Come Back to Carlisle

188th Commencement Starts June 2

The Hon. Charles Klein, President Judge of the Orphans Court of Philadelphia County, will speak and he and four other distinguished men, three of them Dickinsonians, will receive honorary degrees at the 188th Commencement Exercises on Sunday afternoon, June 4.

President Malcolm will preside over the exercises for the last time in the role of president and will confer the degrees. He will become Provost of the College on July 1, when he will begin his fortieth year of service to Dickinson.

Degree recipients, in addition to Judge Klein, will be Bishop W. Vernon Middleton, '28, bishop of the Western Pennsylvania Area of the Methodist Church; Wiley T. Buchanan, Jr., former U. S. Ambassador to Luxembourg; Colonel Richard H. Ellis, '41, '49L, assistant director of plans, U. S. Air Force Headquarters, Washington, D. C., and John W. McKelvey, '26, St. Paul, Minn., Methodist minister.

President-Elect to Attend

The President-Elect of the College, Dr. Howard L. Rubendall, '31, will be another central figure in the Commencement celebration. Just returned from a four-month trip abroad, he will be on the campus for the 30th reunion of his class and will deliver the sermon at the Baccalaureate Service on Sunday morning.

For the Old Grads who will return to Carlisle in large numbers, the big event of a busy weekend (see the commencement schedule on Page 3) will be the Alumni Luncheon on Saturday noon which will include among its many features a tribute to two members of the faculty who retire at the end of the term—Prof. John C. M. Grimm and Prof. Ralph Schecter, Dickinson teachers since 1922.

The place of honor on the platform at the Luncheon has been reserved for the

Judge Charles Klein

Class of 1911 observing its 50th reunion. All alumni planning to be in Carlisle on Saturday, Alumni Day, are invited and urged to attend the Luncheon, President Malcolm and Weston C. Overholt, Jr., '50, Alumni Association president, will preside.

A Change Is Made

The time-honored commencement format has been altered in one respect. Senior Class festivities, which in modern times have been held on Friday, have been moved to Saturday morning so that more alumni may witness them. The program, consisting of the traditional orations, the planting of class ivy and induction of the seniors into the Alumni Association, will be held in front of the Old Stone Steps or, if the weather is bad, in Bosler Hall.

Judge Klein, the Commencement speaker, will receive the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters. He has been on the bench since 1934 and is one of Pennsylvania's most distinguished jurists. Honored many times for his service to education, social welfare and the public interest, has been a trustee of Temple

Bishop Middleton, '28

University for 25 years and president of the board since 1960 when he succeeded Bishop Fred P. Corson, '17. The university's Charles Klein Library is named for him.

The Doctor of Laws degree will be conferred upon Bishop Middleton. He was elected to the Methodist episcopacy last June by the Northeastern Jurisdictional Conference and assigned to the Western Pennsylvania Area, which includes the General Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh and Erie Conferences. At that time he was general secretary of the Division of National Missions, Methodist Church, and vice-chairman of the Division of Home Missions, National Council of Churches. He serves on the Methodist General Board of Education, General Board of Lay Activities and Commission in Family Life. He is married to his college sweetheart, the former Miriam K. Horst, '30.

Former Ambassador Buchanan, a corporation executive, who will be awarded the Doctor of Humane Letters degree, is a collateral descendant of President James Buchanan, Class of 1809. Appointed U. S. Minister to Luxembourg in 1953, he became the Ambassador in 1955 and served until 1957 when he was recalled to Washington to become Chief of Protocol of the Department of Wiley Buchanan, Jr.

State, a post he served with distinction until last January when the Administration changed. Before entering the service of the government he was vice-president of the Berks Parachute Company, Reading, Pa., and secretary of the Verdurin Corporation, Detroit. He is an active Methodist layman and his home is in Washington.

War Hero to be Honored

Dickinson will honor one of its greatest World War II heroes when it confers the Doctor of Science degree upon Col. Ellis who flew a total of 203 combat missions in four campaigns in the South Pacific and won many decorations, including the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Distinguished Flying Cross and Air Medal with four clusters. At war's end he was Assistant Chief of Staff, Far East Air Forces, and in 1947 returned to Carlisle to enter the Dickinson School of Law. He was practicing law with the firm of Southerland, Berl and Potter in Delaware when recalled to active duty in 1950 and assigned to the Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe in 1956. He is presently at the Pentagon as assistant director of plans, Joint Matters, in the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Programs.

Rev. Dr. McKelvey will receive the

Doctor of Divinity degree. He is widely known for his authorship of "Daily Meditations" in The Christian Herald from 1951 to 1956 and articles, meditations, sermons, poems and reviews that have appeared in many religious publications in this country and England. A highly successful pastor, he served the large Methodist Church in Lansdowne, Pa., for 17 years until last January when he became pastor-director of St. Anthony Park Methodist Church and Wesley Foundation at St. Paul, Minn. At Dickinson he won election to Phi Beta Kappa and graduated with second honors, went to Drew for his theological studies, graduating cum laude, in 1929, and then used fellowships for a year's study in Jerusalem and one year in Germany. He earned the Ph.D. degree at Drew in 1941. He is married to Gertrude Hallock McKelvey, the writer, whose latest book "Finding God's Healing Power" has just been published.

Class Reunion Plans—

The 188th Commencement season, June 2, 3 and 4, will find many classes holding organized reunions in accordance with the every-fifth-year plan. Reunion chairmen, hard at work for months, report these finals plans:

Col. Richard Ellis, '41

Philip Moyer, U. S. F. & G. Building, Harrisburg, Pa., chairman. The big reunion event will be a dinner on Friday evening at the Molly Pitcher Hotel.

1911

J. Ernest Crane, 217 Lexington Ave., Pitman, N. J., chairman. Dinner at the Molly Pitcher Hotel on Friday evening as reunion starter. As the 50th reunion class, 1911 will have the place of honor on the platform at the Alumni Luncheon on Saturday noon and will be the guests of the college at a luncheon on Sunday noon in Morgan Hall.

1916

D. Paul Rogers, 309 15th Street, New Cumberland, Pa., chairman. Breakfast on Saturday at 9:30 a. m. in the new Star-Lite Motel, two miles east of Carlisle on the Carlisle-Harrisburg pike, Route 11.

1921

John F. Morgenthaler, 2142 North 22nd Street, Harrisburg, Pa., chairman. The very popular Sunday breakfast of a few years ago will be repeated. The time: 10 a. m. The place: James Wilson Hotel.

1926

Earl M. Schroeder, 27 North Rockburn Street, York, Pa., chairman. Breakfast Saturday morning at 9 o'clock in the James Wilson Hotel, with adjournment in time for all to get to the Alumni Luncheon in the gymnasium.

1931

Dr. Herbert Baron, 200 Burton Avenue, Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., and Henry B. Suter, 5509 Stonington Avenue, Baltimore 7, Md., co-chairman. This is the class that has provided the College with its next president, Howard "Bud" Rubendall, who will be the baccalaureate preacher. The 17-member planning committee promises the "biggest reunion ever." Headquarters will be at Allenberry where there will be an informal reception Friday evening and a breakfast Saturday morning.

1936

Dr. Edward C. Raffensperger, 209 North Second Street, Harrisburg, Pa., chairman. Members will be informed of the exact hour and place of the reunion dinner on Saturday evening.

1941

Samuel J. McCartney, Jr., 405 Woodside Avenue, Narberth, Pa. There will be a party Saturday afternoon, time and place to be announced.

1946

Catherine S. Eitmiller, 2500 Wisconsin Avenue, Washington 7, D. C., chairman. The class will meet at Allenberry on Saturday evening for a social hour at 5 and the reunion dinner at 6.

1951

James K. Arnold, 2801 Harvard Avenue, Camp Hill, Pa., chairman. The official event will be an informal gathering of the class at Allenberry on Saturday afternoon. For those who can remain longer, there will be dinner at Allenberry.

1956

Robert F. Smith, Foxcroft Drive, Camp Hill, Pa., chairman. The class will gather Saturday afternoon at the Molly Pitcher Hotel, 2 o'clock to 5.

"Take Another Moment . . ."

Open Letter to Dickinsonians

WITHIN the next few months many things of note will take place at the College. A beloved friend, "Red" Malcolm, will retire as president and Dr. Rubendall will take up the reins of leadership. "Mac" will complete fifty years of service to the College and will begin his second half century. The plans for the new fraternity quadrangle and another girls' dormitory will take form. Change is all about us.

I sincerely hope that many hundreds of Alumni will return to Carlisle on June 2-4 for the Commencement week-end to join in the activities of that festive week-end. While you are on campus, take time out to visit and enjoy the newer buildings which grace the Dickinson landscape and add to its springtime beauty. Drop in on a favorite "prof" and chat awhile about yesteryear.

But take another moment too, and reflect upon some of the things that we must do in the future. Just a glance at Denny Hall might give you a thought or two about the need for new and improved classroom facilities. Visit the Baird Biology Building and ask one of its staff about the need for additional lab equipment. Talk to a faculty member and inquire whether faculty salaries are keeping pace to assure us of the kind of faculty we must maintain.

There is much work to be done. Let us dedicate at least some small part of our time, talent and resources to the task of building a stronger Dickinson. The College has given us much in the past. Surely we can return part of our bounty so that the College can give even more in the future.

President, General Alumni Association

Birthday Dinner

Mary Dickinson Club to Mark 10th Anniversary

THE TENTH ANNIVERSARY of the founding of the Mary Dickinson Club will be observed at the Club's annual dinner meeting on Alumni Day, June 3, of the coming Commencement season. Mrs. C. Guiles Flower, Club historian, is in charge of the program, assisted by Mrs. William H. Benson and Mrs. Barbara Barnitz Lillich, '51, who are in charge of hospitality.

Last Commencement over 100 women attended the annual dinner, which is becoming increasingly popular as a Commencement event. It is open to all women of the Dickinson faculty.

The president of the Mary Dickinson Club is Mrs. Frank E. Masland, Jr., who was elected last June. She has been interested in the organization since its inception in 1951 when she served on the first executive board as first vice-president.

The other officers are Mrs. William H. Benson, first vice president; Mrs.

Roger E. Nelson, second vice-president; Mrs. Henry L. Yeagley, recording secretary; Mrs. Joseph Schiffman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ada Perry, treasurer, and Mrs. Joseph G. DuCharme, assistant treasurer.

The membership of the Club has grown to 852, including Dickinson alumnae, wives of alumni, women on the faculty and on the Board of Trustees, friends of the College, and mothers of Dickinson students. Thirty-six Life memberships at $100 create an endowment fund invested with the College for furthering the projects of the Club.

Carlisle members under the chairmanship of Mrs. Ralph Schecter realized almost $200 at a benefit bridge held last January in South College. Baltimore members, Mrs. Elizabeth Goodyear Clarke, '36, chairman, entertained all Dickinson students of the Baltimore area at a picnic last September at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Judson L. Smith, '39.

Looking ahead to the 10th anniversary dinner of the Mary Dickinson Club during the coming Commencement season are, l. to r., Mrs. Roger E. Nelson, second vice-president; Mrs. Frank E. Masland, Jr., president; Mrs. William H. Benson, first vice-president, and Mrs. Frances Smith Vuilleumier, '24, past president.

This annual affair affords an opportunity for new students to meet other Dickinson students before College opens.

A Mary Dickinson Scholarship, offering full tuition, was awarded this year for the first time to Marybeth Heffner, of Coatesville, Pa., a freshman and daughter of the late Samuel Heffner, '31. Marybeth was on the Dean's List for the First semester and was a guest of the College at the annual Scholarship Dinner in March.

Rubendalls Back Home

President-elect Howard L. Rubendall, '31, and Mrs. Rubendall completed a four-month tour of Europe, the Middle East and the British Isles in mid-May and will be on the campus for the 188th commencement in June, which will be a big one for them. Commencement will be their first introduction to the alumni family since the election of Dr. Rubendall to the presidency in December, 1959. They will attend the various reunion events of the Class of 1931. Dr. Rubendall, an ordained Presbyterian minister, will deliver the sermon at the baccalaureate service on June 4. The period between their return from abroad and Commencement is being spent at their home in Northfield, Mass., where Dr. Rubendall headed the corporation which operates the private Mount Hermon School for boys and Northfield School for girls. Their trip began Jan. 27 when they left New York City by jet for Rome. From Rome they went to the Holy Land, then to Egypt and thence to Greece. After March 1 they traveled about Europe and England and Scotland and called upon Dickinsonians at every opportunity. Dr. Rubendall will take up his duties as president on July 1.

Stages Another New York Play

NORMAN TWAIN, Class of 1952, who is New York's brash, bright and young theatrical producer, opened his third and current season at the beginning of February with Arnold Wesker's Roots. The play had been an immediate hit in London where its lead, Joan Plowright, was sky rocketed to theatrical fame. It is natural that Norman Twain should be its American producer because Roots is a play with an idea and Twain is a firm believer in ideas. On its opening in New York, it received critical acclaim.

It is the story of a Norfolk village girl who returns to her home after two years in London. What she finds is what she left—unimaginative, dull and spiritless family and friends who accept life and in accepting it add nothing to it. The girl, Beatie, excited by her experiences, finds no response to her telling of them. Her recollections are those of heartening discovery and excited participation. With her assembled family she awaits the coming of her London friend, endlessly quoted, whom she hopes to marry. He does not arrive. Then only do we learn the truth. Until then Beatie has only participated vicariously in the London excitement. But humiliation leads her to a spiritual emancipation because she finds herself and bursts out of the cocoon which was her unhappy native binding.

Twain has succeeded in gathering together a large cast of little known actors and actresses whose abilities in no small way contribute to the play's reality and the success of the production. If the play may be called "a search for self," its producer can be congratulated on his own search for such a play and his ability to bring to Broadway (or off Broadway) this work which deals with truth.—M. E. F.

Two Noted Scientists Honored by the College

The Glover Award

THE COLLEGE presented its Glover Award on April 7 to Peter van de Kamp, the astronomer and authority on the nearby stars, who has headed the Sproul Observatory for the past 23 years. He is also professor of astronomy at Swarthmore College, where the observatory is located.

Dr. van de Kamp was on the campus to deliver the third Glover Lecture. The award, which is a gold medal, and the lectureship were created in 1959 by Mrs. Esther Thompson Yeagley, of York, Pa., and her husband, the late Dr. John D. Yeagley '25, in the hope of deepening the interest of students in science by bringing to the college each year a noted scientist for a major address and a series of classroom discussions.

Dr. van de Kamp spent two days on the campus, devoting much of the time to meeting science students and teachers and speaking informally to classes in the department of physics and astronomy. The visit was arranged by Prof. Henry L. Yeagley, department chairman and John Yeagley's brother.

The 1961 Glover Lecture, titled "The Nearby Stars," dealt with the size, distances and motions of the nearby stars and their companions. Nearby stars are four to 80 light years away, close enough to the earth to be measured by geometrical methods.

Dr. van de Kamp explained how astronomers have been able to discover unseen stars by observing the perturbing effect they have on the orbit of their partners. This method, he said, may some day shed more light on the possible existence of planets near stars other than our Sun.

The Priestly Award

TENTH RECIPIENT of the Dickinson College Award in Memory of Joseph Priestley is the eminent oceanographer and geophysicist, Maurice Ewing. President Malcolm made the presentation during the annual Priestley Celebration at the College on March 23.

Dr. Ewing, who was honored for "distinguished achievements in geophysics," is professor of geology at Columbia University and director of the Lamont Geological Observatory, famed center for research in the earth sciences and the base for ocean-floor explorations that have taken Dr. Ewing to many parts of the world.

A pioneer in seismic investigations at sea, he has devised a host of techniques and instruments to provide new knowledge of the interior of the earth and is now at work on a rugged seismograph to be landed on the moon by rocket for a study of "moonquakes." His many awards and other honors include the $25,000 Vetleson Prize for work in the earth sciences.

"I accept the Priestley Award," he said at the ceremony, "with deep humility. I never realized that my name would be added to the list of distinguished men who have received it."

He referred to one of the winners, Dr. Paul Burkholder, '24, biochemist and discoverer of Chloromycetin, who was honored in 1953, the year after the prize was established to recognize achievement in the natural sciences, as "my dear friend."

Selection of Dr. Ewing for the award brought forth congratulatory telegrams from President Kennedy, former President Eisenhower, Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, and others. The White House message said the presentation to Dr. Ewing was a "symbol of the respect in which he is held by his colleagues and the gratitude of his countrymen in his achievements."

Taking part with President Malcolm in the ceremony were Dean Roger E. Nelson and Prof. Winthrop Difford, head of the department of geology and member of the awards committee. The scientist's mother, Mrs. F. F. Ewing, came from her home in Texas to see him honored. Present also were his wife, their four children and his brother, Cmdr. Robert Ewing, USN, Washington, D. C.

Earlier, Dr. Ewing gave an illustrated talk on developments of the modern study of earthquakes by calculations of free vibrations of the earth they set in motion. He listed the difficulties involved in these calculations and said one of the great breakthroughs came as a result of the development of high speed digital computers.

Faculty Members Are Wed

Barbara T. Stevens, dean of women at the College, and Prof. William H. Wishmeyer of the department of English were married in a home wedding in Carlisle on April 22. A few relatives and close friends witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. James B. Reid, of Indiana, Pa., a Presbyterian minister. The bride has been dean of women at Dickinson since 1959. Prof. Wishmeyer came to the faculty in 1957.

Alumna Creates Scholarship

A gift of $10,000 has been made to the College by Miss Elizabeth A. Low, '91, of Bloomsburg, Pa., to establish a scholarship for students from Columbia County, in Pennsylvania. At Miss Low's request, the scholarship will be named for the Moses Van Campen Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Berwick, Pa. The income will be awarded annually to a needy and worthy student, preference to be given to students from Columbia County.

Degree For Pres. Malcolm

President Malcolm will receive the degree of Doctor of Law at the commencement of the Dickinson School of Law on Saturday, June 3rd. Others receiving honorary degrees will be conferred on Arthur Littleton, the commencement speaker; Harry W. Lee; and Judge Ethan Allen Gearhart.

Saved from Neglect

The John Dickinson Mansion, Built in 1739, Is Restored

By LEON DEVALINGER, JR.

Historian and Director of the Delaware State Museum

THE OLD LEATHER covered family Bible recording the births, marriages and deaths of his family contains the entry by Samuel Dickinson that in January of 1740 he moved his family from his former home in Talbot County, Maryland, to his new mansion in Kent County, Delaware. There his wife, Mary (Cadwalader), and their two sons, John and Philemon, lived in the rural atmosphere of St. Jones Hundred of that County, where the boys were taught by a young Irish tutor, William Killen, who was later to become the first Chancellor of the State of Delaware.

In 1750 John's father made arrangements for him to go to Philadelphia and read law with John Moland, the King's attorney there. Following that he studied at the Middle Temple in London until 1757 when he returned to Philadelphia. While studying in England he availed himself of the opportunity to visit Thomas Penn and other notables to whom he carried letters.

He observed the English countryside and wrote to his parents describing gardens and commented upon the additions to the mansion, of the new dining room wing in 1752 and the summer kitchen in 1754. He also offered suggestions for landscaping around the mansion. Obviously, some of these suggestions were followed as remaining traces show that some elements of British landscaping of that period had been utilized by Samuel Dickinson.

Death Intrudes

Unfortunately, the placid and happy rural scene, as revealed through John Dickinson's letters to his parents, did not long prevail as Judge Samuel Dickinson died in 1765 and was buried with

Decreed National Landmark

It is timely indeed that it can be announced, with the publication of this article, that the John Dickinson House has been listed by the National Park Service as a registered National Historic Landmark. Frank E. Masland, Jr., '18, a trustee of the college, is chairman of the Advisory Board of the National Park Service. The Registry of National Historic Landmarks was established by the Park Service in October, 1960, to recognize and endorse the preservation and protection of structures and sites now administered by states, other public agencies or historic societies and to encourage private owners of historic landmarks to maintain them.

honors and expressions of sympathy by his friends and neighbors in the little walled family burial plot still to be seen along the lane leading to the mansion. The dutiful sons came home to assist their mother and close the mansion for within a year she moved to Trenton and lived in the household of her son, Philemon, until she in turn died a few years later and was buried in the friends Burying Ground in Trenton.

The mansion was part of the inheritance of John Dickinson, who made periodic visits to it, usually every spring and fall, to discuss with his caretaker tenants the management of it and the settlement for his share of the crops.

Meanwhile, John Dickinson had been practicing law in Philadelphia and serving Pennsylvania in the Colonial Assembly, where he had become known as a pamphleteersman. Notable among his writings was The Declaration of Rights Adopted By The Stamp Act Con- gress and in 1768 there was his famous Letters Of A Farmer In Pennsylvania and also his noted A Song For American Freedom. In fact, he wrote all of the important documents of our Country up to the Declaration of Independence.

Favored Confederation

Although he was in Continental Congress at that time he did not vote for the Declaration of Independence as he believed strongly in a general confederation of all American Colonies under a constitution with Continental control before resorting to armed force to gain independence.

Upon the adoption of Lee's resolution for independence, he was among the first, as a colonel of Philadelphia Militia, to march against the enemy in New Jersey at the head of his troops. When the British invaded the Philadelphia area late in 1776 many of his men refused to reenlist and preferred to rush home to protect their families.

With his command gone, John Dickinson collected his own family, a wife and two daughters, and came to his boyhood home in the old mansion near Dover. With them safely lodged there and among friends he volunteered his services as a private to serve with the Delaware Militia during the summer of 1777. In October of that year he was commissioned a brigadier general in charge of collecting arms, ammunition and supplies for the Delaware Troops.

In August, 1781, when he and his family were away, a whale boat containing a party of sixteen Tories from New York landed at Kitts Hummock, a nearby landing on the Delaware Bay, and marched inland to Dickinson Mansion. There they frightened his slaves, stole the silver as well as a large quantity of his wife's clothes and all of their provisions and meats. They did not destroy his library but they took away one of his slaves and greatly alarmed those at the mansion and in the immediate vicinity.

Literacy and The Word at Work in a Jungle

By CAROLYN McMULLIN RENSCH, '54

In the lowland jungles of Oaxaca, Mexico, living among primitive Indians, are Mrs. Rensch and her husband, Calvin. Members of the unique Summer Institute of Linguistics and its sister organization, the Wycliffe Bible Translators, their mission is to reduce the unwritten language used by the Chinantecos and through this means to bring literacy and Christianity to a people who have known little but want and superstition. In this article Mrs. Rensch, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, describes the challenges and frustrations of their work.

OF MEXICO'S 33 million people, more than three million still speak their Indian languages and an additional six million maintain their pre-Colombian cultures. Some of these live on the fringes of the large population centers; but many, many others live in clusters of simple dwellings dotting the country's rugged mountainsides.

In the mountainous state of Oaxaca, lying to the northwest of the Mayan Indians of Mexico's southernmost state, Chiapas, there is a large concentration of Indian population representing some seven or eight major language families. These peoples differ from one another not only in language but also in group character. There are, for example, the proud, aggressive Zapotecos, the people of Benito Juárez; the withdrawn, suspicious Mixes; the shy, unprogressive Chinantecos. It is with the last-mentioned that I should like to deal in some detail, for it is among these people that we have lived and worked for the major portion of the last four and a half years.

The name Chinanteco, like Zapoteco, Mixe, and the other Oaxaca language names, denotes a language family rather than a single language. The so-called Chinantecos, of whom there are perhaps 60,000, speak eight or more closely related, but mutually unintelligible languages, at least as different one from the other as Spanish and French. Their nasal-sounding languages are, like Chinese, tonal languages: Many pairs, triplets, and even quadruplets of words with completely different meanings sound identical apart from the pitch of the voice used in pronouncing them. Even such grammatical concepts as different tenses and persons of verbs are in many cases indicated by no more than a pitch change on the verb stem. Many people regard the unwritten languages of the world as "aboriginal grunts," with little or no structure; but the most casual investigation reveals that the structure of many of them, Chinanteco included, makes our Indo-European tongues seem simple by comparison.

What sort of people speaks the Chinantec language? In contrast to their complicated language, their material culture is fairly simple. They live in grass-, leaf-, or palm-thatched dwellings, walled with split balsa poles and held together by vine or balsa bark. Their diet consists to a large extent of corn tortillas, baked on a clay griddle over an open fire. However, this is supplemented somewhat by a variety of products of their agriculture—chile, squash, beans, bananas, and oranges in season; coffee; rarely chicken and pork—or from their jungle environment, certain edible leaves, wild birds, minnows, and crawfish.

Most of the agricultural activity of the Chinantecos, as of all of Mexico's Indians, centers around the cultivation of corn for their tortillas. Here, where the only place to plant is the steep hill-sides and where the annual rainfall may reach fifteen feet a year, they are forced to use the agricultural technique known as "slash and burn": The jungle growth is chopped down and allowed to dry, then burned off completely. Then, without further preparation of the soil, the corn is planted, using the ancient "dibble-stick." This type of agriculture takes so much from the soil that a given plot of ground cannot be used more frequently than once in seven years.

Most of the Chinantecos living in the lower mountains and foothills of eastern Oaxaca grow coffee in addition to their corn, and this is their major source of income. Those in the few broad river valleys which segment the area also cultivate tobacco, another money crop.

As Mexico's Indians go, the Chinantecos are by no means the poorest. However, for the most part they live not much above subsistence level, and very few of them advance economically. This may be attributed to their unaggressive character, their centuries of isolation, their lack of diversified economy and their consequent dependence on outsiders for all their needs beyond their food. In addition, the universal problem of high birth rate is beginning to make the land situation critical in some areas.

Of the lowland, jungle Chinantec groups, it is the most southern with whom we live. This group of about 10,000 we call the Lalana Chinantecos, naming them for the largest municipal-headquarters town in the dialect area.

Our own village is Arroyo Tomate (Tomato Gulch), a small outlying "ranch" of Lalana. Arroyo Tomate—population about 400—lies on the Lalana River in a lovely jungle setting. On the hilly lands nearest the village are the coffee bushes and the tall jungle trees which shade them. Farther out, on the steepest slopes, lie the cornfields.

The people are simple and naive, very little touched by Mexican culture—most of them think Mexico City is a "gringo" town, and unfamiliar with the Spanish language. There is a village school; but only some years does it have a teacher for its pupils, all first graders and ranging in age from six to sixteen. Because the school is conducted exclusively in Spanish, very little progress in learning is evident among the children, although some learn to sound out Spanish words without understanding them.

Just how does a family of "gringos" fit into a situation like this? Why are we here? As members jointly of the Summer Institute of Linguistics and its sister organization, the Wycliffe Bible Translators, our purpose for being in Arroyo Tomate is at least two-fold.

One aim is linguistic. We are learning to speak and attempting to analyze the Chinantec language, utilizing the modern science of descriptive linguistics. What we are able to discover about the structure of this heretofore unwritten language—its sound system and its grammar—we shall make known, through articles for the journals of linguistics, to others who are interested in such subjects.

Our other aim is religious. We are beginning to translate the New Testament into Chinanteco. The Book of Mark is our first attempt at real translation, although we have some simplified Bible stories in print; and our hope is that Mark will be ready for publication this fall. Translating from the Greek language, the Palestinian culture, and the

AROUND THE CAMPUS

Prof. Charles C. Sellers, librarian of the College and art historian, will conduct a one-week seminar (July 9-15) on "Prints in America" at the 14th annual Seminars on American Culture to be held at Cooperstown, N. Y., during the coming summer.

Prof. Francis W. Warlow, English department, will lecture on American literature at the Universities of Rennes and Grenoble, in France, next term under a Fulbright Lectureship. He will spend one semester at each of the universities. In addition to teaching, he will do research on modern French literature while abroad.

Major grants for graduate study next term have been won by seniors Elizabeth Anne Keat, Chatham, N. J., and Fred S. Richardson, Carlisle, Miss Keat, daughter of the late Samuel H. Keat, '16, and granddaughter of the late John H. P. Keat, '94, and Maud Zeamer Keat, '94, will use a Fulbright grant to study French literature at the University of Paris. Richardson will study chemistry at Princeton University under a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. Both are members of Phi Beta Kappa.

Prof. Benjamin D. James, '34, head of the psychology and education department, is winding up a year of travel that has taken him to 55 colleges across the country in search of material for a book on graduate programs in small liberal arts colleges. He has corresponded with more than 600 colleges. His study has been made possible by a Refresher-Year leave and a Sloane Foundation grant. The book will be a blueprint for colleges under 2,500 enrollment desiring to set up graduate schools.

Visiting professorships will take Prof. William Sloane, English department, and Prof. Ferdinando D. Maurino, modern languages department, to Bowling Green State University and University of Nebraska, respectively, during the coming summer. Both have been engaged for the full summer term. In addition to their classroom lectures, they will advise graduate students on research problems. A new French reader by Prof. Maurino will be published in the Fall by Odysset Press, N. Y.

For the excellence of their research papers in the field of microbiology, read at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science in March, Professors Elmer C. Herber and R. E. Ogren of the biology department received prizes of $100. Prof. Herber is a former president of the academy.

Lectures by Norman Twain, '52, New York play producer, and Agnes de Mille, dancer and writer, featured a ten-day Arts Festival held on the campus in April. Students set up and conducted the festival, a campus "first."

"Powerful New Work" and "A Mighty Cantata" were words used by music reviewers following the first performance of Prof. Lloyd Ultan's moving musical setting of the Markham Poem The Man with a Hoe in March by the Harrisburg Symphony Orchestra and a chorus of 70 voices from the College, in the Forum in Harrisburg. The excitement of a world premiere, the quality of the composition and the heights reached by orchestra and chorus combined to make the occasion a milestone in the history of music at the College. Prof. Ultan, chairman of the music department, composed the cantata in 1957.

Two on Faculty Will Retire in June

John C. M. Grimm

Ralph Schecter

TWO MEMBERS of the faculty who "came out of the West" in 1922 to teach at Dickinson will retire in June. At that time the names of John C. M. Grimm, professor of romance languages and chairman of the department of modern languages, and Ralph Schecter, Thomas Beaver Professor of English Literature, will be added to the revered list of professors emeriti.

Both intend to remain in Carlisle where they reared their families and where their roots go deep. Prof. Grimm courted a local girl and Dickinson co-ed. She was Margaret Craver, '29. Their three children are Dickinsonians—Russell, '52, Forest, '55, and Emily, '61—and so are the three children of Prof. and Mrs. Schecter—Roger, '47, Richard, '53, and Katherine Bolam, '55.

Both have served Dickinson beyond the call of duty. Prof. Grimm was secretary of the faculty for 12 years, 1944-1956, and marshall of the College for four, 1956-1960. Prof. Schecter led the College band and orchestra for 25 years after coming to the campus, coached debate for nearly a decade, and his productive interest in photography is always at the service of the College.

Prof. Grimm came to the faculty as associate professor to teach French, German and Spanish, was promoted to full professor in 1935 and to chairman of the department in 1944, succeeding C. William Prettyman. He began his teaching career in 1912 in the high school of Plain City, Ohio, taught at Bridgewater College in 1913-1914, Juniata College in 1916-1917 and, after service with the A.E.F. in France and Germany in World War I, at Ohio Wesleyan University, 1919-1922.

Born in 1891 in Columbus, O., he received the A.B. and M.A. degrees at Ohio State University in 1911 and 1912 and his Ph.D. at the University of Pennsylvania in 1916. He studied at the Sorbonne for a brief time following World War I.

Prof. Schecter, who was born in 1893 in Riola, Ill., graduated from the University of Illinois with an A.B. degree in 1916, studied conducting under Sir Henry Wood and English literature at the University of London where one of his teachers was the eminent authority on Scottish poetry, W. P. Ker.

He was overseas during World War I as director of the 234th Engineers Band. After college he had pursued

List of Life Members

2189 Names on Life Membership Rolls

The Top Ten Classes

1950.....82	1927.....55
1948.....59	1951.....54
1935.....58	1939.....53
1934.....57	1933.....51
1922.....56	1952.....50

THE addition of forty-five names brings the total number of life members in the General Alumni Association to 2189.

Two classes—1953 and 1960—supplied four classmates each to top all classes in new member enrollment. The Class of 1950, although adding only one new lifer, continues to lead by a wide margin in total members with a total of 82.

Several new classes were added to the top ten. The Class of 1929 jumped to fifth position with 56 lifers. The Classes of 1933 and 1952 are also new entries to their select group.

Life membership in the General Alumni Association, in addition to eliminating your payment of annual dues, also helps to supply the financial means by which your Alumni Association operates. The association realizes the interest gained from the investment of each Life Membership fee. It uses this money to publish the Dickinson Alumnus and to carry on its other important functions.

The $50.00 fee for Life Membership is payable in four annual installments.

The entire list of life members appears below.

Alumnus to Leave the Faculty

Prof. Arthur C. Flandreau, Jr., '50, the assistant librarian of Dickinson College, has accepted appointment at Concord College, Athens, W. Va., as head librarian and chairman of the department of library science, effective July 1. He has been on the staff of the Dickinson library since 1955. His wife, the former Janet Elder, '50, has been teaching part time the past two years in the department of classical languages of the College. The Flandreaus have three children. They will leave the campus in late June.

Nuclear Studies Bolstered By Grant of $10,225

A GRANT of $10,225 from the Reactor Development Division of the Atomic Energy Commission has been used by the College to purchase additional equipment for teaching nuclear physics.

Forty new laboratory items have been acquired, ranging from a four-unit dynacon electrometer costing $3,500 to pencil-size monitoring detectors that tell lab students at a glance how much radiation of all types they have absorbed.

Prof. Howard C. Long of the Physics Department said the new equipment vastly widens the range of laboratory experiments possible at Dickinson and gives the College a nuclear laboratory equal to that at any private liberal arts college in the country.

The grant marked the second time that Dickinson has been a beneficiary of the A.E.C. Last June the commission gave the College a loan of five curies of radioactive material (plutonium in combination with beryllium) and a "Neutron Howitzer" in which to store it. The one-year loan is renewable.

Nuclear studies were introduced at Dickinson four years ago following modernization of the Tome Scientific Building at a cost of $200,000. They have excited new interest in science, according to Prof. Henry L. Yeagley, Physics Department chairman. Seventeen students are taking nuclear courses during the present semester.

With the Clubs—

Baltimore—Fifty-three persons attended the April 12th meeting at the Lovely Lane Methodist Church. In addition to greetings from the college by President Malcolm, George Shuman, Jr., and Tom Young, Dr. Winthrop Difford spoke about the revitalized geology department, of which he is the chairman. Winfield C. Cook '32, chairman of the Annual Giving Campaign, also spoke. The new slate of officers elected include: Samuel H. Spragins, Jr. '37, president; Austin W. Bittle '39, vice-president; Ann Reese Harter '39, secretary; Sally V. Clarkson, '60, treasurer; and Robert C. Respass '41, historian.

Denver—A luncheon on March 25th at the Brown Palace was held by Colorado alumni to greet Miss Barbara T. Stevens, dean of women, who was attending a conference in Denver. After hearing about the new developments at the college, the club elected George F. Barber, Esq. '44, president; and Shirley English Duncan '48, secretary.

Gulf Coast—Dean Hoffman II presided over the February 17th dinner meeting at the Toffennetti Restaurant in St. Petersburg. Forty-five persons were in attendance to meet President Malcolm and Mr. and Mrs. George Shuman who represented the college. In addition to hearing from the male representatives about the changes at Dickinson under President Malcolm, the group joined Mrs. Shuman in singing college songs. The following new officers were elected: Peter Fludovich '29, president; Clair A. Davis '22, vice-president; and Florence Everhart Kidder '22, secretary-treasurer. Future annual meetings will be held on the last Friday in February.

Miami—A reorganization meeting of this club was held on March 12th. Frank J. Jagers '14, was elected president. Dorothy Heck Houlberg was reelected secretary-treasurer. The new president pledged himself to the goal of a strong club in the Miami area and asked for the support of area alumni. Annual meetings will be held on the Wednesday before the Gulf Coast meeting in order that college representatives can attend both dinners.

New York Alumnae—Members and friends of the alumnae club met on March 11th for a luncheon and theatre party. The luncheon was held at Schrafts, 43rd St. and Broadway. After luncheon, the group was joined by several husbands for the performance of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown." Eight members attended the annual affair and made plans for the fall meeting to be held in Millburn, N. J. in late October or early November.

New York City—The Lancaster Hotel, formerly the Midston House, was the scene of the annual dinner meeting attended by 48 alumni and friends on March 24th. Robert D. Lowe '49, president of the club, presided over the meeting which included brief "hellos" from President Malcolm and Tom Young and a talk on the future development in the physical facilities of Dickinson by George Shuman, development director.

Pittsburgh—Fifty alumni and friends attended the March 16th dinner at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club. President Malcolm, George Shuman, and Tom Young were the representatives from the college. Winfield C. Cook '32, chairman of the Annual Giving Campaign, spoke briefly about the 1961 Alumni Fund. The main speaker of the meeting, presided over by William S. Bender, was Bishop Vernon Middleton, the new Bishop of the Western Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Church. Bishop Middleton spoke of the spiritual needs of the college and also reminisced about his student days at the college.

Other alumni clubs have held meetings but they were held too late for details to appear in this issue. Anyone desiring information about his particular area club is welcome to write c/o The Dickinson Alumnus.

John Dickinson Mansion

Shortly afterwards John Dickinson made plans to return his family to Philadelphia but he was persuaded by his friends to stand for election as a member of the Legislative Council from New Castle, Delaware. He was easily elected and while serving in that body the office of President or Governor was vacated through the death of Caesar Rodney. Shortly, thereafter, John Dickinson was unanimously elected by his colleagues to that position. In this capacity he served the remainder of 1781 and the most of 1782 when he resigned to accept the office of the President of the Supreme Executive Council of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. He served that State in this high post until 1785.

Heads Delegation

In 1786 he headed the Delaware Delegation to the Annapolis Convention, of which he was elected chairman. It will be remembered that this meeting prepared the way and recommended the Constitutional Convention which met in Philadelphia the following year.

In that great meeting John Dickinson with the other members of the Delaware Delegation contributed to the framing of that historic document. The Representatives from Delaware were instructed not to surrender any of the State's rights to equal representation. Dickinson's big contribution was that all state's would have equal representation in the Senate.

Following the drafting of the Constitution he prepared a series of stirring letters signed "Fabius" which, like his earlier Farmers Letters did much to help influence the public in favor of the new Constitution. Delaware's other Delegates were George Read, Jacob Broom, Gunning Bedford, Jr., and Richard Bassett. They had prepared the people of Delaware for a hasty ratification of the new Constitution. This took place at Dover, December 7, 1787 and as this State was the first to ratify, it became the first State in the Union. This was John Dickinson's last great public act on the national scale.

He was still active in the affairs of Delaware for in 1791 and 1792 he came down to Dover from Wilmington and took a leading part in the drafting and passage of a new Constitution for the State. In the next year he built a mansion at Eighth and Market Streets in Wilmington and lived there until his death in 1808. He was buried in the Friends Meeting Yard at Fourth and West Streets.

Watches Over Mansion

In the meantime, he had been making his periodic visits to his boyhood home to inspect the plantation and complete his arrangements with the tenant as he had done through the years.

This sturdily constructed dwelling, laid in Flemish bond brick, was built to face to the South thus connecting it by a lane with the landing on the nearby St. Jones River. From there the family had easy access by water up the Delaware Bay and River to Wilmington and Philadelphia. There was also a lane leading to the road to Dover, but in the earlier years overland travel was often impossible except on horseback. Following the Tory raid in 1781 there was nothing unusual taking place here until the fire of 1804 which weakened the roof and destroyed much of the interior woodwork. John Dickinson had the damage repaired in a manner simpler than that installed by his father. We learned considerable about the mansion through his correspondence at that time with the Insurance Company of North America.

Since his death it has been inhabited by tenants for the Dickinsons, the Logans and subsequent owners.

Mansion Rescued

This great old dwelling house suffered through the years from decay and neglect. In time this fine example of Delaware eighteenth century plantation architecture would probably have been damaged beyond repair and lost to posterity. Fortunately, the Historic Activities Committee of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America in the State of Delaware interested itself in the preservation of the mansion and raised $25,000. With this they purchased the mansion and a suitable plot of ground which was presented to the State of Delaware on Constitution Day, September 17, 1952. Governor Elbert N. Carvel received a deed on behalf of the State and in turn conveyed it to Mrs. Henry Ridgely, president of the Public Archives Commission. The Delaware Legislature then appropriated a corresponding sum for the restoration and partial furnishing.

After undertaking extensive archaeological, architectural and historical research the restoration was begun and carried forward to its completion. A committee under the chairmanship of Henry Francis duPont sought out furnishings reflecting the tastes of the Dickinson family and whenever possible acquired the furniture and other objects owned by the Dickinson family. When these were not available antiques of the Delaware-Southeastern Pennsylvania area were obtained.

The committee was greatly assisted by Women's Clubs, patriotic, civic and historical organizations as well as by private individuals in granting sums of money for the purchase of furnishings. Notable among these furnishings are John Dickinson's armchair in the library, his Cincinnati Certificate on the wall of the same room, a collection of books and pamphlets written or owned by him, his portrait, gold cufflinks, razor, portable inkwell, a small desk and some significant pieces of family silver.

We are especially gratified that John Dickinson's fine English bracket clock is on the wall of the parlor as a loan from Dickinson College through the efforts of the Dickinson College Club of Delaware.

Many Give Help

The Garden Club of Wilmington raised funds to engage Alden Hopkins, landscape architect of Williamsburg, Virginia, to prepare a master plan for the gardens and grounds. This has been supplemented by additional gifts from individuals and the Garden Club of Wilmington, Gordon Heights Garden Club, Alapocas Garden Club, Cross Country Garden Club, Delaware Federation of Garden Clubs and the County Garden Club. One of these noteworthy gifts was of 10,000 bulbs of Eighteenth Century style tulips, crocus, jonquils, daffodils and squill given by Malcolm M. Dickinson, resident vice president of the Insurance Company of North America at The Hague. These are usually at their height of bloom in April and early May.

The original donors to the fund for purchasing the mansion formed an association, incorporated as Friends of the John Dickinson Mansion, Inc. Since then the organization has grown and anyone interested in the preservation and perpetuation of this historic site and a broader knowledge of John Dickinson is invited to membership. The society, of which the President of Dickinson College is an honorary director, holds its annual meeting at the Mansion the first Monday of May. This year a special program, entitled an "Eighteenth Century Evening," had been planned beginning with the business meeting, followed by costumed May Pole and other dances, a buffet supper, and a special candlelight tour of the mansion. This meeting was open to the public.

In addition to contributing to furnishing of the mansion the Friends of the John Dickinson Mansion, Inc. are cooperating with the Public Archives Commission in a project to collect and publish the correspondence of John Dickinson under the editorship of Leon deValinger, Jr., State Archivist. The Friends have also contributed toward the purchase of a significant collection of John Dickinson's letters and papers located in England earlier this year. Thus far the editor has collected the text of nearly 3,000 letters to or from John Dickinson. The project will be pleased to receive a copy of any letter written to John Dickinson or by him as it is hoped to make this collection as complete as possible. The address of the project is at the Hall of Records, Dover, Delaware.

Their Classroom in Denmark Advances the Cause of Peace

DR. THELMA SMITH MINER, '35, and her husband, Dr. Ward L. Miner, will soon complete a year of teaching American Civilization at the International People's College in Elsinore, near Copenhagen, Denmark, where they have the unusual distinction of being holders of Fulbright Fellowships, on leave of absence for 1960-61 from their professorships at Youngstown University, Ohio. Few, if any, such concurrent awards have been made before to a husband and wife.

The International People's College, though a part of the vast Danish program of adult education, is unique in that its students come from many countries. "At present," Mrs. Miner writes, "we have students from about fifteen different countries. There are three African students here, one from Tanganyika and two from Ghana. One of these is a man about our age, a personal friend of Nkrumah. We also have a woman, Danish, who arrived here in early February straight from the Congo, where she has been a nurse for the last three and a half years, sent down by the Belgians."

The students live on the campus. Founded in 1921 by Peter Manniche, the college tries to further international peace by improving international understanding. Thus the courses which the Miners teach include such subjects as America's literature, art, history, politics, and philosophy.

"The teaching here is certainly not hard," Mrs. Miner reports, "but the discussion groups which meet for an hour each time are often fascinating and drive us both to try to fill in gaps in our knowledge about a tremendous variety of things. The nearly one hundred students are divided into seven or eight groups, each with a teacher. Every third meeting the students are shuffled around, so that a real variety of ideas comes out.

"And there is a constant procession of interesting people—as well as social and semi-social activities in which we are expected to take part: dances, musical evenings, films galore, and talks by local and visiting persons of distinction. Recently eight of us who are in a French literature class reading Camus and Ionesco drove in to Copenhagen for a matinee of two plays by Ionesco done very interestingly by a French cast. We have also frequently gone in to Copenhagen to see operatic performances and the Danish Royal Ballet, as well as to attend parties given by the American Club of Denmark."

The Miners have spent four of the last ten years in Europe. In 1955-56 they were in Finland, where Dr. Ward Miner had a Fulbright appointment to the University of Turku. From 1951 to 1953 they were in France doing research under a grant from the American Council of Learned Societies. Mrs. Miner is the author of a book on James Russell Lowell, her husband is the author of one on William Faulkner, and together they have written and published a detailed study of the impact of modern American fiction on France and French writers.

On this trip they have traveled extensively through Britain, Finland, Germany, Austria, France, and the Low Countries. They found sailing on a slow paddlewheeler down the Danube to Vienna especially thrilling because, among other things, it brought vividly to remembrance the yarns which Mark Twain spun about life on the Mississippi.

They expect to be home in the early part of the summer, and after vacationing at their Maine cottage they will return to their teaching duties at Youngstown University.

The Fulbright program, authorized by Public Law 584, finances lecturing and research by established American scholars and graduate students in many countries in Europe, Africa, Asia, South America, Australia, New Zealand, and even Iceland.

PROF. WILLIAM SLOANE

Will Retire In June

music and thought of making a career in this field, but his studies in London turned him in the direction of teaching and he was head of the English department at Missouri Military Academy when called to Dickinson. He became a full professor in 1956 and was named to the Thomas Beaver Chair in 1958.

A grateful College will honor both men during the coming Commencement season.

Work In a Jungle

Hebrew thought pattern to a very dissimilar language, culture, and thought pattern presents problems which are interesting and challenging, as well as frustrating.

It is our conviction that, although the Chinantecs have a certain tradition of Christianity heavily intertwined with pagan superstition and fear, they, just as we, need to know Jesus Christ in a personal way and that the way they can do this to have the Word of God available to them in the only language which they really understand.

Two other activities occupy a great deal of our time. First, in connection with our linguistic goals, as a part of the service which the Summer Institute of Linguistics renders to the governments of the countries where it works, and in preparation for the day when the New Testament will be available in Chinanteco, we use the Chinantec alphabet which we have devised to prepare primers in the language, and we teach as many people as are willing to read them.

Second, out of sheer Christian compassion and as a means of breaking down barriers, we do a great deal of medical work. Although untrained in this line, we find that we learn fast and that we know a great deal more than the herb curers and chanters who are virtually the only source of medical aid.

At this point I cannot resist mentioning one other way in which we have made friends with the Chinantec people. That is through our children, Bobby, five, and Lois, two. People everywhere seem unable to resist children, and the Chinantecos are no exception. They have really taken our's into their hearts; and the kids spend so much time with their Indian friends that Bobby, at least, has become as fluent in Chinanteco as in English. He spends happy days swimming in the river, riding on rafts, shooting at birds with a slingshot, and doing all the other things that boys do. Lois devotes her time to wandering from house to house, begging for tortillas and other delicacies.

The field work of the Summer Institute of Linguistics and the Wycliffe Bible Translators began in Mexico in 1934, although the organizations as such were not incorporated until 1942, and has been largely the brainchild of William Cameron Townsend, a talented Christian diplomat and former missionary to Guatemala. Largely by invitation of governments themselves, who are pleased with the literacy program and the service rendered to tribespeople, the work has expanded to include eleven other countries in the Americas and Asia, with prospects of entering Africa this year. The organization now includes 1122 workers, most of them linguist-translators. It is supported chiefly by gifts of churches and individuals in the States who are interested in seeing the Word of God available to all men, although certain other groups are interested in various phases of the work.

The linguistic training for the Wycliffe translators, and any others who desire to take it, is given during eleven-week summer courses on the campuses of the Universities of Oklahoma, North Dakota, and Washington (and in England and Australia). These courses are taught by Institute personnel but are recognized and accredited by the universities as a part of their curricula. Because of the years spent studying the unwritten languages of the world, the members of the Institute have access to a wealth of language data available to few others. No other organization devoted to linguistic studies approaches the number of personnel in field work. At least twelve of the members have now received doctorates in linguistics, with more in the process.

A further type of training for Wycliffe translators is given at the so-called "Jungle Camp" in Chiapas, southern Mexico. There they learn to live in the tropics and to survive in the jungle. They learn to hike, to swim, to paddle dugout canoes, and to build fires. They are taught a bit of carpentry, mechanics, and medicine. As one part of the course they build their own thatched huts, which they must live in for six weeks, at the same time being rationed on the amount and type of food they may eat.

This, in very general terms, summarizes the work of the Summer Institute of Linguistics and the Wycliffe Bible Translators and our own activities among the Chinantecos. A bit more insight into the overall work can be obtained from the article "Two Thousand Tongues to Go" in the August, 1958, Reader's Digest or from the book of the same name published by Harper and Bros. This title emphasizes our primary goal of reaching with the Word of God the two thousand or more groups of primitive people who as yet have none of it in their languages.

Winter Teams Successful

Dickinson winter sports teams won 62 per cent of their 46 contests, providing the College with one of its better campaigns. The four teams posted 29 victories against 17 defeats.

As usual, the swimmers, while denied their fourth straight all-winning season, showed the way. They won nine of the ten meets (Delaware was the culprit) and now have a four-year record of 44 victories in their last 45 meets, certainly one of the finest in small-college circles in the country.

The wrestling team won nine meets, lost two for Dickinson's best-ever season in this sport. The basketball team by breaking even in 18 games had its best campaign in six years. Only the fledgling squash team, competing against such as Penn, Navy and Pitt, showed a deficit for the season. The squashmen won two of their five contests. The season marked Dickinson's debut in this sport.

Hats are off to Coaches David Eavenson (swimming), Joseph DuCharme (basketball), Glenn Flegal (wrestling) and Gardner Hays (squash). Prof. Eavenson, the director of athletics and schedule-maker, deserves an extra bow.

Glover Award

He expressed the opinion that scientists in their current anxiety to "throw things into orbit" might do well to study the things closer home and that some of the vast sums being poured into heavy space probes should be channeled into relatively more economical projects such as space photography from balloons, 20 to 30 miles up. He characterized the space race as "a terribly expensive way to obtain information."

The presentation of the Glover Award by President Malcolm followed a talk by Prof. Herbert Wing, Jr., on the founding of the lectureship and award and the introduction of Dr. van de Kamp by Prof. Yeagley. Mrs. Esther Yeagley, who has shown a deep interest in all of the Glover Lectures, was in the large audience.
