Robert F. Rich, he declared that the use of available scrap will save America's dwindling metal reserves and warned against this country lavishing its own wealth unwisely on Europe.

Playing A Major Hand In Naval Experiment

THAT Dartmouth College is proving the testing ground for a course in the history of sea power which may become standard for many thousands of students in the 52 American colleges with NROTC units with Dickinsonian Dr. Albert L. Demaree, '23, playing a major hand in the naval experiment is explained in the Dartmouth Alumni Magazine.

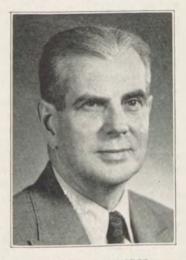

Back of it are Captain Roger E. Nelson, USN, Professor of Naval Science and Tactics at Dartmouth, and Albert L. Demaree, Ph.D., Professor of History; and the course, Naval Science 101 (a), is now being given on an experimental basis at Dartmouth with Captain Nelson and Professor Demaree doing the bulk of the lecturing.

The intellectual groundwork of the course was planned in Washington when nine naval captains met to listen to Captain Nelson expound his educational theories and to outline a course which he believes to be not only desirable but also necessary for all young men who are to receive commissions in the Navy.

In working out the details and the administration of the course here, Captain Nelson has availed himself freely of the academic experience of Professor Demaree, who is author of a book called Naval Orientation (1945) now used throughout the United States at NROTC centers. Professor Demaree has been devoting a good part of his time to revising and rewriting this book. The volume of about 500 pages is about to go to press.

Professor Demaree's naval experience dates back to 1917 when he began serving as Ensign in the regular navy with four years of duty on destroyers, fleet supply ships, and submarine chasers. He also taught at the Naval Academy. In 1920 he was on the Olympia, Dewey's old flagship, which brought back the Unknown Soldier.

In World War II Professor Demaree left Dartmouth to enter the Navy as a lieutenant and rose to the rank of Commander with duty in Washington and on the USS Boxer on which he served as training officer for six weeks to get both practical and theoretical experience on which he could draw for his book. When Japan surrendered, he was en route to Guam. After the war the Chief of the Bureau awarded him a commendation for his lectures and writings.

Now back at Dartmouth on a full schedule, Professor Demaree lectures twice a year at Columbia University to leaders of industry at civilian orientation groups sponsored by the Navy.

So useful has he proved that the Navy asked him last year to return for two years' further duty in connection with his research and writing, but owing to pressure of work in the Department of History, he declined.

A Dickinson College graduate, class of 1923, Professor Demaree received his Ph.D. from Columbia in 1940 after writing a dissertation on the American Agricultural Press, 1819-1860. Not only an authority on naval history, he is also a collector of early American stamps. At Dickinson, he became a member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity.

Appointed Superintendent in Newark Conference

B ISHOP G. BROMLEY OXNAM appointed the Rev. Dr. Everett F. Hallock, '30, Superintendent of the Newark District of the Newark Conference of the Methodist Church effective February 1. Dr. Hallock succeeded the Rev. George Y. Flint, who resigned to become pastor of the First Methodist Church, Warren, Ohio.

The Newark District, one of the three in the Newark Conference, includes 104 churches and 91 ministers. The valuation of church properties in the District is nearly $8,000,000 and during the last Conference year the total raised for all purposes was more than $1,000,000.

Dr. Hallock was born on Staten Island, New York, in 1907 and graduated from the Curtis High School. He received his A.B. from the College in 1930 and the Bachelor of Divinity degree from Drew University in 1933. Dickinson College conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity upon him at the 175th Anniversary in April 1948.

While he was a student at Drew, he was assistant minister of the First Congregational Church in Jersey City. Then he went to the Hilton Methodist Church in Maplewood, N. J., and remained there four years. He then served three years at the Methodist Church in Orange and for nearly nine years has been pastor of the Church in Rutherford, N. J.

Dr. Hallock is a past president of the Dickinson Alumni Club of northern New Jersey and also the Essex County Council of the Religious Education Society, of the Newark Conference Board of Education and also of the Conference Board of Ministerial Training. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity.

His wife is the former Catherine C. Porter, '30, whom he married in 1931. They have two children, Elbert Porter, nine years of age, and Donald Everett, 16, who is a prospective student of the College for September 1950. On February 1, the Hallocks moved to 10 Morse Drive, Maplewood, N. J.

EVERETT F. HALLOCK

Club President Now A Student

C. Wesley Orem, '35, finds himself in the unusual position of president of one of Dickinson's 24 alumni clubs and at the same time an undergraduate in the College.

Wesley, who is president of the Dickinson Club of Baltimore, reentered the College as a fulltime student at the beginning of the spring session on January 31 to seek again the diploma he missed when forced to withdraw in a depression year of the early '30s.

By going to a summer school this summer, he hopes to obtain his diploma in June, 1950, when his original class will be celebrating its 15th reunion.

Wesley says that when he first mentioned to the family circle his plan to return to College an eight-year-old son who wants to be a Dickinsonian sought to persuade him to wait a few more years so that they might go together.

Wes has found campus life much as it was in his first college days except that the students are a bit more serious than he recalls them in the early '30s.

Named "South Jersey Woman of the Year"

D^{R.} MARY E. ROBERTS, '12, principal of the Moorestown High School, was named "South Jersey Woman of the Year" and received the presentation of the award, a check for $500 and a plaque, at a luncheon at the Walt Whitman Hotel in Camden in December.

Dr. Roberts was chosen for the award from several hundred nominees by a committee of fourteen men and women of three counties. She was similarly honored in Moorestown in April of last year when she was awarded a Rotary Club citation for outstanding service to her community.

Isadore H. Hermann, in presenting the award, called Dr. Roberts "A symbol of all that is fine in Christian womanhood," and cited her in unselfish interest in guiding every pupil, her sincere efforts to secure financial aid for worthy students in continuing their education, unusual devotion to her job and her warm personal interest in the home life of the students.

Dr. Roberts began her career as an English teacher in the Moorestown Public Schools and several years later, was promoted to the position of High School Principal. She received her Ph.B. and A.M. degrees from the College and her Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania.

In making the presentation in behalf of the Rose Foundation, Mr. Hermann

Makes Bequest to College

At the expiration of a trust for his widow, the College will receive a bequest of $2,000 from the estate of Silas T. McDowell, late of Altoona, Pa. The will also contains a grant of $600 to the University of Pennsylvania Law School. Mr. McDowell was the father of Sherwin T. McDowell, '36, Philadelphia attorney, who is in the offices of Ballard, Spahr, Andrews & Ingersoll in the Land Title Building. Harold E. Miller, '37, of Altoona, is attorney for the estate. said in part, "Throughout her teaching career, Dr. Roberts has been outstanding not only for the breadth of her scholarship but for the creative manner in which she managed to impart her own love of learning to both the pupils and the teachers under her. Her standards of scholarship have constantly kept Moorestown High School at a high level, nor does her interest cease with the field of education for she also takes a warm interest in the student's home life and extra-curricular activities. When college is not their goal she helps them find jobs or directs them into proper channels."

"Dr. Roberts, who lives with her mother at 6103 Cedar Avenue, Merchantville, N. J., is a person of the highest character and ideals, whose contribution to her school and her community extends far beyond the scope of her job. She continues to serve as an inspiration not only to her pupils and those who come under her immediate influence, but to every citizen of her community and everyone who has heard about her work."

Recognition of the honor conferred upon her was extended in a special Christmas assembly at the high school the following day when Dr. Roberts received a bouquet of flowers with the congratulations and best wishes of the student body.

To Graduate In Reunion Year

Stephen J. Szekely, '29, who left the College before graduating to enter business and reentered a year and a half ago following war service, is one of five seniors whose election to Phi Beta Kappa was announced this month by the Pennsylvania Alpha Chapter. The coming Commencement will have double significance for Steve, who will have the unique experience of receiving his diploma and joining in the 20th reunion of his class on the same weekend.

Ten More Lifers Send Total Above 800 Mark

WITH the receipt of ten new subscriptions for Life Membership in the General Alumni Association since the publication of the December number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS the total number of Lifers was raised to 803.

As directed by the Alumni Council, the complete roster of Life Members will be published in the next issue of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS in May as has been done annually since the inception of life membership. Any new subscriptions should be received on or before May 1 to be included in this roll of honor. Life membership costs $40 and may be paid in $10 or $20 annual installments, and carries a life subscription to THE DICK-INSON ALUMNUS. Checks should be made payable to Dickinson College and mailed to THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, West College, Carlisle, Pa.

The first subscriptions came from classmates of the Class of 1925 when checks arrived on January 6 from Eleanor Klemm, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. W. L. Hall, the former Thelma Nickey, of Carlisle.

The next day a check of $40 came from Mrs. John H. Griel, of Kennett

Living In Florida

The name of the Rev. Dr. Lewis M. Lounsbury was omitted from the list of honorary alumni published in the Directory last May. He is living in Coral Gables, Fla.

Dr. Lounsbury is the brother of Elmer H. Lounsbury, '03, attorney of Hartford, Conn. He received the honorary A.M. degree from the College at the same commencement in June 1903 when his brother graduated. Holder of an S.T.D. degree, he served pastorates of ten years each at Trinity Methodist Church, Albany, N. Y.; First Methodist Church, Syracuse, N. Y., and the First Methodist Church at Schenectady, N. Y., and was also a lecturer in Miami University. Square, Pa., mother of James R. Griel, '47, who has a War Department assignment in Germany. If conditions permit, his mother expects to visit him in April.

A few days later a $40 check came from Dr. Francis R. Manlove, '34, member of the faculty of the School of Medicine of Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa.

The next day two subscriptions were received, the one from Miss Dorothy H. Hoy, '41, of Harrisburg, Pa., and the other from Alvin A. Fry, '26, professor of education at West Virginia Wesleyan College Buckhannon, W. Va.

The next subscription came from Martha L. Johnson, '13, Librarian of the Warren County Library, Belvidere, N. J. A few days later, a check arrived from Dr. Robert L. D. Davidson, '31, Dean of the Community College of Temple University.

The last two subscriptions came from James P. Hopkins, '11, who recently celebrated 36 years in the real estate and insurance business in Chester, Pa., and the other from John W. Sellers, '37, who is associated with the Key West Transit Company, Inc., Key West, Fla.

Establishes Prize In Her Will

A prize "to be paid yearly to a woman for the best short story and essay" is provided in a $2,000 bequest to the College contained in the will of Anges Sterrett Woods, '17, who died on January 21. The fund in her memory will be established upon the settlement of her estate probably during the present calendar year.

Among other specific bequests, Miss Woods gave the First Presbyterian Church, of Carlisle, of which she was a member, $1,000 and a remainder of her estate, of which it is believed will total $20,000, to the Carlisle Hospital to establish the Nannie and Agnes Woods Fund. THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS

Three Appointed To National Fraternity Posts

GLENN E. TODD

G LENN E. Todd, '12; Dr. J. Fenton Daugherty, '21 and Robert E. Knupp, '20, '32L, have recently been named to posts in the national organizations of their fraternities. Todd is a new Grand Praetor of Sigma Chi, while ''Mike'' Daugherty is National Scholarship Chairman of Phi Kappa Psi and Bob Knupp is National Councillor of Alpha Chi Rho.

Glenn Todd's election as a Grand Praetor of the West Virginia-Western Pennsylvania Province of Sigma Chi was heralded as a fitting tribute to his nearly 40 years of devotion to the Dickinson chapter and the national fraternity. Faced with severe financial difficulties and threatened with dissolution during World War II, he practically singlehanded saved the Dickinson chapter. He installed furniture at his own expense and supervised the renting of rooms to Army post officers, so that when the war ended the men of the chapter returned with the house and finances in better condition than ever.

While secretary-treasurer of the Carlisle Garment Company, makers of Molly Pitcher dresses, Todd is one of the top civic leaders of Carlisle. He is a director of the Farmers Trust Company, the Philadelphia Clay Company, the Chamber of Commerce, the Red Cross and the Community Chest. He is a member of the Rotary Club, St. John's Lodge No. 260, F. & A. M., Harrisburg Consistory and Zembo Temple of the Shrine. He is serving his third term as a member of the Borough Council and is an officer of the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

In December, Dr. J. Fenton Daugherty, dean of men at the University of Delaware, was appointed national scholarship director of Phi Kappa Psi. His duties include promoting scholarship among the undergraduate members in the various chapters.

A member of the Delaware faculty since 1929, Dr. Daugherty became dean of men in 1944. He is also a member of the physics department and was formerly chairman of that department. He has been chairman of the university standing committee on social and cultural affairs and chairman of the governing board of physical education and athletics. He has been a member of the faculty at the University of North Carolina, where he received his M.A. in 1925 and a Ph.D. in 1930, and of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.

ROBERT E. KNUPP

Graduating from the college in 1930 with Phi Beta Kappa honors, Bob Knupp served as editor of The Dickinson Law Review and shortly after his graduation from the Law school in 1932 was admitted to the bar and he began practicing in Harrisburg. His career was interrupted when he served during the war as a communications officer (Lt. j.g.) in the Navy.

Returning from the service, he got back into his stride quickly and while busy at his law practice has time to be a vice-chairman at the moment of the college's Ten Year Development Program campaign in Harrisburg. He is president of Goodwill Industries of Greater Harrisburg, Inc.; and is on the board of Ridge Avenue Methodist Church, active in the church and the Central Pennsylvania Conference Board of Education. He is a member of Harrisburg Y's Men's Club, Paxton Valley Lions Club, AVC and the American Legion. Last April, he was a candidate in the primaries for the Pennsylvania Legislature on an independent Republican ticket and lost by a narrow margin.

In becoming a member of the National Council of Alpha Chi Rho, Bob entered one of the top posts in his fraternity with a completed background of experience. He was head of his chapter as an undergraduate, a co-founder of the Harrisburg Alpha Chi Rho Club, a cochairman of the 1934 national convention, and chairman of the interchapter visitation committee. He is secretary-treasurer of the Dickinson Graduate Chapter and a director of the building corporation.

Becomes Director of Firm

John S. Snyder, '33, was elected a director of John Wiley & Sons, Inc., publishers of scientific and technical books, at the semi-annual meeting of the firm's board in December.

After three years as a college traveler, he became a member of the Wiley educational department staff in the company's New York office. Mr. Snyder was appointed assistant manager of the department in 1940 and manager in 1947. He was also elected assistant vice-president of the organization in 1947. He resides in Scarsdale, N. Y.

Professor Receives Doctorate

Ferdinando D. Maurino, assistant professor of romance and classical languages, received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Columbia University last month. His study for the degree was in the field of romance languages. In his thesis, "S. Di Giacomo and Neapolitan Dialectal Literature," he traced Di Giacomo's importance in French, Spanish and Italian literatures. Dr. Maurino is teaching Spanish, Italian, French and Latin. He came to the College last Fall from Triple Cities College, Syracuse University. He also has taught at Iowa State University and Atlanta Ordnance College in Georgia. He has published articles on the opera, poetry and the teaching of languages and has conducted radio programs on opera appreciation.

To Meet Gettysburg On Gridiron In 1950 And 1951

THE Board of Athletic Control gave approval early in December for resumption of football relations with Gettysburg. Accordingly, games have been scheduled for Carlisle in 1950 and for Gettysburg in 1951 under a two-year agreement.

Although competing in other sports, the colleges have not met in football since 1942. The rivalry, which started in 1892, has produced 37 games. Gettysburg won 25, Dickinson 11 and one resulted in a tie.

Football Team To Play 8 Games

The varsity football team will play eight games in 1949, it has been announced by Charles H. B. Kennedy, director of athletics. The games are evenly divided, with four on Biddle Field and four away from home.

With one exception, all of last season's opponents appear on the '49 schedule. Thiel, with which the college had but a one-year contract, is replaced by Western Maryland, which returns to the schedule after the lapse of a year. In the last meeting, 1947, Western Maryland won, 19 to 0, although in the previous season Dickinson was the victor, 25 to 20.

The schedule opens September 24 with Western Maryland on Biddle Field and closes November 12 on Biddle Field with Johns Hopkins, with which Dickinson resumed football relations last fall after a lapse of 27 years. The team will make two invasions of western Pennsylvania, on October 1 to play Grove City and on October 29 to engage Allegheny.

Other 1949 opponents will be F. and M., oldest rival on the schedule; Ursinus, Juniata and Drexel. The complete schedule follows:

September 24, Western Maryland, Biddle Field; October 1, Grove City, at Grove City; October 8, F. and M., at Lancaster; October 15, Ursinus, Biddle Field; October 22, Juniata, at Huntingdon; October 29, Allegheny, at MeadUnder another Athletic Control Board action, the College will discontinue the use of freshmen on the football varsity, starting next season. Along with all colleges, Dickinson set aside the three-year rule in 1942 because of the shortage of players incident to expansion of the armed forces. It continued to use freshmen on resumption of football after the war.

For the first time since pre-war years, the freshman rule is in effect this season in basketball at the College.

ville; November 5, Drexel, Biddle Field; November 12, Johns Hopkins, Biddle Field.

New Current Affairs Room

A current affairs room has been added to the College library to help keep students abreast of national and world developments. The room is equipped with decorative wall maps, low tables and easy chairs, newspapers, current news magazines and selected foreign periodicals. A revolving bulletin board, kept up to date by students in the contemporary problems course, lists significant clippings on politics, the United Nations, security and taxation from current periodicals. Miss May Morris, the librarian, reports that the room is popular with students because materials are easily accessible and arranged to catch their interest.

Becomes A Phi Kap

George A. Bobletz, assistant treasurer of the College, was initiated into Phi Kappa Sigma in November, the first non-Dickinsonian to be so honored by the Dickinson chapter in 45 years. A "townie," Bobletz has been close to the fraternity for 20 years through friendships with many individual members. He has been the chapter financial adviser for several years.

Swimmers Set Records

Dickinson varsity tankmen this season have virtually rewritten the College swimming records, alhough they have won only one meet in five to date on a difficult schedule.

Coach John Steckbeck's swimmers have bettered four records in the course of defeating Lycoming, 66-9, and losing to Loyola of Baltimore, 26-49; F. and M., $25\frac{1}{2}-49\frac{1}{2}$; Lehigh, 26-48, and Penn State, 28-47.

John Whitmore, sophomore, the Middle Atlantic Conference champion at 220 and 440, freestyle, who set three standards as an undefeated freshman, has added two more this season, giving him the distinction of holding all of the freestyle marks at the College. He had won 14 straight races before defeated by half a length at Lehigh.

Whitmore, Joseph Hopkins and Ted Miller broke the 300-medley record in the Loyola meet and three weeks later their standard was lowered against Penn State by a trio of Hopkins, Miller and David Wentzel.

Still ahead of the swimmers are dual meets with American University and Gettysburg, a triangular "Little Three" meet with F. and M. and Gettysburg and the Middle Atlantic championships.

Court Team May Break Even

With a record of five victories and four defeats to February 15 and eight contests ahead, prospects at the midway point on the basketball schedule are that Coach Kennedy's team will do better than an even break for the season. The scoring punch and remarkable stamina of last year's stars, John Hopper and Frank Noonan, who graduated, are keenly felt.

Defeats were inflicted by Gettysburg's best team in years, 63-76; Virginia, one of the South's standouts, 63-80; Navy at Annapolis, 39-71, and P. M. C. at Chester, 51-63. The game with Virginia was the first ever played with the Cavaliers. Joe Noertker, Virginia center and the nation's leading individual scorer, set a new Alumni Gym record with 37 points, bettering by one point the old mark, made in 1937 by Frank Keath, Elizabethtown.

Victories have been scored over Elizabethtown, 51-48; Albright, 56-44; F. and M., 46-44; Susquehanna, 69-44, and P. M. C., 74-70. The brunt of the burden has been carried by Gene Evans and Vince Schafmeister, co-captains and seniors; Weston Overholt, junior, the team's leading scorer with an average of 16 points; Elwood Long and Jack Slike, sophomores, who comprise the starting five; Fred May, senior; Jim Abbott, junior, and Paul Miller, sophomore.

A good freshman team, coached by Davis Kirk, has lost only twice in nine starts. The balance of the varsity schedule follows: Feb. 16, F. and M., home; Feb. 19, Gettysburg, away; Feb. 22, Juniata, home; Feb. 24, Western Maryland, away; Feb. 26, Albright, away; March 1, Johns Hopkins, home; March 3, Lehigh, home; March 5, Bucknell, away.

Club Holds Theatre Party

The Dickinson Alumnae Club of New York held an annual luncheon and theatre party on February 5, at the Cortile Restaurant on West 43d Street, and at the Empire Theatre, where "Life With Mother" was enjoyed by the group. There were 25 present at the luncheon and 30 at the theatre.

Dauphin Judges and Prosecutors All Dickinsonians

KARL E. RICHARDS JUDGE OF ORPHANS COURT

WITH the appointment of Paul G. Smith, '08L, to a Dauphin County judgeship vacancy in December, all four places on that important bench are now held by Dickinsonians, as are the county district attorneyship and all four assistant district attorneyships.

Already on the Dauphin bench when Gov. James H. Duff announced Mr. Smith's appointment to the vacancy resulting from the death of Judge William M. Hargest were Judges Karl E. Richards, '10; Paul Rupp, '25L, and Robert E. Woodside, Jr., '26, '28L. Judge Richards was president of the Dickinson College General Alumni Association from 1942 to 1945.

At the induction ceremony, Judge Woodside administered the oath of office to Judge Smith and William E. Shissler, '26, '28L, placed the judicial robes upon him for the first time.

Born in Harrisburg in 1881, Mr. Smith read law in the office of Fox and Geyer before entering the Law School. He was admitted to the Dauphin bar in 1909. A Republican leader, he had been Harrisburg city solicitor from 1931 to his elevation to the bench. He was a member of the firm of Nauman, Smith and Hurlock.

While continuing to practice law he coached football in Harrisburg from 1910 to 1922, first at Central High School and then at Harrisburg Technical High School and developed a number of championship teams. His Tech teams of 1918 and 1919 were hailed as national champions.

He has two sons, A Knisely Smith, who is a U. S. vice consul in Algeria, and Paul G. Smith, Jr., of Harrisburg. A Mason, he is a member of Perseverance Lodge, F. and A. M., and Zembo Temple. He is also a member of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church and the Kiwanis, Executive and Harrisburg Country Clubs. He became a member of Phi Kappa Psi as a student at Bucknell.

The unusual condition that finds the Dauphin County bench occupied exclusively by Dickinsonians endures also in the office of the district attorney, Carl B. Shelley, '17, '21L. His four assistants are E. LeRoy Keen, '07, '09L; David S. Kohn, '29, 32L; James W. Reynolds, '30, '32L, and Hewitt F. Dowling, '40L.

Plaque Honors Contributors to West College

A PLAQUE in memory of "those patriots, warriors, and statesmen who contributed to the erection of" West College in 1803 was unveiled in Memorial Hall of West College on Parents' Day, October 2.

Designed by Hans Schuler, Baltimore, Md., sculptor, who designed the other tablets in Memorial Hall, the plaque is similar to that unveiled last year in memory of the Dickinsonians who fought in the armies of North and South during the Civil War.

Surmounted by a small relief of West College, the inscription reads as quoted above. Beneath are the names of more than 30 distinguished persons who made contributions to the College to assist the rebuilding of West after it was destroyed by fire in 1803.

Some of the names were known to College history. But the full list was made possible only two years ago when the College received as a gift from Mary H. Vale, '33, the great collection of historical manuscripts relating to the College which had been formed by her grandfather, the late Professor Charles F. Himes, '55.

The donors whose names are listed on the new memorial tablet include Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States; Aaron Burr, vice-president of the United States; John Marshall, chief justice of the United States; Bushrod Washington, nephew of George Washington and associate justice of the Supreme Court; John Dickinson, first president of the Board of Trustees; Dr. Benjamin Rush, founder of the College; Dr. Charles Nisbet, first president of the College. James Madison, secretary of state and later president of the United States; Roger B. Taney, of the class of 1795, later attorney general, secretary of the treasury, and chief justice of the United States; Albert Gallatin, secretary of the treasury; the Consul General of France; the Spanish Ambassador; and Stephen Girard, the great Philadelphia merchant prince whose fortune endowed Girard College.

Professor Mulford Stough of the history department made a brief address, and the tablet was unveiled by President William W. Edel and Dean Russell I. Thompson, '20.

Teachers Attend Meetings of Learned Societies

A T LEAST twenty members of the College faculty attended meetings of their professional and learned societies during Christmas vacation. Two of them read papers at these meetings.

Dr. Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., Associate Professor of History, presented a paper on "Problems and Promises of a Course in State History" at the joint meeting of the American Historical Association and the Association of State and Local History in Washington, D. C. The paper was based largely on Dr. Bell's own experience in teaching history at the College. Others who attended this session were Dr. Herbert Wing, Jr., Head of the Department, Dr. Milton E. Flower, Professor Mulford Stough, Professor John Christian Pflaum, Professor Joseph B. Smith, and Professor Cornelius W. Fink.

Professor Ferdinando D. Maurino, of the Department of Modern Languages, had the unusual distinction of reading a paper for the second successive year before the Modern Languages Association of America at a session in New York City. Professor Maurino, who teaches French, Spanish, Italian, and Latin, spoke in Italian on a criticism of Croce's translation. A year ago he presented a paper in French.

Also at the Modern Language meeting were Professor Mary B. Taintor, Dr. Caroline Kennedy, Dr. Thelma M. Smith, Dr. William R. Bowden, Dr. William Sloane, and Professor Bertram H. Davis.

Dr. L. G. Rohrbaugh and Dr. William D. Gould attended a meeting of the American Philosophical Association held at the University of Virginia.

Dr. William Lonsdale Taylor attended the sessions of the American Political Science Association in Chicago and Dr. Frank Ayres, Jr., went to Columbus, O., for the meeting of the Mathematics Society of America.

Dr. Arthur M. Prinz and Professor Oscar W. Nestor attended the meeting in Cleveland of the American Economics Association.

In January, President William W. Edel and Dean Russell I. Thompson went to New York for the annual session of the Association of American Colleges.

College Mates Early in Last Century

This unusual college picture is of four brothers who were graduates of Dickinson between 1846 and 1850. Two were physicians and two were clergymanteachers. All were members of Union Philosophical Society.

First figure on the left is that of John William Fletcher Hank, of the class of 1846. He received his master's degree from the College in 1849 and was graduated in medicine from the University of Pennsylvania in 1850. The second figure is that of John Newman Hank, of the class of 1847. He was a Methodist clergyman and for many years professor of ancient languages in Baltimore City College. The third figure is that of James Bernard Hank, of the class of 1848, who was a physician and served as a surgeon with the Russian Army in the Crimean War.
