

The

45-2

DICKINSON ALUMNUS

Spring 1968

The Plain Fact Is . . . going to shake you up a bit!

THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS

Spring 1968, Vol. 45, No. 2

HONORARY EDITOR
Dean Hoffman, '02

EDITOR
Vincent J. Schafmeister, Jr., '49

ALUMNI PUBLICATIONS COMMITTEE

William B. Harlan, '50, Chairman
Robert G. Crist, '47
David McGahey, '60
Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., '35
Barbara A. Buechner, '63
M. Charles Seller, '55
William A. Jordan, II, '51

The Dickinson Alumnus is published quarterly. Entered as second class matter May 23, 1923, at the Post Office at Carlisle, Pa., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Cover:

Case statement on higher education.
See page 16.

In This Issue:

Old Figure on Our Library's New Frontier
Page 1

Around the Campus
Page 6

Alumni Notes
Page 9

Sons and Daughters
Page 10

Obituaries
Page 14

The Plain Fact Is Insert

Personal Mention
Page 18

Special Mention
Page 32

Alumni Club Details
Inside back cover

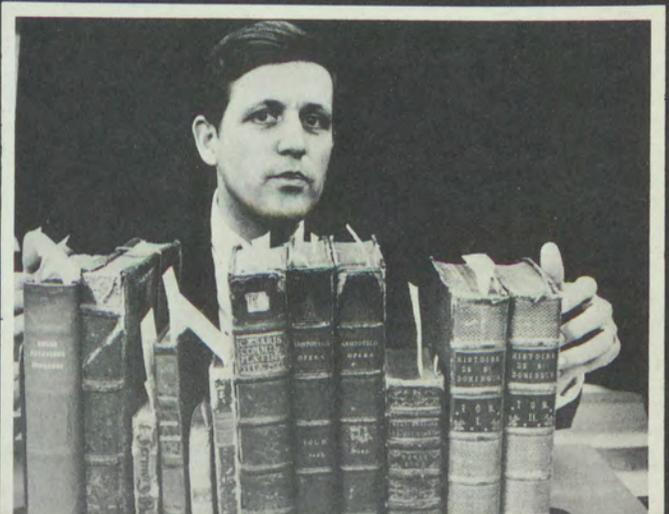

Babylonian Talmud in 12 volumes, Amsterdam, 1750. Gift of Louis and Philip Noot about 1870.

Treatise on military science, 1597, from the library of Ben Johnson, soldier, scholar, poet and playwright. Gift of John Dickinson, 1784.

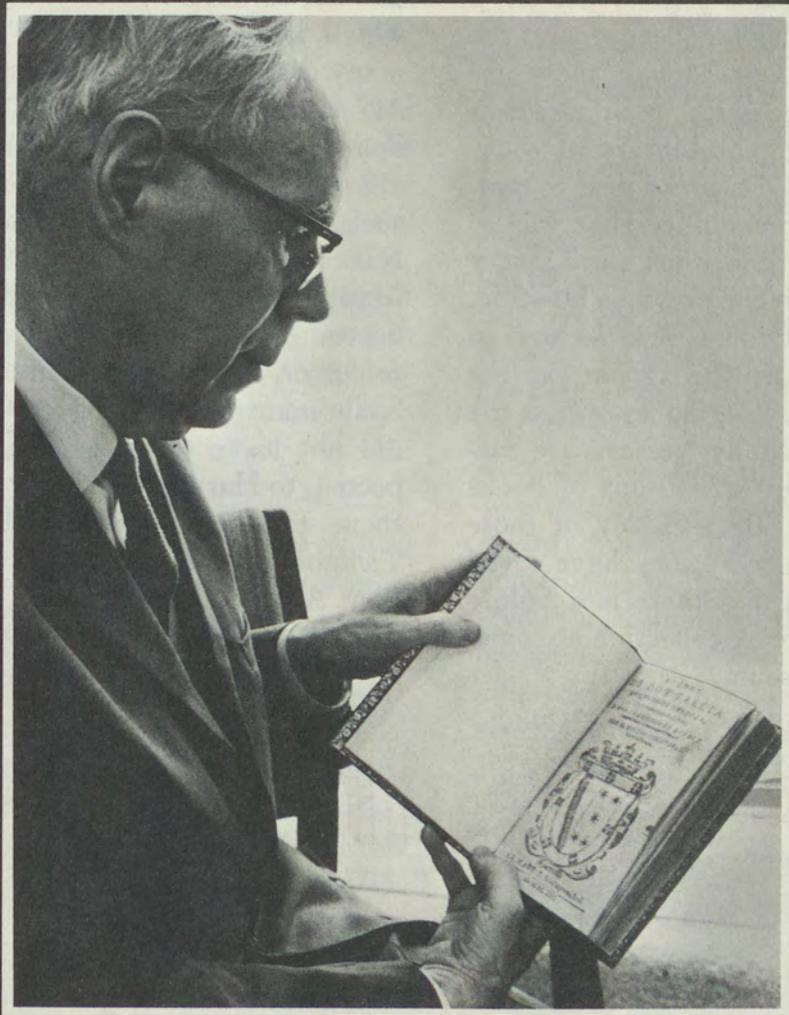

Yates M. Forbis, Deputy Librarian, with a selection of favorites.

Cristobal Suárez de Figueroa

Old Time Figure on Our Library's New Frontier

by Enrique Martinez
Professor of Romance Languages
Department of Modern Languages

Dr. Charles C. Sellers and this rare Spanish book printed in Madrid in 1613.

*“Retirado en la paz de estos desiertos, con pocos, pero doctos libros juntos, vivo en conversation con los difuntos y escucho con mis ojos a los muertos...”

Francisco de Quevedo (1580-1645)

THIS XVIIth Cent. Spanish man of letters seems to express what books mean to those who seek in them windows overlooking the story of civilization and of man's thoughts.

Anyone who has made serious use of a library knows that its book collection and the accessibility of those books are its most important features. The new building that houses the Boyd Lee Spahr Library of Dickinson College has helped a great deal to provide the element of accessibility that was so longed for during the time when the Library collection had outgrown the previous building.

The rare book collection is now located in a very handsomely furnished room on the second floor of the new building, known as the May Morris Room. Many visitors are fascinated by the old printed editions of books and the antiques that are a legacy of those who through several generations have loved Dickinson. But sometimes there is a failure in not seeing the rare book collection as something more than a museum.

When I came to Dickinson two years ago, it was my hope to find some Spanish editions from the XVI or XVII centuries. After the Napoleonic invasion of the Iberian Peninsula and the turbulent years of economic upheaval which followed the defeat of the invaders, many great private collections had to be sold. As a consequence of this, many valuable Spanish manuscripts and printed works went abroad enriching the Spanish collection of such venerable institutions as the Bibliothèque Nationale (Paris), and the British Museum. Many works came eventually to the United States. Ticknor, the XIX century Harvard professor, brought back from his travels in Spain many old editions and manuscripts. He did not leave them, as one would have expected, to Harvard's Library but instead gave them to the Boston Public Library (the Ticknor Collection). At the turn of the century, Archer M. Huntington, heir of a railroad fortune, bought in Europe an enormous Hispanic book collection which, together with *Having retreated to the peace of solitude, with a few but scholarly books, I commune with those long departed, and with my eyes I listen to the dead.

many objects of art, became the Hispanic Society of America, located in New York City. Many colleges and universities purchased or received from generous donors single copies or smaller collections of Spanish books and manuscripts. It was with this in mind that I was hopeful of finding old Spanish works at Dickinson. To my dismay I did not have such good fortune. But a rare book collection, like the rest of the Library, is continuously growing. Recently, a Spanish book printed in 1613 was purchased by the Library. It is titled, Hechos de Don García Hurtado de Mendoza, quarto Marqués de Cañete, and was written by Cristobal Suárez de Figueroa and printed in Madrid.

Friends of Mrs. Cynthia Vukceovich who had been a teacher of Spanish language and literature, gave this book to the Library. Mrs. Vukceovich had a special interest in the culture and literature of Chile.

The main purpose of this article is to cast some light on the author and contents of the above mentioned work, with the hope that some day someone will make a study of the literary or historical values of Figueroa's work. I would like to see one of our seniors doing an honors paper on the subject. In this manner this memorial will not be a static thing but rather the contrary.

CRISTOBAL Suárez de Figueroa was truly a child of his times. Had he been born a hundred years earlier, he would have been, with all certainty, one of those whose personal ambition aided Spain to carve its huge Empire. But he was born too late, the Empire was an established reality and Spain was finding out that it is far harder to preserve than to conquer. An American Hispanist, J. P. Wickersham Crawford, wrote his doctoral dissertation (University of Pennsylvania, 1907) on the life and works of S. de Figueroa. In spite of a very meticulous research, Crawford was forced to leave many lacunae. But if we cannot give a year to year account of what Figueroa did in his lifetime, we can deduce a great deal about his psychological makeup by the reading of his books. He was born in Valladolid (Spain) and as a young man went to study in Italy. He studied there at the University of Bologna and completed a law degree at the University of Pavia. Reading his works we realize that he possessed an excellent education in the best humanistic tradition. After completing his formal education he spent several years working as an auditor for the Spanish Army stationed at that time in Franche-Comté (now a section of France) and in Italy.

HOPING to make a name for himself and a little tired of being a glorified clerk, he went back to Spain. So in the quest of literary fame and hoping to earn more golden doubloons, we find him in his native country. But Spain at the time was having economic problems because the Spanish monarchs were experts in getting involved in wars against everybody and spending in them more than they were able to earn. At the time that Suárez de Figueroa arrived in Spain, it was standard procedure to have the gold and silver from the heavy taxes paid by the Spanish people as well as that coming from the American colonies go straight to the pockets of many bankers from all over Europe (the Italians and Germans getting the lion's share) who were underwriting the wars and luxury of the decadent Spanish kings.

Lady Fortune did not smile upon Suárez de Figueroa. Although some of his works enjoyed a certain measure of success, they brought little income. What money he had inherited from his father was spent. While visiting Granada, he fell in love but his fiancée died suddenly. He had no job and no aristocratic patronage. In spite of all this, he wrote a great deal. His best known work is El Passagero (1617), an extremely valuable document that can help the researcher in getting a better view of the literary activities and life in general in the Spain of that epoch.

Continued on Next Page

The Rare Book Room

He not only wrote original works but also translated many works from Italian and Portuguese. From the former language he translated, among many things, Guarini's Pastor Fido. Yet literary activity brought scant income and attracted no rich patron. Blind fate was not to blame, as a close study of his life reveals. Envious, quarrelsome and with a poisonous tongue, he had mastered the art of insulting everybody. His slogan might have been "I have not yet found a man whom I did not dislike," and his career a pattern of "how to lose friends and make enemies."

During these same years, Lope de Vega, the famous Spanish playwright, was at his zenith of fame and popularity. He was the darling of Madrid, aristocracy and common people alike. His plays were numerous and well attended; but, as far as Suárez de Figueroa was concerned, Lope was an ignoramus, incapable of following Aristotle's and Horace's precepts in literary matters. Figueroa's attacks were not limited to Lope de Vega; no one escaped his bitter and scathing pen, not even Miguel de Cervantes.

In spite of the enemies that he was making continuously, he searched and hoped for a patron. It was in this quest that Suárez de Figueroa undertook the task of bringing his talents to bear on a biographical study of a recently deceased Spanish general and viceroy of Peru, Don García Hurtado de Mendoza, fourth Marquis of Cañete. The children and close friends of the Marquis felt that his deeds and accomplishments had not been properly recognized by contemporaries or by the King, Philip III, who had ignored Don García's return to Madrid upon the termination of his tour of duty as one of the Viceroys in the Indies.

Suárez de Figueroa, therefore, began the task of drawing up a biography which dealt with the exploits of the Marquis as a general of the Spanish expeditionary force in its long war against the fierce tribes of Araucan Indians in Chile and later as the viceroy of Peru. The Spaniards did what the Incas had never been able to do and that was to complete the conquest of Chile and the partial subjugation of its inhabitants. This long and bitter struggle had been immortalized in an epic by a Spanish poet who had been an officer in the conquering army. The trouble with the Araucana is that in its cantos some of the Indian Chiefs are treated with more respect than Don García Hurtado de Mendoza. After all, why should the poet, Alonso de Ercilla be too obsequious to Mendoza when one discovers that for some vague reasons the Marquis had jailed Ercilla and almost had him hanged. Therefore, the poet, in his work so imitative of the style of Virgil's Aeneid and Lucian's Pharsalia, had a personal score to settle with a commanding officer who had threatened his life.

On his return to Spain, the Marquis found that the Araucana had gone through several editions and been translated into other languages. This did not help his image very much, and Suárez de Figueroa was chosen to repair the damage.

Suárez de Figueroa did not gain much from his work in spite of the fact that it was republished in 1616. In El Passagero (1617) he tells that he had dedicated one of his books to the Duke of Lerma, at that time one of the most influential noblemen in the Spanish court and that he had hesitated to ask for any recompense for his tribute. The reading between the lines of his prologue to this second edition, plus the fact that it was dedicated to Don Juan Andrés Hurtado de Mendoza, the son of Don García and now the fifth Marqués de Cañete, show his dissatisfaction.

Los Hechos de Don García de Mendoza are based on secondary sources. Suárez de Figueroa was obviously aware of the Araucana of Ercilla, but for reasons already explained he made little use of it. Figueroa's biography was based on two other works. One was an epic poem, Arauco Domado,¹ written by Pedro de Oña, a young Chilean poet who in his poem glorified the leadership and courage of Don García. The other work was historical in nature, Historia de descubrimiento de las regiones Australes, written by the XVI century Spanish explorer Pedro Fernández de Quiros who, in his explorations of the Pacific Islands, preceded such well known XVIII century explorers as Bougainville, La Pérouse, Cook, etc.² Although Suárez de Figueroa incorporates some of these explorations of Oceania,³ his main concern is with the exploits of the Marquis, he overflows in praises and flatteries that are at times exaggerated. Nonetheless, today the book can be considered an important document for the early history of Chile and Peru.

UTTERLY disillusioned with his lot in Spain, Figueroa sought a government post in Naples and it was given to him by the recently appointed Spanish Viceroy of those Italian territories. But true to form, he had hardly been any length of time at his employment as auditor when he ran into trouble. The authority of the Viceroy in judicial matters had been challenged by the Neapolitan Inquisition and poor Figueroa became the pawn of a political chess game which eventually involved the King of Spain and the Pope. To appease Rome Suárez de Figueroa became the scapegoat and was thrown in jail although he came out of this ordeal a little better off than previous times. It seems that the Viceroy, for whom Figueroa bore the brunt of the quarrel with the Chief Inquisitor, felt some pangs of conscience and gave our poor mistreated writer a substantial sum of money. Little is known of what happened to Suárez de Figueroa after he was released; we do not even know for sure when he died. Some scholars think it was in 1639. Crawford places it around 1644. At a time when it was customary to praise the writer upon his death, no funeral panegyric was written in his honor. He cannot be placed among the great writers of his age, but his writings deserve more at-ention than they have been given. In spite of his quarrelsome disposition and other flaws of character, one cannot forget that he was a man who dedicated much of his life to high moral principles and to the promotion of high ideals in politics as well as in literature.

The Hechos de Don García Hurtado de Mendoza is clearly a welcome addition to a growing rare book and manuscript collection. It adds a new dimension to holdings that already possess variety, ranging from a small collection of incunabula (books printed before A.D. 1501) to rare books and manuscripts on recent literary, scientific, and political history. The scholar sees in these works a unique source of information and opportunity for critical research.

The average student may not see in the rare book collection anything beyond being proud to be part of an institution that possesses such bibliographical treasures. But many faculty members and advanced students will find this part of the library offering many research advantages.

It is the genuine desire of those interested in this aspect of the library that Dickinson College, without neglecting other essential needs, will continue to purchase rare and valuable books and manuscripts. It is our most sincere hope also that the enthusiasm of such alumni and friends as Boyd Lee Spahr or Roscoe O. Bonisteel, with their determination that Dickinson's Library must rank high, will be matched by others in the Dickinson Family. It is appropriate to end this study by citing Dr. Charles C. Sellers, Librarian,

"Through it all we see this ancient campus, a little world in itself, united in deed and spirit to the boundless fields."⁴

1. First published at Lima, 1596.
2. Alan Moorehead in his fascinating book, The Fatal Impact (New York, 1967), narrates the Pacific explorations of Captain Cook, mentions that Quiros was the first white man to arrive in Tahiti (p. 13).
3. Melchisédec Thévenot (d. 1692) reprinted a part of Suárez de Figueroa's work (pp. 228-91) in his fourth volume of his Collections de Voyages, and it was this narrative which encouraged La Pérouse to make his fateful Pacific voyage to determine the exact geographical location of the Solomon Islands.
4. "The Dickinsoniana Collection," Dickinson College Bulletin, Vol. XLVI (1952), p. 14.

Around The Campus

A Lively Period in Which The College Issues the Priestley Award, the Arts Award and Glover Medal

Dr. Marshall W. Nirenberg, noted pioneer in the rapidly expanding field of genetics chemistry, was named the 17th recipient of the Priestley Memorial Award.

Dr. Nirenberg, a biochemist, who holds the National Medal of Science and other major awards, is chief of the laboratory of biochemical genetics at the National Heart Institute, Bethesda, Md.

His experiments there have helped lessen the mystery of the genetic code which lies at the heart of the systematic reproduction of all living matter. Understanding of the code is one of the most important objectives in biology.

The Dickinson award honors the memory of Joseph Priestley, 18th century chemist best remembered for his discovery of oxygen. It consists of a portrait medallion of Priestley and $1000.

Dickinson, which owns one of the largest collections of Priestley memorabilia in America, created the award in 1952 to recognize modern scientists for research, discovery or production benefiting mankind.

Last year's winner was Dr. George W. Beadle, of Chicago, the biologist and Nobel Prize winner. At 40, Dr. Nirenberg will be the youngest of the recipients.

His pioneering experiments in protein synthesis have led to a partial "cracking" of the genetic code and stimulation of further research activity all over the world.

A series of discoveries by Dr. Nirenberg helped lead to general acceptance of the thesis that reproduction is partially controlled in a cell's nucleus by the sequence of different nucleotides in DNA, the material believed to transmit hereditary characteristics.

W. H. Auden, considered by many literary critics to be the greatest living poet, received the Dickinson Arts Awards.

The award, a medallion and $1000, is conferred from time to time by the faculty for distinguished achievement in the arts, letters or the humanities.

Mr. Auden was the sixth recipient of the Dickinson Arts Award since it was created in 1958.

Walter Piston, the composer, was the most recent winner, in 1966. Other winners were poet Robert Frost, architect Eero Saarinen, Dame Judith Anderson, the actress, and Leonard Baskin, painter and sculptor.

Since Frost's death in 1963, Mr. Auden has been supreme among American poets. Born in England in 1907 and educated at Oxford, he has lived in the United States since 1939 and is an American citizen.

His first important volume of verse appeared in 1930. Since then, critics say, Mr. Auden has continued "year after year to produce some of the best poems of the century in the English-speaking world."

In addition to poetry he has produced important work in the fields of drama, critical essays and articles on a great range of subjects, opera librettos, and editing.

Music has been of profound interest to him. With Chester Kallman, he wrote the libretto for Stravinsky's masterwork "The Rake's Progress" and did the libretto for Henze's opera "Elegy for Young Lovers." Mr. Auden's poem "Age of Anxiety" inspired Leonard Bernstein to compose his Symphony No. 2 for Piano and Orchestra.

His work in the field of drama includes "The Dance of Death" and with C. Isherwood "The Dog Beneath the Skin," "The Ascent of F6" and "On the Frontier."

Dr. Henry Primakoff, the University of Pennsylvania physicist, who received the Glover Memorial Medal is widely known for his work in the theory of high energy nuclear physics.

He delivered the Glover Lecture describing how certain subnuclear particles change when they collide with other elementary particles in the huge accelerators now used by physicists the world over.

The Glover Medal and Glover Lectureship were established at Dickinson in 1959 to stimulate student interest in science through a lecture and classroom discussions by an outstanding visiting scientist.

Dr. Rubendall, left, Dr. Nirenberg and Dr. Rogers at the Priestley Burning Glass.

Dr. Magill, left, Dr. Auden, Dr. Schiffman and Dr. Rubendall at award ceremony.

Lawrence A. Rand, '65

Rand Joins Staff

Lawrence A. Rand, '65, has been appointed to the development staff of the College.

President Rubendall said Rand will fill a new post at the College. He will serve as assistant to the director of annual giving and will also assist in the alumni office.

For the past three years he has been retail sales representative for the Trenton, N. J. sales district of Gulf Oil Corporation. He joined Gulf in 1965 on graduating from Dickinson.

A varsity tennis star in college, he has Middle States tennis ranking today. He has been an assistant scoutmaster in Morrisville and is a member of the Morrisville Methodist Church.

Rand is married to the former Diann Dupy, '66. They have two children, Mary Allison, 2, and Lawrence Scott, 1.

College States Policy on Illegal Drug Use

The question of the use of illegal drugs* has elicited several inquiries to the Office of Dean of Students. Let me try to make our position clear.

There is no doubt that the use of a drug such as heroin has a disastrous impact on the user. We also have clear evidence that the effects of LSD cannot be adequately predicted, even under carefully controlled conditions. The danger of acute psychosis is always present. Such reactions can take place when the drug is used only once, and they can persist and reappear long after such use. The matter of marijuana is more complicated. Technically it is non-addictive, and it is possible to argue that its use is no more harmful than the drinking of liquor or the smoking of tobacco—hardly an endorsement for the desirability of smoking marijuana. There is, however, a substantial amount of medical evidence indicating that marijuana can, in some persons under certain circumstances, produce all the untoward effects attributed to more potent hallucinogens, including aggressive behavior and psychosis.

In any event, there are at least two compelling reasons why the College is justified in refusing to condone the possession, distribution, and use of drugs, including marijuana, by its students. First, and most simply, the use of these drugs violates the laws of Pennsylvania and of the United States. There is something to be said for the proposition that laws in a democracy should be obeyed, whether they are controversial civil rights laws or bothersome traffic regulations or laws forbidding the use of drugs. Second, whether the federal and state statutes outlawing drugs are wise or foolish, they are enforced, and their effect is to restrict much of the illicit distribution and sale to sources which are connected with the criminal underworld. Students who regularly use a drug such as marijuana are likely, sooner or later, to come into contact with promoters and suppliers of such hallucinogens and narcotics as LSD and heroin. It goes without saying that the interest of these suppliers is less with matters of "personal" student rights than it is with profits at any price.

*Such drugs as marijuana, barbiturates, amphetamines, tranquilizers, LSD compounds, mescaline, psilocybin, DMT, narcotics, and opiates.

It is recognized that the use of drugs is frequently suggestive of medical problems or of difficulties in personal adjustment. Students are reminded that the College physicians and the Director of Counseling are available to give aid in solving these problems. Conferences with these persons are privileged, subject to the standards of privacy established in the medical professions. Others, including the Chaplain and the personnel deans, also stand ready to help students.

Given these considerations, the following policies, which have been established by the faculty, shall be enforced:

- I. Whereas the use or possession of illegal drugs on the Dickinson College Campus is contrary to the good of the College, such activity by a Dickinson College student is subject to disciplinary action.
- II. Whereas Dickinson College will not tolerate members of the College community engaging in the sale of illegal drugs, persons found guilty of selling illegal drugs will be required to withdraw from the College, and then evidence of such sales will be turned over to appropriate Federal and State authorities. In the case of conviction for the sale of drugs, the penalty is not reducible.

Attached you will find a reprint of a recent analysis of the physiological dangers of marijuana and LSD prepared by Doctors Farnsworth and Prout of the Harvard University Health Services and used with their permission.

Sincerely yours,
Harold R. Gillespie, Jr.
Dean of Students

Kneeling (left) Ross Gingrich and Richard McCray. Perry Gleason, Thomas Zug, Jerry Braverman, Coach David B. Eavenson, Paul Stasz and Lee Keller. Back row: Darryl Fickling, Jeffrey Wheeler, Robert Davis, David Zeske, Jeffrey Manning, Robert Cashel, Bruce Jones, William Young and Thomas Edwards.

Devil Swimmers Win Third Straight MAC Title

Coach Dave Eavenson and the Red Devil swimming team made Middle Atlantic Conference College Division history when they became the first coach and team to capture three MAC swimming titles in a row during a two-day carnival at Elizabethtown College. Winning the final event, the 400 yard medley relay, D'son edged F&M for the crown. The rest of the entries trailed the College by margins of 23 to 67 points.

Best Dressed is Pert Sophomore

The best dressed of Dickinson's nearly 600 coeds is a pert sophomore who prefers to design and make her own clothes.

She's Julie Diane Pringle, much-traveled daughter of a U. S. Foreign service officer presently stationed in San Jose, Costa Rica.

Julie bested 24 hand-picked rivals for the best dressed title in a contest sponsored by the Dickinson sororities through their Pan-Hellenic Council.

Mrs. Howard L. Rubendall, wife of the president of the College, and the other judges thought Miss Pringle showed "the best sense of style" and was the most casual and most at ease.

The winner modeled campus, town and evening clothes she herself had made and designed. The contest was part of Glamour magazine's search for the "ten best dressed coeds" in America.

Miss Pringle was born in Nicaragua while her father was stationed there. She prepared for college at Washington's Woodrow Wilson High School.

Her campus activities center upon the Mermaid Players and the Dickinsonian.

Alumni Notes

Annual Giving Continues Record Growth

Renewed emphasis on the financial needs of the private college by news media and a strong team of class chairmen, agents, parents and friends helped the 1968 Dickinson Fund pass the $200,000 mark toward an unprecedented goal of $265,000. Harry Zug, '34, General Chairman of the Fund, expressed appreciation for the advance which showed a 10 per cent increase in gifts received and indicated there would be no slowdown in fund activity until the goal was achieved.

Alumni, working toward a $125,000 objective had attained $93,000 of their goal at presstime and statements by the Annual Giving Office indicated the size of the average gift was up more than 12 per cent. Likewise a record effort by parents of present and former students has enabled the Parents Association to report 85% of their $30,000 goal. The 1968 parents drive has already surpassed last year's record total.

In addition to the monetary objectives, alumni are striving for a 4,000 contributor goal this year. Each class has accepted a quota and will work toward this objective through June 30.

Zug, addressing alumni in Philadelphia, indicated that several substantial reunion gifts had been received and that record-breaking totals in May and June would assure the goal. John M. Davidson, '33, a member of the Annual Giving Committee of the Alumni Council, added to Zug's remarks by reminding alumni, parents and friends that the Ford Foundation would increase by one-third each gift received.

Major Broujos Earns Two Medals

Official U. S. Marine Corps Photo by Lee Haleman

Major John H. Broujos (left) a staff member of the Command and Staff College (C&SC) was presented the Navy Commendation Medal with Combat "V" and the Vietnamese Navy Distinguished Service Order, Second Class, by Brigadier General Michael P. Ryan, director, C&SC. The major was cited for meritorious service as intelligence officer and assistant operations officer with Special Landing Force Bravo, U. S. Seventh Fleet. Major Broujos was called back into the service at a time when he was a member of the College Faculty and coach of the Debate Team. His wife, Louise, continues teaching here in the Department of English.

Bookbinder Dinner Attracts 500

Sidney W. Bookbinder, '35, prominent New Jersey attorney, was given a testimonial dinner in terms of a "this is your life." Over 500 friends and business associates attended the dinner chaired by Elmer A. Corda, right, and Lynn Franklin.

FRANCAVILLA, GINO
428 Park Terrace,
Harrisburg, Pa.

FLOWER, MARY D.
251 West South St.
Carlisle, Pa.

FICKLING, DARYLL B.
21 West Lawrence St.
Milltown, N. J.

ESHELMAN, DAVID R.
Box 456, R. D. 2
Sinking Spring, Pa.

22 Alumni Sons and Daughters in class of 1971

DAVIS, PETER A.
15 Oakland Avenue
Brockton, Mass.

BELOPOLSKY, SUSAN
918 Salem Avenue
Burlington, N.J.

BAGENSTOSE, ABNER H., III
7920 Symphony Lane
Cincinnati, Ohio

- Abner H. Bagenstose, III (Abner, '43 and Charlotte Stopford Bagenstose, '43)
- Susan I. Belopolsky (Herman Belopolsky, '35)
- Peter A. Davis (Daniel Davis, '36)
- David R. Eshelman (W. Richard, '41 and Mary Mackie Eshelman, '43)
- Daryll B. Fickling (Kenneth B. Fickling, '52)
- Mary D. Flower (Guiles, Jr., '39 and Alice Zeigler Flower, '41)
- Gino A. Francavilla (Geno Francavilla, '48)
- Gary E. Greenblatt (Newton Greenblatt, '44)
- D. Joanne Harley (John B. Harley, M.D., '43)
- John B. Harley, Jr. (John B. Harley, M.D. '43)
- Karen P. Houck (Larry E. Houck, '43)
- Kim E. Ikeler (Bernard Ikeler, '42)
- Nicholas S. Lippincott (Edwin E. Lippincott, Esq., '44)
- Harriet D. Miller (Alan B. Miller, Jr., '43)
- William T. Nelson, Jr. (William T. Nelson, '41)
- David W. Rahausser (David Rahausser, M.D., '44)
- Eric J. Snyder (Mary J. Boswell Snyder, '36)
- John M. Stowell (Harold Stowell, Esq., '47)
- John J. Teti, Jr. (John J. Teti, Esq., '32)
- Joseph J. Wilson (Harry W. Wilson, '40)
- David R. Witwer (Samuel W. Witwer, '30)
- Elizabeth A. Young (George F. Young, Esq., '50)

GREENBLATT, GARY E.
40 Northwood Drive
Vineland, N.J.

HARLEY, D. JOANNE
Box 19, Route 4
Morgantown,
West Virginia

HARLEY, JOHN B., JR.
Box 19, Route 4
Morgantown,
West Virginia

HOUCK, KAREN P.
1608 Alsace, Road
Reading, Pa.

IKELER, KIM
325 South 11th St.
Philadelphia, Pa.

LIPPINCOTT, NICHOLAS
170 Sycamore Mills Road
Media, Pa.

MILLER, HARRIET D.
102 Delrem Drive
Newark, Del.

NELSON, WILLIAM T., JR.
150 Norland Avenue
Chambersburg, Pa.

RAHAUSER, DAVID W.
147 E. Washington St.
Chambersburg, Pa.

SNYDER, ERIC J.
2049 Montgomery St.
Bethlehem, Pa.

STOWELL, JOHN M.
5707 Ogden Road
Washington, D.C.

Two thousand three hundred and thirty-two formal applications for the Class of 1971 were processed down to 778. Of this number, 43 were alumni children. 32 were accepted and 22 entered as witnessed herewith. The percentage of alumni children accepted (74%) was an increase in percentage from last year. This percentage is quite high when compared to the percent of the total applicant group accepted (33%) but is the result of the College's continued policy to, whenever possible, give preference to alumni children.

TETI, JOHN J., JR.
734 East Lincoln Highway
Coatesville, Pa.

WILSON, JOSEPH J.
72 Franklin Street
Dallas, Pa.

WITWER, DAVID
111 Abingdon Avenue
Kenilworth, Ill.

YOUNG, ELIZABETH A.
1604 Vermont Avenue
McKeesport, Pa.

NAACP*

By John A. Morsell

Assistant Executive Director, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The most—and the least—a reviewer can do for a good book is to persuade others to read it. In the present case, the book is good enough to lead this reviewer to wish he had the authority to require that it be read. At the very least, there must be several hundred reporters, editors, television commentators, politicians, intellectuals and other influentials of both races whose pronouncements on the nation's racial picture would gain immeasurably from a study of Professor Charles Flint Kellogg's narrative. I guarantee that they would find it absorbing as well as enlightening.

NAACP is, of course, the long-awaited definitive history of the Association. It is the fruit of several years' painstaking, knowledgeable research into the origins of a major American organization; including the exhaustion of whatever was available in the way of correspondence, drafts, memoranda and reminiscence in the files of the Association and in the collections and memories of scores of individuals who were involved in the NAACP's beginnings. It is therefore unlikely either to be challenged in any significant aspect, or to be surpassed, unless some as yet unsuspected substantial source of data should come to light.

The book under review is designated Volume One and covers the years 1909 to 1920. The author's rationale for this division springs directly from the nature of his historical findings. His own statement of it is illuminating, and just possibly might contain surprises for many whose glib summaries of the racial past derive from ignorance of anything that happened before 1960.

"The year 1919 marked a turning point in the history of the NAACP," Professor Kellogg writes. "By this time a number of the 'old guard' had passed from the scene due to death or retirement. Their going marked the end of the emphasis upon abolitionist tradition within the Association. No longer was it referred to as the 'new abolition movement.'

"The year 1919 also witnessed the beginning of the end of white leadership

*Dr. Charles Flint Kellogg
Chairman, History Department*

*NAACP: A History of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. By Charles Flint Kellogg. Baltimore, Johns Hopkins Press, 1967. Volume I: 1909-1920 $8.75.

and control of the NAACP. From the beginning the Association had sought to secure Negroes of ability to serve on local and national levels. As early as 1915, suggestions were heard that the time was ripe for a Negro to become the executive head of the organization. By 1919, the branches had largely dispensed with the tutelage of advisory committees dominated by white liberals. Fewer whites were to be found as officers and members of the local branches. Only on the national Board did white leadership still predominate, but its influence was on the wane as more and more of the actual direction of the Association's affairs fell into the hands of the secretary and the executive committee, which was composed largely of Negroes. In 1920, James Weldon Johnson became the first Negro secretary . . ."

The contemporary folklore of civil rights, assiduously cultivated and disseminated by the legion of the uninformed, is that, until very recently, the movement was dominated by white people, who financed it, inspired it, and made its crucial decisions. Negroes were, in the current fantasies, the more or less passive recipients of white largesse, obediently falling into line with whatever goals and strategies were laid out for them. The Negro super-militants of today, echoed by their fawning and guilt-ridden white hangers-on-by-sufferance, dare not move without ritual exorcism of a subservience falsely attributed to their predecessors.

The real truth of the past fifty or sixty years is at once more straightforward and more complex. Most of the issues which today agitate the world of young Negro and white "militants" were present in the 1909-19 decade. There was even the fierce debate (meaningless then as now) over nomenclature: should the term be "colored," "Negro," "Afro-American," or still another word or phrase? The vigorous, often bitter, but always principled struggle between W. E. B. DuBois and Oswald Garrison Villard¹ was the early counterpart of later conflicts between black and white for leadership and the final voice in decisions. The antagonism of Booker T. Washington to the new organization posed a serious and nearly crippling challenge from the right, while William Monroe Trotter on the left presaged the latter-day assaults of those who profess to find the NAACP deficient in militancy. Professor Kellogg brings to each of these developments a wealth of documented detail, as well as a keen insight which never intrudes itself upon the data.

Nowhere is this more evident than in the account of the running disagreement between DuBois and Villard. It is indisputable that, in the stormy and precarious first years of the new organization, it was Villard's financial support and, even more, his organizational skill and sense of timing that literally kept the NAACP alive. Without Villard between 1909 and 1914-15, it is almost certain that the new venture would have foundered. It is equally undeniable that DuBois was often unreasonable and hard to get along with. He refused, for example, even while his salary and the magazine's expenses were being paid by the NAACP, to submit to the NAACP Board an accounting of the CRISIS magazine's finances.

But it was of supreme importance, even at the outset (as Mary White Ovington recognized) that DuBois, the Negro, should not feel humbled by Villard, the white liberal; and in the final analysis, it was Villard who left, resigning from the Board in 1919. It was a classic example of the irreconcilable conflict whose poignancy derives from the absence of villains.

A further light is cast upon the same

¹Grandson of the great abolitionist William Lloyd Garrison, and author of the February 12, 1909, Call which led to the organization of the NAACP.

issue when it is recalled that, in 1913, the Board "felt it necessary to advise all branches and groups applying for admission that they must include white members in order to conform to the requirements of the Association." On occasion it seems to have been necessary to reiterate this rule in the case of an individual branch. (This reviewer was once entranced by the Negro president of a branch in a small Kansas town, who reported 85 members, even though the total Negro population was under 50. He had signed up all the leading white citizens, including the mayor. "Of course," he confided, "I don't send the white members notices of the meetings.")

The year 1919 saw Villard's resignation from the Board; but it also counted other developments which were, in their way, just as surely straws in the wind. In that year, for example, Pennsylvania branches took steps toward forming the first NAACP state organization. In that year, the branches for the first time began the effort to elect to the national Board Negroes who had demonstrated leadership in local NAACP activities. The foundation was laid for the legislative surveillance and pressure which eventually led to the NAACP Washington Bureau. The annual conference of 1919, held in Cleveland, took the unprecedented step, despite strong opposition from some branches, of voting to hold its next session in the South, in Atlanta.

At the end of 1919, the Association had 310 branches and 91,203 members, of whom the largest single component was in the South: 42,588 members.

John A. Morsell, who reviews NAACP, is the father of Frederick A. Morsell, '62. His Dickinsonian son completed a two year tour in the Army as a first lieutenant and presently is working toward his MA in drama at Wayne State University. He is a full member of the Hilberry Classic Theatre, a semi-professional repertory group affiliated with the university.

The circulation of the CRISIS was at its highest to that date, 100,000 copies. (Those who are today called upon to estimate the Negro-white proportions in the NAACP membership will be cheered to find that, nearly forty years ago, the guessing was on much the same basis as now: in 1919, reports Kellogg, "It was estimated that about nine-tenths of the members were colored and one-tenth white.")

The greater value of these consistent estimates is their confirmation of the support given the NAACP by its Negro constituents. Truth will probably never catch up with fiction in this regard, no matter how often the record is clarified; the reaction is still usually one of astonishment when the fact is stated that it is largely Negroes who pay and who have paid for the NAACP. But the bulk of NAACP income has almost from the beginning come from its membership. If it has not been all it could have been or should have been, it is nevertheless an impressive rebuttal to those who claim that Negroes do not do for themselves.

In providing this refutation, this history of the NAACP deals a blow, also, at one of the subtlest and most insidious products of a racist system. Black and white alike are prey to it and are unaware of how deeply the sense of Negro inferiority has eaten into them. It is so deep that many find it difficult to believe that Negroes can effectively, not say brilliantly, conduct a major enterprise. If an enterprise is so conducted, they conclude, ipso facto, that somewhere out of sight there must be white people calling the shots.

This myopia is bad enough in whites, but it is tragic in Negroes. Nor will it be cured by breast-beating and vituperation, by isolation from whites, or by loud assertions of independence or superiority. It can be cured by absorption of the truth, as it is set forth in books such as this one; it can be cured by the experience of success in useful enterprises whether small or vast in scope. As Professor Kellogg makes very clear, the NAACP has been a mighty vehicle for both.

One is not told, at the volume's end, what will be the span of time to be covered by the projected second volume. Presumably, it will deal with a longer period, perhaps bringing the account up to the seminal year of 1954. Treasuring the prospect of such a continuation, it is impossible not to express the hope that, some day, a third volume may take us at least through the tremendous decade that followed. We are already heavily in Professor Kellogg's debt; since we cannot repay, why not make it as large as he will permit?

Obituaries

1903 The Alumni Office recently learned of the death of THOMAS W. JONES, of Ridgeley, Maryland. He was a member of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity.

1903 The Alumni Office recently learned of the death of Mrs. NELL DAVIS BOSTWICK, of Chicopee, Massachusetts. She was a member of Chi Omega sorority.

1907 LEON A. McINTIRE died in Morristown, New Jersey, on December 9 at the age of 80 years. A resident of Morristown for many years, where he was active in the Presbyterian Church, he was retired from the lumber business. He was a past president of the New York Alumni Club and helped to organize the Northern Jersey Club. He was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity and of the Sons of the American Revolution. He was the son of Dr. B. O. McIntire, a member of the Dickinson faculty until his retirement in 1929. He is survived by his sister, MARJORIE A. McINTIRE, '10, and a brother JOHN V. McINTIRE, '13.

1907 Dr. WALTER F. SHENTON, a former chairman of the mathematics department of American University and professor emeritus since 1957, died on February 26 at the Washington Hospital Center after a long illness. Prior to joining the faculty at American University in 1925, he taught at Dickinson Seminary, Johns Hopkins University and the U. S. Naval Academy. Dr. Shenton served as advisory editor for mathematics for the Encyclopedia Americana from 1956 to 1959 and was a consultant to the National Science Foundation from 1958 to 1962. He was a charter member of the Mathematics Association of America and was a member of the American Mathematics Society. He was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity; Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, and the Methodist Church. He is survived by his wife, a son and a daughter.

1910 HEWLINGS MUMPER, attorney of Los Angeles, California, died on March 18, at the age of 79 years. A graduate of the New York Law School, he was a member of the American and Los Angeles County Bar Associations, and served as vice chairman of the Committee of Bar Examiners. A life member of the General Alumni Association, he held membership in Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity, the Los Angeles Country Club, the Beach Club and the Masons. He is survived by his wife and two sons.

1911 Dr. ALLEN P. HORN, retired educator, died on November 20 in Bethesda, Maryland, of a heart attack at the age of 80. Dr. Horn received his master's from Columbia University in 1925 and his doctorate from New York University School of Education in 1930. A widely popular educator, who served for 28 years as an administrative official in the Jersey City, New Jersey school system, he retired in 1951. He was a member of Sigma Chi Fraternity. Dr. Horn is survived by his widow, a daughter, Mrs. MARY HORN COALE, '40, and three grandsons.

1914 CHARLES M. SMITH, for many years a salesman for the DuPont Company, Wilmington, Delaware, died on December 26 following a heart attack. A member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity, Mr. Smith was a guest at the Masonic Home in Wilmington.

1914 VICTOR C. WISE, a member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity, died in December in Williamsport. He worked six years with the U. S. Rubber Company, six years with West Branch Bank and Trust Company, twenty years in politics, four years as Register and Recorder, sixteen years as County Commissioner and during this time he spent thirty-five years as Auditor and Accountant for numerous firms in Lycoming County.

1915 The Alumni Office received word of the death of JOHN W. PARSONS, attorney of Atlantic City, New Jersey, on June 4, 1967.

1922 WILLIAM A. RAMEY, attorney of Clearfield, died in Boynton Beach, Florida in March at the age of 68 years. He was a member of the Clearfield County Bar Association and various state and national legal societies. He was also a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He is survived by his wife, three daughters, a brother and a sister.

1923 The Rev. BRIGGS P. DINGMAN died at his home in Lima, New York on January 7 after suffering a heart attack at the age of 67. A graduate of the Moody Bible Institute and Xenia Seminary, he was ordained a Presbyterian minister, and then served 12 years in the Salvation Army. He served on the faculties of Providence Bible Institute, Southwestern Bible College, the Northeastern Bible College, and at the time of his death was teaching languages and music at Elim Bible Institute, where he had been serving for the past 12 years. An accomplished musician, he was often a guest soloist and composer of music. He was editor on the recent Berkeley version of the Bible, a contributor to the Zondervan Bible Dictionary and an editor for the Amplified Old Testament. For the past 20 years he was active in Full Gospel Church circles. At Dickinson he was a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. He is survived by his wife, a daughter and four sons.

1924 The Rev. LEON S. SIMONETTI died in January at Athol, Massachusetts at the age of 67. A former resident of Harrisburg, he was pastor of Athol Unitarian Church. He is survived by his wife, two sons, a daughter and three sisters.

1925 ROBERT STUCKENRATH, attorney of Lewistown, died on February 19 in Geisinger Hospital at the age of 64 years. A graduate of Washington and Lee University, he graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1928. He practiced law in Harrisburg until 1933, when he went to Lewistown where he had his own office for many years. The past ten years he was senior member of the law firm of Stuckenrath and Knepp. He became one of the leaders of the Mifflin County Bar Association and was active in community affairs. He is survived by a son.

1926 SOLOMON HURWITZ, prominent Harrisburg lawyer, was stricken fatally with a heart attack at his home on March 15 at the age of 61 years. He was the founder of the law firm of Hurwitz, Klein, Benjamin and Brown, and practiced law in Dauphin County since 1928. He was well-known as a trial advocate in civil and criminal matters, and was elected a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers and the International Academy of Trial Lawyers. A member of Phi Epsilon Psi fraternity and a life member of the General Alumni Association, Mr. Hurwitz was a member of Temple Beth El and a former member of its board; a member of the board of the Keystone Trust Company; a member of the Pennsylvania Citizens Council; counsel to the Pennsylvania Republican Committee; the Jewish Community Center; council of the Polyclinic Hospital; American Judicature Society and the American Trial Lawyers Association, of which he was a national editor. Mr. Hurwitz was recently elected to the Board of Trustees of Dickinson School of Law. He is survived by his wife, a son, two brothers and two sisters.

1926 EDWARD P. BLAUGRUND, clerk of Shaker Heights, Ohio, Municipal Court, died January 5 in Mt. Sinai Hospital after a brief illness at the age of 61 years. Following graduation from the Dickinson School of Law, he practiced law in Trenton until 1930 when he moved to Cleveland. Prior to becoming Court Clerk nearly five years ago, he was in the insurance business with Massachusetts Casualty Insurance Company. An active member of B'nai B'rith, he was a charter member and past president of Heights Lodge 1152, past president of District Grand Lodge 2 and past president of the Cleveland Interlodge Council. Mr. Blaugrund was a member of Forest City Masonic Lodge, the Temple on the Heights and the Men's Club. A member of Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity, he held membership in the Shaker Heights Fraternal Order of Police Associates and the Shaker 100 Club. He is survived by his wife, a son and a brother.

1930 Dr. PAUL E. SMITH, executive secretary of the Committee on International Relations of the National Education Association, died at his home in Washington, D. C., on March 15 at the age of 59. Following his graduation, he was an instructor at Dickinson Junior College until 1934, and a fellow at Washington's Folger Shakespeare Library from 1934 to 1936. Awarded a master's degree from American University in 1937, he served as an assistant professor at the University of Maryland for the next five years, receiving his doctorate at Catholic University in 1942. Dr. Smith served as assistant director with the U. S. Office of Education until 1952 and then director of the Division of International Education. During this period he developed and organized the U. S. Committee on Interchange of Teachers and administered the Anglo-American teacher exchange program. In 1952, Dr. Smith joined the International Cooperation Administration and served in Iraq as assistant director and later as program officer, transferring to Beirut, Lebanon, where he was a regional training officer for the Near East and Africa. He was appointed secretary and executive officer of the Committee on International Relations of the National Education Association in 1956; serving from this time until 1967 as secretary of the NEA delegation to annual assemblies of the World Confederation of Organizations of the Teaching Profession throughout the world. An honorary member of the teachers organizations of Indonesia, Jamaica, Panama, Ecuador and Trinidad-Tobago, he was also a director of the Washington Foreign Students Service of the American Community School in Beirut. A life member of the General Alumni Association, Dr. Smith was a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, Omicron Delta Kappa and Phi Delta Kappa, and the Cosmos Club of Washington. He is survived by his wife, LUCILE BLACKWELL, '32; two sons, Paul E., Jr., and Charles M., a member of the senior class; his father and a sister.

1930 The Alumni Office recently learned of the death of ALSON J. SMITH, of Canaan, Connecticut, nearly three years ago.

1933 JOSEPH G. HILDENBERGER, a former U. S. attorney for the eastern district of Pennsylvania, died January 3 in St. Luke's Hospital, Bethlehem, at the age of 56 years. A graduate of the Dickinson School of Law, he was assistant district attorney of Northampton County from 1940 to 1942 and an assistant U. S. attorney for the eastern district from 1944 to 1948, when he resigned to become solicitor of Northampton County. After serving four years in this post, Mr. Hildenberger was again appointed an assistant U. S. attorney for the district. Until the time of his death, he served as an unemployment compensation referee for the Bureau of Employment Security of Pennsylvania. A life member of the General Alumni Association, he was a member of the state and federal bar associations. He is survived by his wife, a son and a daughter.

1935 The Alumni Office recently learned of the death of RALPH P. KINZEY, of Downingtown on December 19. He was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

1941 Dr. KARL R. BEUTNER, of Vallejo, California, died on February 19 after a lengthy illness. He was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

1948 The Rev. DANIEL F. KOON, pastor of Simpson Church, Altoona, died in the Presbyterian University Hospital, Pittsburgh, on March 26, after an illness of 2½ years. He was a life member of the General Alumni Association. He is survived by his wife and three sons.

1948 PALMER G. LYNN, of Baltimore, Maryland, died on January 3 from a coronary occlusion at the age of 49 years. At the time of his death he was teaching history and English at the Talmudical Academy in Baltimore. A life member of the General Alumni Association, he was a member of Alpha Chi Rho fraternity. Mr. Lynn was a member of the National Education Association; the National Council for Teachers of English; the National Council for Social Studies; editor of Chalk Talk for Fairfax Education Association; the Fairfax Religious Association; the Maryland State Teachers Association. He is survived by a sister.

1949 PHILIP B. PEFFER, husband of ARLENE BOWEN PEFFER, '49, died on January 19 in Anaheim, California, at the age of 44 after suffering a heart attack. A former employee of the Carlisle Post Office, he had been working at the Data Processing Center of the Long Beach Navy Shipyard. In addition to his wife, he is survived by two sons, his mother and a sister.

1950 J. PAUL MILLER died recently at his home in Newtown Square at the age of 43 years. A designer for the Pioneer Industries of Philadelphia for 10 years, he was the owner of the J. Paul Miller Design Associates of Philadelphia. A graduate of the Philadelphia College of Art, he was a member of the Newtown Square Presbyterian Church. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, a son, his mother and a sister.

1961 Captain JOSEPH C. DOYLE, who was on his third tour of duty in Vietnam, was killed in action on February 29 while on an aerial reconnaissance flight over South Vietnam. Capt. Doyle, who was in Military Intelligence, was stationed at Can Tho in the Mekong Delta area and was on the reconnaissance flight as an observer. He was able to eject from the plane, which crashed and burned, but his death was caused by multiple injuries. Capt. Doyle was commissioned in June 1961 and had been on active duty since January 1962. After two short tours of duty, he returned to Vietnam on December 5, 1967. He was a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. He is survived by his wife, his mother and a sister.

1966 JAMES REINHART, of Wilmington, Delaware, was found dead in his car from carbon monoxide poisoning on January 13. He was a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity and of St. David's Episcopal Church. At the time of his death he was employed by United Fund of Northern Delaware. He is survived by his parents, a brother and paternal grandmother.

Rev. John E. McVeigh, '95 died on January 22, 1968. He had recently celebrated his 100th birthday.

Robert Stuckenrath, '25

Solomon Hurwitz, '26

Please glance at your watch

IF YOU do not have an uninterrupted twenty minutes now to read—not to browse, or to skim, but to read—and ponder the article which follows, then please do not start it now. Come back to it when you do have at least twenty minutes to read it, and to think about it.

THE PLAIN FACT IS has been provided for you in this issue of The Dickinson Alumnus for several reasons.

Its subject matter relates to higher education.

It deeply relates to the independent college, and hence to Dickinson.

It is timely, all too timely.

It is not sensationally written; it is in a matter-of-fact vein.

IF YOU have a concern for, an interest in, or even a bit of attachment to Alma Mater, please set aside the twenty minutes whether now or later, for

THE PLAIN FACT IS - - - - probably going to shake you up a bit.

The Plain Fact Is...

... our colleges and universities “are facing what might easily become a crisis”

OUR COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES, over the last 20 years, have experienced an expansion that is without precedent—in buildings and in budgets, in students and in professors, in reputation and in rewards—in power and pride and in deserved prestige. As we try to tell our countrymen that we are faced with imminent bankruptcy, we confront the painful fact that in the eyes of the American people—and I think also in the eyes of disinterested observers abroad—we are a triumphant success. The observers seem to believe—and I believe myself—that the American campus ranks with the American corporation among the handful of first-class contributions which our civilization has made to the annals of human institutions. We come before the country to plead financial emergency at a time when our public standing has never been higher. It is at the least an unhappy accident of timing.

—MCGEORGE BUNDY
President, The Ford Foundation

A Special Report

A STATE-SUPPORTED UNIVERSITY in the Midwest makes a sad announcement: With more well-qualified applicants for its freshman class than ever before, the university must tighten its entrance requirements. Qualified though the kids are, the university must turn many of them away.

▶ A private college in New England raises its tuition fee for the seventh time since World War II. In doing so, it admits ruefully: "Many of the best high-school graduates can't afford to come here, any more."

▶ A state college network in the West, long regarded as one of the nation's finest, cannot offer its students the usual range of instruction this year. Despite intensive recruiting, more than 1,000 openings on the faculty were unfilled at the start of the academic year.

▶ A church-related college in the South, whose denomination's leaders believe in strict separation of church and state, severs its church ties in order to seek money from the government. The college must have such money, say its administrators—or it will die.

Outwardly, America's colleges and universities appear more affluent than at any time in the past. In the aggregate they have more money, more students, more buildings, better-paid faculties, than ever before in their history.

Yet many are on the edge of deep trouble.

"The plain fact," in the words of the president of Columbia University, "is that we are facing what might easily become a crisis in the financing of American higher education, and the sooner we know about it, the better off we will be."

THE TROUBLE is not limited to a few institutions. Nor does it affect only one or two types of institution. Large universities, small colleges; state-supported and privately supported: the problem faces them all.

Before preparing this report, the editors asked more than 500 college and university presidents to tell us—off the record, if they preferred—just how they viewed the future of their institutions. With rare exceptions, the presidents agreed on this assessment: That the money is not now in sight to meet the rising costs of higher education . . . to serve the growing numbers of bright, qualified students . . . and to pay for the myriad activities that Americans now demand of their colleges and universities.

Important programs and necessary new buildings are

ALL OF US are hard-put to see where we are going to get the funds to meet the educational demands of the coming decade.

—A university president being deferred for lack of money, the presidents said. Many admitted to budget-tightening measures reminiscent of those taken in days of the Great Depression.

Is this new? Haven't the colleges and universities always needed money? Is there something different about the situation today?

The answer is "Yes"—to all three questions.

The president of a large state university gave us this view of the over-all situation, at both the publicly and the privately supported institutions of higher education:

"A good many institutions of higher learning are operating at a deficit," he said. "First, the private colleges and universities: they are eating into their endowments in order to meet their expenses. Second, the public institutions. It is not legal to spend beyond our means, but here we have another kind of deficit: a deficit in quality, which will be extremely difficult to remedy even when adequate funding becomes available."

Other presidents' comments were equally revealing:

► From a university in the Ivy League: "Independent national universities face an uncertain future which threatens to blunt their thrust, curb their leadership, and jeopardize their independence. Every one that I know about is facing a deficit in its operating budget, this year or next. And all of us are hard-put to see where we are going to get the funds to meet the educational demands of the coming decade."

► From a municipal college in the Midwest: "The best word to describe our situation is 'desperate.' We are operating at a deficit of about 20 per cent of our total expenditure."

► From a private liberal arts college in Missouri: "Only by increasing our tuition charges are we keeping our heads above water. Expenditures are galloping to such a degree that I don't know how we will make out in the future."

► From a church-related university on the West Coast: "We face very serious problems. Even though our tuition is below-average, we have already priced ourselves out of part of our market. We have gone deeply into debt for dormitories. Our church support is declining. At times, the outlook is grim."

► From a state university in the Big Ten: "The budget for our operations must be considered tight. It is less than we need to meet the demands upon the university for teaching, research, and public service."

► From a small liberal arts college in Ohio: "We are on a hand-to-mouth, 'kitchen' economy. Our ten-year projections indicate that we can maintain our quality only by doubling in size."

► From a small college in the Northeast: "For the first time in its 150-year history, our college has a planned deficit. We are holding our heads above water at the moment—but, in terms of quality education, this cannot long continue without additional means of support."

► From a state college in California: "We are not permitted to operate at a deficit. The funding of our budget at a level considerably below that proposed by the trustees has made it difficult for us to recruit staff members and has forced us to defer very-much-needed improvements in our existing activities."

► From a women's college in the South: "For the coming year, our budget is the tightest we have had in my fifteen years as president."

WHAT'S GONE WRONG?

Talk of the sort quoted above may seem strange, as one looks at the unparalleled growth of America's colleges and universities during the past decade:

► Hardly a campus in the land does not have a brand-new building or one under construction. Colleges and universities are spending more than $2 billion a year for capital expansion.

► Faculty salaries have nearly doubled in the past decade. (But in some regions they are still woefully low.)

► Private, voluntary support to colleges and universities has more than tripled since 1958. Higher education's share of the philanthropic dollar has risen from 11 per cent to 17 per cent.

► State tax funds appropriated for higher education have increased 44 per cent in just two years, to a 1967-68 total of nearly $4.4 billion. This is 214 per cent more than the sum appropriated eight years ago.

► Endowment funds have more than doubled over the past decade. They're now estimated to be about $12 billion, at market value.

► Federal funds going to institutions of higher education have more than doubled in four years.

► More than 300 new colleges and universities have been founded since 1945.

► All in all, the total expenditure this year for U.S. higher education is some $18 billion—more than three times as much as in 1955.

Moreover, America's colleges and universities have absorbed the tidal wave of students that was supposed to have swamped them by now. They have managed to fulfill their teaching and research functions and to undertake a variety of new public-service programs—despite the ominous predictions of faculty shortages heard ten or fifteen years ago. Says one foundation official:

“The system is bigger, stronger, and more productive than it has ever been, than any system of higher education in the world.”

Why, then, the growing concern?

Re-examine the progress of the past ten years, and this fact becomes apparent: The progress was great—but it did not deal with the basic flaws in higher education's financial situation. Rather, it made the whole enterprise bigger, more sophisticated, and more expensive.

Voluntary contributions grew—but the complexity and costliness of the nation's colleges and universities grew faster.

Endowment funds grew—but the need for the income from them grew faster.

State appropriations grew—but the need grew faster.

Faculty salaries were rising. New courses were needed, due to the unprecedented “knowledge explosion.” More costly apparatus was required, as scientific progress grew more complex. Enrollments burgeoned—and students stayed on for more advanced (and more expensive) training at higher levels.

And, for most of the nation's 2,300 colleges and universities, an old problem remained—and was intensified, as the costs of education rose: gifts, endowment, and government funds continued to go, disproportionately, to a relative handful of institutions. Some 36 per cent of all voluntary contributions, for example, went to just 55 major universities. Some 90 per cent of all endowment funds were owned by fewer than 5 per cent of the institutions. In 1966, the most recent year reported, some 70 per cent of the federal government's funds for higher education went to 100 institutions.

McGeorge Bundy, the president of the Ford Foundation, puts it this way:

“Great gains have been made; the academic profession has reached a wholly new level of economic strength, and the instruments of excellence—the libraries and

Drawings by Peter Hooven

EACH NEW ATTEMPT at a massive solution has left the trustees and presidents just where they started.

—A foundation president laboratories—are stronger than ever. But the university that pauses to look back will quickly fall behind in the endless race to the future.”

Mr. Bundy says further:

“The greatest general problem of higher education is money The multiplying needs of the nation’s colleges and universities force a recognition that each new attempt at a massive solution has left the trustees and presidents just where they started: in very great need.”

THE FINANCIAL PROBLEMS of higher education are unlike those, say, of industry. Colleges and universities do not operate like General Motors. On the contrary, they sell their two primary services—teaching and research—at a loss.

It is safe to say (although details may differ from institution to institution) that the American college or university student pays only a fraction of the cost of his education.

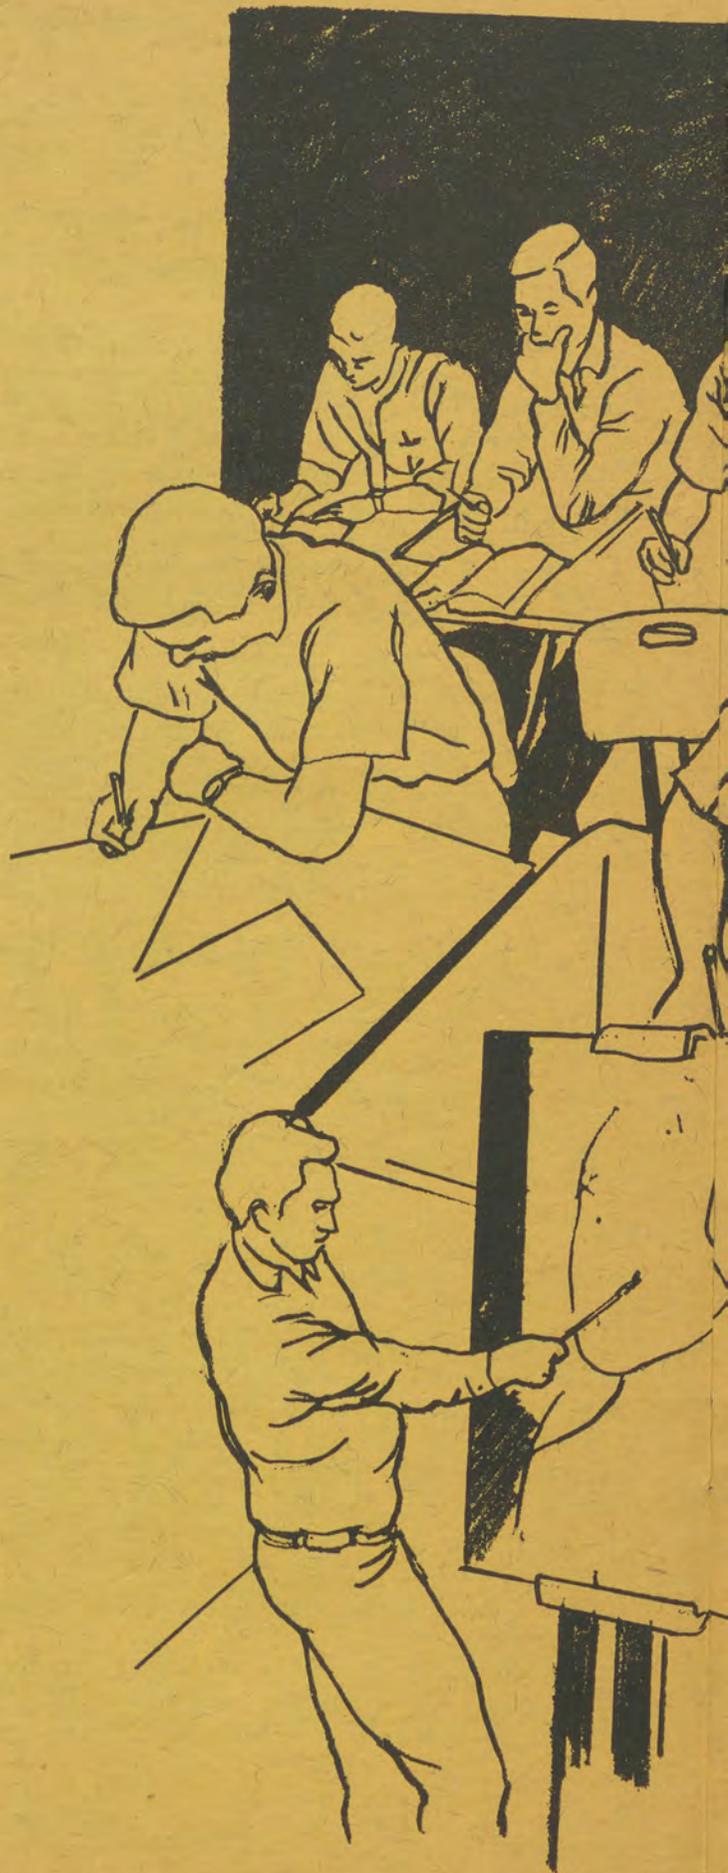

This cost varies with the level of education and with the educational practices of the institution he attends. Undergraduate education, for instance, costs less than graduate education—which in turn may cost less than medical education. And the cost of educating a student in the sciences is greater than in the humanities. Whatever the variations, however, the student’s tuition and fees pay only a portion of the bill.

“As private enterprises,” says one president, “we don’t seem to be doing so well. We lose money every time we take in another student.”

Of course, neither he nor his colleagues on other campuses would have it otherwise. Nor, it seems clear, would most of the American people.

But just as student instruction is provided at a substantial reduction from the actual cost, so is the research that the nation’s universities perform on a vast scale for the federal government. On this particular below-cost service, as contrasted with that involving the provision of education to their students, many colleges and universities are considerably less than enthusiastic.

In brief: The federal government rarely pays the full cost of the research it sponsors. Most of the money goes for direct costs (compensation for faculty time, equipment, computer use, etc.) Some of it goes for indirect costs (such as “overhead” costs of the institution as payroll departments, libraries, etc.). Government policy stipulates that the institutions receiving federal research grants must share in the cost of the research by contributing, in some fashion, a percentage of the total amount of the grant.

University presidents have insisted for many years that the government should pay the full cost of the research it sponsors. Under the present system of cost-sharing, they point out, it actually costs their institutions money to conduct federally sponsored research. This has been one of the most controversial issues in the partnership between higher education and the federal government, and it continues to be so.

In commercial terms, then, colleges and universities sell their products at a loss. If they are to avoid going bankrupt, they must make up—from other sources—the difference between the income they receive for their services and the money they spend to provide them.

With costs spiraling upward, that task becomes ever more formidable.

HERE ARE SOME of the harsh facts: Operating expenditures for higher education more than tripled during the past decade—from about $4 billion in 1956 to $12.7 billion last year. By 1970, if government projections are correct, colleges and universities will be spending over $18 billion for their current operations, plus another $2 billion or $3 billion for capital expansion.

Why such steep increases in expenditures? There are several reasons:

- ▶ Student enrollment is now close to 7 million—twice what it was in 1960.

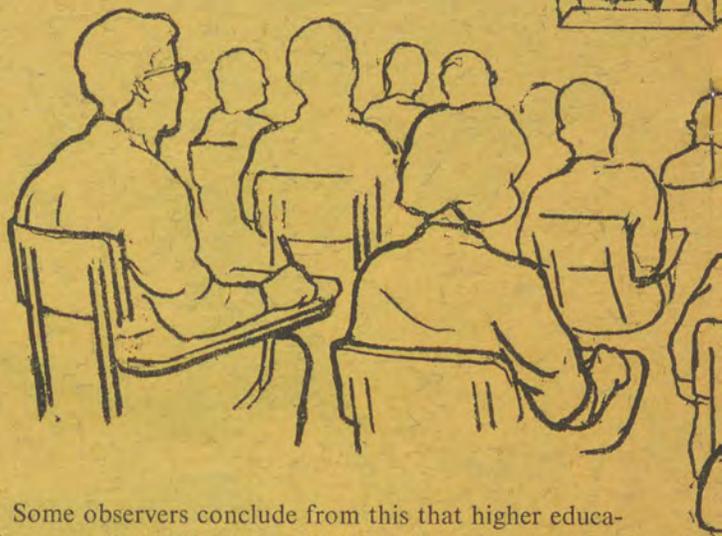

- ▶ The rapid accumulation of new knowledge and a resulting trend toward specialization have led to a broadening of the curricula, a sharp increase in graduate study, a need for sophisticated new equipment, and increased library acquisitions. All are very costly.

- ▶ An unprecedented growth in faculty salaries—long overdue—has raised instructional costs at most institutions. (Faculty salaries account for roughly half of the educational expenses of the average institution of higher learning.)

- ▶ About 20 per cent of the financial “growth” during the past decade is accounted for by inflation.

Not only has the over-all cost of higher education increased markedly, but the cost per student has risen steadily, despite increases in enrollment which might, in any other “industry,” be expected to lower the unit cost.

Colleges and universities apparently have not improved their productivity at the same pace as the economy generally. A recent study of the financial trends in three private universities illustrates this. Between 1905 and 1966, the educational cost per student at the three universities, viewed compositely, increased 20-fold, against an economy-wide increase of three- to four-fold. In each of the three periods of peace, direct costs per student increased about 8 per cent, against a 2 per cent annual increase in the economy-wide index.

Some observers conclude from this that higher education must be made more efficient—that ways must be found to educate more students with fewer faculty and staff members. Some institutions have moved in this direction by adopting a year-round calendar of operations, permitting them to make maximum use of the faculty and physical plant. Instructional devices, programmed learning, closed-circuit television, and other technological systems are being employed to increase productivity and to gain economies through larger classes.

The problem, however, is to increase efficiency without jeopardizing the special character of higher education. Scholars are quick to point out that management techniques and business practices cannot be applied easily to colleges and universities. They observe, for example, that on strict cost-accounting principles, a college could not justify its library. A physics professor, complaining about large classes, remarks: “When you get a hundred kids in a classroom, that’s not education; that’s show business.”

The college and university presidents whom we surveyed in the preparation of this report generally believe their institutions are making every dollar work. There is room for improvement, they acknowledge. But few feel the financial problems of higher education can be significantly reduced through more efficient management.

ONE THING seems fairly certain: The costs of higher education will continue to rise. To meet their projected expenses, colleges and universities will need to increase their annual operating income by more than $4 billion during the four-year period between 1966 and 1970. They must find another $8 billion or $10 billion for capital outlays.

Consider what this might mean for a typical private university. A recent report presented this hypothetical case, based on actual projections of university expenditures and income:

The institution's budget is now in balance. Its educational and general expenditures total $24.5 million a year.

Assume that the university's expenditures per student will continue to grow at the rate of the past ten years—7.5 per cent annually. Assume, too, that the university's enrollment will continue to grow at its rate of the past ten years—3.4 per cent annually. Ten years hence, the institution's educational and general expenses would total $70.7 million.

At best, continues the analysis, tuition payments in the next ten years will grow at a rate of 6 per cent a year; at worst, at a rate of 4 per cent—compared with 9 per cent over the past ten years. Endowment income will grow at a rate of 3.5 to 5 per cent, compared with 7.7 per cent over the past decade. Gifts and grants will grow at a rate of 4.5 to 6 per cent, compared with 6.5 per cent over the past decade.

"If the income from private sources grew at the higher rates projected," says the analysis, "it would increase from $24.5 million to $50.9 million—leaving a deficit of $19.8 million, ten years hence. If its income from private sources grew at the lower rates projected, it would have increased to only $43 million—leaving a shortage of $27.8 million, ten years hence."

In publicly supported colleges and universities, the outlook is no brighter, although the gloom is of a different variety. Says the report of a study by two professors at the University of Wisconsin:

"Public institutions of higher education in the United States are now operating at a quality deficit of more than a billion dollars a year. In addition, despite heavy construction schedules, they have accumulated a major capital lag."

The deficit cited by the Wisconsin professors is a computation of the cost of bringing the public institutions' expenditures per student to a level comparable with that at the private institutions. With the enrollment growth expected by 1975, the professors calculate, the "quality deficit" in public higher education will reach $2.5 billion.

The problem is caused, in large part, by the tremendous enrollment increases in public colleges and universities. The institutions' resources, says the Wisconsin study, "may not prove equal to the task."

Moreover, there are indications that public institutions may be nearing the limit of expansion, unless they receive a massive infusion of new funds. One of every seven public universities rejected qualified applicants from their own states last fall; two of every seven rejected qualified applicants from other states. One of every ten raised admissions standards for in-state students; one in six raised standards for out-of-state students.

WILL THE FUNDS be found to meet the projected cost increases of higher education? Colleges and universities have traditionally received their operating income from three sources: from the students, in the form of tuition and fees; from the state, in the form of legislative appropriations; and from individuals, foundations, and corporations, in the form of gifts. (Money from the federal government for operating expenses is still more of a hope than a reality.)

Can these traditional sources of funds continue to meet the need? The question is much on the minds of the nation's college and university presidents.

► Tuition and fees: They have been rising—and are likely to rise more. A number of private "prestige" institutions have passed the $2,000 mark. Public institutions are under mounting pressure to raise tuition and fees, and their student charges have been rising at a faster rate than those in private institutions.

The problem of student charges is one of the most controversial issues in higher education today. Some feel that the student, as the direct beneficiary of an education, should pay most or all of its real costs. Others disagree emphatically: since society as a whole is the ultimate beneficiary, they argue, every student should have the right to an education, whether he can afford it or not.

The leaders of publicly supported colleges and universities are almost unanimous on this point: that higher tuitions and fees will erode the premise of equal opportunity on which public higher education is based. They would like to see the present trend reversed—toward free, or at least lower-cost, higher education.

TUITION: We are reaching a point of diminishing returns. —A college president

It's like buying a second home. —A parent

Leaders of private institutions find the rising tuitions equally disturbing. Heavily dependent upon the income they receive from students, many such institutions find that raising their tuition is inescapable, as costs rise. Scores of presidents surveyed for this report, however, said that mounting tuition costs are "pricing us out of the market." Said one: "As our tuition rises beyond the reach of a larger and larger segment of the college-age population, we find it more and more difficult to attract our quota of students. We are reaching a point of diminishing returns."

Parents and students also are worried. Said one father who has been financing a college education for three daughters: "It's like buying a second home."

Stanford Professor Roger A. Freeman says it isn't really that bad. In his book, Crisis in College Finance?, he points out that when tuition increases have been adjusted to the shrinking value of the dollar or are related to rising levels of income, the cost to the student actually declined between 1941 and 1961. But this is small consolation to a man with an annual salary of $15,000 and three daughters in college.

Colleges and universities will be under increasing pressure to raise their rates still higher, but if they do, they will run the risk of pricing themselves beyond the means of more and more students. Indeed, the evidence is strong that resistance to high tuition is growing, even in relatively well-to-do families. The College Scholarship Service, an arm of the College Entrance Examination Board, reported recently that some middle- and upper-income parents have been "substituting relatively low-cost institutions" because of the rising prices at some of the nation's colleges and universities.

The presidents of such institutions have nightmares over such trends. One of them, the head of a private college in Minnesota, told us:

"We are so dependent upon tuition for approximately 50 per cent of our operating expenses that if 40 fewer students come in September than we expect, we could have a budgetary deficit this year of $50,000 or more."

► State appropriations: The 50 states have appropriated nearly $4.4 billion for their colleges and universities this year—a figure that includes neither the $1–$2 billion spent by public institutions for capital expansion, nor the appropriations of local governments, which account for about 10 per cent of all public appropriations for the operating expenses of higher education.

The record set by the states is remarkable—one that many observers would have declared impossible, as recently as eight years ago. In those eight years, the states have increased their appropriations for higher education by an incredible 214 per cent.

Can the states sustain this growth in their support of higher education? Will they be willing to do so?

The more pessimistic observers believe that the states can't and won't, without a drastic overhaul in the tax structures on which state financing is based. The most productive tax sources, such observers say, have been pre-empted by the federal government. They also believe that more and more state funds will be used, in the future, to meet increasing demands for other services.

Optimists, on the other hand, are convinced the states are far from reaching the upper limits of their ability to raise revenue. Tax reforms, they say, will enable states to increase their annual budgets sufficiently to meet higher education's needs.

The debate is theoretical. As a staff report to the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations concluded: "The appraisal of a state's fiscal capacity is a political decision [that] it alone can make. It is not a researchable problem."

Ultimately, in short, the decision rests with the taxpayer.

► Voluntary private gifts: Gifts are vital to higher education.

In private colleges and universities, they are part of the lifeblood. Such institutions commonly budget a deficit, and then pray that it will be met by private gifts.

In public institutions, private gifts supplement state appropriations. They provide what is often called "a margin for excellence." Many public institutions use such funds to raise faculty salaries above the levels paid for by the state, and are thus able to compete for top scholars. A number of institutions depend upon private gifts for student facilities that the state does not provide.

Will private giving grow fast enough to meet the growing need? As with state appropriations, opinions vary.

John J. Schwartz, executive director of the American Association of Fund-Raising Counsel, feels there is a great untapped reservoir. At present, for example, only one out of every four alumni and alumnae contributes to higher education. And, while American business corporations gave an estimated $300 million to education in 1965-66, this was only about 0.37 per cent of their net income before taxes. On the average, companies contribute only about 1.10 per cent of net income before taxes to all causes—well below the 5 per cent allowed by the Federal government. Certainly there is room for expansion.

(Colleges and universities are working overtime to tap this reservoir. Mr. Schwartz's association alone lists 117 colleges and universities that are now campaigning to raise a combined total of $4 billion.)

But others are not so certain that expansion in private giving will indeed take place. The 46th annual survey by the John Price Jones Company, a firm of fund-raising counselors, sampled 50 colleges and universities and found a decline in voluntary giving of 8.7 per cent in 12 months. The Council for Financial Aid to Education and the American Alumni Council calculate that voluntary support for higher education in 1965-66 declined by some 1.2 per cent in the same period.

Refining these figures gives them more meaning. The major private universities, for example, received about 36 per cent of the $1.2 billion given to higher education—a decrease from the previous year. Private liberal arts colleges also fell behind: coeducational colleges dropped 10 per cent, men's colleges dropped 16.2 per cent, and women's colleges dropped 12.6 per cent. State institutions, on the other hand, increased their private support by 23.8 per cent.

The record of some cohesive groups of colleges and universities is also revealing. Voluntary support of eight Ivy League institutions declined 27.8 per cent, for a total loss of $61 million. The Seven College Conference, a group of women's colleges, reported a drop of 41 per cent. The Associated Colleges of the Midwest dropped about

ON THE QUESTION OF FEDERAL AID, everybody seems to be running to the same side of the boat.

—A college president

5.5 per cent. The Council of Southern Universities declined 6.2 per cent. Fifty-five major private universities received 7.7 per cent less from gifts.

Four groups gained. The state universities and colleges received 20.5 per cent more in private gifts in 1965-66 than in the previous year. Fourteen technological institutions gained 10.8 per cent. Members of the Great Lakes College Association gained 5.6 per cent. And Western Conference universities, plus the University of Chicago, gained 34.5 per cent. (Within each such group, of course, individual colleges may have gained or lost differently from the group as a whole.)

The biggest drop in voluntary contributions came in foundation grants. Although this may have been due, in part, to the fact that there had been some unusually large grants the previous year, it may also have been a foretaste of things to come. Many of those who observe foundations closely think such grants will be harder and harder for colleges and universities to come by, in years to come.

FEARING that the traditional sources of revenue may not yield the necessary funds, college and university presidents are looking more and more to Washington for the solution to their financial problems.

The president of a large state university in the South, whose views are typical of many, told us: "Increased federal support is essential to the fiscal stability of the colleges and universities of the land. And such aid is a proper federal expenditure."

Most of his colleagues agreed—some reluctantly. Said the president of a college in Iowa: "I don't like it . . . but it may be inevitable." Another remarked: "On the question of federal aid, everybody seems to be running to the same side of the boat."

More federal aid is almost certain to come. The question is, When? And in what form?

Realism compels this answer: In the near future, the federal government is unlikely to provide substantial support for the operating expenses of the country's colleges and universities.

The war in Vietnam is one reason. Painful effects of war-prompted economies have already been felt on the campuses. The effective federal funding of research per faculty member is declining. Construction grants are becoming scarcer. Fellowship programs either have been reduced or have merely held the line.

Indeed, the changes in the flow of federal money to the campuses may be the major event that has brought higher education's financial problems to their present head.

Would things be different in a peacetime economy? Many college and university administrators think so. They already are planning for the day when the Vietnam war ends and when, the thinking goes, huge sums of federal money will be available for higher education. It is no secret that some government officials are operating on the same assumption and are designing new programs of support for higher education, to be put into effect when the war ends.

Others are not so certain the postwar money flow is that inevitable. One of the doubters is Clark Kerr, former president of the University of California and a man with considerable first-hand knowledge of the relationship between higher education and the federal government. Mr. Kerr is inclined to believe that the colleges and universities will have to fight for their place on a national priority list that will be crammed with a number of other pressing COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES are tough. They have survived countless cataclysms and crises, and one way or another they will endure.

—A college president problems: air and water pollution, civil rights, and the plight of the nation's cities, to name but a few.

One thing seems clear: The pattern of federal aid must change dramatically, if it is to help solve the financial problems of U.S. higher education. Directly or indirectly, more federal dollars must be applied to meeting the increasing costs of operating the colleges and universities, even as the government continues its support of students, of building programs, and of research.

IN SEARCHING for a way out of their financial difficulties, colleges and universities face the hazard that their individual interests may conflict. Some form of competition (since the institutions are many and the sources of dollars few) is inevitable and healthy. But one form of competition is potentially dangerous and destructive and, in the view of impartial supporters of all institutions of higher education, must be avoided at all costs.

This is a conflict between private and public colleges and universities.

In simpler times, there was little cause for friction. Public institutions received their funds from the states. Private institutions received their funds from private sources.

No longer. All along the line, and with increasing frequency, both types of institution are seeking both public and private support—often from the same sources:

► The state treasuries: More and more private institutions are suggesting that some form of state aid is not only necessary but appropriate. A number of states have already enacted programs of aid to students attending private institutions. Some 40 per cent of the state appropriation for higher education in Pennsylvania now goes to private institutions.

► The private philanthropists: More and more public institutions are seeking gifts from individuals, foundations, and corporations, to supplement the funds they receive from the state. As noted earlier in this report, their efforts are meeting with growing success.

► The federal government: Both public and private colleges and universities receive funds from Washington. But the different types of institution sometimes disagree on the fundamentals of distributing it.

Should the government help pay the operating costs of colleges and universities by making grants directly to the institutions—perhaps through a formula based on enrollments? The heads of many public institutions are inclined to think so. The heads of many low-enrollment, high-tuition private institutions, by contrast, tend to favor programs that operate indirectly—perhaps by giving enough money to the students themselves, to enable them to pay for an education at whatever institutions they might choose.

Similarly, the strongest opposition to long-term, federally underwritten student-loan plans—some envisioning a payback period extending over most of one's lifetime—comes from public institutions, while some private-college and university leaders find, in such plans, a hope that their institutions might be able to charge "full-cost" tuition rates without barring students whose families can't afford to pay.

In such frictional situations, involving not only billions of dollars but also some very deep-seated convictions about the country's educational philosophy, the chances that destructive conflicts might develop are obviously great. If such conflicts were to grow, they could only sap the energies of all who engage in them.

IF THERE IS INDEED A CRISIS building in American higher education, it is not solely a problem of meeting the minimum needs of our colleges and universities in the years ahead. Nor, for most, is it a question of survive or perish; "colleges and universities are tough," as one president put it; "they have survived countless cataclysms and crises, and one way or another they will endure."

The real crisis will be finding the means of providing the quality, the innovation, the pioneering that the nation needs, if its system of higher education is to meet the demands of the morrow.

Not only must America's colleges and universities serve millions more students in the years ahead; they must also equip these young people to live in a world that is changing with incredible swiftness and complexity. At the same time, they must carry on the basic research on which the nation's scientific and technological advancement rests. And they must be ever-ready to help meet the immediate and long-range needs of society; ever-responsive to society's demands.

At present, the questions outnumber the answers.

► How can the United States make sure that its colleges and universities not only will accomplish the minimum task but will, in the words of one corporate leader,

NOTHING IS MORE IMPORTANT than the critical and knowledgeable interest of our alumni. It cannot possibly be measured in merely financial terms.

—A university president provide “an educational system adequate to enable us to live in the complex environment of this century?”

▶ Do we really want to preserve the diversity of an educational system that has brought the country a strength unknown in any other time or any other place? And, if so, can we?

▶ How can we provide every youth with as much education as he is qualified for?

▶ Can a balance be achieved in the sources of higher education’s support, so that public and private institutions can flourish side by side?

▶ How can federal money best be channeled into our colleges and universities without jeopardizing their independence and without discouraging support either from the state legislatures or from private philanthropy?

The answers will come painfully; there is no panacea. Quick solutions, fashioned in an atmosphere of crisis, are likely to compound the problem. The right answers will emerge only from greater understanding on the part of the country’s citizens, from honest and candid discussion of the problems, and from the cooperation and support of all elements of society.

The president of a state university in the Southwest told us: “Among state universities, nothing is more important than the growing critical and knowledgeable interest of our alumni. That interest leads to general support. It cannot possibly be measured in merely financial terms.”

A private college president said: “The greatest single source of improvement can come from a realization on the part of a broad segment of our population that higher education must have support. Not only will people have to give more, but more will have to give.”

But do people understand? A special study by the Council for Financial Aid to Education found that:

▶ 82 per cent of persons in managerial positions or the professions do not consider American business to be an important source of gift support for colleges and universities.

▶ 59 per cent of persons with incomes of $10,000 or over do not think higher education has financial problems.

▶ 52 per cent of college graduates apparently are not aware that their alma mater has financial problems.

To America’s colleges and universities, these are the most discouraging revelations of all. Unless the American people—especially the college and university alumni—can come alive to the reality of higher education’s impending crisis, then the problems of today will be the disasters of tomorrow.

The report on this and the preceding 15 pages is the product of a cooperative endeavor in which scores of schools, colleges, and universities are taking part. It was prepared under the direction of the group listed below, who form EDITORIAL PROJECTS FOR EDUCATION, a non-profit organization associated with the American Alumni Council.

Naturally, in a report of such length and scope, not all statements necessarily reflect the views of all the persons involved, or of their institutions. Copyright © 1968 by Editorial Projects for Education, Inc. All rights reserved; no part may be reproduced without the express permission of the editors. Printed in U. S. A.

DENTON BEAL
Carnegie-Mellon University

DAVID A. BURR
The University of Oklahoma

MARALYN O. GILLESPIE
Swarthmore College

CHARLES M. HELMKEN
American Alumni Council

GEORGE C. KELLER
Columbia University

JOHN I. MATTILL
Massachusetts Institute of Technology

KEN METZLER
The University of Oregon

RUSSELL OLIN
The University of Colorado

JOHN W. PATON
Wesleyan University

ROBERT M. RHODES
The University of Pennsylvania

STANLEY SAPLIN
New York University

VERNE A. STADTMAN
The University of California

FREDERIC A. STOTT
Phillips Academy, Andover

FRANK J. TATE
The Ohio State University

CHARLES E. WIDMAYER
Dartmouth College

DOROTHY F. WILLIAMS
Simmons College

RONALD A. WOLK
The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education

ELIZABETH BOND WOOD
Sweet Briar College

CHESLEY WORTHINGTON
Brown University

*

CORBIN GWALTNEY
Executive Editor

JOHN A. CROWL
Associate Editor

WILLIAM A. MILLER, JR.
Managing Editor

Some other plain facts are . . .

1. Dickinson has loyal and interested alumni. You have just read under the caption of "Voluntary Private Gifts" that one out of four alumni give financial support. This year the comparable figures for Dickinson will be almost two out of five.
2. Dickinson has a strong faculty and a reputation for academic excellence.
3. Dickinson has an administration which works at today's problems, while working for tomorrow's advances and achievements.
4. Dickinson has for five years been moving forward in the Third Century Development Program which embraces building, endowment, salary and other needs of a dynamic institution.
5. Dickinson leads from strength as our old College approaches the two century mark, but Dickinson has great needs if the objectives of greatness are to be met in the years ahead.

VITAL to a preeminent Dickinson of tomorrow is the alumnus—you. In large measure, The Plain Fact Is that the kind of college Dickinson will be tomorrow will depend upon you who have read this, upon your interest, your loyalty, your volunteered assistance, your support (financial and otherwise), and, yes, your ideas.

The Plain Fact Is—Dickinson counts on you.

Personal Mention

1895

The Rev. JOHN E. McVEIGH, former pastor of Calvary Memorial Methodist Church, Easton, celebrated his 100th birthday on December 8. Rev. McVeigh, who resides in a nursing home in Edgewood, retired from the active ministry in 1938. Members of his family attended a celebration in his honor at the home.

1907

Mrs. Lillian Heffelbower Rohrbaugh, wife of Professor LEWIS GUY ROHRBAUGH who was a former member of the College faculty, died on September 1, 1967. She was the mother of Dr. LEWIS H. ROHRBAUGH, '30, and the grandmother of Mrs. MARY ROHRBAUGH WILT, '56.

1912

Dr. ROSCOE O. BONISTEEL, a trustee of the College, served as the College representative at the inauguration of Robben Wright Fleming as ninth President of the University of Michigan in March.

1915

James F. Fansen, son of FOSTER H. FANSEEN, has been appointed a member of the Federal Maritime Commission. He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and the University of Maryland Law School.

1917

Bishop FRED P. CORSON was honored at a testimonial dinner in Pennsauken, New Jersey on March 9. A Millville minister by birth, Dr. Corson attained success and fame through the years. Bishop of the Philadelphia and New Jersey Methodist Conference, he was elected president of the World Council of Methodist Churches in 1960. Bishop Corson will retire at the session of the Northeastern Jurisdictional Conference at Buckhannon, West Virginia this summer.

1919

E. YATES CATLIN recently retired as Public Information Officer for the Maryland Economic Development Commission. Mr. Catlin was saluted for distinguished service in "gathering together and dispensing with admirable skill the story of Maryland's many industrial and business assets." He lives with his wife at 2522 Naylor Road, Washington, D. C.

ISABEL K. ENDSLOW, of Ardmore, is still teaching part-time at a junior college near Bryn Mawr. She serves as secretary of the Montgomery County Retired Teachers' Association and treasurer of the Ardmore Free Library.

1920

Dr. ALPHEUS THOMAS MASON, noted judicial biographer, will join the faculty of the University of Virginia next fall as the Henry L. and Grace Doherty professor of government and law. Dr. Mason has been a member of the Princeton University faculty since 1935. He has written books on Justices Louis D. Brandeis, Harlan Fiske Stone and William Howard Taft.

Edward C. Bittner, son of Mrs. ALMA LONG BITTNER of Columbia, is Economic Consul at the American Embassy, Ottawa, Canada.

In March, MARTHA M. MORRETTE flew to North Africa where she spent two months observing the remains of Roman civilization along the shores of the Mediterranean. She also visited Sicily and the Dalmatian coast of Yugoslavia. Several months ago she returned from a trip around the world.

1921

Mrs. SARA McCREA JONES recently returned to her home in Newville after a world trip during which time she visited colleges, universities and hospitals in Japan, Nepal and India.

Since retiring in August, 1966, Dr. J. FENTON DAUGHERTY and his wife have been traveling. At the present time, Dr. Daugherty is on a part-time appointment teaching physics at St. Andrews School, Middletown, Delaware.

1923

In October, ELIZABETH M. DeMARIS retired after 23 years as Executive Director of the YWCA of Brooklyn, New York.

In January 1967, ESTHER LEEDS retired after serving more than 20 years as accounting analyst in the Bureau of Employment Security for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. She previously taught school for three years in New Jersey.

1924

CHARLES J. MARKLE and his wife have been teaching at Toccoa Falls Institute since 1959. Their daughter will return to the states in June after completing four years as a missionary in West Irian; their son, Samuel, is a timber estimator in upstate New York, and their son, David is a third year resident at an Atlanta, Georgia hospital.

1925

Captain Edwin E. Smith, son of ANDREW J. SMITH of Union Springs, New York, returned to the states in December following a tour of duty in Vietnam. Capt. Smith is now stationed at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

J. MAHLON SELBY, Esq., of Silver Spring, Maryland, has retired and is really enjoying life and trying to help others less fortunate than he is.

Since his retirement 10 years ago, Rev. NORMAN R. WAGNER has been a substitute teacher in the York Senior and Junior High Schools.

1925

On July 1, 1967, HERBERT F. LAISE of Little Neck, New York, retired after 42 years of teaching in secondary schools in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. Upon his retirement he was a member of the faculty at the South Senior High School, Great Neck, Long Island.

1926

Peter Armacost, son of Dr. GEORGE H. ARMACOST, president of Redlands University, was elected president of Ottawa University, Ottawa, Kansas on August 1.

Major Walter L. McCahan, son of WALTER D. McCAHAN, was killed in Vietnam the latter part of March.

Dr. JOHN W. McKELVEY is the author of a paperback, From Life to Life, which was published in January by Tidings Press for the General Board of Evangelism of the Methodist Church. It has been recommended across the Church as the study book for Lent.

C. FRANCIS SAMPSON, of Springfield, reports that his son Richard is on the faculty of Earlham College and is Director of Museum Programs; Robert is a Major with the Army Engineers now stationed in Korea, and his daughter Margaret is a teacher in the Lancaster schools.

The Honorable ROBERT E. WOODSIDE, a member of the College Board of Trustees, was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention held in Harrisburg in February.

1927

Mrs. HELEN BOWSER BISCOE of Athens, Georgia, represented the College at the inauguration of Frederick Corbet Davison as President of the University of Georgia in May.

On June 17, RUTH EVANS was married to Jacob Sebastian at McSherrystown. The couple now reside at 103 East Avenue, Mt. Carmel 17851.

Her son, Dr. Alvin B. Biscoe, Jr. is Director of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Tennessee.

1928

The Rev. Glenn D. Appleby, son of RUPERT G. APPLEBY, is pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, Troy, New York.

Dr. W. ARTHUR FAUS, associate professor of philosophy at Lycoming College, was granted a one-semester sabbatical leave last year to write and do research at Florida Southern College. He and his wife travelled abroad during April and May, visiting the Scandinavian countries, Germany, Switzerland, France and England.

1929

The Rev. CLARENCE F. JOHNSTON will retire this year from the active ministry after 40 years of service. Rev. Johnston is presently serving the Ridge Avenue Methodist Church in York, where he has been pastor for the past six years. His previous pastorates were at New Bloomfield, Mifflinburg, Jersey Shore, Millhall, Marysville, Espy and Treverton.

Mrs. HESTER CUNNINGHAM BOSS, of Drexel Hill, is a member of the stable of artists of the Foschman Weiner Gallery in Philadelphia. For the seventh year she has been invited to participate in the Philadelphia Women in Fine Arts exhibit at Moore College of Art. Mrs. Boss has had two one man shows at the Shipley School and Immaculata College, and recently exhibited in a Color Print Show at Trenton Museum.

The Rev. PAUL A. FRIEDRICH will represent the Southern New Jersey Conference at the Jurisdictional Conference in Buckhannon, West Virginia this summer.

The Rev. W. DONALD WHETSEL, of Grove City, is superintendent of the Grove City District of the Western Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Church.

1930

In January, JAMES E. NOLEN retired with more than 27 years combined Federal service. At the time of his retirement, he was Chief of the Instrument Overhaul Section of the Directorate of Procurement and Production at Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma.

SAMUEL W. WITWER, President of the College Board of Trustees, has been named general counsel of the Illinois Committee for a Constitutional Convention. He is a member of the Illinois Constitutional Study Commission.

1931

JOHN M. HOERNER, a member of the Board of Trustees, served as the College representative at the inauguration of Dr. Hugh M. Gloster as President of Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia in February.

Dr. and Mrs. HOWARD L. RUBENDALL attended the Charter Day ceremonies at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Virginia, in February. Dr. Rubendall represented the College at the celebration of the 275th anniversary of William and Mary. In April, Dr. Rubendall attended the inauguration of Martha Peterson as President of Barnard College, New York City and the inauguration of Paul Russell Anderson as President of Temple University in May.

Last June, FLORENCE R. BAHN was awarded an MFA degree in printmaking at the Maryland Institute College of Art. Miss Bahr resides in Elkridge, Maryland.

Donald S. Himes, Jr., son of Col. D. S. HIMES, was married to Rendall L. Meissner. Both Mr. and Mrs. Himes are students at the University of Hawaii.

1933

Dr. J. DONALD WOODRUFF is Professor of Gynecology and Obstetrics and Associate Professor of Pathology at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. His oldest son is teaching history at St. James School, where he is also coaching. His second son is attending Johns Hopkins University after service in Vietnam, and his third son is "intransit" educationally.

1934

Paul D. Mangan, son of PAUL A. MANGAN of Hyattsville, Maryland, graduated from Mt. St. Mary's College in June and is now teaching English at the Frederick Douglas High School, Upper Marlboro, Maryland.

Professor BENJAMIN D. JAMES represented the College at the inauguration of Pauline Tompkins as President of Cedar Crest College in May.

1935

Mrs. ELAINE STRADLING CHAMBERLAIN, of Oakland, California, was appointed chairman of the Foreign Language Department for the Piedmont Junior High School. She has served as chairman for a workshop to organize the Spanish and French curricula for grades 5 through 9.

Dr. JOHN A. McELROY, who has served as pastor of Calvary Church, East Orange, New Jersey since 1959, has been named superintendent of the Western District of the Northern Conference effective in June. Dr. McElroy is the author of Living With the Seven Words, a book of daily meditations based on the words Jesus spoke from the cross. He is a trustee of Drew University, the Methodist Hospital of Brooklyn and East Orange General Hospital; and served as a delegate to the Northeast Jurisdiction Conference in 1964. He and his wife live with their three daughters in East Orange, New Jersey.

1936

On January 1, LEONARD R. BLUMBERG became a partner of the newly formed law firm of Blumberg, Rosenberg, Mullen and Blackman. One of the partners is WILLIAM B. ROSENBERG, '35. Mr. Blumberg is a past president of the Bar Association and the Board of Education.

On February 1, Dr. PAUL V. KIEHL was appointed associate chief of surgery at St. Luke's Hospital, Bethlehem. Dr. Kiehl had been chief surgeon at Brooke General Hospital, Houston, Texas, and upon his new assignment retired from 25 years active duty as a U. S. Army career doctor. He had been deputy commander and director of medical education at Brooke General. At St. Luke's he will be responsible for the supervision of the St. Luke's teaching curriculum for interns and residents in the Department of Surgery. His private practice will be limited to consultations on cases referred to him by other members of the surgical staff. He is a member of the Frederick A. Collier Surgical Society and was named a diplomate on the American Board of Surgery and Fellow on the American College of Surgeons.

JOHN W. CLARK was promoted from vice president to senior vice president of the Rust Engineering Company, a division of Litton Industries. Mr. Clark

Yates Catlin, '19

Paul V. Kiehl, '36

John W. Clark, '36

began his career with Rust in 1942 and worked on a variety of field construction projects, later becoming purchasing agent and then assistant secretary. He was elected vice president in 1960.

Mrs. MARION McKINNEY RANSOM is a consultant in physical therapy for the Berkeley County, West Virginia Visiting Nurse Association and also works as a physical therapist at the Martinsburg Veterans Center. She and her husband live at 100 Kent Terrace, Martinsburg, West Virginia 25401.

1937

David Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Snyder (MARY JANE BOSWELL), a graduate of Swarthmore and Princeton Theological Seminary, is minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Clarks Summit. Their son Donald, an alumnus of Moravian College, is credit manager for Sherwin Williams, Easton. Eric, their third son, is a member of the freshman class. Mr. Snyder is director of Public Works in Bethlehem.

Dr. MILTON B. ASBELL, of Camden, New Jersey, was elected a Fellow of the American College of Dentists.

In January, ROBERT McK. GLASS, Sunbury attorney, was elected the 1968 president of the Northumberland County Bar Association.

In February, JOHN P. GRAHAM was promoted to Professor of English by Dr. D. FREDRICK WERTZ, President of Lycoming College. Mr. Graham joined the Lycoming faculty in 1939 and serves as the College Marshal and secretary of the faculty.

HAROLD E. HENCH, of Glenshaw, was awarded his doctorate at Ohio State University in August. His twin sons will graduate from College in June: Richard from Dickinson and Thomas from Franklin and Marshall.

HAROLD E. MILLER, attorney of Hollidaysburg, was appointed to the National Panel of Arbitrators of the American Arbitration Association in February. A graduate of the Dickinson School of Law, Mr. Miller has been practicing in Blair County since 1941.

C. WILLIAM GILCHRIST, attorney of Cumberland, Maryland, served as a delegate to the Maryland Constitutional Convention, at which time a new constitution was drafted for the state.

1938

JOHN S. HECKLES, manager of a chemistry research unit at Armstrong Cork Company, helped prepare a technical paper which was presented at the Third Middle Atlantic Regional Meeting of the American Chemical Society in February.

CLARENCE B. HENDRICKSON is specializing in advanced underwriting as associate manager of the Equitable Life Assurance Society in Harrisburg.

1939

JOSEPH SANSONE, of Lebanon, has been reelected to the presidency of the Lebanon County Trust Company for the sixth year. Married to the former ARBELYN WILDER, '40, the Sansones are the parents of four daughters, four granddaughters and a grandson, who was born in January.

Mrs. EUGENIA LEARNED JAMES, of St. Louis, Missouri, is the author of The Learned Family in America; 1930-1967.

W. GIBBS McKENNEY, a member of the College Board of Trustees, served as the representative of the College at the inauguration of Marvin Banks Perry, Jr., as president of Goucher College in May.

SAUL LAZOVIK, of Rome, New York, received the 1967 Boss of the Year Award by the Copper City Chapter of the National Secretaries Association. At the same time he was also selected Outstanding Civic Leader of America. His son Dennis is a graduate of Utica College and is teaching in the Strough Junior High School. His son Jeffrey is a sophomore at St. Lawrence University.

1940

On July 1, Dr. and Mrs. GEORGE H. JONES (GRACE DEMPWOLFF), of Danville, will take up a new residence at 6030 Cameldale Way, Scottsdale, Arizona 85251.

1941

Mrs. MARGARET BURT BURTNER is teaching kindergarten at the American School in Japan. Asij is an international school and the children represent Korea, Japan, as well as the U. S. She is also taking a University of Maryland graduate school course. The Burtners plan to return to the States late this year.

Harris Peel, husband of MARGARET BACKUS PEEL, is in Saigon for 18 months as Information Officer for the U. S. Information Agency. Mrs. Peel and their three children are living in Danby, Vermont.

1942

Captain Richard Spohn, son of Mrs. WANDA NULL SPOHN, is in the U. S. Marine Corps as a helicopter pilot in Vietnam. Mrs. Spohn's daughter, Marjorie, is a member of the New York City Ballet Company. Lonnie Epstein, son of Dr. EZRA EPSTEIN, of Stamford, Connecticut, is spending his junior year at St. Andrew's University in Scotland. Lonnie is a member of the junior class.

The name of Robert Parker Colburn, son of E. PARKER COLBORN was omitted from the Class of 1970 in the Spring 1967 issue of the Alumnus.

RICHARD E. DERR was recently promoted and transferred to Ashland Chemical Company's headquarters in Columbus, Ohio. His new assignment is Marketing Manager of Specialty Resins, Resins and Plastics Division of Ashland Chemical, which is a division of Ashland Oil and Refining Company.

1943

JAMES M. McELFISH, attorney of Pittsburgh, was named president of the Columbia Hospital Board of Directors in November. He has served as the vice president of the board for three years, having been a member for seven years. In March he served as the representative of the College at the inauguration of Wesley Wentz Posvar as Chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. JOHN B. HARLEY, hematologist and assistant professor of medicine at West Virginia University, was a lecturer at a seminar on cancer at St. Joseph's Hospital in December.

1944

Gary Greenblatt, son of NEWTON GREENBLATT, of Vineland, New Jersey, is a member of the freshman class.

Dr. GEORGE S. HEWITT, pastor of Union Methodist Church, Brookline, was awarded the Silver Beaver Award by the Valley Forge Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Dr. Hewitt is a member of the National Council and has been active in the Philmont and National Scouting Jamborees. In 1965, he was awarded the George Washington Medal from the Freedoms Foundation.

1945

Robert C. Shaw, husband of MARY LU WEST SHAW, was named senior vice president of Leon Gordon Miller and Associates, Inc., a Cleveland industrial design and space planning company. The Shaws live at 6389 Alderwood Road, Parma Heights, Ohio 44130.

HARRY J. McDEVITT, JR., a member of the NBC-TV news staff, became director of public affairs for the California State Colleges in February. He will direct and coordinate the overall public affairs program for the 19-campus California State College system. Mr. McDevitt lives with his wife and three children at 1150 Orton Avenue, Pacific Palisades, California.

Dr. BARBARA BENNETT GABEL was appointed Associate Professor of English at the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, California in July. She is the only woman on the faculty of 175 and the first civilian woman ever given faculty status.

WILLIAM MOYLE is a Status Social Worker with the Dauphin County Child Care Service and is also a part-time instructor of two courses in Social Service at Messiah College. His wife, the former JANE HARTZELL, is completing work at Shippensburg for her baccalaureate degree. The Moyles live at R. D. #2, Carlisle.

1946

Emil A. Tiboni, husband of JOAN THATCHER TIBONI,

William F. Borda, '48

W. Frank Crist, '50

Bruce Rehr, '50

George W. Heffner, '51

died on October 18 after 10 weeks in the hospital with reticulum cell sarcoma. Mr. Tiboni was a member of the faculty of the School of Public Health at the University of Michigan. In addition to his wife, he is survived by seven children; their oldest son George is a member of the senior class.

The Rev. RICHARD H. L. VANAMAN was appointed to a two-year term as a member of the Diocesan Board of Examining Chaplains at the 141st Annual Diocesan Council meeting in Vicksburg, Mississippi in January.

1947

Dr. E. L. GRANDON, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, served as the representative of the College at the inauguration of Samuel Enoch Stumpf as president of Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa, in May.

1948

The Rev. WESLEY G. BROGAN was honored in January by the board of education of the North Carolina Methodist annual conference. Mr. Brogan was cited for his work in establishing camping programs for elementary church youth, for pioneering work in Christian education for the mentally retarded and work in leadership training. For the past nine years he has worked as director of the conference's board of education.

The Rev. EDGAR C. HERSH, of Spokane, Washington, served as the representative of the College at the inauguration of Glenn Terrell as President of Washington State University in March.

Rev. NEAL D. BACHMAN is a member of the Philadelphia Conference Television, Radio and Film Commission. His special interest is in the use of Audio-Visual Aids in Christian Education. He and his wife, the former HELEN ALEXANDER, '46, live with their two children, Kathy and Read, at 75 Rolling Lane, Levittown 19055.

In June, Dr. SAMUEL J. FRIEDBERG will leave Duke University Medical Center to become Professor of Medicine and Chief of the Section of Endocrinology at the new University of Texas School of Medicine at San Antonio.

On March 1, WILLIAM F. BORDA was promoted to Merchandise Manager, Hosiery and Intimate Apparel, of the Wyoming Corporation, Textile Divisions. Prior to joining the Wyoming Corporation in 1959, he was assistant general manager of the Rosedale Knitting Company and a representative for the Plains Throwing Company. He lives with his wife and two children in Laureldale.

In November, Dr. EDWARD G. BRAME, JR., of Wilmington, Delaware, served as chairman of the Eastern Analytical Symposium in New York City. "Applied Spectroscopy Reviews," a journal which Dr. Brame edits, was published for the first time in September. The second issue will be published in March. He will preside over an NMR session at the American Chemical Society meeting to be held in San Francisco later in the year and has been invited to speak at the Analytical Chemistry Gordon Conference in New Hampshire, at which time he will speak on "Nuclear Quadruple Resonance Spectros."

1949

WALTER S. NORTON, JR. has been named a district manager of the Industrial Division of Nalco Chemical Company's Chicago District. Joining the company in 1956, he was formerly a salesman for Anchor Hocking Glass Corporation.

RICHARD H. SEARER has become a partner in the Getz and Searer Funeral Home. He had been associated with the Graham and Getz Funeral Home since 1951, and upon Mr. Graham's retirement formed the new partnership. Mr. Searer is a graduate of the Pittsburgh Institute of Mortuary Science. He lives with his wife and three children at 217 West 10th Street, Tyrone.

GARDNER MILLER, who received his LL.B. from Rutgers University, was elected Secretary of the Montclair and West Essex Bar Association of New Jersey. Mr. Miller is a lecturer at Rutgers University Institute for Continuing Legal Education and a teacher at the Montclair Adult School.

1950

In February, W. FRANK CRIST was appointed assistant director of development at Lafayette College. For 15 years he was traffic manager with WGAL-TV in Lancaster before becoming assistant director of adult and men's work with the Board of Christian Education of the Evangelical United Brethren Church. He lives with his wife and three daughters at 630 Parson Street, Easton.

The Rev. EDWIN S. GAULT attended a college work conference in Berlin and Paris in January. In June he will complete his second term as Founding President of the Ecumenical Foundation for Higher Education in Metropolitan New York.

Dr. ANDREW C. LYNCH is an orthopedic surgeon in Medford, Oregon. He lives with his wife and four daughters at 308 Windsor Avenue.

WILLIAM F. MARTSON and RICHARD C. SNELBAKER, '55, have announced the formation of a partnership for the general practice of law under the firm name of Martson and Snelbaker, with offices in Carlisle and Mechanicsburg.

Mrs. JANET ELDER FLANDREAU, who has been teaching the past two years in Athens, West Virginia, will enter Rutgers University this summer as a graduate student in French.

In February, BRUCE R. REHR was elected chairman of the board of Penn Square Mutual Fund. Mr. Rehr is also an officer of the Penn Square Management Corp., which has been named investment adviser to the fund. From 1957 to December 1967, he was director of A. G. Spalding and Bros., Inc., sporting goods firm.

Dr. PAUL S. SNOKE is chairman of the Department of Anesthesia at Saginaw, Michigan Osteopathic Hospital. At the present time, he has two residents in anesthesia training under him.

1951

The Rev. STACY D. MYERS, JR., of Jenkintown, was elected a life member of the Phi Beta Society of the Philadelphia Annual Conference of the Methodist Church. This society, limited to 27 pastors and professors, was founded in 1907 to encourage intellectual pursuits, particularly in religious matters.

Richard G. Trub, '52

In January, Schuylkill County greeted its first new judge in 20 years when Attorney GEORGE W. HEFFNER of Pottsville took the oath of office for a 10 year term. Two other Dickinsonian judges attended the ceremonies—Federal Judge E. MAC TROUTMAN, '34, and President Judge of the Orphan's Court, GUY A. BOWE, '40.

Mrs. MARY ANN SPENCE ALTMAN, of Lancaster, is a principal partner in the firm of Daniel J. Canton and Company, management consultants specializing in the economics of legal practice. The firm, which has tripled in size in the past six years, serves as a nation-wide market, and recently opened a San Francisco Based West Coast office.

1952

Dr. CONRAD N. TRUMBORE, a member of the faculty at the University of Delaware, is on a year's sabbatical leave on an N.I.H. Special Fellowship at the Institute of Cancer Research, Sutton, Surrey, England, doing research on radiation chemistry and biochemistry.

In December, RICHARD G. TRUB was appointed an assistant vice president of the marketing department of Bankers Trust Company, New York. Mr. Trub joined Bankers in 1953 and was appointed an assistant treasurer in 1963.

Mr. and Mrs. WILLIAM S. LEWIS (ADELAIDE HOUCK, '54), of St. Clair, Michigan, announced the birth of their third child, Lark Ann, on May 15, 1967. The Lewis' two other children are William 7, and Susan, 4.

WILLIAM HOSTETTER, of Red Bank, New Jersey, opened the first Ming process automobile treatment shop east of the Mississippi in March. The Ming process is a treatment for the cleaning and protection of auto paint and was developed 37 years ago by a Denver chemist and has been used widely in the West and Canada. The business operates under the name Monmouth Ming.

Dr. RICHARD J. PATTERSON, Harrisburg orthopedic surgeon, has been appointed as lecturer in anatomy at The Pennsylvania State University College of Medicine at The Milton S. Hershey Medical Center, Hershey. Dr. Patterson was certified as a diplomate of the American Board of Orthopedic Surgery in 1966 and is a member of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgery and the American College of Surgeons.

WILLIAM E. HOEY has become a partner in the law firm of Stein and Winters with offices in the Frick Building, Pittsburgh.

The Rev. KERMIT L. LLOYD, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Bloomsburg, was elected president of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches in February. As the head of the General Assembly, he will serve for the 1968-69 Biennium.

RICHARD L. HAUCK, who became personnel director at The Geisinger Medical Center in July 1966, has been promoted to assistant administrative director. Prior to joining the Medical Center, Mr. Hauck has 14 years experience in personnel work with large multi-plant corporations. He lives with his wife and two children at R. D. #1, Northumberland.

For the past 33 months, Lt. Col. DONALD L. SNYDER has served as Chief, Professional Services and Obstetrics-Gynecology at Bassett Army Hospital in Fairbanks, Alaska. In July, he plans to start a two year post-doctoral Fellowship in Gynecological Endocrinology at the University of Michigan Medical Center, which will be sponsored by the Army.

1953

Mrs. George J. Kelly, Jr. (BETTY McCARTHY) served as the representative of the College at the inauguration of Paul Francis Green as president of Stetson University, DeLand, Florida, in January.

DAVID SILVER, JR. is now Director of the New York office of Weaver Associates, tax consultants.

GRETCHEN ALBRIGHT and Jack Sherman, an alumnus of Shippensburg State College, were married in Temple Beth El, Harrisburg, on December 24. Mr. Sherman is director of athletics at William Penn High School, Harrisburg. The Shermans now reside at 3294-B Wakefield Road, Harrisburg 17109.

PAUL L. NEGLEY of Mechanicsburg, has been appointed Constable of Upper Allen Township to finish out the present term.

1954

WALTER F. COOK is teaching American History in the Coatesville Area Senior High School, where he is also department head for social studies. He is serving as president of the Coatesville Area Teachers Association and in 1969 will become president of the Chester County Coordinating Council of the PSEA.

In June, Dr. RONALD L. MCGOWAN will complete his fellowship in internal medicine at the Mayo Foundation. He has accepted a traineeship in cardiology at Duke University.

Dr. HOWARD J. KLINE has been drafted in the U. S. Army Medical Corps at Valley Forge General Hospital as the cardiologist. In February, he read a paper at the American College of Cardiology Convention in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Keiser (MARY ANN MYERS) of Langhorne, announced the birth of their second set of twins, Mary Ann and Margaret Ann, on September 19. The first set of twin girls, Kimberly Ann and Beth Ann, were born December 20, 1965.

Dr. WILLIAM J. DUIKER, III, assistant professor of history at the Pennsylvania State University, has been chosen for a summer stipend by the National Endowment for the Humanities, an arm of the National foundation on the Arts and the Humanities. He will begin a study of the life and influence of Phan Boi Chau, 1868-1940, one of the two or three most prominent non-Communist Vietnamese nationalists of the period. Dr. Duiker is a specialist in Far East history.

On April 15, ROYCE W. SNYDER, JR. was transferred from his assignment with the American Embassy in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, to the American Embassy in Saigon. His new address is American Embassy, APO, San Francisco 96243.

Richard L. Hauck, '52

Dr. GLENN JACOBY was recently made chief of General Surgery at St. Peter's General Hospital (a 490 bed institution), New Brunswick, New Jersey. He lives with his wife, CAROLYN BLOCKMAN, '55, and four children at R. D. #1, Middlebrook Road, Bound Brook, New Jersey 08805.

1955

Major CLAIRE A. PINNEY, USMC, has been selected for listing in the 1967 edition of Outstanding Young Women of America. Guidelines for selection for the book include "unselfish service to others, charitable activities, community service, professional excellence, business advancement and civic and professional recognition." Her new address is, USMC Disbursing Office, MCAS Iwakuni, FPO, San Francisco 96664.

Dr. WILLIAM H. KLOMPUS served as the representative of the College at the inauguration of Wallace B. Graves as president of the University of Evansville, Evansville, Indiana in February.

RICHARD M. GREENE is a merchandise manager with Bamberger's in Newark, New Jersey. He lives with his wife and three daughters at 24 Nantes Road, Parsippany, New Jersey.

Major PAUL F. BOLAM recently returned from a second tour of duty in South Vietnam. He is presently serving as Chief of the Armaments and Munitions Test Branch, U. S. Army Aviation Test Board, Ft. Rucker, Alabama. He resides at 10 Kirby Street with his wife and two stepsons.

Dr. PHILIP POWELL has opened offices at 400 Northern Boulevard, Chinchilla, for the practice of general medicine and surgery. A graduate of Jefferson Medical College, he served his internship and a four-year residency at Bryn Mawr Hospital. An Army veteran, Dr. Powell is a member of the American Medical Association, the Lackawanna County Medical Association and St. David's Society. He lives with his wife and two sons at 204 Ridge Avenue, Clarks Summit.

Mr. and Mrs. CODY H. BROOKS (ELIZABETH BAIRD, '56), of Clarks Summit, announced the birth of their second child, Douglas Cody, on August 7.

The Rev. SAMUEL A. HUFFARD was installed as pastor of the East Stroudsburg United Presbyterian Church on February 18. A graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary, Mr. Huffard served as pastor of Bellevue Presbyterian Church, Gap, for the past 10 years. The Huffards with their four children now reside at 271 Prospect Street, East Stroudsburg.

In September, ROBERT L. VARANO will become principal of Roosevelt High School, Mt. Carmel Area Schools, Mt. Carmel. He is presently Federal Project Director of Mt. Carmel School District and also serves as a Guidance Director.

1956

Mr. and Mrs. FREDERICK H. SPECHT (MARY STUART GADD, '57) announced the birth of their fourth child, Barbara Jane on May 29. Fred joined the Carlisle Corporation as Director of Information Services in November. The Spechts have moved to 135 Conway Street, Carlisle.

Dr. and Mrs. Courtney W. Brown (INGRID REINHOLD) announced the birth of their third child, Trevor, on December 21. The family now resides in Orlando, Florida, where Dr. Brown is the orthopedic surgeon at the Orlando Air Force Base.

Since recovering from a near fatal auto accident in December 1966, Dr. K. RICHARD KNOBLAUCH is teaching prosthetic dentistry at Temple University Dental School. He plans to attend Drexel in the fall for a master's degree in biomedical engineering. He lives with his wife and three daughters at 1224 Yardley Road, Morrisville.

George F. Koehler, husband of ELISE HOWLAND KOEHLER, is assistant chief geologist for Cominco-American, as well as in charge of exploration in the Northwest. The Koehlers live in their new home at S. 3821 Ridgeview Drive, Spokane, Washington 99206.

1957

Dr. ROBERT L. SIMONS is stationed in the Army at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, where he is in charge of Otolaryngology Service.

In July, C. RICHARD PARKINS transferred from the Civil Service Commission to the Office for Civil Rights, Department of Health, Education and Welfare. He has visited Southern school districts in conjunction with the department's school desegregation program. Dick functions as a civil rights educational advisor and training specialist.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sender (BARBARA SKLAW), of Millburn, New Jersey, announced the birth of a son, Alexander, on June 4. He joins Stuart, 6½, and Laura Beth, 5.

In December, RONALD M. ZEITZEFF was honored at Girard Trust Bank for outstanding work in the field of personal financial planning. This special recognition was given to him for developing more than $20 million in new trust business over a 12-month period. A graduate of Temple University School of Law, Mr. Zeitzeff has been with Girard since 1965.

GEORGE H. THOMPSON has become a partner in the law firm of Hirsch, Weise and Tillman with offices at 912 Frick Building, Pittsburgh.

Since August, FRENCH D. MACKES has been in charge of the Annapolis office of the Maryland Department of Parole and Probation. His wife, the former CAROLYN GOURLEY, '59, is a part-time social worker at the Knox Day Care Center in Baltimore. The couple reside at 529 Newfield Road, Glen Burnie, with their two sons.

Dr. JAN N. SAFER is serving as radiologist with the SS HOPE in Ceylon. His tour will end in August.

Dr. and Mrs. PAUL KOVNAT announced the birth of their second son, Daniel Aaron, on February 19. Paul is Chief of the Renal Section, Department of Medicine, Philadelphia Veterans Hospital.

The Rev. and Mrs. HARRY A. LEDGARD, of Baltimore, Maryland, announced the birth of a daughter, Christina Renee, on August 25.

In September, Major WILLIAM R. WATERMAN returned from Stuttgart, Germany. He was assigned as Division Transportation Officer to the 101st Airborne Division in Vietnam. He is presently in Bien Hoa, where he recently saw Major HILLEL SCHWARTZ, '56, who is also serving his second tour of duty in South Vietnam.

Ronald M. Zeitzeff, '57

William E. Rogers, '58

1958

Mr. and Mrs. ROBERT M. BRASLER, of Philadelphia, announced the birth of a son, Brett, on October 12.

WILLIAM E. ROGERS, assistant professor of biology at Lycoming College, has been granted a leave of absence for the next academic year to accept a Science-Faculty Fellowship by the National Science Foundation. The fellowship carries a twelve month tenure, and will enable him to complete his graduate work in zoology for the Ph.D. degree at the University of Minnesota next year. His wife, DOROTHY GAYNER, '60 and two children will accompany him to Minnesota.

Mrs. CAROL SMITH WANDRES of 115 Murdock Road, Baltimore, Maryland, is teaching English in the Baltimore City Public Schools.

Dr. and Mrs. G. EDWARD KIENZLE, of Dresher, announced the birth of their third son. Dr. Kienzle will complete a pediatric residency in June and will enter pediatric practice in Paoli.

In September, Dr. RICHARD SHANAMAN opened his private practice of periodontia at 1719 Penn Avenue, Wyomissing Hills 19609. He is also teaching Clinical Periodontia at Temple University Dental School two days a week. He lives with his wife, the former JOANNE TOTMAN, '59, and their three sons at 1525 Cleveland Avenue, Wyomissing 19610.

Colonel EDWARD L. LINDSEY is Director of the Adult Education Division, Sunnyside School District and head of the Language Arts Department in Tucson, Arizona.

Dr. JOHN L. FREHN will represent the College at the inauguration of Samuel E. Braden as President of Illinois State University in May. Dr. Frehn is a member of the faculty.

CHARLES F. SHAFFERT, a member of the faculty at Castleton State College, served as the representative of the College at the inauguration of Peter H.

Armocost as President of Ottawa University, Ottawa, Kansas in April.

EDWARD F. GARDNER was awarded a fellowship in physics by Bryn Mawr Graduate School.

1959

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Weaver, Jr. (JANE READER), of Allentown, announced the birth of their third daughter, Julie McKean, on March 30, 1967.

Mr. and Mrs. RICHARD R. BLOCK, of Philadelphia, announced the birth of a son, Jeffrey Benjamin, on September 28.

JOHN R. STAFFORD has been promoted to the position of group attorney with Hoffmann LaRoche Inc. A graduate of George Washington University Law School, Mr. Stafford served four years with Steptoe and Johnson before joining Hoffmann LaRoche as an attorney in 1966. He lives with his wife and three daughters at 18 Cyprus Avenue, North Caldwell, New Jersey.

Dr. ROBERT M. DAVIS is chief resident in surgery at the York Hospital. In July, he will enter a two year tour of duty with the Navy.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of JOHN H. POTTS to Kathleen S. Kier, an alumna of Wilson College. John is engaged in the practice of law, with offices at 1700 Girard Trust Building, Philadelphia, and in 1967 was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States. Miss Kier teaches in the Lower Merion Township public school system.

JOHN J. BARRANGER, JR. and Mary M. Weil, an alumna of the University of Michigan School of Music, were married on December 23 in the Southminster Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh. Mr. Barranger is a teacher of English in the East Lansing High School, Michigan, where the couple now resides.

F. L. PATTON GILMOUR, of Loudonville, New York, spent the month of February vacationing in London and Vienna.

In December, ANGELO SKARLATOS was named assistant director of the Dauphin County Legal Services Association. While in law school, Mr. Skarlatos was a clerk to

Angelo Skarlatos, '59

John R. Stafford, '59

Judge CLINTON R. WEIDNER, '37. In his new position, he will set up the machinery to provide legal aid to the poor and "coordinate the activities of neighborhood centers." He is married to the former JOYCE E. FORNEY, '57. The couple with their two children recently moved to 110 Garland Drive, Carlisle.

ROBERT SHAPELY was the topic speaker at the U. S. Lacrosse Association meeting held in Philadelphia in January. Mr. Shapely is the Guidance Counsellor at the Haverford Junior High School in Haver-town.

PAUL F. LINDENMUTH has been appointed commercial lines superintendent at Royal-Globe Insurance Companies, Baltimore office. He became an underwriter trainee in 1961 and was advanced to supervising underwriter in 1961.

GORDON B. MOWRER has been elected president of the Lehigh Mental Health Association, Bethlehem. He and his wife recently spent two weeks in Hawaii.

JONATHAN B. KULP and Carol Nobinger, of Binghamton, New York, were married on April 5.

DONALD M. LOCKWOOD was elected assistant treasurer of Fairfield County Savings Bank, Norwalk, Connecticut in January. A graduate of the Connecticut School of Savings Banking, he has been a member of the bank staff since 1958.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Dr. LIONEL GLASS to Sophia W. Brouwer, who attended Loeffler's School of Physical Therapy, Amsterdam, Holland. Dr. Glass, an alumnus of the University of Amsterdam School of Medicine, is a resident at Temple University Hospital.

LEONARD A. WOOD, JR., assistant director of admissions for Simpson College in the Chicago area, served as the representative of the College at the inauguration of Rhoten A. Smith, as President of Northern Illinois University in May.

R. SCOTT CLEMENTS will receive his master's degree in economics from Trinity College in June. He lives with his wife and two daughters at 77 Tobey Avenue, Windsor, Connecticut 06095.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael B. Schoettle (MARCIA DORNIN), of Noroton, Connecticut, announced the birth of a son, Timothy White, on September 24.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lohr, Jr. (TINA VEDDER), with their two children, moved to 199 Split Rock Road, Syosset, Long Island, New York 11791, where Mr. Lohr is now market manager of IBM in Garden City.

ARTHUR B. DUEL, III recently became associated with Stephen Pierson in a newly formed law firm with offices at 5 Brook Street, Darien, Connecticut. For the past three years, Mr. Duel had been with the firm of Durey and Pierson.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of JOHN M. SCARBOROUGH to Margaret G. Holloway, an alumna of the University of Delaware and a graduate student at the University of North Carolina. Mr. Scarborough is a graduate of the University of Maryland School of Law.

Mr. and Mrs. G. KIRK PUSEY (VIRGINIA FROST, '62), of Norristown, announced the birth of their first child, Anne Elizabeth, on December 8.

ROBERT D. CHARLES joined the staff of Edward C. Michener Associates, Harrisburg, as manager of its market research division. Prior to joining this firm, he was manager of marketing research for C. H. Masland and Sons, Carlisle.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Straughn (BARBARASUE LOVEJOY), of Middletown, New Jersey, announced the birth of their second child and first son, Jeffrey Lovejoy, on November 16, 1966.

RONALD M. NADITCH is engaged in the private practice of law in Annapolis, Maryland. He is serving as part-time senior assistant states attorney for Anne Arundel County.

1960

Mr. and Mrs. ROBERT L. PENCE, of Elmhurst, New York, announced the birth of a son, Eric Charles, on July 23.

Mr. and Mrs. ROBERT W. BARNSHAW, of Wheaton, Illinois, announced the birth of a daughter, Amy Barbara, on October 26.

Mr. and Mrs. WILLIAM B. WHICHARD (NANCY MORAN, '59), of Silver Spring, Maryland, announced the birth of a son, Brian Thomas, on January 14. William is working for IBM as an administrative specialist.

THOMAS B. PRICE, JR., of Lakewood, Ohio, represented the College at the inauguration of Robert Warren Morse as the first president of Case Western Reserve University in April. Tom is a technical representative with the Fisher Scientific Company.

DOROTHY E. HENWOOD was awarded a master of science degree in education from Siena College, Loudonville, New York in June. She is presently teaching in Van Corlaer Junior High School in Schenectady.

Dr. and Mrs. MICHAEL J. FEINSTEIN, of Selfridge Air Force Base, Michigan, announced the birth of their second daughter in September. Dr. Feinstein will complete his Air Force tour in July and will then begin a residency in urology at the University of Rochester Medical Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bottge (MERLE TEGTMEIER), of St. Paul, Minnesota, announced the birth of their second child, Paul Edward, on February 21. Mr. Bottge is a mining engineer with the Mineral Resources Office of the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

Mr. and Mrs. CASPER P. BOEHM, JR., of Sayreville, New Jersey, announced the birth of their second daughter, Susan Valerie, on February 15. Mr. Boehm has been appointed legal counsel to the 1968 New Jersey football classic when the New York Giants meet the Philadelphia Eagles at Palmer Stadium in Princeton.

DONALD W. ROBERTS was recently promoted to personnel placement counselor with IBM in the Poughkeepsie, New York Systems Development Division.

Mrs. ELIZABETH ST. CLAIRE RUTH was married to Deborne Piggot in July. The couple now live at 4616 Asbury Place, Washington, D. C. 20016.

In July, Dr. W. ROWLAND LEEDY will complete his residency in internal medicine at the York Hospital.

CHARLES L. HAEUSSLER, executive director of the Lebanon County Planning and Zoning Commission for the past six years, has been named to a position with the brokerage firm of McDonnell and Company, Philadelphia.

Captain ROBERT T. WILSON is serving with the Armed Forces in Nurnberg, Germany. His address is 547th General Dispensary, APO, New York 09114.

Mr. and Mrs. PETER M. THOMPSON (JANE BIDWELL, '62), of Wilmington, Delaware, announce the adoption of Melanie Jane on June 13. Melanie was born on April 28.

Mr. and Mrs. GARY E. LAWTON recently moved into their new home at 112 Rockingham Road, Cherry Hill, New Jersey 08034.

GEORGE F. GARDNER, III, a partner in the Dover law firm of Vaughn and Gardner, was appointed an assistant city solicitor for Wilmington in December.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of WILLIAM MacKINLAY ZIMMERMAN, 2d, to Mrs. Susan Benson Schwarzkopf.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Beiler, Jr. (AMY MUNCASTER), of Pittsburgh, announced the birth of their first child, John W. Beiler, III, on August 30.

Mr. and Mrs. DELBERT T. KIRK, JR., of Brookhaven, announced the birth of a son, James Douglas, on September 16.

Mr. and Mrs. JAMES W. PHILLIPS, JR. (ELIZABETH ROYCE, '63), of Westfield, Massachusetts, announced the birth of a daughter in November.

ROGER E. MILLER is administrative assistant of the Medical Education and Professional Services at the York Hospital. During 1966-67 he served a hospital residency at Northwestern Hospital in Minneapolis, Minnesota and was awarded a master's degree in Hospital Administration.

1961

Mr. and Mrs. WATSON M. LOHMANN, of Pitman, New Jersey, announced the birth of their third child and first daughter, Kimberly Lynn, on May 13.

NANCY JEAN NEWELL was awarded a masters degree in secondary education from Temple University in September. This summer she took a trip to Acapulco and Mexico City.

Mr. and Mrs. BRUCE L. SMITH, of Titusville, announced the birth of their first child, Vaughan Michael, on August 17. Bruce, since being released from the Army in April, is in the practice of law.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of BARRY R. WICKERSHAM to Patricia M. Kennedy, an alumna of American University. Barry is employed by the Defense Intelligence Agency and his fiancee is employed by Ford Motor Company in Washington, D. C. A May wedding is planned.

ALLEN W. JAEGER and Sandra J. Glooschenko were married on November 25 in Corpus Christi Church, Piedmont, California. The couple now reside in San Francisco.

On April 1, Mr. and Mrs. PETER R. ANDREWS (SANDRA CURRIER, '64) moved into a new home at 2530 Oak Knoll Lane, R. D. #8, York 17402. Sandy is working as a reference librarian at the Martin Memorial Library and Pete is associated with the law firm of Laucks and Monroe.

Mr. and Mrs. GEORGE L. WHITWELL, of Norristown, announced the birth of their second son, Kenneth, on March 1.

On February 12, MICHAEL J. HERMANN was reassigned to the Presentation and Incentive Sales Department and promoted to the position of Marketing Manager of Hamilton Watch Company in Lancaster.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of WAYNE H. CLAEREN to Judith L. O'Dea, of Pittsburgh. Miss O'Dea is a performer in professional theater, radio and television. Mr. Claeren was awarded a graduate degree from the University of Pittsburgh. A May wedding is planned.

In November, DAVID COMLY was promoted to the rank of Captain. In May, he and his wife announced the birth of their first child, Peter. The couple live at 12-B Faulk Drive, Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas 76311.

In mid-February, DOUGLAS A. VILLEPIQUE was reassigned as assistant manager to the Asuncion, Paraguay First National City Bank. He spent three years in Brazil with the bank. He and his wife, the former CAROL JEAN WEIANT '62, with their two sons moved to Casilla de Correo 1174, Asuncion, Paraguay.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert F. Barnes (VIRGINIA MILLER), of Wilmington, Delaware, announced the birth of their second child, Catherine Elizabeth.

ROBERT V. CARTON, JR. completed his second tour of duty in Southeast Asia in October. He is now employed by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc., Santa Ana, California. He lives with his wife and daughter at 1432 Garland Avenue, Tustin, California 92680.

Dr. and Mrs. KENNETH J. BARBER, JR. announced the birth of their third son, David, in July. Dr. Barber is chief psychologist at the Northeast Mental Health Clinic in Philadelphia. The Barbers recently moved to Huntingdon Valley.

Dr. and Mrs. ROBERT E. MANIS are living at Koersensstraat, 2 E, Ghent, Belgium. Bob is completing his third year in the Medical Faculty of the Rijksuniversiteit te Gent. His wife is an executive assistant with Deering-Milliken, Inc. in Ghent.

1962

The Rev. O. ALLEN LUMPKIN was married to Shirley Ann Brant, a graduate nurse, on March 2 in the Chambersburg Methodist Church. Rev. Lumpkin is the new pastor of the Mifflinburg Methodist Church, Mifflinburg.

Mrs. Gretchen Dingee, wife of JOHN DINGEE, JR., escorted the New York City Summer Festival Queen around the U. S. in February, presenting each Mayor a letter and gift in behalf of Mayor John Lindsay.

Captain H. KENNETH JACKIER is serving with the U. S. Army and stationed at Camp Carroll in South Korea in charge of the dental clinic for the compound.

Twice previously decorated for meritorious and heroic actions while a combat officer in Vietnam, Captain EDWARD A. SALTER received his third major award recently at Ft. Benning, Georgia.

A Bronze Star Medal with a second Oak Leaf Cluster and a V device for heroism in operations against a hostile force was presented to Captain Salter. While in Vietnam, he was a member of the 173rd Airborne Brigade.

WILLIAM C. CLARKE, III joined the office of General Counsel, Pan American World Airways, Inc., New York City. He is engaged in civil aeronautics board practice, contracts and aviation claims.

Since completing his internship at Mary Hitchcock Memorial Hospital in 1967, Dr. DONALD S. COLVILLE is serving a tour of duty with the Navy, stationed in Long Beach, California.

Mr. and Mrs. James DeWire (ROBERTA ARMSTRONG), of Hughesville, announced the birth of their second daughter, Kathryn Elaine, on November 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent S. Guarrera (PATRICIA CARDINALI), of Fulton, New York, announced the birth of their first child, Carolyn Marie, on October 18. Mr. Guarrera is traffic manager at the Nestle Company.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of GAY D. WELLS to William M. Baumgartner, Jr., an alumnus of Wesleyan University. Miss Wells is teaching in the Moorestown, New Jersey Senior High School. Her fiance, a graduate of the University of Paris at the Sorbonne and the University of Pennsylvania School of Law, is associated with the law firm of Bleakly, Stockwell and Zink, Moorestown. A spring wedding is planned.

RICHARD M. COUZENS, of Overbrook Park, has been appointed attorney in the law department of the Reading Company. A graduate of the Georgetown University Law Center, Mr. Couzens will work in the area of regulatory law.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of BARRY L. FISHER to Irene Shonberg, an alumna of the College for Women of the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. Fisher is associated with the law firm of Davidow and Sherman in Bridgeton, New Jersey. His fiancee is employed by Manufacturer's Hanover Trust Company in the investment review department. A spring wedding is planned.

MARGERY A. KEPNER is an editorial assistant in the English Department of the University of Washington in Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. BRYSON GOSS (LINDA BRYAN) recently moved to 174 Sudbury Street, Marlboro, Massachusetts 01752.

Mr. and Mrs. DURBIN WAGNER, of Tamaqua, announced the birth of a son, Samuel Durbin, on October 6. Durb is head coach of baseball at Tamaqua Area High School.

Captain HOWARD E. KALLIS, III, who completed his active tour of duty with the Army in March, was awarded the first oak leaf cluster to the Army Commendation Medal. He has resumed his law practice in Pottstown.

Captain WILLIAM D. BITLER and Rachel Saffer, an alumna of Mary Washington College, were married in June. Bill is presently stationed at Pennsylvania State University doing graduate work in nuclear physics. The couple reside at 200 Highland Avenue, Apt. 512, State College 16801.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Reilly (CAROL LAWRENCE), of Pennsville, New Jersey, announced the birth of twin daughters, Diane and Karen, on February 1.

WILLIAM WEITZEL, president of the Unidentified Flying Object Research Institute of Pittsburgh, was the featured speaker for the Fort Venango Chapter of the National Secretaries Association, Boss Night in February. Mr. Weitzel is an instructor in philosophy at Bradford Campus of the University of Pittsburgh.

Captain COLIN P. KELLY, III is attending the Philadelphia Divinity School under the Chaplains' Excess Leave Program and will subsequently transfer from the Armored Branch to the Chaplains Branch in the U. S. Army. He lives with his wife (MARY COOPER) and two children at 501 Green Street, Haddon Heights, New Jersey 08035.

Dr. and Mrs. JAY ALAN DENBO announced the birth of a son, Seth Jeremy, on March 11. Captain Denbo is stationed at Wurtsmith Air Force Base, Oscoda, Michigan.

For the next four months, Captain and Mrs. William F.

Hoadley (CAROL JONES) will reside in Montgomery, Alabama where Capt. Hoadley is attending Squadron Officers School. Carol, while living in Texas, was an instructor in French at Howard County Junior College.

Since returning from Inchon, Korea, where he served as a Captain in the Military Police Corps and Provost Marshall of Inchon, JAMES W. PATTERSON has resumed his practice of law with Morgan, Lewis and Bockius, 123 South Broad Street, Philadelphia.

Lt. and Mrs. JAMES V. SNYDER (ANN SMITH, '65) announced the birth of a daughter, Catherine Ann, last July. Dr. Snyder is presently stationed at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, in the department of anesthesia.

Captain and Mrs. CHARLES B. SMITH announced the birth of their second daughter, Leigh Landis, on February 27. Capt. Smith, a member of the Judge Advocate General Corps, recently completed a two year assignment at Brooks Army Medical Center, San Antonio, Texas and is now stationed at Valley Forge General Hospital, Phoenixville.

Dr. and Mrs. JOHN W. BAKER, II (SUSAN EARL, '64) are living at 726 Revere Street, Aurora, Colorado 80010. Dr. Baker is currently serving as chief of Clinical Psychology Service, Fitzsimmons General Hospital, Denver.

1963

Mr. and Mrs. JOHN R. McCLELLAND (JEAN WEL-LER), of West Chester, announced the birth of their first child, John Douglas, on February 9.

WILLIAM K. SCHANTZEN-
BACH will receive his MBA from the Wharton School of Finance, University of Pennsylvania in June, when he will begin work with Arthur Young and Company as a management consultant in New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. CHARLES R. McCRACKEN (SUSAN SCHMIDT) announced the birth of a son, Charles Reed, Jr., in July. Last April, Chuck was released from active duty with the Navy and is now attending Boston University, School of Theology. They live at 79 Weston Avenue, Holbrook, Massachusetts 02343.

JON STEEN was promoted to Captain in August while on a TDY tour in Southeast Asia. He is now stationed at K. I. Sawyer Air Force Base, Michigan.

Captain RICHARD I. BUR-
STEIN and Frances Nashner, an alumna of Boston University were married September 23. Dick is stationed with the Army Procurement Agency in Vietnam, where he has met these Dickinsonians: Capt. JEROME JOHN, '63; Capt. KEITH PHILLIPS, '63; Lt. DAVE TORREY, '64, and Lt. PHILIP MANN, '64.

Dr. RONALD T. E. RIZZOLO began a first year pediatric residency at the Harrisburg Hospital.

JOSEPH H. NEWBY is a PFC in the U. S. Army and stationed at the Army Training Center at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Leight (JUDITH TOMLINSON), of Woodbridge, Virginia, announced the birth of a daughter, Wendy Michele, on September 5.

RICHARD STEEL is stationed with Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, 2d Inf. Div. in Korea.

Captain and Mrs. ROBERT L. KNUPP announced the birth of a daughter, Kristen Paula, on December 23. Bob is with the Judge Advocate General's Office in the Pentagon.

JOHN C. HENDRICKS, MSC, Personnel Staff Officer in the Army Surgeon's Directorate of Personnel and Training, was promoted to the rank of Captain in March.

JUDITH A. MONETA and C. W. Larue Dillon, an alumnus of Lafayette College, were married on March 16 in St. Christopher's Church, Gladwyne. Judy is a job analyst in the Personnel Division of the Fidelity Bank. The couple now reside at 454 Booth Circle, Haverford 19041.

Lt. PAUL H. OSTIEN, JR. is serving at the 15th Naval District, Canal Zone as Assistant Staff Judge Advocate. He and his wife live at Fort Amador, Box 404, 15th Naval District, Canal Zone.

Mr. and Mrs. RICHARD M. WARDEN (BARBARA GREER) announced the birth of a son, Douglas, born on January 19. They recently moved to 5750 Amaya Drive, LaMesa, California 92041. Dick is employed by General Electric.

JO-ANNE L. DeMONTE and Thomas E. Sabin, a student at New Haven College, were married on December 2 in St. Thomas The Apostle Church, West Hartford, Connecticut. The couple now reside in Meriden, Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. LESTER A. CREPS (CAROLE CROMPTON, '64), of Cincinnati, Ohio, announced the birth of their first child, Cynthia Lynne, on August 27.

Mr. and Mrs. DAVID CHAP-
IN (SUSAN PASTORE), of Allentown, announced the birth of a daughter, Kelly Anne, on July 25, 1967.

Captain RICHARD A. REEDER was awarded the U. S. Air Force Outstanding Supply Officer Certificate at Dyess AFB, Texas. He was selected for his outstanding proficiency in fulfilling supply responsibilities.

ALBERT G. MILLER was made an officer of the First National City Bank, Guayaquil, Ecuador in October. His wife, PAMELA SEARLES, '65, is secretary of the American Society of Guayaquil and vice president of the American-British Club for Women. At the end of the year they expect to be transferred to Lima, Peru.

In January, Mr. and Mrs. RICHARD M. YOUNG (CAROL LINDSTROM) and their 2½ year old daughter moved to the Pittsburgh area where Dick is working for Chubb and Sons as a surety bondsman. Their new address is 3616 Ashland Drive, Bethel Park.

Dr. RICHARD B. KEOHANE was graduated from Jefferson Medical School in June. He is serving an internship at Pennsylvania Hospital and in June will take a residency in radiology at Jefferson Medical College Hospital.

ANNE HARVEY and Joaquin Mustienes, an alumnus of the University of Madrid, were married on December 23. Anne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. FREDERICK K. HARVEY, '35 (MILDRED CHASE, '36). The couple now reside at 305 West 18th Street, Apt. 6-H, New York City 10011.

Be a Life Member

Next December we will publish a new list of Life Members. If your name was missing from the 1967 roster, you can insure it appearing in 1968 by a full payment of $50.00 or a first installment of $12.50. Checks should be made payable to The Dickinson Alumnus and sent to the

Alumni Secretary
Dickinson College
Carlisle, Pennsylvania

Life Membership dues are placed in the Lemuel T. Appold Life Membership Fund and income from this fund is used to help finance The Alumnus and other operations of the Alumni Office.

Dr. and Mrs. CHARLES I. WAGNER (EMILY ZILINSKY), of Melrose Park, announced the birth of a son, Andrew Jay, on January 20.

JEFFREY A. MONACHINO, of Pittsburgh, has been appointed director of services for the Chicago division of The Tuition Plan, the nation's pioneering firm in the installment financing of education. Jeff joined The Tuition Plan in 1964 and previously was regional representative in Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Dr. DAVID G. DRENNON to Kathryn A. Brown, an alumna of Pennsylvania State University. Dr. Drennon is presently serving with the U. S. Navy as a dentist stationed at MCB, Camp Pendleton, California. Miss Brown is on the faculty of Rose Tree Media School District. A summer wedding is planned.

Rev. and Mrs. Laurence C. Maud (ANN DeTUERK) are living in Chester, where Ann is teaching English at Nether Providence High School and her husband is pursuing graduate work at the Marriage Counseling Clinic of the University of Pennsylvania.

NICHOLAS A. VOLPICELLI and NANCY STEINBECK, '65 were married on August 12. The couple now resides at 211 Lansdowne Avenue, Wayne 19087.

Dr. and Mrs. DAVID J. ESKIN, of Bronx, New York, announced the birth of a son, Mark Richard, on February 21.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of MICHAEL S. COLLINS to Carole S. Lange, of San Diego, California. Mike is employed by Univac in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. JOSEPH K. ANDREWS (BARBARA STUNT), of Syracuse, New York, announced the birth of their second son, Brian Joseph, on April 7, 1967.

JOHN C. HUMPHREY, of Pittsburgh, has been elected to membership in Phi Sigma Society, Iota Beta Chapter, at Duquesne University. Phi Sigma is an academic honorary society devoted to the promotion of research in the biological sciences.

John is a graduate student and research assistant.

Mr. and Mrs. KEITH B. COOPER (HILMA FORSBERG, '64), of Glenside, announced the birth of a son, Eric, on October 19. Hilma received her MLS from Drexel Institute in June.

LOUIS J. VERDELLI will receive his doctor of optometry degree in June from the Pennsylvania College of Optometry. Following graduation he will begin an orientation course with the U. S. Army at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas.

DAVID A. BRAUNER, Esq. is a member of Reginald Heber Smith Community Lawyer Fellowship Program, which is sponsored by the Office of Economic Opportunity and the University of Pennsylvania Law School, practicing with Mobilization for Youth on the lower East Side of New York City.

1964

HERBERT J. ORENSTEIN is an M.A. candidate in the Faculty of Arts, Monasn University, Melbourne, Australia.

RICHARD H. GUCKERT was married to Ann G. Jenkins, an alumna of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, on September 9. The couple now reside at 924 West Pensacola Street, Apt. A-22, Tallahassee, Florida 32304.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of ROBERT D. JEFFERSON to Judith A. Sauter. A fall wedding is planned.

Captain H. WILLIAM WHITE is serving on the Staff of the Judge Advocate in Vietnam. A graduate of the University of Pittsburgh Law School, his tour of duty will end in January 1969. His wife and son are residing in Chicago. Bill's address is Staff Judge Advocate, USAECU (PROV), Engineer Command, APO San Francisco 96491.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Lt. BRUCE KEINER, JR., to Sue Ellen Terrill, an alumna of Bryn Mawr College. Prior to entering the service, Bruce was associated with the law firm of Reavis, Pogue, Neal and Rose in Washington, D. C. He is presently stationed at McCord Air Force Base, Tacoma, Washington. Miss Terrill, who studied at the Sorbonne and the Institut des Etudes Politiques in Paris, is attending Georgetown University Law Center and is employed as a research analyst at the Department of Justice.

In January, 1/Lt. FRED R. KLUNK was awarded the Army Commendation Medal while serving with the 4th Infantry Division near Pleiku, Vietnam.

RICHARD D. SCHWARZ, who was released from active duty in July after serving as a platoon leader of Truck Company in Vietnam, is now pursuing a master's degree in business administration at the University of Chicago. Dick was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service.

NORMAN FARRELL, JR. is attending graduate school at Colorado State University, where he is working towards a master's degree in ecology.

PETER M. PORTMANN is a salesman for AMP, Inc. He and his family reside at 3701 East 67th Terrace, N. E., Kansas City, Missouri 64119.

Mr. and Mrs. JOHN D. SHAVER, JR. (PATRICIA HITCHENS), of Newburgh, New York, announced the birth of their second child, Kristin Paige, on August 28. Danny is the employment manager for the IBM Poughkeepsie Manufacturing Plant.

Following graduation from the University of Maryland School of Medicine in June, M. M. RIDDLESBERGER, JR. will serve an internship at the Kaiser Foundation Hospital, Oakland, California.

EUGENE K. BETTS and Martha Shields, a graduate nurse, were married on September 2 in Bedford, Virginia. Eugene will graduate from Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Wake Forest University in June and will begin an internship in surgery at North Carolina Baptist Hospital in July. His wife is an anesthetist at North Carolina Baptist. The couple reside at 2315 Cloverdale Avenue, Apt. A., Winston Salem, North Carolina 27103.

MILLARD M. RIGGS was named sales representative in northern California, Oregon and Washington for the Celanese Resins Division of Celanese Coatings Company. The Riggs, with their two children will make their home in Concord, California.

Jeffrey A. Monachino, '63

Millard M. Riggs, '64

Announcement has been made of the engagement of WILLIAM M. SMITH to Donna M. Nichols. Bill is a member of the faculty of Haddonfield Memorial High School. A December wedding is planned.

ALAN R. MARKIZON, who graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in May, was admitted to the Bar of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in January. Since September he has been an attorney with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission.

A. RONALD STISCIA was ordained at St. John's Episcopal Church, Carlisle, on December 27. He is presently a deacon and curate at St. James Church, Rutherford, New Jersey.

Mr. and Mrs. ROBERT E. SCHLUSSER, of Harrisburg, announced the birth of a son, Adam Robert, on November 21.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of GEORGE COHEN to Virginia A. Hayman, an alumna of Smith College. George will graduate in June from the State University of New York at Buffalo School of Medicine. Miss Hayman is associated with Hallmark Gallery.

ERIC J. GROVES and Cathy T. Callahan, an alumna of Oklahoma University, were married on February 2 in the First Unitarian Church, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. John is presently attending Oklahoma University Law School.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of LINDA DiPASQUALE and Robert D. Nye, an alumnus of Georgetown University, on April 27 in St. Paul's Church, East Longmeadow, Massachusetts. Linda is teaching French and English at the John F. Kennedy Junior High School in Springfield, Massachusetts and her husband is teaching French at Wilbraham Academy, Wilbraham.

1965

FREDERICK H. ETHERINGTON, JR. is administrative chief of the hospital clinics at Fort Carson, Colorado. This involved setting up a centralized appointment system for all clinics. His wife is presently working at the YMCA as a program director. Their address is 900 Saturn Drive, Colorado Springs, Colorado 80906.

MICHAEL P. HEAVENER was promoted in January to a Captain. He is stationed in Vietnam where he is assigned as personnel officer in Headquarters 21st Signal Group near Nha Trang.

HELEN E. KORAN was awarded a master of science degree at the December Commencement at Pennsylvania State University, where she is now working on a doctorate in zoology.

JOHN H. NICHOLS and Nancy Falor were married on December 16 in the First Unitarian Church, Chicago, Illinois. The couple now reside at 5455 South Blackstone Avenue, Chicago 60615.

GORDON ALEXANDER COLE and Ruth A. Books, an alumna of Gettysburg College, were married on November 18 in the Church of the Redeemer, Springfield. Both the bride and groom are employed by the Girard Trust Bank. The couple now reside in Drexel Hill.

Dr. and Mrs. William M. Green (MURIEL FRIEDMAN) are living at 2088 Broderick Street, San Francisco, California 94115. Muriel is teaching fourth grade in Belmont and her husband is interning at Mt. Zion Hospital. They plan to return to the east in June.

In March, ANGELO G. ROMEO was promoted to a Captain in the U. S. Army. The end of May he will leave for a tour of duty in Vietnam. He lives with his wife and three sons in Newfield, New Jersey.

In January, BARRY J. KEFAUVER was awarded a master's degree in business administration with distinction from American University. He is presently on the staff of the National Labor Relations Board in Washington, D. C.

On September 3, NANCY CUSTER was married to Rick N. Parsons, a graduate of the U. S. Air Force Academy. The couple now reside at 11519 Platten Road, Lyndonville, New York 14098.

LAWRENCE E. SNYDER and Lynn E. Lewis, a senior at Immaculata College, were married on January 27 in St. Mary's Church, Plainfield, New Jersey.

Larry is a public accountant with Lybrand, Ross Bros. and Montgomery in Philadelphia. The couple reside at the William Henry Apartments, Malvern.

RONALD M. FRIEDMAN was awarded a master's degree in agricultural economics from Pennsylvania State University.

Mr. and Mrs. Darryl F. Shaffer (MARCIA MacPHERSON), of Norristown, announced the birth of their first child, Rolf Christian, on January 9.

Captain ROBERT L. MUMPER is serving as Logistics/Fiscal Officer with Headquarters and Service Battalion, Marine Corp Recruit Depot, Parris Island, South Carolina.

GLENN C. LIMBAUGH, JR. is stationed at White Sands Missile Range, New Mexico with the U. S. Army as a chaplains' assistant. Upon his return to civilian life, Glenn will enter a Methodist seminary to study for the Christian ministry and a master of theology degree.

LESLIE D. LEONG is attending the Bernard Baruch School of Business and Public Administration in New York City.

MARGARET F. STRONG is completing requirements for the elementary education certificate at the University of Arizona.

Last summer, IDA JANE SIA attended Middlebury Spanish School. She is presently teaching reading and Spanish in Lebanon.

Since returning from Vietnam last August, THOMAS S. HANSELL is the Company Commander of a training company at Ft. Lewis, Washington. His wife, the former KATHRYNE CRUMB, received a master of education degree from Goucher College in June. The Hansells plan to return to the East this summer.

1/Lt. RUSSEL G. PERKINS recently returned to the states from a 21-month tour of duty with the 2nd Infantry Division in Korea. He received the Army commendation medal for his outstanding performance as S-2, S-3 of the 1st Battalion, 12th Artillery.

In February, DAVID D. McCULLOUGH, JR. was promoted to the rank of Captain. His new address is OF114461, H.H.C. 3rd Bn. 33rd ARMOR, Ayers, Kaserne, APO, New York 09039.

In October, GORDON C. GRISWOLD was awarded a master's degree in chemistry from Lehigh University. He is now in Naval OCS in Newport, Rhode Island.

1966

ARTUR XAVIER LAMBO VILANCULOS and SARAH JANE KIERNAN, '68, were married on February 10 in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, where they now reside. Artur, who took post graduate work at Fordham University, is serving as radio program co-ordinator for the external service of Radio Tanzania.

JOHN EULER and MARY JANE LONG were married on August 19 and now reside at 5995 Springhill Drive #303, Greenbelt, Maryland 20770. John is in his second year at Georgetown Law School and Mary Jane is teaching English in Montgomery County, Maryland.

On March 1, 1/Lt. THOMAS NEWBY was assigned to Rocky Mountain Arsenal, Denver, Colorado, with the Technical Escort Unit.

Mrs. DORIS DETWEILER ORMSBY is an instructor in Classics at Douglass College, Rutgers University.

Ensign RICHARD G. WOLF, JR. is serving with a fighter squadron, VF-211, NAS, Miramar, California, as an Air Intelligence Officer.

Ensign ROBERT T. MONTAGUE, JR. is serving with the Seventh Fleet in the Gulf of Tonkin off the coast of North Vietnam aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Chicago (CG-11), as a Signal Officer and Tactical Communicator. He is engaged to ELEANOR F. WEINEL, who is production manager of the Playwright's Workshop in Seattle, Washington. An early summer wedding is planned.

1/Lt. JOHN LERCH is serving with the Quartermaster Corps in Vietnam.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of DONALD R. CHARLES, JR. to Jane Ellen Parks, a member of the senior class. Don is attending the Duquesne University School of Law. A June wedding is planned.

In January, announcement was made of the engagement of JOHN A. ALOGNA to Winifred A. Gillett, a junior at George Washington University. John is taking graduate work at Temple University. They plan a June wedding.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of RICHARD D. WEIGEL to Leslie A. Davis, a student at Connecticut College for Women. Dick is taking graduate work at the University of Delaware. A June wedding is planned.

In December, Lt. RICHARD F. JONES assumed command of the 543rd Engineer Company in Karlsruhe, Germany. The purpose of this company is to construct and rehabilitate pipeline systems. Dick plans to be discharged in July, returning to the states in August or September.

GEORGE HONADLE is serving with the Peace Corps in Malawi, Central Africa.

JOHN W. THOMAS has taken a year's leave of absence from Union Theological Seminary and is now teaching at the Wittwyck School for Boys, where he is also serving as chaplain for emotionally disturbed boys from New York City. His wife is teaching at Public School 54 in Harlem. The couple now reside at 100 Caryl Avenue, Yonkers, New York.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of JANET S. WOLFE to Norman J. Lange, Jr., an alumnus of the University of Maryland.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of BARBARA L. NOVOTNY to Charles Dudley, a graduate of Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and is now attending Baltimore Junior College. A fall wedding is planned.

WILLIAM T. MECOUCH, III and DIANE E. SCOTT, '67, were married on December 23 in the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary Chapel. William is a second year student at the Seminary and Diane is teaching in the Pittsburgh Schools. The couple now resides in Pittsburgh.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of DIERDRE McCUEN to Eric P. Evans, a member of the senior class. Dierdre is presently employed as an administrative assistant in the Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. A June wedding is planned.

WALTER D. HAWKINS, JR. is serving with the U. S. Army in South Vietnam.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of JAMES G. AARON to Madlyn S. Lorber, a student at Syracuse University. Jim is a second year student at New York University School of Law.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of HENRY A. LEWIS to Eve S. Lerner, an alumna of Ohio State University. Henry is a student at the University of Maryland School of Medicine. His fiancée is employed by the Welfare Department of Baltimore, Maryland. A summer wedding is planned.

KENNETH A. BERGSTRESSER and NANCY BROWN, '67, were married on August 26 in the Broad Street Methodist Church, Drexel Hill. Ken is planning to continue graduate studies in mathematics at the University of Rochester this summer. During the summer, Nancy will co-direct a YWCA Day Camp for the Rochester area. Their address is Box 5201, River Campus Station, Rochester 14627.

JOHN P. DERRICKSON is working with the Peace Corps in an experimental "Tuberculosis Control" program in Bolivia. He is living and working with 600 miners and their families in the tin mine "Chojlla," located near La Paz. His address is c/p Peace Corps, U. S. Embassy, La Paz, Bolivia.

RALPH W. SHARER and

Mary Ellen Gaunt, an alumna of the University of Delaware, were married on January 27 in Covenant Methodist Church, Springfield. Bill is serving as a lieutenant in the Air Force. His wife is attending graduate school at Drexel Institute.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of ROBERT G. MELTZER to Mae B. Hultin, an alumna of Swarthmore College. Both Bob and his fiancée are students at Hahnemann Medical College. They plan an August wedding.

JOHN T. RICHARDS was awarded a masters degree in English from Case Western Reserve University.

MARY L. NELSON is working for the U. S. Office of Education as a program assistant in the National Defense Foreign Language Fellowship Program. She and BARBARA OSTROWSKI, who is working for her master's at Georgetown, share an apartment at 2030 North Adams Street, #1206, Arlington, Virginia 22201.

PETER G. STANLEY has been named assistant cashier in the commercial banking division at Central-Penn National Bank, Philadelphia.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of CHERYL S. KACHELRIESS to DANIEL L. REGER, '67. Cheryl is a physical therapist at Muhlenberg Hospital. Daniel is a candidate for his doctorate in chemistry from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Richard F. Jones, '66

1967

Announcement has been made of the engagement of CHRISTOPHER R. ADAMS to Karen Andrews, a member of the senior class. A former sales trainee of Humble Oil and Refining Company, Christopher began a tour of duty with the U. S. Army on February 1.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of BETTY L. GINSBURG to Herbert F. Rubenstein, a senior at the Dickinson School of Law. Betty is employed by UNIVAC. A fall wedding is planned.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of CARLIE ANN KLEINFELDER to Lewis W. Wetzel, a senior at the Dickinson School of Law. Carlie is a statistical analyst for the Bureau of the Census in Washington. An August wedding is planned.

DAVID S. WHITE has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force upon graduation from OTS at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. He has been assigned to Moody AFB, Georgia, for pilot training.

BENJAMIN COMPAINE is a first year student in the MBA program at Harvard Business School. He is contributing editor of the HarBus News.

JOHN K. DELLINGER is employed as a field underwriter with Mutual of New York. He lives with his wife, the former Patricia Thornton, a graduate of Lebanon Valley, at 229 Media Line, Broomall 19008.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of STEVEN FISHMAN to Andrea R. Vigderman, a member of the senior class. Steve is taking graduate work at Temple University under a doctoral fellowship. An August wedding is planned.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of JOHN M. LORENTZ to Karen L. Duch, a senior at the University of Connecticut. John is attending Rutgers Law School. They plan to be married on June 8.

JUNE E. STOTZ is an assistant in the biochemistry department at the Woman's Medical College, Philadelphia.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of G. RICH-ARD KATZENBACH, JR. to Paulette Goerig, a member of the senior class. Dick is attending the University of Kansas Law School.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Ensign STEWART P. GLENN to Karen A. Roth, a member of the senior class.

DAVID A. JOHNSON has been appointed youth director of the Camden County, New Jersey branch of the YMCA.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of EDWARD C. FALLON, III, to Cheryl L. Fredrickson, a member of the senior class. Ed is a student at Temple University School of Medicine.

SUSAN A. BARKER and JOHN L. WESTBROOK, JR. were married on December 30 in St. John's Episcopal Church, Somerville, New Jersey. Susan is teaching French in Plainfield and John is employed by Johnson and Johnson. The couple now reside in Highland Park, New Jersey.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of KENNETH E. CLAUS, JR. to Mary M. Fuoss, a member of the senior class. Ken is a student at the Union Theological Seminary for the ministry in the United Church of Christ.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of WILLIAM C. BOCHET to Mary B. Gruber, a senior at Paterson State College. Bill is attending the University of Pennsylvania School of Law. An August wedding is planned.

JAMES W. HUNTER and Helen J. Moore, an alumna of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, were married on December 28 in the Swarthmore Presbyterian Church. Jim is serving in the U. S. Army.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of DAVID S. HOWELL to Susan B. Peterson, a senior at Mt. Holyoke College. Dave is now a submarine technician stationed at the Naval Submarine Base, New London, Connecticut. An August wedding is planned.

2/Lt. THOMAS K. FARLEY and CAROL J. BAKER were married on March 16 in the Roland Park Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, Maryland. They now reside at 2825 Mobley Street, Fort Sill, Oklahoma 73501.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of CALVIN R. STAFFORD, JR. to Martha H. Fahey, a student at Beaver College. Calvin is attending Hahnemann Medical College.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of R. SCOTT FOSLER to Mary C. Eaton, an alumna of Chatham College. Scott is a graduate student at the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton. Miss Eaton is taking graduate work at Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies. A June wedding is planned.

Mr. and Mrs. Don B. Isaacson (LAIDA NADA), of Carlisle, announced the birth of a son in April.

BARBARA L. EYLER and John L. Moorehead, an alumnus of Western Pennsylvania Institute of Technology, were married on March 23 in the Presbyterian Church at Bedford. Barbara is teaching in the Carlisle Intermediate High School. Her husband is stationed with the Army at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

THOMAS KEENE, who will receive his master's in June from Emory University, has been awarded a Fellowship to continue his studies in history at Emory for the 1968-69 academic year.

1968

JOHN DELVES is a student at the Boston University School of Journalism.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of ELIZABETH W. BRINER to Douglas L. Rankin, an alumnus of Albright College. A graduate of Pennsylvania State University, Elizabeth is teaching sixth grade in the Stevens Building, Carlisle. Mr. Rankin is presently serving with the Air Force at Elgin Air Force Base, Florida. Elizabeth is the daughter of GEORGE L. BRINER, '37, and the granddaughter of GEORGE M. BRINER, '07.

1970

ELISABETH E. ROSS was married to Ensign James A. Wood, II, a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, on December 8. Ensign Wood is in flight training at NAAS, Meridian, Mississippi.

David S. White, '67

Special Mention

Dr. Alpheus T. Mason, '20, Princeton Emeritus After 43 Years on the Faculty

"An Objective Throughout My Teaching Has Been Not so Much To Fill the Student Up as to Draw Him Out"

A smile creased the lips of the 45-year teaching veteran. "I never felt I had a job; I think my work has been my hobby."

Indeed, it has been.

Alpheus Thomas Mason, '20, at 68, is approaching retirement at Princeton. The man has a reputation. It's a reputation of offering "the toughest course" at the University. It is also a reputation as this nation's foremost judicial biographer, perhaps the most perceptive Constitutional authority in the land, and certainly one of Princeton University's great teachers in this century.

His exhaustive works on Louis Brandeis, Harlan Fiske Stone, William Howard Taft attest to the years of research, research which has borne 20 major books and at least 60 significant articles.

And a little volume of Essays on the American Constitution—"I wanted you to see this," he told a recent visitor, "because this is something of which I am really proud"—sits on his desk in Firestone Library. It attests, in a small way, to his teaching. It is a 1964 gift from eleven of his former students, all now well-known college teachers, who wrote the essays to honor him on his 65th birthday as a "great scholar and teacher." Reviewed in the Fall 1966 Alumnus by Dr. Robert D. Burrowes, '57.

Princeton's McCormick Professor of Jurisprudence and the senior member of the Department of Politics has acknowledged, in numerous books, the cooperation of his students, graduate and undergraduate. "Education for me always has been a cooperative enterprise," reflects Dr. Mason. "I have always treated the student in my classes not as a subordinate but as a participant in the process of learning."

What will the title of McCormick Professor, Emeritus mean for the former farm boy from tiny Girdletree, Md.?

It will mean a new teaching address, at least for a year. After 43 years on the Princeton faculty, following two at Trinity College (now Duke), he will be heading South to Charlottesville, where he will teach in the Law School and the Department of Government at the University of Virginia.

It's a combination that obviously interests him; a location which is appealing; and an offer which allows him to continue that which he considers both his vocation and avocation. "I intend to keep on teaching; it is too much part of my life to quit it."

On Maryland's Eastern Shore young Mason, one of three children, was considered an outstanding high school debater; so good, in fact, that a local newspaper serving as judge at one of the tournaments suggested he forget about finishing high school and go to Dickinson College.

"As a very young boy I was determined I was not going to be a farmer, and I was not going to remain on the Eastern Shore," Alpheus Mason remembers. "That came very, very early. I didn't know how to dance; I had had very limited social opportunities. They just weren't there, in that little town."

So, at 16, Alpheus enrolled here.

He joined a fraternity, SAE, ("this was my life"); breezed through and at the end of his fourth year also had earned credit for a year of law school.

"Truly," records a Dickinson publication, "the ocean held Alpheus in its seclusion for two years, but alas, the power that used to be is broken, and Alpheus has shown forth in all his glory at last. There can be no doubt about this young gentleman's fitness for some things, particularly dancing and eating."

Over the years his work has brought him honors. Dickinson gave him a D. Litt. in 1947, and Dickinson Law School awarded him an LL.D. in 1963, following a similar honor from the University of Louisville, where Brandeis' papers are now deposited. He has been a vice president of the American Political Science Association and a member of the Board of Editors of the American Political Science Review. In the 1930's he held a visiting membership in the Institute for Advanced Study; in 1962 he was selected by Princeton as one of its McCosh Fellows, highest honor the University can confer on its faculty; and in 1963 he was elected a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

He has been widely sought as a speaker in this country and abroad, including England, Japan, Yugoslavia, Israel.

At 8 Edgehill Street, Princeton, Dr. and Mrs. Mason have collected a house full of usable and useful antiques. "I have no interest in a nice piece of furniture unless I can use it," explains collector Mason. His wife is the former Christine Este Gibbons (daughter of a John Wanamaker biographer) whom he met in Princeton and married in 1934. They have a daughter, Louise, and two granddaughters, Lisa and Christina Bachelor.

As he relaxed the other day amid law books and textbooks, in tweed coat and slacks, Princeton's McCormick Professor of Jurisprudence didn't look a bit like a man of 68, due to retire in June and to add the title of the Henry L. and Grace Doherty Charitable Foundation Professor of Government and Law, University of Virginia.

"I've always had one foot in the profession without being a lawyer and this new assignment enables me to formalize that," he told his visitor with enthusiasm. Besides, for a man who says he never felt he ever had a job, it allows him to continue his favorite hobby.

Dr. Alpheus T. Mason, '20

The General Alumni Association

Term expires in 1968

G. Harold Keatley, Esq., '27
Austin W. Brizendine, Esq., '39
Mrs. Mary Kirkpatrick Breene, '40
Catherine S. Eitemiller, '46
John D. Hopper, Esq., '48
Sidney D. Kline, Jr., Esq., '54
Thomas V. Zug, Esq., '33
Andrew Y. Rogers, Jr., '65

DIRECTORY OF ALUMNI CLUBS

CALIFORNIA

LOS ANGELES. President Joseph S. Stephens, '26, 5315 Garth Ave., 90056

SAN DIEGO. President Mrs. Sanford Sweet, '52, 10005 S. Cole Rd., Whittier, 90603

SAN FRANCISCO. President Mrs. Robert E. Bernard, '48, 83 Silverwood Drive, Lafayette, 94549

COLORADO

DENVER. President George F. Barbary, '44, Box 658, G. Route #3, Golden, 80401

CONNECTICUT

Hartford. President Robert B. Cohen, '54, 25 Northbrook Dr., West Hartford, 06100

DELAWARE

WILMINGTON. President Ohrum J. Small, '15, 48 Baynard Blvd., 19803

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

WASHINGTON. President David G. Stevenson, '61, Esq., 4565 Southland Ave., Alexandria, Va. 22312

FLORIDA

FLORIDA GULF COAST. President Winfield C. Cook, '32, 4235 Gulf of Mexico Drive, Long Boat Key, Sarasota 33577

JACKSONVILLE. President John W. Vance, '13, 1639 Parrish Street, Jacksonville 32210

MIAMI. President Arthur A. Pendleton, '48, 6871 SW 76th Terrace, 33143

GEORGIA

ATLANTA. President Harry A. McKee, '42, 900 Landmark Drive, N.E., 30305

ILLINOIS

CHICAGO. President William Ragolio, '35, 1500 W. Monroe St., 60607

President

Sidney D. Kline, Jr., '54

Vice President

John D. Hopper, '48

Secretary

Mary Mackie Eshelman, '43

THE ALUMNI TRUSTEES

Winfield C. Cook, '32
Mrs. Katherine Smith Carpenter, '25

Professor Roy R. Kuebler, Jr., '33
Weston C. Overholt, Jr., Esq., '50

THE ALUMNI COUNCIL

Term expires in 1969

Fred A. Lumb, '29
Harry E. Hinebauch, '34
George G. Lindsay, Esq., '48
Dr. Hampton P. Corson, '49
George C. Hering, III, Esq., '53
Constance W. Klages, '56
Robert E. Young, '59
Bradley B. Geist, '66

Term expires in 1970

Virginia Watts, '24
Dorothy Chamberlain, '28
James K. Nevling, Esq., '30
Mary Mackie Eshelman, '43
Rev. Ralph L. Minker, Jr., '47
Douglas Rehor, '48
H. Chase Davis, Jr., '50
Joel B. Korin, '67

MARYLAND

BALTIMORE. President H. Chase Davis, '50, 224 W. Lafayette Ave., 21217

DEL-MAR-VA. President Theodore R. Bonwit, '53, 414 Virginia Ave., Salisbury, 21801

MASSACHUSETTS

BOSTON. Charles A. Ferrone, '57, 108 Clark Rd., Needham, 02192

MICHIGAN

ANN ARBOR. President Donald E. Shapiro, '53, 352 E. Huron River Dr., 48103

NEW JERSEY

DELAWARE VALLEY. President Walter Benner, '47, 525 William St., Trenton, 08600

NEW YORK ALUMNAE. President Ruth Cain Connor, '30, 755 W. Broad St., Westfield, New Jersey 07090

NORTHERN NEW JERSEY. President Laurence V. Radtke, Jr., '54, 299 Springfield Ave., Berkeley Heights, 07922

SOUTHERN NEW JERSEY. President Ronald Goldberg, '54, 111 Rich Ave., Berlin, 08009

NEW YORK

ALBANY. President James C. Mancuso, '51, 15 Oakwood Place, Delmar, 12054

NEW YORK CITY. President Michael G. Silver, '54, 25 East 38th Street, 10016

ROCHESTER. President Holland Taylor, '48, 170 Non Hill, 14617

SOUTHERN TIER. President Charles F. Saam, '43, 101 Gilmore Ave., Hillcrest, Binghamton, 13900

SYRACUSE. President Robert J. Thomas, '40, 333 Roosevelt Ave., 13200

OHIO

CLEVELAND. President Thomas B. Price, '60, 14619 Clifton Blvd., Lakewood, 44107

COLUMBUS. President Robert A. Aaronson, '43, Seneca Hotel, 361 E. Broad St., 43215

PENNSYLVANIA

BERKS—READING. President Sidney D. Kline, Jr., '54, 46 Wyomissing Hills Blvd., Wyomissing Hills, Reading, 19600

HARRISBURG. President William T. Smith, '59, 3747 Derry St., 17101

LEHIGH VALLEY. President Kenneth L. Harvey, '53, 302 Walnut St., Catasauqua, 18032

NORTHEASTERN PENNSYLVANIA. President Arthur L. Piccone, '55, 20 Ransom St., Forty Fort, 18704

PHILADELPHIA. President Herschel E. Shortlidge, '34, 9005 Mason Ave., Drexel Hill 19026

PITTSBURGH. President William E. Hoey, '52, 1034 Cork Drive, Bethel Park, 15102

WEST BRANCH VALLEY. President Frank W. Ake, '31, 441 Pine St., Williamsport, 17701

YORK. President J. Richard Budding, 32, 124 E. Market St., 17400

SAVE THE DATE FOR THIS VACATION-TIME ALUMNI
CLUB MEETING . . . ALL ALUMNI WELCOME

August 2 Del-Mar-Va Club
Ocean City, Md.

Please call or write reservation to
Mr. Theodore R. Bonwit, '53
414 Virginia Avenue,
Salisbury, Md.

The price of the dinner will be modest and there will be entertainment from the College.

Come back to the Campus for

ALUMNI DAY

Saturday, June 1

COMMENCEMENT

Sunday, June 2

REUNION CLASSES

'08	'13	'18	'23
'28	'33	'38	'43
'48	'53	'58	'63

THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS
Dickinson College
Carlisle, Pa. 17013

Second Class Postage Paid at Carlisle, Pennsylvania. Return Requested

