THE

OF

DICKINSON COLLEGE,

Revised by the Board

CHAPTER I.

OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE COLLEGE.

SECTION 1. The government of the College shall be vested in the President and the Professors of the College, who, with the Principal of the Grammar School, shall constitute the Faculty. The government shall be administered, as nearly as possible, after the manner of a well regulated family. Private advice, affectionate entreaty, and frequent private admonitions, shall always precede the more stern measures of public admonition, and exclusion from the institution, except when the offence is flagrant, and publicly committed.

2. The President shall have power to direct in all matters relating to the College—to govern the students—and to notice and punish all crimes and violations of the laws of the College committed by them, unless in cases in which the same devolves by law on the Faculty.

3. The Professors, severally, shall have power to govern the students in their respective lecture rooms, and they shall severally notice and punish all crimes and violations of the laws of the College, committed there or elsewhere, as the same become known to them, except in cases where the infliction of punishment devolves on the Faculty; provided, that none may in any case proceed contrary to the advice of the President.

4. The Faculty shall have power to direct the application of the ensuing statutes—to make all regulations for the general government of the College, not contrary to these statutes—and to annex thereto such means of enforcement, as they may deem proper and necessary; provided that they shall be exclusively directed to a sense of moral obligation, and to the principles of virtue and honor.

5. A stated meeting of the Faculty shall be held every week, or oftener if necessary, during the sessions of College, for the purpose of administering the government of the Institution. Special meetings, as often as business may require, shall be called by the President, either at his own discretion, or when a majority of the Professors may solicit them. In case of the absence of the President, the Faculty shall have full power to perform such acts of government as may to them seem necessary.

6. The President shall appoint as Secretary some member of the Faculty, who shall make a faithful record of their proceedings in a book to be kept for that purpose, which shall at all times be open to the inspection of the Board of Trustees. In all meetings of the Faculty, the President, or in case of his absence, the senior Professor present shall preside, and a majority shall constitute a quorum.

7. When any member of the Faculty may wish to resign, he shall give three months previous notice thereof to the Board.

8. The President is invested with the general supervision of the interests of the Institution, and shall, with the Professors, protect the property of the College. He shall, in the presence of the Faculty, exact a written agreement, as hereinafter provided for, from each student, on entering into College, and before he shall be allowed to recite with the class to which he is assigned; and conduct the matriculation of the students, as provided for in the ensuing statutes.

9. It shall also be the duty of the President, regularly to make to the Board at their annual meeting, a full and written report of the state of the College, the progress of literary improvement, the general state of discipline, the behaviour of the students, and whatever he may deem advantageous to submit to the attention of the Board.

10. In addition to the usual duties of their respective professorships, the Professor of Languages shall have charge of the Library, and officiate as Librarian, according to the rules to be adopted by the Faculty; and, at the annual meeting of the Board, he shall regularly make a written report of the state of the Library, noticing the increase by donations and purchase, and making any suggestions which he may think proper to submit to their consideration;—the Professor of the Exact Sciences, shall have charge of such parts of the philosophical apparatus while in his use, as are necessary in the instruction of the youth in the branches of study which he conducts;—the Professor of the Natural Sciences shall have charge of the rooms containing the Philosophical and Chemical Apparatus, as well as of the Laboratory, the articles in which he is to preserve from all unnecessary waste or injury. He shall also report to the Board regularly at their annual meeting, the state of these apparatus and of the cabinet, giving a list of the mathematical and philosophical instruments, and the donations made from time to time, with the name of the donors, and such other matters as he may think proper to suggest.

11. The Professors shall deliver private Lectures to their classes upon the respective branches taught by them; and each Professor may, with the consent and advice of the President, deliver a public course of Lectures upon the branch or branches contained in his department, for which he may issue tickets to any not members of the College; but the students, Professors, and Trustees shall be at liberty to attend gratis; and the students, or certain classes, may be required by the President to attend; provided such public lecture shall not be delivered so as to interfere with the ordinary College duties.

12. Whereas the presence of the President and Professors, as constantly as practicable, in the College buildings, is deemed essential to the good order and government of the Institution: to secure this object, each Officer of Instruction shall be provided with a suitable private room for his study, as convenient to his lecture room as may be, in which he will be expected to spend those portions of his time devoted to books, and to the business transactions of the College.

CHAPTER II.

OF THE STEWARD AND HIS DUTIES.

SECTION 1. The Steward shall be appointed by the Faculty, and be removable at their pleasure.

2. He shall conduct himself toward the Faculty and students with all proper respect, and shall hold himself ready to perform all the duties of his office, as here laid down, and such other services incident to it, as the Faculty shall direct.

3. He shall observe entire secrecy with respect to the transactions of the Faculty or the Board, with which, in the discharge of his duties, he may incidentally become acquainted.

4. He shall ring the bell as often, and at such hours, as the Faculty may direct; and also on public occasions as he may be instructed by the Faculty.

5. He shall reside in the College edifice, and shall furnish a table for boarding students, subject to such regulations as the Faculty may prescribe; but he shall not, except in case of sickness, or by permission of the Faculty, under the penalty of removal from office, convey to any student, lodging in the building, at any other time than during meals, any articles, whatever, of either food or drink.

6. He shall, in due season, make all the fires in the Lecture Rooms and Chapel, at whatever hours the President, or any of the Professors, shall direct; and he shall regularly, every night, see that all the fires in these rooms are carefully secured. He may also perform for the students, at a reasonable rate, of which the Faculty shall be judge, any service, not forbidden by these statutes: and he is strictly charged with prohibiting any person from the town entering the building for such purposes.

7. He shall regularly, every morning, sweep the stairs, entries, and passages of the College building, and preserve them in neat order. He shall moreover, make the beds and sweep the rooms of such students as lodge in the College building, at as early a period as may be practicable each day, and at a season when it shall afford least interruption to the students. He shall also deliver the clothes of the students lodging in the building for washing, and return them again, when washed, to their respective owners. In performing these services, he shall not employ any females, nor allow them for such purposes to enter the College buildings or campus.

8. He shall inspect the College buildings, and see that the rooms and entries are kept in good repair: and whenever and wherever damages have been committed in the same, he shall immediately, with the approbation of the President, employ some suitable person to repair them. He shall keep a regular account of the cost of all the repairs made in and about the College, and regularly thrice a year report the same to the President. If the damage happen in a private apartment, it shall be collected from the occupants of the same; if on any other part of the premises, the damage shall be assessed equally on all the students.

9. The Steward shall prohibit all hawkers or venders of fruit, of confectionary, of jewelry, or any other article whatever, from entering the College edifice, or coming on the campus to traffic with the students. He shall regularly at nine o'clock, have all the doors of the College buildings, and the gates of the campus closed.

10. The Steward shall procure, as the Faculty may prescribe, fuel for the use of the College and students. The funds for this purpose shall be furnished by the Treasurer, to whom he shall produce vouchers for the amount purchased. He shall also have it prepared for use, and delivered at the respective rooms, and collect the cost of the same; each student paying his due proportion of that consumed in his room.

11. It shall be the duty of the Steward, with the advice and consent of the President, to have the chapel, recitation rooms, entries, and chambers washed and thoroughly cleansed, once a quarter, and the walls white-washed every spring season.

12. The buildings, during vacations, shall be under the strict care and charge of the Steward. At the commencement of each vacation, all the keys of all the rooms in the College edifices, shall be placed in the hands of the Steward or of some person appointed by the President for the purpose; and no room shall be occupied, nor any access to the buildings allowed, except by special permission from the Faculty.

13. It shall be the duty of the Steward to cause each student's room, which is occupied, and the furniture in it, to be thoroughly cleansed and put in good order, during each vacation:—to remove the ashes, as often as is proper, from any stove or fire-place; and to remove all grease spots or other stains from any part of the building, or from any furniture, as soon as he may have knowledge of it. He shall charge the expense of removing such spots or stains, to the room where they are found.

14. It shall be the duty of the Steward of the principal building to keep the College grounds, walks and trees, in good order, and to preserve order in the campus during College hours, and not to permit disorderly persons to remain there at any time.

15. If any person in his employ, shall violate any of the regulations of the Institution, or be otherwise injurious to its interests, the Steward shall, upon the request of the Faculty, remove him.

CHAPTER III.

OF ADMISSION INTO COLLEGE AND OF THE COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

SECTION 1. The students shall be divided into four classes; each class to continue one year: those of the first year shall be denominated Freshmen; those of the second year Sophomores; those of the third year Juniors; those of the fourth year Seniors. Candidates for admission into the Freshman Class, must be well acquainted with Arithmetic, on the inductive system (Emerson's); English Grammar; Geography; Ancient and Modern History; Latin Grammar, (Adam's); Latin Reader; Latin Tutor; Cæsar's Commentaries; Æneid of Virgil; Cicero's Orations against Cataline; Dillaway's Roman Antiquities and Mythology; Greek Grammar, (Fisk's); and Jacob's Greek Reader.* They must be at least fourteen years of age, and must produce certificates of good moral character. Candidates for an advanced standing, shall be examined on the studies to which the class they propose entering have attended; and if from other Colleges, must also produce certificates of honorable dismissal.

*When any particular books here mentioned shall not have been studied, their equivalent in other authors will be required.

2. The commencement of each session, particularly of the winter session, shall be the stated period of admission.

3. Every student, immediately at his entrance, shall subscribe the following engagement:—

“I solemnly promise, on my truth and honor, to observe and obey all the laws and regulations of Dickinson College.”

For six months at least immediately succeeding his entrance, he shall be on probation; at the end of which period, if he have satisfied the Faculty of his good moral character, and particularly that he does not use profane language, he shall be fully admitted as a member of the Institution, which shall be attested by registering his name and age, with the name and place of abode of his parent or legal guardian, in “The Matriculation Book.” But if such satisfactory evidence cannot be produced, he shall be privately dismissed and sent home; which may also be done sooner, if circumstances require.

4. The course of study shall comprehend Ancient and Modern Languages, Polite Literature, Ancient and Modern History, Antiquities, the various branches of the Mathematics, the Philosophy of the Mind, the different departments of Natural, Moral and Political Science, and the Evidences of Natural and Revealed Religion.

The text books in these branches, and the order in which they shall be studied, shall be prescribed by the Faculty, subject, however, at all times, to the supervision of the Trustees.

5. No student shall, during the session, attend the instruction of any person who is not an Officer of the College, without special permission from the Faculty.

6. It shall be the duty of the President to examine the hand-writing of every student, and if it be not fair and respectable, he shall cause such student to take the necessary instruction in writing; for which the charge shall not exceed four dollars.

7. If any student shall omit, or perform negligently, any literary exercise, the same may, at the discretion of his Instructor, be afterwards required; though such subsequent performance shall not excuse the previous delinquency.

8. There shall be a general examination of all the students of College immediately preceding the close of each session, on the studies they shall have pursued from the beginning of the session to the date of the examination, opportunity having been allowed for revision.

9. The Senior class shall be examined for their degrees on all the studies of the College course, at a period not exceeding four weeks previous to the day of commencement: and during the interval, the members of this class shall continue to pursue their studies under the direction of the Faculty, unless they receive permission to return home; but shall not be required to recite, nor be subjected to any examination with the other classes at the close of the session.

10. Of any intermediate examinations, public notice shall be given by the Faculty at least two weeks previously. Of the final examination, notice shall also be given by written or printed circulars, addressed to the “Examining Committee,” and such Trustees and others, as the Faculty may think proper.

11. The examinations shall be strict, but not protracted, and shall be conducted by the Faculty in the presence of the Trustees and such other gentlemen as may attend.

12. If any student shall absent himself from an examination appointed by the Faculty, he shall be punished as the nature of the offence may require.

13. If, at any examination, a student shall appear deficient in the studies pursued by his class, he shall, at the discretion of the Faculty, be directed to study during the succeeding vacation, be degraded from his class, or be dismissed from College. And if a member of the Freshman class, he may be removed to the Grammar School.

14. Every Professor and Instructor shall keep a regular roll of his classes, and note absentees, and any other circumstances which may tend to enable him to form a correct judgment of the progress of each student. And at the end of each academic year, if the Faculty so direct, each Professor shall graduate his classes with reference to his own department, numbering them 1, 2, 3, 4, &c. in which graduation he may put down two or more students to the same number, if, in his judgment, they be of equal merit. After this separate graduation in each department, the Professors shall meet, and add their respective numbers together for each student in each class, and the result shall graduate the class absolutely. The morals and behavior, however, of each student, together with his performance at the public examinations, shall be duly considered, and have their full weight in determining his standing.

15. A monthly report of each student's deficiencies in attendance upon the literary exercises, upon chapel, and upon public worship, together with his deportment and attention to study, shall be forwarded to his parent or guardian.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE DEPARTMENT OF THE STUDENTS.

SECTION 1. The students are to consider themselves as members of a family, of which the Officers of Instruction are the respective heads, associated for purposes of improvement; and they are to behave themselves accordingly.

2. As, however, the peculiar situation of students, brings with it peculiar obligations, the following offences are, for their better information, specified, as those which must be particularly guarded against:

HIGH OFFENCES.—Unlawful combinations.—Disrespect to the Faculty or other Officers of the Institution.—Riotous and noisy behaviour, to the disturbance of the College or of the inhabitants of Carlisle.—Refusing or neglecting to attend when required by the Faculty or any Officer.—Disobedience to the sentence of the Faculty for any offence.—Refusing to give testimony in any case, when required by the Faculty, or falsifying therein.—Resisting or obstructing the Instructors or other Officers in the discharge of their duties, or encouraging similar acts in others.—Challenging, assaulting, or endeavoring to injure, any student.—Wilfully defacing or injuring the buildings of the College, or any furniture, apparatus, books, or any other property in or about them.

Profane language.—Use of ardent spirits.—Indecency in language, dress, or behavior.—Dissoluteness, or other gross immorality.—Obtaining money under false pretences.—Habitual extravagance after due admonition.—Playing at any game for money or other things of value, or playing, under any circumstances, at cards, billiards, or any game of chance.—Associating with any person under sentence of dismissal or expulsion; or with any other prohibited person; or with any person of known vice and dissoluteness.—Any offence against the laws of the land subjecting the offender to disgraceful punishment.

Possessing any fire-arms, or other weapon, or using such in the borough of Carlisle.—Being connected with any military company, unless compelled thereto by the Laws of the State.—Being concerned in any bonfire, fire-works, or unauthorized illuminations.—Attending, during the session, any ball, private dancing party, dancing school, theatrical exhibition, horse race, or any place of similar resort.—Making or being present at any festive entertainment, or going to any tavern or victualling house, without permission.—Leaving Carlisle or its immediate vicinity without special permission.

MISDEMEANORS.—Among these may be enumerated,—Selling or bartering books, apparel, furniture or any other property, without leave of his patron.—Loud talking, singing, playing on a musical instrument, or other noise in the College or Campus, except in hours of recreation; or any conduct, at any time, inconsistent with the habits of a well regulated family.—Throwing any water dust, or other such thing, from any window or door of the building, or into any fire-place or hall.—Omitting any collegiate duty without previous permission.—Idleness, negligence, and, in general, all behavior inconsistent with the good order, peace and prosperity of the College.

3. The punishments which may be inflicted, are, the exaction of study in the hours of recreation and in vacation, private admonition, official notice of delinquency to the parent or guardian, public admonition in presence of the class or of the whole College, suspension, dismissal, degradation to a lower class, and expulsion. The frequency and repetition of offences shall aggravate the punishment. But if any student shall speedily evince penitence for his fault, the Faculty are at liberty, on his private or public confession, to pass over the offence, without entering the case upon their records.

4. The period of suspension shall not exceed six months. But no student, whether suspended or dismissed, shall be restored without satisfactory evidence of improvement: and no student, who shall have been expelled, or twice dismissed, shall be re-admitted, except upon such evidence of contrition and reformation as shall be satisfactory to the entire Faculty.

5. Whereas offences of various kinds may be committed by a number of students, and it may be thought unnecessary to punish all the offenders; in such cases the Faculty may punish so many of them, as may be necessary to secure good order, due regard being had in the punishment to the previous conduct and general character.

6. As students may be guilty of disorders or misdemeanors, against which no express provision is made in these laws, a discretionary, or parental authority, must necessarily be lodged with the Faculty: therefore, where no statute is particularly provided for a case that may occur, they are to exercise this discretionary authority, and punish accordingly.

CHAPTER V.

VACATIONS, DISTRIBUTION OF TIME, RELIGIOUS DUTIES.

SECTION 1. The Collegiate year shall be divided into two sessions; the first beginning on the fifteenth of September, and ending on the Friday before the first of April; the second beginning at the termination of the first, and ending at Commencement, on the second Thursday in July.—The only regular vacation shall be the interval from Commencement till the fifteenth of September; to which may be added, at the discretion of the Faculty, a few days recess at Christmas, and at the end of the first session.

2. During the vacation, every student shall be answerable for all vicious and immoral conduct as during the sessions of College, and none shall remain in the borough of Carlisle without the permission of the Faculty.

3. There shall be reading of the Holy Scriptures and prayers observed in the College chapel, by the Principal, Professors, and students, every morning and evening, at the opening and close of the daily exercises, under the direction of the Principal.

4. The hour of morning prayers shall be during the winter, at half past six o'clock, and during the rest of the year at six o'clock; of evening prayers, at five o'clock, throughout the winter session, and at six o'clock during the summer session. The hours of recreation shall be, during the winter session, for one hour and a half after morning prayers,—from twelve o'clock to two o'clock,—and from evening prayers to seven o'clock; during the summer session, for one hour and a half after morning prayers,—from twelve to three o'clock, and from evening prayers to eight o'clock.

5. All other hours each student shall spend in his own room, or in attending upon such college exercises as the Faculty may prescribe.

6. Each student shall attend public worship every Sabbath morning at such church in the borough, as his parent or guardian may designate; and he shall also attend, in the afternoon or evening, either some church or a biblical recitation under the direction of the President.

7. The sanctification of the whole of the Sabbath or Lord's day, is indispensable to every student; and no student shall indulge on that day in unnecessary business, or visiting, or receiving of visits, or sauntering abroad or in the streets of the borough, or in any behavior unbecoming the Day of Rest or the House of God.

CHAPTER VI.

OF COMMENCEMENT AND DEGREES.

SECTION 1. The commencement shall be held on the second Thursday in July, in each year.

2. On the day of commencement such candidates as the Faculty shall have previously selected, shall perform the exercises assigned to them, under penalty of being refused their degree, unless excused by the Faculty. A fair copy of each performance, after it has been approved by the President, shall be delivered to him within such time as shall be prescribed, to be deposited in the archives of the College; and should any student undertake to express sentiments or language contrary to the emendations of the President, or in contempt of the authorities of College, he shall be refused a diploma.

3. Alumni of the College who shall have demeaned themselves in a worthy manner for three years after their graduation, and signified their desire for it to the President, shall receive the second degree, viz: of Master of Arts, and such as may be present shall unite in the procession on the day of commencement. The honorary degree of A. M. shall be awarded according to merit, and no person of bad morals shall receive the honors of College.

4. A diploma for either degree signed by the Faculty, shall be delivered to every one on whom it has been conferred, on his paying to the President the sum of five dollars.

5. The Faculty shall make out a catalogue of all the candidates for the degree of A. B., together with a certificate of their progress in literature and science, and a recommendation of them for the same, and lay them before the Board of Trustees, who shall issue their mandamus for the conferring of the degree. The President shall begin and close the exercises, in public, on the day of commencement, with prayer.

6. All balls and dances, and all dinners and suppers are prohibited from being accompaniments of the commencement, under such penalties as the Faculty may see proper to impose.

7. The arrangements and expenses attending the commencement shall be, at all times, under the inspection and control of the Faculty.

CHAPTER VII. OF THE LITERARY SOCIETIES.

SECTION 1. The literary societies now existing, are integral parts of the institution, and shall be under the protection and control of the Faculty, and their property under the guardianship of the Board.

2. Their stated times of meeting shall be at such hours in the day as the Faculty may direct. Nocturnal meetings shall not, on any account, be permitted.

3. They shall have power to adopt such regulations as they may think proper for the management of their business, during the prescribed periods of their meetings, except that it shall be unlawful to admit to their Halls any of their members who may have been expelled, dismissed, or suspended from College, while thus under censure.

4. Resistance to the requisitions of the Faculty, by either society, shall subject the same to a suspension of their privileges during the will of the Faculty, without appeal to the Board.

5. There shall be no public exhibition of either of the literary societies, without the consent of the Faculty. The pieces to be exhibited on the occasion shall be previously submitted to the inspection of the Faculty, or some member thereof, and shall also be rehearsed before the Faculty.

6. None of their graduate members shall be admitted to their regular weekly meetings, unless they are related to the College as resident graduates, or by the special permission of the Faculty, to be withdrawn by them when they see proper.

7. No student shall be admitted as a member of either society, until six weeks after he shall have attended his first recitation in College.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE FINANCIAL AFFAIRS OF THE STUDENTS.

SECTION 1. Every student whose parent or legal guardian does not reside in the borough of Carlisle, shall have a Patron or college guardian, by whom his financial affairs shall be conducted, and who shall also have a special oversight of his department, and be ready at all times to afford him such friendly counsel as his circumstances may require.

2. All funds for the use of a student, (whether designed as pocket money or otherwise,) shall be deposited with his Patron; and no student shall be permitted to remain in the institution, who shall obtain money from any other source than from his Patron, or who shall fail, in case he does so receive any, immediately to deliver it to his Patron.

3. Each student shall have a small account book, in which the bills he may contract shall be entered in the order of their date, and when discharged, shall be receipted. The same shall be sent home at the end of each session, as the patron's voucher for the accuracy of his accounts.

4. No student shall contract a bill to the amount of more than five dollars, without the permission of his Patron, nor a bill to any amount, without having an entry made of it, at the time, in his book; nor shall any Patron be bound to discharge a bill without such previous entry, unless it may be the bills for College fees and for board.

5. Bills shall have preference in the following order, viz: for College fees,—for board,—for text books:—all others according to the date of their presentation; provided that in no case shall any bill be paid for horse or carriage hire, for confectionary, for fruits, for eatables of any kind, or for other articles obviously unnecessary for a student at College.

6. A Patron shall be at liberty to furnish, weekly, such an amount of pocket money, as the parent or guardian may prescribe, provided it does not exceed what, in his judgment, with the advice of the President, the interests of the student and of the institution require.

7. In case any student shall borrow any money, or contract any bill, contrary to the rules of College, if the same be afterward paid or caused to be paid by his parent or guardian, without the consent of his Patron, such student shall be sent home; provided always that this shall not apply, where such parent or guardian was ignorant of this rule.

8. In the monthly report of each student, his Patron shall state the amount of funds received and expended.

9. The President and Instructors of the College and Grammar School, or, at the special request of the parent or guardian, any citizen of Carlisle, who will conform to these regulations, may act as a Patron. And any student over twenty one years of age may, with the consent of the Faculty, manage his own funds.

10. A Patron shall not in any way be held personally responsible for any bill of any student. The expenses of his correspondence in the discharge of his duties shall be charged to the accounts of the students concerned. As a compensation for his trouble, and risk of loss, he may charge a commission of 3 per cent. on all moneys paid out on the account of a student.

CHAPTER IX.

OF RESIDENCE AND BOARDING HOUSES.

SECTION 1. The boarding of the students and the assigning of their rooms shall be under the direction and control of the Faculty.

2. Every student who does not live with his parent or guardian, shall lodge in the College edifice, unless the rooms be all full; in which case the Faculty shall adopt such regulations as shall be, in their judgment, most promotive of the discipline and interest of the College, and of the students.

3. Each student resident in College, shall board in one of the College halls, unless a written request be made, by his parent or guardian, to allow him to board in town, in which case the request shall be granted, subject, however, to the consent of such student's Patron, with respect to the place, and subject also to the price which may be allowed, from time to time, by the Faculty; and no student shall change his place of boarding, without first obtaining the consent of his Patron and of the President.

4. The College Halls, though kept at the expense of their respective Stewards, shall be subject to such regulations as the Faculty may prescribe.

5. Except by special permission, not more than ten students shall board together in the same family, nor shall a greater number than three occupy the same room.

6. The boarding bills shall be discharged, before an honorable dismissal or diploma can be granted.

CHAPTER X.

OF COLLEGE EXPENDITURES.

SECTION 1. The College bills for each session shall be paid within four weeks after its commencement, and shall be as follows, viz:—For tuition, for the first session, eighteen dollars; for the second, twelve dollars:—For Steward's services in keeping the chambers in order, making beds, providing and placing wood in the rooms, removing ashes, &c. first session three dollars, second session two dollars; provided that those students who shall perform these services for themselves, with the consent of their parents or guardians, to the satisfaction of the Principal, shall not be compelled to pay this charge:—For room rent in the centre building and in the attic of the new building, first session, three dollars, second session two dollars; in the new building, first session, six dollars, second session three dollars:—For the purchase of fuel, an advance of five dollars shall be required at the beginning of the first session, to be repaid to the student in fuel:—For warming recitation rooms, and use of the same, first session, two dollars, second session, one dollar:—For printing monthly reports, circulars, &c. first session, seventy-five cents, second session, twenty-five cents:—For the use of the library (at the option of the student) one dollar per session:—And for damages previously assessed but not collected. Students admitted to advanced standing, if not from other Colleges, shall, if admitted to the Sophomore class, pay five dollars; if to the Junior, ten dollars; if to the Senior, fifteen dollars; in addition to the regular tuition fee.

2. Any student who shall fail, within four weeks after the commencement of each session, to exhibit to the President of the College, (who shall keep a regular record upon this subject,) the Treasurer's receipt for his College dues, may be required, at the discretion of the Faculty, to absent himself from the recitations of his class, until he shall have complied with this rule; provided due notice shall have been previously given to his parent or guardian.

3. Should a student arrive after the commencement of a session, and before the one half of it shall have expired, he shall pay all the College charges for the session, but at any time after that, one half of the same.

4. Where the Faculty are satisfied that a student of approved character is unable to pay the tuition money, they may take his note or bond for it, which shall not bear interest until two years after his leaving College, and shall never be put in suit.

CHAPTER XI.

LAW DEPARTMENT.

SECTION 1. The Law Department shall be under the exclusive control of the Professor of Law, and be subject to such rules as he may prescribe. Its members shall have access to the College library on the same terms with students of College. When they shall have satisfactorily finished their course of study they shall be entitled to the degree of Bachelor of Law, from the Trustees and Faculty of the College, by paying to the President the sum of five dollars.

2. Students of College may, at a proper stage of their studies, attend lectures on appropriate branches of the Law.

CHAPTER XII.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

SECTION 1. The Grammar School, or Preparatory Department, shall, with the advice and supervision of the President of the College, be under the government and direction of a PRINCIPAL, aided by suitable assistants. The Principal of the Grammar School shall be a member of the Faculty.

2. The course of study shall be in general such as has been prescribed for admission into College. There shall however be an English department, designed more especially for those who may not intend to take a regular collegiate course; and any member of the Grammar School, upon paying the College tuition fee, may pursue such studies in the College as are adapted to his advancement.

3. Each pupil, in order to admission, must be at least ten years of age; and must write a tolerably fair hand, read with a reasonable degree of facility, and spell with corresponding propriety. He must also produce evidence of good moral character.

4. The statutes of the College, as far as they are applicable, shall be binding upon the pupils in the Grammar School.

5. The sessions and vacations shall correspond to those in the College.

6. The tuition fee for the first session shall be sixteen dollars, in advance or within one month; and for the second session, nine dollars paid in like manner;—for printing monthly reports, &c., first session, seventy-five cents, second session, twenty-five cents. Pupils lodging in the Grammar School building shall be charged for lodging, fuel, lights, and Steward's services, first session, sixteen dollars; second session, nine dollars; to be paid in advance each session; furniture, bed and bedding to be found by the pupil. Pupils not lodging in the Grammar School building, shall be charged for wood and use of School Room, first session, seventy-five cents; second session, twenty-five cents.

7. Every pupil of the Grammar School, not resident in town, shall be lodged and boarded under the direction of his Patron, with the concurrence of the Principal of the School, and no pupil shall change his place of boarding or lodging, without the consent of his Patron and the Principal.

8. The Treasurer of the Board shall be the Treasurer for the Grammar School; and if any pupil does not present his receipt within the month, he shall, provided due notice have been previously given to the parent or guardian, cease to recite; and if the Principal allow him to proceed, the tuition of such pupil shall be charged to his account.

9. The Principal shall keep a suitable book, in which he shall enter the name of each pupil, his place of residence, and the name of his parent or guardian, and shall enter his credit for each session for which he presents the receipt of the Treasurer. This book shall, at any time, be open to the inspection of the Trustees or of the President of the College.

10. A record shall also be kept of the moral and literary standing of each pupil, an abstract of which shall be sent to his parent or guardian in a monthly report.
