LAST MINUTE NEWS FLASH

Dickinson College has received a grant of $480,000 from the Longwood Foundation of Wilmington, Delaware. The gift was made on a matching basis to provide half the cost of a planned biological science building. Dickinson must raise an additional $480,000 by April 1965 at which time construction must be started, according to the provisions of the grant. The gift, largest ever received by the College, will be tied in with the long-range development program scheduled to begin in 1964. The grant will enable the facilities of the biology department to match the facilities of the other science departments of the College. In addition to expanded classrooms, research and laboratory facilities, the new building will contain a library.

THE MODERN ERA

Dickinson Football 1912-1962

A NEW SET of rules was introduced in the 1912 season. Because most of these rules are in existence today, this year is considered the beginning of the modern era of football. The 1962 season marked the 50th anniversary of modern collegiate football, although the 65th year of official Dickinson participation in the sport. Because of the two World Wars, 47 teams represented Dickinson on the gridiron in a total of 392 games in these 50 years. Red Devils were victorious in 151, lost 211 and tied 30 of these games.

There were two undefeated teams—the 1917 team and the 1937 team, which was held to a tie. The 1946 team compiled a 6-1 record, while the 1949 team was 5-2-1. The 1925 team had a 5-2-2 season. Washington and Jefferson College was instrumental in preventing both the 1937 and 1946 teams from having undefeated seasons, tying the 1937 team and defeating the 1946 team.

The 47 teams were guided by a total of 20 coaches. The longest tenure in office for any coach has been seven years. This record is held jointly by Art Kahler, who coached from 1935 until 1941 and the incumbent, Don Seibert, who has been on the Dickinson scene since 1957. The coach with the best record was Joseph Lightner, whose 1923-24-25 teams compiled a 17-8-2 record. Francis A. "Mother" Dunn, '14, who played for Dickinson from 1910 to 1913, coached the 1915 team which failed to win a game while losing 9 and tying 1. He came back in 1917 to coach Dickinson's only undefeated team, the 1917 squad. Ralph Ricker, who coached from 1946-49, compiled an 18-10-3 record. Art Kahler, whose 1937 team had only one tie marring its perfect record, had a 29-25-5 record in his seven years. Glenn Killinger, who went on to gain national recognition at West Chester State College, coached the 1922 team to a 6-3 record.

Against present day opponents, Dickinson has the following record in the years since 1912: Drexel 6-2-1, F & M 8-30-2 (a win in 1961 was the first over F & M since 1925), Haverford 6-3-2, Hopkins 6-10-1, Lebanon Valley 3-6-1, Pennsylvania Military College 7-6-2, Swarthmore 9-7-4, Ursinus 15-6-5, Western Maryland 4-15-1.

Of the 648 Dickinsonians who have won letters for playing football in the 47 seasons since 1912, certain individual stars have to be recognized. Without any attempt at singling out one individual, the following is a chronological listing of those who have left their mark on Dickinson football annals. Francis A. "Mother" Dunn, '14, an All-American honorable mention selection, scored 183 points in his four seasons for Dickinson. Two of these were the pre-modern years of 1910 and 1911. He scored 30 points in one game and 84 in the 1913 season, his final year.

John L. Pipa, '22, gained 267 yards in a game against Juniata in his senior year. Pipa's total scoring effort in four seasons was 108 points. Robert G. Books, '26, who captained the 1925 team, scored 151 points in four seasons and 30 in one game against Ursinus in his freshman year. In his three seasons as a member of the varsity, 1936-38, Samuel Padjen, '39, scored 200 points. In his junior and senior year he was named to the Little All American squad. In 385 carries during his football career, he gained 2,403 yards for a 6.2 average per carry.

The 1941 team boasted two outstanding individuals. Douglas Rehor, '48, was the number one small college passer in that season with 103 completions in 207 attempts for 1,103 yards. In a game against Western Maryland, he completed 21 out of 47 attempts. Leonard P. Supulski, '42, who, along with Rehor, was named to several "all" teams, was the nation's leading pass receiver in 1941 with a total of 47 passes caught for a total of 586 yards and two touchdowns. Supulski went on to the professional ranks and played with the Philadelphia Eagles. He was killed in a plane crash during World War II.

Gerald Miller, '50, scored a total of 163 points during his four varsity years, 1946-49. In his senior year, he scored 63 points and scored all 27 points against Drexel. In this game, he caught 4 touchdown passes from John Mathewson, '52. Dickinson's present backfield coach, Wilbur J. Gobrecht, '52, scored a total of 138 points in his four varsity years at Dickinson. He was given honorable mention in the "Little All American" selections in his junior year during which he scored 12 touchdowns, 4 against Ursinus.

Reno DiOrio, '63, who was named the most valuable player in the Middle Atlantic Conference last year, compiled an enviable record during his four years at Dickinson. In his junior year he was the scoring leader of the Middle Atlantic Conference with 48 points, while leading Dickinson to honors as the top offensive team in the Middle Atlantic Conference with an average of 172.1 yards per game. He and Daniel Shaver, '64, teamed up to set a Dickinson touchdown-pass record of 186 yards against Franklin and Marshall. A second Dickinson football record was set in the 1962 season when John Harper kicked two field goals against Haverford for the second straight year and a total of 5 for two seasons.

While backfield men normally make headlines, two of Dickinson's stalwart linemen deserve mention. Carl Chambers, '29, played every quarter of every game for his three years of varsity football, the seasons of 1926-27-28. Robert J. Woodside, '57, duplicated this herculian effort in the same number of games (25) during the 1954-55-56 seasons.

A YEAR BY year review of Dickinson football in modern times provides the following highlights.

The 1912 team, the first in the modern era, holds the record for the most points scored in a season when they scored 181. In 1914, Washington and Jefferson, Dickinson's perennial nemesis, ran up a 105-0 victory and holds the record as having scored the most points against a Dickinson team. The 1915 squad entered the record book by suffering 9 successive defeats. The 1917 team while compiling its undefeated 5-0 record, had only two touchdowns scored against it. Its captain, Elwood Swope, scored 55 points during the season. In the fall of 1918, during World War I, a Student Army Training Corps team captained by William M. Young, '21, played five games and compiled a 2-3 record. This team's efforts are not counted in the College records since it was not an official College team.

The 1925 team had only 21 points scored against it while compiling a 5-2-2 record. Also in 1925, Fred Sweeley, '28, set a record for the longest touchdown in Dickinson history with a 98 yard run with an intercepted pass against PMC.

The 1930 Dickinson football team inspired the nickname "Red Devils" for their "savage play" against George Washington University. The Washington, D. C. sportswriters "christened the red clad collegians the 'Red Devils' for their plucky showing on the gridiron while absorbing a 27-6 defeat." The 1931 team showered itself with glory by defeating Penn State 10-6 on their way to a 4-2-2 season. A 55 yard touchdown pass from Edwin Dick, '35, to Joseph Lipinski, '33 and Dick's field goal were the winning scores. In 1936, Dickinson left the Eastern Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Conference and entered the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference. The 55 points scored against Swarthmore during the 1936 season were the most scored by any Dickinson team.

The 1937 undefeated, but tied, team, held 6 opponents scoreless, and had 19 points scored against it while scoring 159. The line was labeled by a Harrisburg Sportswriter "the seven blocks of granite"—a name earned all during the season, but particularly against Gettysburg which had a net yardage of minus 4 yards. The Red Devils intercepted all seven of the Bullets' pass attempts and Gettysburg did not score a first down during the afternoon.

The 1946 team, which was one of Dickinson's best, also earned immortality by having a game cancelled. The Red Devils travelled by bus to Drexel on Friday for a Saturday afternoon game. The team was left at a hotel for the night. The uniforms remained on the bus which was sent to the bus terminal. The dispatcher then sent the bus with the Dickinson uniforms on another run to Pittsburgh. The bus and the uniforms were in Pittsburgh at game time. The 1946 season ended with Douglas Rehor being named to play in the North-South game.

The 1947 season was the second consecutive winning one for the Red Devils, the first since the 1922-25 string. Gerald Miller highlighted this season as well as the 1948 season, with his kickoff returns. Against Susquehanna, over whom the Red Devils triumphed 33-27, Gerry ran a kickoff back for an 80 yard touchdown run. In 1948 against Ursinus, he had an 85 yard kickoff return. The 1949 squad won their last five games and recorded the most wins in a row since the 1917 undefeated team. The 1952 team was only the second in Dickinson's history to play a night game. They lost to Franklin and Marshall at the Rotary Bowl in Hershey. Other highlights of the 1952 season included a 95 yard kickoff return against Ursinus which was the combined effort of George Spengler, '56, and Robert Mitzell, '56. Robert Jones, '54, tied John Mathewsons's record of throwing 11 touchdown passes in one season during this 1952 campaign.

The 1954 combination of David Anderson, '54, and George Mauro, '55, connected on an 80 yard pass play against Franklin and Marshall and tied the record set by Douglas Rehor and Stephen Koblish, '49, in 1946. In 1957, David Woodruff, '58, brought some spark to a winless season by being given honorable mention in the All State selection. The 1957 season also produced the Wachter brother combination, the first set of brothers to play on the Dickinson gridiron since the Hendrickson brothers collaborated on the 1937 undefeated team.

The 1958 season, which was Coach Seibert's second year, was the best for a Dickinson football team since 1949 with a break even 4-4 year. It was also the first year of the Northern and Southern College Divisions of the Middle Atlantic Conference. Millard "Sonny" Shoaf, '63, was given honorable mention in the All State selection during this, his freshman year. The 1960 club produced several individuals who were given recognition by selection on the Middle Atlantic Conference "all" teams. Tackle David Morrissey, '62, and back John Quirk, '61, as well as lineman Maurice "Barney" Field, '62, were all mentioned. Sophomore Louis Verdelli, '63, garnered first place in the punting statistics with a 35.6 average on 25 kicks. The 1961 team, in addition to being the first to score a victory over Franklin and Marshall since 1925 (during which period 26 games were played), compiled a 5-3 record which was the best for a Dickinson club since 1949. Reno DiOrio was the scoring leader of the Middle Atlantic Conference during this year and Dickinson was the total offensive leader. The 143 points scored by this team was the most since the 1937 undefeated team scored 159.

Last season's 3-5 record was highlighted by Reno DiOrio's selection as the MAC's most valuable player and the records set by DiOrio and Shaver, and Harper.

Thus ends the first half-century of modern day football at Dickinson, with the finish not as strong as the start. Perhaps the beginning of the second half-century will bring a new destiny. We will leave that story to the chronicler of the 1963 to 2013 era of Dickinson football.

This is the second in a two-part series on the history of Dickinson football. The facts and figures used in this article were uncovered by the exhaustive researching efforts of the head football coach, Donald Seibert and backfield coach, Wilbur Gobrecht, '52, who played a part in making football history at Dickinson. As was the case with the pre-modern history, the coaches were handicapped by a lack of carefully kept records. Any of our readers having further information, pictures or scrapbooks dealing with Dickinson football is requested to get in touch with the coaches.

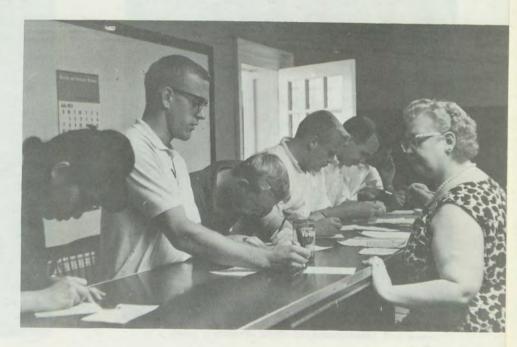

Summer School 1963

THE SUMMER session at Dickinson is doing a great service in disproving the old adage which many of us heard from our former teachers, "if you don't get it now you can get it this summer." Of the 158 students enrolled in the first six-week session this summer, only 27 were there in order to make up work which they had failed to achieve during the regular session. Summer school is no longer only for those who fail, a large majority of the summer scholars are taking work in order to accelerate their collegiate career or because of their interest in a particular course or because the courses are not available at the college which they attend during the winter session. There are a great many teachers who take courses at Dickinson in order to qualify for certification by the Commonwealth, as well as many housewives taking courses for mental stimulation. Thirty-one members of the faculty offered a total of 48 courses this summer in nearly every academic discipline. In addition to the "grind" of a 90-minute period five days a week, some of the students and faculty took time off for relaxation as well as education by going to Stratford, Connecticut for the Shakespeare Festival and to New York City's Broadway for a dramatic production. The summer school program at Dickinson not only serves Dickinsonians who must take work in order to remain in school or who wish to cut short the time to earn their bachelor's degree, but also provides a service to the community, to college students who wish to attend during the summer or for people who are just interested in higher education. Of this year's 158 students, 81 were Dickinsonians. The other 75 were made up of either college graduates or students who normally attend another school.

Kenneth Bowling, '63, a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin returns to the campus to teach two courses in history.

The first step for the students is registering for their courses. Here Elizabeth McCullough, '29, lends a helpful hand in the Registrar's Office.

OLD WEST

Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., '35

On April 25 the College conducted a special Founders Day Convocation to recognize the certification of Old West as a registered national historic landmark. This recognition by the National Park Service was accompanied by a bronze plaque which was placed outside the Old Stone Steps. Dr. Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., '35, associate librarian at the American Philosophical Society, Philadelphia and former member of the Dickinson faculty, gave the address. Because of its interest to all Dickinsonians, it is reprinted here.

MOST DICKINSONIANS during the past fifty or seventy-five years, I suppose, have thought of Old West as a historic building. The college catalogues, handouts, and official history have all exclaimed in varying terms of extravagance on its priority—"the oldest college building west of the Susquehanna"—its beauty, and the unique events that have occurred in it. In comparisons with bigger, richer, more famous institutions, Dickinsonians could reflect that their enterprise was like Mark Hopkins'—a boy and a teacher on a log; but a log with a fanlight doorway! So, while they are not insensitive to the formal designation of this structure by the Federal Government as a "historic building," Dickinsonians may be excused for feeling that this is only the recognition of something they have always known.

They are not entirely without reasons for this conviction. After all, interesting people have lived and worked in West College. That undisciplined child of enlightment, Thomas Cooper, taught chemistry in one of the apartments of the West College—taught it with such single-minded attention and success that he even had the students in for chemical experiments on Sunday mornings, to the great scandal of the godly President Atwater. Moncure Conway lived in Room 47 in his senior year 1848-49. The world knew him as a persuasive and influential exponent of liberal religion, a sound historian, and an early advocate of world peace, and Dickinson should honor him for these achievements; but it is his fate to be remembered here forever as the man who had President Peck confined in an insane asylum. (A modern college president, after a day with his faculty or the interfraternity council, might wonder whether Peck found the company so very different.) And James Buchanan, pride of the Union Philosophical Society and later President of the United States, (according to a plaque—cast iron, not bronze that used to hang in the east basement entrance to West), lived in Room 34 the room that is now Mr. Shuman's office.

If Old Buck's (I am quoting, not being familiar)—if Old Buck's presidential style was not the one that appears now to be generally approved, it ought at least be said in explanation of his inclination to compromise that James Buchanan was a Pennsylvania politician of the early nineteenth century, and only an adept at compromise and evasion could manage a state and party composed of as many irreconcilable and competing interests as Pennsylvania and its Democracy—the old agriculture vs. a rising industry; the Philadelphia bankers vs. the debtors of the West; the farmers vs. the canal- and railroad-builders; the Germans vs. the Scots-Irish. Politician or statesman, a great president or weak, the occupant of Room 34 has a place in Dickinsonian history.

Some of the events that happened in West College are no less worthy of notice and remembrance than the occupants. I pass over all the student high jinks: the theft from Union Philosophical's rooms of their secret ritual and regalia by members of Belles Lettres, an abstraction once known from West to College Streets as "the Great Outrage"; the occasions on cold nights when students climbed into the cupola, turned the bell upside-down, filled it with water and held it so until the water froze-so that the 6 o'clock chapel would not ring next morning; and more recent episodes when bicycles and banners have been hung on the Mermaid's tail and the creature herself has disappeared for short vacations. On an academic occasion like this, I should speak of more significant events in West College; and so mention the McClintock Riot.

Even now, after more than a century, the facts are not clear. Suffice it to say that on June 2, 1847, three runaway slaves belonging to a Colonel Kennedy of Hagerstown, Maryland, were apprehended in Carlisle and carried into court, where their master proved his ownership. Dr. John McClintock, professor of Greek, joined the swelling crowd in the court room; and for some reason both the judge and the crowd got the impression that he was in active sympathy with the negroes' cause. When Colonel Kennedy and his slaves came out of the court house, the crowd surged forward, separated the slaves from their owner, and carried them away. When it was all over, the negroes were nowhere to be found and Kennedy was lying mortally wounded in a pool of his own blood in Market House alley. McClintock and 18 free negroes were indicted.

The indictment of a clergyman and professor for riot, conspiracy, and murder would be a sensation under any circumstances. What made it worse at Dickinson was that half the student body came from slave states. The Southerners assembled in the Chapel in West College, signed a statement angrily declaring they would never attend a college which allowed an abolitionist on its faculty, and called on McClintock for an explanation and apology. He came, told them what had happened, and left without arguing or appealing. The Southerners stayed. Meanwhile, of course, the Trustees learned about the riot, which the newspapers now called the McClintock riot after its most prominent participant. Abolitionism was a hot issue in 1849, and anyone who seemed to give it aid and comfort was, of course, "controversial." To a meeting of the Board a month after the riot—and before McClintock's trial—President Emory stated the College's attitude: the duty of professors, he declared, is to teach their subjects, not to be partisans or propagandists of any peculiar creed in politics or religion . . . We would not seek the discussion of vexed questions, whether in politics, morals, or religion, but if they come up naturally and properly, we would not, as honest men and faithful teachers, withhold the frank statement of our opinions.

The Board endorsed this principle, and left McClintock alone. College trustees have not always been so wise and generous, and it should be a matter for some pride here that West College was the scene of this victory for reasonableness.

But it is not only for reasons of biography and history that the Department of the Interior has designated West College a historic building. The structure has importance as an architectural monument. It is still singularly satisfying, "chaste, elegant and imposing," in the words of President Morgan; a striking contrast to the unadorned plainness of East College and the ugly, graceless, pretentious twentieth century copies that have arisen to the west and southwest of it. The story of the origins of West College as a building is moving and thrilling. Having decided to move from the shabby brick building in Liberty Alley where classes had been taught since 1784, the trustees laid the cornerstone of a commodious "college house" in 1799. The building was just completed when it was totally destroyed by fire in February 1803. Most of the trustees were discouraged, and President Nisbet, to whom they owned several years' salary, took a bitter satisfaction from the disaster: "But it could not stand, as it was founded in fraud and knavery." Colonel John Montgomery and a few others, however, were undismayed. They opened subscription books-Thomas Jefferson, Aaron Burr, and Chief Justice John Marshall were contributorsand began a new building. At this juncture Judge Hugh Brackenridge, a trustee, holding court at Easton, heard that Benjamin H. Latrobe, the ablest architect in the United States, was about to leave Philadelphia for Washington, where he was architect in charge of the public buildings. Mounting his horse and, as he reported, riding "with the speed of an express," Brackenridge pounded his way to Philadelphia in a single day, laid Dickinson's case before the great man, and within a week had drawings for a new college building. Latrobe's gift was of incomparable worth, as anyone can see who more than glances at the building.

It was slow in being completed; but in 1805 was ready for classes. The finished apartments were on the south side, where, as a local newspaper cheerfully observed, they would be comfortable with but little aid from artificial warmth on all but the coldest days of winter. In the ensuing century and a half, the uses of the building have varied—faculty members lived in it, literary societies had their libraries and meeting rooms there, dining rooms and kitchens were in the basement, and it contained dormitory rooms until 1927. Most of the space now absorbed by the offices of administration was once devoted to the business of education.

It used to be generally believed that in its construction West College had somehow got turned around. The hall system, the doorways that were on the north side, the inconvenience of the broad fanlight doorway as an entrance, all suggested that the north facade should have faced High Street. Needless to say, this belief fathered some wry speculations and might have provided the text for an educational sermon. For colleges do sometimes get turned around-not necessarily physically, of course-and face in other ways than their founders or the nation might have wished. Arrogant laymen, irresponsible politicians, narrow-minded churchmen, cynical faculties, have the power to turn colleges around. Colleges have certainly been turned around when football coaches or public relations men or business managers become more important than deans, and deans more important than professors. They are facing the wrong way when the fanlight is more important than the log with its teacher and student. In short, they are facing the wrong way when anything but teaching and learning come first. And once a college has been turned the wrong way around, it is the labor of a dozen educational Hercules to get it facing right again; and all that pushing and turning probably weakens the foundations permanently.

But to return to West College—the truth, as we now certainly know, is that it stands as Latrobe meant it to.

Architecturally, it never turned around. Though more subtly than many old college buildings, it faces the town, as most colleges of its period did. The buildings of the "Brick Row" at Yale, for example, stood shoulder to shoulder like so many phalanxes of light and truth, proudly facing out; so do the "old Mains" of a score of hilltop colleges in this state and the older Middle West. I do not want to labor the point, or see significance where there is none; but I think that the position of American college buildings is symbolic of an age and attitude. There was a time-the founding of West College belongs to it-when the doors and windows of American colleges opened on the town, and the town's paths led through the college yards; a time when learning and democracy were regarded as supports each of the other and men of profound scholarship-John Adams. Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, John Quincy Adams-held the highest offices of state. Things changed about mid-century. Egalitarianism with its suspicion of excellence, ostentatious wealth, a sentimental attachment to the European past, unsureness about the American tradition produced an alienation of colleges from the community and of the community from its centers of learning. College architecture reflected this. Quadrangles were built, as colleges turned their backs to the towns, looking in upon themselves. Nowhere was the shift more apparent than at New Haven, where the Brick Row was razed to make way for the great quad where freshmen now live; and the residential colleges Yale built in the 1920's and 1930's carried this trend to a peak.

For many years college planners have favored this style, for it has much to recommend it if only for reasons of policy; but if it keeps the students together, it also pretty effectively keeps them away from the rest of the community. It is encouraging to note there are many signs that the period of withdrawal is coming to an end, and we may expect to find the growing integration of learning with democracy reflected in collegiate architecture.

Be this as it may, of West College one can say that it has stood, as it will probably continue to stand. through many changes of style and tone. It is a historic building if only because it has survived so long; but, thank God, you have not made it a shrine-it is still in daily use, still used daily for purposes like those for which it was built. It is not simply a mute witness to what has gone before, but a place where things are done and plans made; and the highest honor you can pay it, I submit, is to go on using it with intelligence and respect. Keep Old West, preserve it, honor it, cherish it but above all keep it a place where today and every day for years to come, the students and faculty of this college demonstrate by their work that learning and wisdom, no less than righteousness-that learning and wisdom which are righteousness-shall exalt the nations.

NEW FACES OF 1963

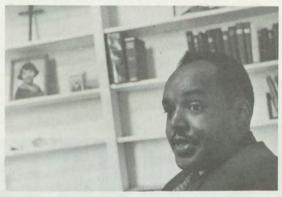

The College announced the appointment of 26 persons to new positions on the faculty and administration of the 1963-64 school year. Two of the 26 are familiar faces around the campus—one is a 1963 graduate of the College, the other the College's first chaplain, appointed to this post last year.

The addition of 26 new people to the staff of the College represents an enormous amount of time and effort expended in their selection. Just as any good businessman or school administrator wants to select the best qualified positions to fill his openings, so the College carefully reviews credentials, spends a great deal of time interviewing, evaluating and finally selecting the best available person for each position. The Dickinson Alumnus is glad to introduce to its alumni and friends the new faces of 1963.

Annual Giving Program 1962-63

The supporters of Dickinson College listed on the following pages enabled the College to record the greatest number of contributors to an Annual Giving Program in 1962-63. The number of alumni increased by 37% to the greatest number ever of 3,049 contributions totaling $102,390.33 during the fund year, In addition to the increased number of contributions, the alumni gave the College over $100,000 for the fourth consecutive year.

The total amount contributed by all the constituencies was $467,584.11. This amount was received from a record number of 3,632 givers.

The success of this year's annual fund is the result of the efforts of the class and regional agents who spent many hours of their time with the alumni fund.

To these workers we offer our thanks.

To the 3,632 persons whose names appear in this report, we dedicate this report and offer our sincere appreciation for your support of the program Dickinson is pursuing.

The weekend's festivities began with an Alumni Council dinner meeting. Following dinner, the eight standing committees met. Here is a gathering of the Alumni Committee of the Academic Study and the alumni who will host regional meetings where alumni will discuss Dickinson's academic study.

Homecoming Highlights

On the left, Council Member Katherine Coulter Brougher, '27, serves two of Dickinson's nine alumni presidents: Robert L. D. Davidson, '31, president of Westminster College, and Howard L. Rubendall, '31. Also at the coffee table are Dean Samuel H. Magill and Alumni Secretary Thomas H. Young, Jr., '53. Following the coffee hour, the Alumni Council met in an open session to discuss Council business and hear reports about Dickinson today.

Kappa Sigma won the judges' attentions with this lawn display to win the General Alumni Association Trophy. Sigma Alpha Epsilon retained the President's Cup by being judged the outstanding fraternity for the second consecutive year.

The College Pep Band provided entertainment for alumni, faculty and students at the Tailgate Luncheon on the far side of Biddle Field.

Miss Joanne Harris, a sophomore from Fairfield, Connecticut, the Phi Kappa Psi sweetheart, was the 1963 Homecoming queen during the half-time activities.

The D Club presented a plaque to Coach Art Kahler in recognition of his service to Dickinson athletics from 1937 to 1942.

Rolland Adams, '27, and Mrs. Adams join Dr. and Mrs. Rubendall in the reception line following the dedication ceremonies of Adams Hall, which were held after the football game on Saturday. Dickinson lost the game to Swarthmore 2-0 in the opening game of the season.

AROUND THE CAMPUS

THE NEW SCHOOL year began on September 18 with President Rubendall presiding over an opening convocation which brought together 1,130 students and 105 Faculty. Dr. Rubendall gave an especially warm welcome to the 325 members of the Class of 1967, the new Dickinsonians.

The 241 men and 84 women who make up the Class of 1967 were selected from a group which totaled 1828 completed applications. Geographically they come from 21 states and as from far away as Hawaii. There are eight foreign students in the Class of 1967, which brings the total of foreign students presently enrolled at Dickinson to 18. Thirty-one members of the class have at least one parent who is an alumnus or alumna of Dickinson. This class continues the now established tradition of exceeding its predecessors in potential academic ability. The median College Board scores indicate that this year's class is the best that ever entered Dickinson. The men had a median verbal and mathematic score of 600 each, while the women's verbal median was 630 and the math median was 635. Ten years ago the comparable median for men and women in verbal was 470 and in math, 490.

Eighteen members of this class scored over 700 in the verbal section of their College Boards. To accommodate this potential ability in the use of the English language a special course has been devised which will be instructed by Professor Bettie Ann Doebler.

The College's efforts to provide new strength to its Philosophy and Religion Department received an added impetus recently with a grant of $3,000 from the Board of Higher Education of the Methodist Church. The grant was made for the purchase of library books on the subjects of philosophy and religion. This amount was supplemented by $2,000 from other sources for a total acquisition of $5,000 for books for philosophy and religion. The College has noted with pleasure a dramatic increase in student interest in this field and the hiring of a new chaplain and four new professors in the last year.

Summers on college campuses formerly were times of great inactivity. This has not been true recently, particularly at Dickinson. During the past summer, 158 students were enrolled in a 12-week summer school session (see picture story on page 5). In addition to the summer school students, the campus also hosted other groups. On June 16, the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers met for a three-day leadership workshop. The last week of July saw 150 young people meeting under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of Pennsylvania. The ARA Slater School and Colleges Service Management Seminar was held during August 25-28 with 100 in attendance. In addition, the professional football team from Washington, The Redskins, invaded the campus on July 25. They were housed in Drayer Hall and utilized the expanded facilities of Biddle Field for their pre-season training until August 29 when they left for Washington. The Redskins will return for four more pre-season training sessions.

In addition to a great number of people visiting the campus for these and other activities, men and machines were at work tearing down and building. Considerable progress was made on the 10 fraternity houses and the excavation was nearly completed for the new college center.

Excavation for the College Center is almost completed and the side walls are under construction. The Center is scheduled for completion in September of 1964.

The Refresher Leave Program of the College is being enjoyed this academic year by the following faculty: Arthur M. Prinz, Professor of Economics, is traveling to Europe where he will have his headquarters in Switzerland. Professor Prinz will study and write on the world trade and labor problems. He also hopes to complete his book on the psychological background of Marx and his economic system.

Ferdinando D. Maurino, Professor of Modern Languages, is also in Europe, where he will write critical and literary essays on contemporary Spanish, Italian and French literature. He is accompanied by his wife and two sons, who will live in Naples during the next year. Professor Maurino's two most recent literary efforts, a French Anthology and a Spanish dictionary, will be published later this year. Professor Maurino will return to the United States in early summer in order to teach at the summer school at the University of Pittsburgh. He taught as a visiting professor of romance languages at the University of Nebraska during the past two vears.

Margaret M. Ramos will be at the University of California at Los Angeles from September 1 to January 1 working with Dr. John E. Englekirk, chairman of the Spanish Department at the university, on the final preparation of a book on critical and historical bibliography of Uruguayan prose. Shortly after the first of the year she will leave for South America where she will spend the winter, visiting university centers in Uruguay, Argentina, Peru, Ecuador and Mexico. She hopes to attend University lectures and meet literary persons. She will return during the Spring.

Lawrence J. Clipper, associate professor of English, received his Ph.D. degree from the University of North Carolina this summer. His thesis concerned the writings of Charles Dickens. Professor Clipper is a cum laude graduate of Brown University and also has a master's degree from George Washington University. He has been on the staff since 1961.

Daniel J. McDonald, associate professor of biology, presented a paper at the 11th International Congress of Genetics at The Hague which was held from September 2-10. He and his wife Barbara, assistant professor of biology at Dickinson, took this opportunity for a seven-week trip to Europe. Professor Dan McDonald's paper was concerned with the characteristics of insect populations, a study which he has been conducting under the sponsorship of the National Science Foundation.

Elmer C. Herber, chairman of the department of biology, spent the summer in basic research for the second consecutive year at the Highlands Biological Station in North Carolina, on a $1,000 grant from the National Science Foundation. Dr. Herber spent eight-weeks studying the ecology of parasites. He was named recently an honorary collaborator of the Smithsonian Institute in recognition of his service to the Smithsonian through his writings and research.

Herbert E. Newman, chairman of the department of economics, moderated one of the sessions at a three-day seminar on the Economics of Public Utilities held at the Hotel Hershey under sponsorship of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania. He presided at a session devoted to an open discussion of the role of profits in public utilities. Among the seminar participants were 20 leading economists from Pennsylvania colleges and universities. Wilfred D. Gillen, president of the Bell Telephone Company, was a speaker.

On June 21, Donald E. Gordon, chairman of the department of fine arts, gave an illustrated lecture in the National Gallery, Washington, D. C., on "Kirchner and German Expressionism" at the invitation of the noted gallery's department of education. The lecture was part of a series being given in the gallery by art authorities on the general theme "Great Artistic Innovations." Dr. Gordon is writing a book about the German artist, Ernst Ludwig Kirchner, whose work and life was the theme of Dr. Gordon's doctoral studies at Harvard.

George J. Edberg, of the modern language department, spent most of the summer teaching at a language institute for high school teachers at the University of Florida and attended a three-day conference this week on the literature of Brazil and Spanish America at the University of Texas. He was invited to the conference to give the commentary on a paper read by Estuardo Nunez of the University of San Marcos, in Peru. The paper dealt with narrative prose in present-day Peru. Some 75 specialists in Latin American literature and culture were in attendance.

William B. Jeffries, professor of biology, attended a six-week institute for college and university teachers of biology at Williams College in Massachusetts. He received a stipend from the National Science Foundation. The institute is jointly sponsored by the foundation and the American Society of Zoologists. It is intended to keep science professors abreast of developments in their special fields. Professor Jeffries also served as a reader of advanced biology placement tests given by the Educational Testing Service, of Princeton, New Jersey, to high school students in advanced biology courses across the country.

Joseph Schiffman, chairman of the department of English, represented the 15,000-member Modern Language Association at the inauguration of Keith Spalding as president of Franklin and Marshall College on September 26.

THE STUDENTS

The Alumnus wishes to give recognition to four Dickinsonians for outstanding academic achievement: First, two members of the 1963 class: Jean Hollan VanOrmer, of Cumberland, Maryland, was present in the White House on May 28 and received from President John F.

Kennedy a $500 award for "outstanding scholastic achievement which symbolize the invincibility of the human spirit." This award is sponsored by the Recordings for the Blind, Inc., a non-profit organization which provides free recorded textbooks for college students. Holly has been partially blind since childhood. She was very active on the College campus in both publications and the social science honorary society. She is presently studying at the University of Pittsburgh for a master's degree in education and wants to pursue a career in rehabilitation counselling.

Albert G. Miller, of West Chester, Pennsylvania, who received honors in political science upon his graduation and served as president of the Student Council during his senior year, received a $1,000 fellowship for study at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies. Al expects to go into the foreign service and hopes to serve in Latin America.

Senior John P. Lazlo, of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, attained the highest academic honors in last year's junior class when he completed his first three years of college with a straight A average, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and was named the sophister for the second consecutive year. He also received two academic prizes. John is a major in psychology and is active on the campus in both the Mermaid Players and the Methodist Student Movement.

Junior Judith Rogers, of East Orange, New Jersey, completed her sophomore year with two achievements. She was selected by the college to serve as a counsellor in the freshman dormitories this year. As such, she becomes the first Negro to be selected for this assignment. Judy just returned from spending the summer in Sierra Leone in Africa in conjunction with Project Crossroads Africa. The student body raised $900 to cover her expenses for this assignment.

The Alumni Committee of the Academic Study held its first meeting at the West Shore Country Club on July 18. Front row from left: Katharine Coulter Brougher, '27; Professor Amos A. Horlacher, Chairman of the Committee; Jane Bernard Carpenter, '50; H. Robert Gasull, Jr., '53; Virginia Watts, '24. Back row from left: Dean of the College Samuel H. Magill; Donald Olewine, '50;

George G. Lindsay, '48; Howell C. Mette, '48; Bruce Rehr, '50; Professor Bruce Andrews of the Academic Study; William Haak, '42; Robert G. Crist, '47, President of the General Alumni Association; Professor Howard C. Long of the Academic Study, and Development Director Richard D. Cheshire.

The Alumni Committee of the Academic Study

The Alumni Association was requested by the Steering Committee of the College's Academic Study, chaired by Professor Amos B. Horlacher, to participate in the Academic Study. The first step in this participation was the selection by Alumni Association President Robert G. Crist, '47, and his Vice President Howell C. Mette, '48, of an Alumni Committee (ACAS) composed of 12 alumni of which Mette is the chairman. The first task of this committee was the preparation of a questionnaire which was sent to all alumni in mid-September. The responses to this questionnaire are being tabulated by the College's Academic Study Steering Committee and will provide this group with a great source of information about the product of Dickinson and how he feels about his experience as an undergraduate. The second task of the ACAS will be to organize regional alumni meetings at which members of the faculty will discuss with alumni the results of the questionnaire and go into greater detail into some aspects of their academic study. A final meeting of the ACAS will be held in the early spring at which time the committee will bring to the Faculty Steering Committee of the Academic Study a final report on the feeling of the alumni about the study. The members of the committee are: Howell C. Mette, chairman; George G. Lindsay, '48; Katherine C. Brougher '27; Donald A. Olewine, '50; H. Robert Gasull, '53; William Haak, '42; Virginia Watts, '24; James K. Arnold, '15; Lois B. Carpenter, '50; Bruce Rehr, '50; Lester T. Etter, '34; and Stanley Adler, Jr. '47.

The Outgoing Association President Reports

As my three-year tenure as President of the Alumni Association draws to a close, I wish to offer a summary of some of the significant alumni activities and a digest of some of the steps taken to increase alumni interest and activity, during my term of office.

1960-1961 (a) Despite the fact that the activities of the Association were somewhat limited because of the resignation of Albert Walker as Alumni Secretary, initial action was taken to improve the appearance, format, and content of the Alumnus. This change has been applauded by most alumni. (b) During this period, the Alumni Council meetings became more meaningful by reason of the detailed reports of the Alumni Trustees regarding trustee policy and decisions. These reports were designed to supplement the messages of the President and the Dean of the College. (c) The first "Alumni College" was held June, 1960, with disappointing attendance and was not repeated thereafter.

1961-1962 (a) Particular efforts were made during this period to keep the alumni well informed through meaningful articles in the Alumnus and by means of full and frank discussion of college policies and problems of alumni club meetings. (b) A new alumni club was formed in Hartford, Connecticut. (c) Printed material was distributed to all alumni club presidents, outlining suggested means of stimulating alumni activity in each alumni club. (d) An Alumnus Advisory Committee was appointed for the purpose of making suggestions and recommendations to improve the Alumnus. The recommendations of this committee were implemented by the Alumni Council and the Alumni Secretary. (e) For the first time, an Alumni Events Committee was appointed for the sole purpose of planning the events of homecoming and commencement weekends to make them more attractive, enjoyable, and meaningful to visiting alumni.

1962-1963 (a) The by-laws of the General Alumni Association were revised so as to streamline the organization and to increase the size of the Alumni Council in an effort to encourage increased alumni interest and activity. (b) Open meetings of the General Alumni Association at homecoming and commencement provided additional opportunity for interested alumni to discuss the plans and problems of the College with panel members made up of representatives from the trustees, administration, faculty, and student body. (c) Alumni club activity was increased in Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, and other areas to include luncheon clubs in Philadelphia and Washington, social functions following college athletic contests, and picnics and receptions for incoming freshmen and other college students in these areas. (d) Alumni activity was generally increased by the appointment of non-Council members on such committees as Alumni Publications, Alumni Events and other important committees heretofore limited to Council members.

Suggestions for the Future

- 1. Alumni College—The first "Alumni College" program held in June of 1960 was disappointing in terms of the number of those who attended, but the program offered was noteworthy. If the College is to accept an obligation with respect to continuing education for alumni, further investigation and study should be given to an alumni educational program (with faculty support) on selected dates in Carlisle, or perhaps on a regional basis in the more highly populated alumni areas.
- Alumni Award—Some study was given to this matter in 1961-62 but the implementation of an alumni award program bogged down when the cost of casting a medallion (estimated at $1000) presented an initial expense item which the Alumni Association budget was unable to meet. The Council may wish to give further study to the initiation and financing of a meaningful award recognizing outstanding alumni, as do many other colleges and universities.

- 3. Alumni Giving—The present performance of alumni in the annual giving program leaves much to be desired. It is hoped that in the future, a more intensified annual giving program can be formulated with additional college staff added for this purpose. But with or without additional staff, it would seem that the Council must take steps to increase alumni participation in the annual giving program, both in numbers of alumni who give, and in the total amount of dollars given.
- 4. Alumni Dues and Life Membership—The question of Alumni dues and life membership has not yet been resolved, although a subject of discussion for several years. It is hoped that the committee appointed to report to the May, 1963 Council meeting will be able to offer a satisfactory solution to this question, but if not, further study should be given until a satisfactory result is obtained.
- 5. Alumni Clubs—Increased attention must be given to those Alumni Clubs which seem to flounder from year to year and are not able to attract a representative attendance to their meetings. There are some areas, such as York and Johnstown, where no club is functioning and where clubs should be organized.
- 6. General Activity—The College is about to launch a development program which will be vitally important to the future of the College. It is essential that every effort be made to bring Dickinson's message to the attention of all alumni and to improve all lines of communication.

The Alumni Club Program Moves Along

Alumni in the Pittsburgh area convened on April 23 at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club in downtown Pittsburgh to learn of recent developments on the campus from two of the Dickinson College staff who are holding down new positions at the College. The new Dean of Students, Benjamin D. James, '34, spoke of some of the problems which his new office will face as well as the present admissions situation at the College. The Director of Development, Richard D. Cheshire, spoke of the plans for his office and of his impressions since joining the staff on January 1.

On the same evening, Dr. Rubendall and the Alumni Secretary, Thomas H. Young, spoke to the Baltimore Alumni Club at the Appold Methodist Church in Towson, Maryland. Before hearing from these campus representatives, the Baltimore Alumni Club held an election of officers. Elected president was Kenneth R. Rose, '41; vice president, H. Chase Davis, Jr., '50; secretary, Elizabeth Wittfoot Donaldson, '36; treasurer, Carol Dorsey Wisotzki, '61, and historian, Robert C. Respess, '41.

The highlight of the April 24 meeting of the Harrisburg Alumni Club was the introduction of the new president of the Board, Sidney D. Kline, '24, and a presentation by representatives of Howell Lewis Shay Associates, who described the architectural features of the fraternity complex and the new student center. Also on hand from the Colege were Dr. and Mrs. Rubendall, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Young, Jr., and Roger H. Steck.

The New York City Alumni Club heard from Dr. Rubendall, Director of Development, Richard D. Cheshire, and Alumni Secretary, Thomas Young at their April 26 meeting at the Hotel Warwick.

Alumni Secretary Thomas Young travelled to Fairfield, Connecticut on April 30 to speak to the alumni from Connecticut about recent happenings on the campus and the plans for the future of Dickinson College. Club president Howard Maxwell presided over the meeting which 25 alumni and friends of the College attended.

On May 10, 32 alumni from the Northern New Jersey area attended a dinner meeting of that group. Representing the College were Professor Richard Wanner, who had been appointed chairman of the department of psychology and education, and Alumni Secretary, Thomas Young. Before their presentations the club elected Lawrence Radtke '54, as their secretary-treasurer, and Martha Lee Weis McGill, '53, as vice president.

The home of David Theall, 5904 Illinois Avenue, McLean, Virginia, president of the Washington Alumni Club, was the scene of a reception for the alumni and friends of Dickinson in the Washington, D.C. area on May 18. The Carlisle contingent included Professors Pflaum and Horlacher and Alumni Secretary Thomas Young, who had an opportunity to chat informally with the 30 or more alumni gathered on that occasion.

The reestablishment of a former active alumni club took place on May 8 at Flanagan's Restaurant in Southern New Jersey. The convener and unofficial officer of the club is Ronald D. Goldberg, M.D., '54, who made all the arrangements and was largely responsible for the attendance of more than 25 Dickinson alumnus. It was the hope of the group who met that the club could reach the same status it once held in alumni club circles. Alumni in this area will be informed of future meetings.

The eighth annual meeting of the Del-Mar-Va Alumni Club was held at the Commander Hotel on the Boardwalk in Ocean City, Maryland on Friday, August 2. Twentytwo alumni and friends of Dickinson gathered at this vacation spot to hear of the past year at Dickinson and her plans for the future. Representing the College was Alumni Secretary Thomas H. Young, Jr., '53. During the business meeting the following officers were elected: William T. Guy, '48, president to succeed Ray Hallman, '31; the former secretary-treasurer Kendall McCabe, '61, was elected vice president; and Theodore Bonivit, '53, was elected to serve as secretarytreasurer.

ALUMNI CLUB PICNICS

For the second year, three of the Alumni Clubs hosted gatherings of the alumni and undergraduates to welcome incoming freshmen from their areas.

The Washington, D. C. Club held a picnic on Saturday, August 17 in the Rock Creek Park. Forty-five persons including five of the 10 freshmen from the Washington area attended this affair which ended in an impromptu hootnanny.

New York Club President Robert Lowe opened his home to Dickinsonian Alumni and members of the incoming freshman class on Thursday evening, September 5. Reports from New York indicate that the "first annual reception" was highly successful. About 50 persons were in attendance.

The home and grounds of Mr. and Mrs. J. Watson Pedlow, of Media, was the scene of the second annual Philadelphia picnic to welcome members of the freshman class from that area on Saturday, September 7. Twenty-five members of the freshman class from the Philadelphia area were welcomed by approximately 150 alumni and friends of the college. Among the alumni attending was Dr. Jessica Longsdorf Bozorth, of the Class of 1891, who was escorted by her grandson, Richard Bozorth, a member of the faculty at the University of Pennsylvania.

It is the hope of the college as well as those alumni clubs who have conducted successful parties for incoming freshmen that this type of entertainment for the new Dickinsonians will become more widespread in the future.
