BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Joseph W. Burns was born in 1940, and in his late twenties, Burns became heavily involved with the local LGBTQ+ community in Pennsylvania. After the Stonewall Riots in 1969, Burns became involved in gay political activism in Eastern Pennsylvania. Burns held a prominent role in gay liberation from the 1970s until about 1982. Throughout the course of his decades-long activism, Burns participated in marches, the Christopher Street Liberation Day, and local caucuses. He was an active member of local gay rights organizations and in contact with many national organizations that have helped to move gay rights forward.

Burns began his activism by becoming a member of the Mattachine Society in New York. Founded in 1950 by Harry Hay and others, the Mattachine Society was one of the earliest homophiles (gay rights) organizations in the United States. In early 1969, Burns received a letter from the Mattachine Society informing him that someone was seeking to form a group in the Lehigh Valley area. Burns was contacted by Ron Seeds shortly after, who had recently formed the Lehigh Valley Homophile Organization (Le-Hi-Ho) in May of 1969, and together they made Le-Hi-Ho into an organization independent of the Mattachine Society.

Burns co-founded the Pennsylvania Rural Gay Caucus, which was a coalition of representatives from LGBTQ+ organizations from communities throughout Central and Eastern Pennsylvania. The Caucus officially adopted its by-laws in November of 1976. Burns was very active with the group, and the Caucus was the only statewide LGBTQ+ organization in Pennsylvania during its existence.

In 1977, Burns formed the Lehigh Valley Citizens Concerned for a Better Community (CCBC, later Lehigh Valley Citizens Concerned for the Gay Community, CCGC). This group was named in response to an anti-gay group called Citizens Organized for Decency, and was formed to advocate for the addition of the words “sexual and affectional preferences” to the protective clauses of the Human Relations Ordinance in Allentown, PA.

Around 1978, Burns established the Gayline, which was a local suicide prevention hotline in the Lehigh Valley area. Burns, having volunteered for local suicide hotlines in Reading and Allentown for several years, wanted to create one specifically for the LGBTQ+ community. Gayline Allentown operated out of Burns’ spare bedroom in his apartment and lasted for around two years.

Burns was also active in the PA Lesbian/Gay Support Network and was briefly a member of the Allentown National Organization of Women, a diverse group of activists that supported the ERA [Equal Rights Amendment] and participated in marches in Washington D.C. and Chicago, Illinois. Burns continued his fight for gay rights and promoted the importance of talking and listening to women, to promote inclusive activism.

Burns’ work within the Central Pennsylvania gay community remains an important piece of the history of the LGBTQ+ community in the Commonwealth.

Today, Burns resides in the Central Pa area.

COLLECTION DESCRIPTION

Joseph W. Burns started to donate these materials in 2013 as the first contribution of historical documents to the LGBT Center of Central PA History Project. These materials reflect his involvement in, and document, LGBTQ+ activism in Central PA.

This collection contains materials from 1968 – 2015, but the bulk of the materials focus on LGBTQ+ activism from 1970 – 1980. There are 14 Series which highlight LGBTQ+ activist organizations, legislation, publications, photographs, personal/miscellaneous items, media, and artifacts, as well as Subject Files regarding people, organizations, or issues related to LGBTQ+ activism. Materials include documents, photos, a cassette tape, and multiple artifacts.

Additionally, books donated to the LGBT History Project by Burns are listed in a separate PDF Appendix.

SERIES 2 – Citizens Concerned for a Better Community (CCBC)

Lehigh Valley Citizens Concerned for a Better Community (CCBC), later known as Lehigh Valley Citizens Concerned for the Gay Community (CCGC), was an activist group in the Lehigh Valley/Allentown, PA area. This group was formed to advocate for the addition of the words “sexual and affectional preferences” to the protective clauses of the Human Relations Ordinance in Allentown, PA. The goal of the CCGC was to cultivate and secure a more open-minded and safer environment for gay individuals in the Lehigh Valley and to encourage fuller participation and fulfillment of good citizenship by gay persons in the larger community.

This series contains General Business, Newsletters, Minutes, information pertaining to the Allentown Human Rights Ordinance, Rally information, Correspondence, and Newspaper Clippings documenting the gay rights fight in Allentown, PA.

SEIRES 4 – Pennsylvania (PA) Governor’s Council for Sexual Minorities

The Governor’s Council for Sexual Minorities was an officially appointed advisory committee created by Governor Milton J. Shapp in 1976. Governor Shapp, by executive order, declared that all executive branch offices and services were to end discriminatory practices and policies against all LGBTQ+ employees, clients, and program of state services. The proposed council was his instrument guaranteeing the implementation of his decree throughout the Executive Branch of state government. Council committees consisted of knowledgeable LGBTQ+ activists appointed by Governor Shapp to work side by side with official state employees to monitor and rewrite government regulations and practices to reflect the executive order.

SERIES 5 – Lehigh Valley Homophile Organization (Le-Hi-Ho)

Lehigh Valley Homophiles Organization (Le-Hi-Ho), founded in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, was created with the goal of “generating community” and fighting for LGBTQ+ rights in the Lehigh Valley Area. The organization disseminated information to the members and the greater Lehigh Valley community by way of communal meetings and a monthly newsletter. It functioned under an open membership policy, the only prerequisites being that a member must be of legal age and have “sympathy” for the purpose of Le-Hi-Ho. However, membership was composed of voting and non-voting members. It was deemed a “privilege” to be a voting member, and that role could be obtained by participants after they had attended two consecutive meetings and submitted their name for membership. Le-Hi-Ho provided council, legal aid, and outreach programs to local individuals, as well as education through their self-curated library, which Burns started in 1969. It also sponsored social events for the community and participated in extensive political activism on the local and national scale. The group was in existence for over twenty years and believed to be the first gay rights organization in Pennsylvania to be formed outside either Philadelphia or Pittsburgh.

This series contains General Business, Correspondence, Event Flyers, Board of Directors information, and Newsletters.

Series 7 Pennsylvania (PA) Rural Gay Caucus

The Pennsylvania Rural Gay Caucus was formed under the mission of “promulgating the concerns and freedoms of gay people and all sexual minorities.” Membership was open to anyone regardless of age, and voting privilege was obtained by attending one meeting in the “proceeding six months.” Leadership consisted of two co-chairpersons, a secretary and treasurer. It was a requirement that one chairperson be male and one female. The caucus included representatives from LGBTQ+ organizations in Harrisburg, Lancaster, and other small cities, and drew support from these organizations and colleges throughout the state. The caucus met monthly in Harrisburg and constantly lobbied with state legislatures. It held a series of annual statewide conferences that focused on LGBTQ+ issues, and was the primary sponsor of Gay Lobby Day, also known as Gay Education Day, where the PA LGBTQ+ community gathered in Harrisburg at the State Capital to lobby their legislatures to gain support for laws to protect LGBTQ+ rights in March of 1976.

This series contains General Business, Publicity information, Gay Lobby Day information, Newsletters, Meeting information, Correspondence, and information from specific sub-committees.
