To Issue Another Alumni Directory in 1930

ANOTHER Directory of Living Alumni, similar to the one published in May, 1925, will be published in 1930, and distributed to the members of the General Alumni Association without charge, it was decided at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the College in November.

In their annual Fall meeting, the Alumni Council recommended that another directory be published as the one issued in 1925 is now practically out of date and of little value. Acting upon this recommendation, the Board of Trustees immediately voiced their approval.

The new directory when it is published will be issued free to Life Members and those who have paid their annual dues of $2 in the General Alumni Association.

The plan is to follow the same arrangement as was done in the 1925 directory giving three listings of the alumni by classes, geographically and alphabetically. Names of alumni to and including the Class of 1924 appeared in the last issue so that the new directory will contain the names of the graduates and non-graduates of five more classes and possibly also the names of the students now in College.

The work of issuing the new directory has been partially under way for some time. In preparation for the use of new addressing machinery, a careful check has been made of all the alumni names and addresses. New stencils have been cut and the new machine was used for the first time in the mailing of this number.

Before the directory is published several pieces of first class mail will be sent out by the College in an effort to determine the correctness of the addresses.

Alumni are urged when observing any mistake in the addressing of their mail to notify the DICKINSON ALUMNUS at once. If any alumnus has two addresses and prefers the use of his home or business address as the place for receiving College mail, notice should be sent if the correct one is not being used. When notifying others of change in address, alumni are urged to send such notice to the DICKINSON ALUMNUS. This is especially true of preachers and teachers. While it is true that Conference minutes give addresses, they are published long after a preacher is in his new abode and the advance newspaper clippings cause considerable work to the office staff, permit many chances of error and then at best often find an address which is only a good guess.

The new stencils contain the name and address of the alumnus with his class and the postal zone in which he receives his mail. This full imprint will appear on some of the mail every alumnus will receive. A glimpse at the envelope used in mailing this number will explain this. If there is any mistake the alumnus is requested to indicate it and return the stenciled imprint to THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS. In making up the stencils it has been difficult in many cases to determine how to carry the name of an alumnus in the records. Some prefer to drop part of their full name or to write it differently than it may be used by the College. Any stencil will be changed on request to conform to the desire of the alumnus. The name of an alumnus will appear in the directory as it appears on his stencil.

In spite of all efforts to keep the mailing lists in shape, many addresses have been lost. A special effort will be made

Three More Lifers

Three more names have recently been added to the growing list of Life Members in the General Alumni Association.

Harry H. Nuttle, '06, of R. D. 1, Denton, Md., sent in his check in September while in October, Frederick S. Stitt, '95, patent attorney of Washington, D. C., signed up for life as did Arthur J. Latham, '10. Latham is a member of the faculty in Horace Mann School, New York City and lives at 430 W. 118th Street.

Life membership costs $40 and may be paid in two installments of $20 each. It carries with it life subscription to THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS and all the privileges of active membership in the General Alumni Association for life. The principal is invested to provide an income which will be a guaranty fund for the work of the Association in the days to come.

before the directory is issued to secure all missing addresses and the alumni will be asked to cooperate in sending in any information they may have. A great deal of work is entailed in address lists at all times, and it is hoped that alumni will help to lighten this burden as much as possible.

In suggesting the publication of the new directory, Boyd Lee Spahr, president of the General Alumni Association, also raised the question as to whether a biographical directory similar to the one published in 1905 could be issued. It was found that the cost would be excessive and while it was agreed to publish the other type, it is likely that an effort will soon be inaugurated to collect the material for the College records at least which would contain a biographical account of each alumnus. In the office of the Alumni Secretary at many institutions such records are kept constantly up to date. Proponents of the idea for Dickinson fear that with each passing day the danger increases of being unable to gather this material. At the present time, however, there appears to be no way to finance this project.

Inasmuch as the new directory will be issued to members of the General Alumni Association, every alumnus is urged to pay up his 1929-30 dues of $2 if he has not done so since last Commencement or to become a Lifer. The number of directories to be printed will be determined by the membership roll of the Association.

Museum Acquiring Dickinsoniana

With the announcement that one of the new rooms in Old West would be devoted to the establishment of a museum for Dickinsoniana, a quantity of material has been received to be added to that now in the College Library as a starter for this treasure house.

Thos. N. Rawlins, '82, of Seaford, Del., has turned over a number of programs, posters and leaflets which will bring back memories to the '76-'86 Group. From time to time some of this material will be reproduced in the magazine.

Harry L. Price, '96, when in Carlisle for Home-Coming, brought along the lantern slides he showed several times at meetings of the Baltimore Club and some material referring to former President McCauley.

Through purchase from his estate, THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS has acquired a number of the pictures made by the late A. A. Line. These were found by his executor in a storage cabinet kept by the photographer.

Mrs. Charles K. Zug has also sent in a collection of material which had been kept by her late husband and is valuable to the College.

All alumni are invited to send in any Dickinsoniana which they believe would be an addition to this museum.

Alumni Council Holds Fall Meeting

THE ALUMNI COUNCIL after playing host at luncheon to members of the faculty, November 1st, assembled in the Macauley Room of West College and among other things started a movement to have alumni members of the board of trustees chosen under direction of the General Alumni Association rather than by the present method.

A committee was appointed to take up the matter with the trustees and urge that alumni representation on the board be restricted to members of the Alumni Association, that present districts be discontinued, that nominations be made by the Alumni Council and that voting be restricted to members of the association.

Boyd L. Spahr, '00, Philadelphia, was in the chair as president. There were present the Rev. Harry B. Stock, the Rev. Edgar R. Heckman, Harry L. Price, Judge E. M. Biddle, Jr.; Robert H. Conlyn, George E. Lloyd, Charles E. Wagner, Leon A. McIntire, Congressman J. Banks Kurtz, Mr. Arbogast and S. Walter Stauffer. President Filler and Gilbert Malcolm, editor of The Alumnus, also attended. For the first time in years, L. T. Appold was kept from the meeting by illness. Letters of regret were read from Judge E. Foster Heller and J. H. Caldwell, members of the Council.

President Filler addressed the Council in the course of which he recommended that dinners of the alumni clubs should be scheduled far enough in advance to permit announcement through the College Bulletin. He also urged the organization of additional alumni clubs.

The Council was asked to encourage reunion classes to consider the desirability of memorial gifts to the college. He also called for alumni influence in persuading the fraternities to rearrange the "rushing" season so as not to interfere with the football season. To postpone rushing until after Thanksgiving he thought, would be desirable.

He proposed the election of alumni trustees under direction of the Alumni Council and urged alumni participation in plans for the 150th celebration of the founding of the college in 1933.

A report from the treasurer of the association showed that during the year $500 had been deposited in the trust funds of the association, as proceeds of life membership fees. Life memberships were emphasized by Mr. Malcolm in giving his report on THE ALUMNUS. An item of $300 of association funds was set aside for Commencement Alumni Day expense.

President Spahr appointed Messrs. Stock, Lloyd and Stauffer a special committee to recruit association members from the class of 1930.

Acting on the suggestions of President Filler the Council requested the editors of THE ALUMNUS to give all possible publicity aid to the alumni club dinners, that the council go on record as favoring a postponement of the fraternity rushing season until after Thanksgiving and that it stands ready to cooperate with the college administration in planning the 150th anniversary of the college.

Dr. Heckman reported for a special committee appointed the year before to investigate the athletic situation at the college. He reported that considering the high scholastic requirements for admission, hopes for athletic success must be entertained with that in mind. He said that the committee found the college administration willing to promote athletics within the limits of their powers and standards and that many of the grounds for complaint which prompted the committee's appointment had been dissolved.

The Council also registered its opinion that in 1930 there should be published another directory of living alumni and distributed as in 1925 through the Alumni Association.

Carnegie Report Falls Short in Football Survey

BY PROF. F. E. CRAVER

Head of the Department of Physical Education, Dickinson College

ACADEMIC circles, a short time since, were a bit agitated by a report of the Carnegie Foundation dealing with athletic conditions in the universities and colleges of the United States. The report was scanned by the newspapers of the country and the one item to which the Foundation had devoted most of its energies, the evils of "recruiting and subsidizing of athletes," was given wide publicity.

To those who were even moderately versed in the practices prevailing in college and university athletics, nothing new was revealed, nor is it likely that there will be any radical changes in the methods of procedure with respect to the doings which the Foundation discloses.

Frankly, we are disappointed in the report which we have studied with considerable care. We had expected the Foundation, further and explicitly known as the Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, to deal more fully than it has done with the educational side of the problem.

As we perused the preface of the report and came upon statements such as we quote below from the pen of the President of the Foundation we began to hope that at last some real and lasting benefits were to come from the study of an old and vexing problem. President Pritchett says: "When the intellectual life of a body of students is on a low plane, the difference between the formal credits of men in training for intercollegiate contests, and those of the ordinary student who is not in training may be inappreciable," and again, speaking of the "intellectual integrity" of our academic institutions as affected by the craze for athletic supremacy he decries "the compromises that have to be made to keep such students in the college and to pass them through to a degree to give an air of sincerity to the whole university regime," and finally concludes that "If commercialized athletics do not affect the educational quality of an institution nothing does."

The President of the Foundation is on the right track, but we search in vain to find that his investigators have disclosed any striking facts to support his point of view. They do indeed clearly prove an admitted fact, that athletes are bought, paid for and delivered by enterprising alumni and others, to which fact these enterprising persons make answer: "That is nobody's business but our own. If we wish to help a young man to get a college education and he happens to be a good football player, and plays the game, and enjoys it while going thru, that is nobody's concern any more than if he were a good debater, a good musician, or any other kind of good performer who might be sent to college by any one of us."

We have our views on this phase of alumni activity and the logic which supports it, but pass that by for the present to recur to President Pritchett's point of "intellectual integrity." We wish that some real investigation of that side of the problem had been entered upon. We do not believe that a mere study of intelligence tests is sufficient, for intelligence that gets nowhere except to the football field, because of a lack of effort, is of no value. Moreover we are not sure that the intelligence of a group of high class athletic students is far from normal, which does not imply by any means that it is exceedingly high.

On the problems of "intellectual integrity" we should like to find in the report some facts with respect to the following:

- (1) What standards of admission are set in those institutions whose record in football year after year is so remarkable?

(2) Are the same admission standards insisted upon for the athlete as for other students?

(3) Have any of these institutions stultified their "intellectual integrity" by adding to the curriculum courses designed to be of service to "worthy football players"?

(4) Are courses so adjusted for athletes that they may maintain their scholastic standing so as not to fail of eligibility for athletic contests?

(5) Is there a feeling among certain members of the faculty that allowance must be made in the classroom in the case of these over-worked athletes?

(6) Is there any pressure internal or external in these college circles to bring it to pass that athletes do not fall from grace?

(7) What proportion of star football players finally graduate?

Limited as our opportunities are for first hand knowledge we are acquainted with the following facts:

When we were searching for a football coach last year, and interviewed the coaches of more than a half dozen high schools; coaches who were candidates for the job, we were informed in answer to our queries that on their squads, the number who could qualify for entrance to Dickinson was practically negligible. We were, however, informed that a considerable number of these athletes would enter one college or another last fall, and we have noted that this was true. Year after year we have seen athletes, rejected because of scholastic deficiencies at Dickinson, bob up in the academic halls of other colleges.

We know of cases of high class football players admitted in special or partial courses in other collegiate institutions when such players had not completed a high school course. One we know who had not completed the eighth grade.

We readily call to mind a number of collegiate institutions which include a course in "business administration" and strangely enough practically every member of the football team is enrolled in this department.

On the fourth problem which we have suggested we have much second hand information, but such as to lead us to believe that no one can safely answer to this query "It is never done."

We have heard it urged by alumni and we have heard it stated by good fellows in professional ranks that it is not fair to expect the boy playing football to maintain the same standards as others in the class who have no such drain upon their energies. A gross case of what actually does happen by faculty indulgence in institutions distinguished in the football world is that of (X) a student in one of these Pennsylvania colleges. (X) was a student in this institution for four years, but only during the football season! He was a big man in a big college, but had to get out and hustle to add to his resources during the rest of the year to support a family.

We have heard of exceedingly unpopular professors in institutions of football fame, who insisted that football men should make good in class, and we have been told by such professors that they were "advised" to soft pedal on requirements for the sake of the game, the alumni and for personal reasons.

Question 7 requires more of investigation than we have been able to undertake. We note every year that the great teams at X, Y, and Z will lose by graduation certain stars. We cite the case of team X which in a certain year suffered the inevitable loss by graduation of five stars. We happen to know that only one of these stars departed from his alma mater with the coveted diploma.

Shall Dickinson stand for "intellectual integrity" or shall we dismiss this fetich with a wave of the hand and devote our time and energies to the development of a football team that will cause our ears to tingle and make us proud of ourselves as Philadelphia is proud of her Athletics, New York of her Yankees, the United States of America of her world champions, Jack Dempsey and his successor, Mr. Gene Tunney?

Predict Another Victorious Basketball Season

LOOKING forward to another highly successful season Coach McAndrews is sending a large squad of players through daily workouts in preparation for the opening of the basketball campaign in a game at home with Blue Ridge on December 13th. Eighteen games are slated in the three months' campaign including tilts with Pennsylvania, Princeton, C. C. N. Y., Swarthmore, and two games with Bucknell, F. & M., Ursinus, Mt. St. Mary's and Gettysburg.

There are three outstanding games on the schedule, many will say, and they will list Penn, Princeton and C. C. N. Y. Practically every contest will see two strong teams in action, however, and a hard campaign is expected by the Dickinson coach.

Pennsylvania will be met in the Palestra on Wednesday evening, December 18th, and it is predicted that a large number of alumni from Philadelphia and vicinity will be on hand for this game. All of the Dickinson appearances in Philadelphia have been notable events, and basketball followers turn out in crowds to see the conflict. The Dickinson Club of Philadelphia plans to send out notices calling the alumni to this game where they will sit in a special section. Penn won the rubber game in a seven game series by defeating Dickinson on the occasion of the opening of the new gymnasium last January and Mack is smarting for revenge!

At the Penn game last season, hundreds were turned away and it is being predicted that the gymnasium will be crowded again on January 3rd, when Princeton will come to Carlisle for the big home game of the season. The following night, the team will play another stalwart foe by journeying to New York City to meet C. C. N. Y., one of the strongest quintets in the East. Notices will be sent to the New York alumni calling on them to attend this game.

Aside from the Princeton game, the chief interest in home games will center in the conflict with Gettysburg which will close the season on March 5th, though it is safe to predict that most of the students and many of the townspeople will cross the mountain to see the game in Gettysburg on Lincoln's birthday. Because of the strength of their teams from year to year, real battles will be expected in the two Mt. St. Mary's games, and the Bucknell and F. & M. series will both be lively affairs.

The basketball squad suffered few losses by graduation and has been materially strengthened by additions from last year's Frosh five and the ineligible list. It is predicted that the presence of Foley, a Middler at Law School, who was ineligible last year, at one of the forward posts will make the team unusually strong. Bill Angle, captain of the football team and a veteran, will likely be at the other forward position.

In the practices to date, Mack has been using Joe Myers of last year's Freshman team at center and he seems to have the call, though last year's substitute, Jenkins, is putting up a battle for the job.

Capt. Hoffman will hold down one of the guard positions and it now appears that the veteran Paul Smith will start at the other guard though he will have to beat out Potamkin, Shomock and Lavanture to do it. Ed Johnson, who broke his collar bone in football, Forcey, Brillhart and Baron, who were on the squad last year are out for jobs, while Williams and Charley Myers of last year's Frosh quintet are seeking recognition.

Philadelphia alumni will have two other opportunities to see the team in action at either the Swarthmore game in Swarthmore on February 7th or in Chester the next night with P. M. C.

Entertains Football Team

Following the Army game, the football team hurried to New York City where they were the guests of the Waldorf Theatre for the performance of "House Party." Arrangements for the entertainment of the squad were made by William R. Mohr, '15, who is now counsel for the Actors' Equity Association and is prominent along Broadway.

The team spent the night at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Sight-seeing was curtailed by a heavy rainfall before the players returned to Carlisle.

Seats for Princeton Game

The Princeton University basketball team will play Dickinson in the Alumni Gymnasium at 8.30 o'clock on Friday evening, January 3rd. It is expected that a number of Dickinsonians and alumni of Princeton will come to Carlisle for this contest and that there will be a greater demand for tickets than will be available.

Dickinsonians who wish to see the game should immediately send in requests for reserved seats at $1.50 each. Application may be made to either Paul W. Pritchard or Gilbert Malcolm.

Season Basketball Tickets On Sale

For the first time in history, season tickets for the home basketball games have been placed on sale by the Athletic Association. There are nine games to be played in Carlisle, and reserved seat season tickets for all of these games will be sold for $6.50.

If purchased separately reserved seats for the nine home games would cost $8.25, with the purchaser running the risk of being able to secure tickets for the Princeton, F. & M., Bucknell and Gettysburg games. It is expected that every seat will be sold for these conflicts.

Under the scale of admission set by the Athletic Committee, the cost of seeing the games will vary from 50 cents to $1.00 for general admission while reserved seats will cost from 75 cents to $1.50. Reserved seats for the Princeton game will be $1.50 with general admission $1.00, while the reserved sections will be $1.00 for the F. & M., Bucknell and Gettysburg games with general admission 75 cents. For all other games, general admission will be 50 cents and reserved seats 75 cents.

All of the games will start at 8 o'clock except the Princeton game which will be called at 8.30.

THE 1929 FOOTBALL TEAM

 Middle Row—J. Myers, Jenkins, Forman, Shomock, Roberts, Williams, Cook, Schermer, Lehman, Hartman, Griesemer, Forcey, C. Myers and Davendish.

Another Football Season Closes in Disaster

TWO victories, one tie, two defeats and five walloping marked the disastrous 1929 gridiron campaign which closed on Thanksgiving Day. While a poor season had been anticipated it had also been predicted that the 1929 season would show an improvement in the kind of game played. Through part of the campaign this prediction proved true. However, the strength of opponents and the slowness of the Dickinson players to develop under the strain of a hard ten game schedule brought disaster in the concluding contests of the season.

Eleven days after college opened and with less than two weeks of practice, the opening game was played against Ursinus at Collegeville on Sept. 28th and resulted in a 6-6 tie score. Two victories were won over George Washington University by a score of 7 to 6, and over Juniata by the score of 19 to 6 on successive Saturdays on Biddle Field.

Immediately following these victories, the eleven dropped two hard fought games. Though losing to Gettysburg by the score of 6 to 0, the team played its best game of the season and only by the margin of a forward pass dropped back of the goal line failed to snatch a tie or victory. Followers of the team were well satisfied with that game for it was feared that the powerful Bullet eleven would prove too strong for the Griffith coached team. On the following Saturday, an upset happened when the P. M. C. eleven ably coached by "Si" Pauptis, former Dickinson mentor, snatched a 7 to 6 victory in the closing minutes of play after deserving to win throughout the battle.

While the Dickinson eleven was beaten early in the season by F. & M. and Muhlenberg, these defeats were not altogether unexpected. F. & M. had one of its greatest teams in the season just closed and had just played a great game against Penn when on the following Saturday Dickinson was the victim before a cheering throng at Lancaster.

The final score was 32-0. The Dickinson warriors went to Muhlenberg the next week expecting an even battle, but the fraternity rushing season had been going full blast and that played its part in the second half showing of the Red and White. Muhlenberg sent a whirlwind into the closing session and easily trounced Dickinson to the tune of 20-6.

Following the P. M. C. defeat came three terrific lacings in a row, from Army, Swarthmore and Bucknell. Dickinson had been sandwiched in between the major games of the Army schedule simply to keep the Cadets in smooth running form for the big games to come. But the Army lost to Illinois the week before and newspapers were talking of a shake-up of the Soldier eleven in preparation for the important battles ahead when Dickinson's eleven suffering from stage-fright trotted out on the field at West Point. A powerful second team soon rolled up three touchdowns and pulverized the Dickinsonians, while before the game was over and the score board read 89 to 7, all of the Army players had seen action and but one substitute remained on the Dickinson bench. In spite of the overwhelming score much satisfaction was felt when in the third quarter, the Dickinson team through the brilliant running of Capt. Angle after he had caught a forward pass scored a touchdown and kicked the placement goal.

Meeting the Garnet team the following Saturday while the toboggan was highly greased, Dickinson was swamped by Swarthmore by the score of 32 to 0.

On Thanksgiving Day, the eleven journeyed to Lewisburg where a Sophomore halfback named Hinkle, of the Bucknell team, was heading for the distinction of being the leading scorer of the East. Before the first half ended, his ambition was realized and in the sixty minutes of play he tallied fifty points. The 78 to 0 score will likely stand as the last football game which will be played between Dickinson and Bucknell for some years.

The record of the season is as follows:

Dickinson	6	Ursinus	6
Dickinson	0	F. & M.	32
Dickinson	6	Muhlenberg	20
Dickinson	7	George Washington	6
Dickinson	19	Juniata	6
Dickinson	0	Gettysburg	6
Dickinson	6	P. M. C.	7
Dickinson	7	Army	89
Dickinson	0	Swarthmore	32
Dickinson	0	Bucknell	78

The August, 1929, number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS stated that George Washington University is located in St. Louis, Mo. It is located at Washington, D. C. Dr. L. McMaster, '01, is Professor of Chemistry in Washington University, which is located in St. Louis, Mo.

Fire Destroy's Kronenberg's

A disastrous fire of unknown origin which started in the basement utterly destroyed the Kronenberg Building which housed the store of S. Kronenberg's Sons, fifteen offices and eight apartments on the morning of December 7th, just as this number went to press. The total loss will be $300,000.

For a time it appeared that the whole South Hanover Street block would be wiped out, but the firemen were able to confine the blaze to the Kronenberg Building though smoke and water did considerable damage to the stock of Bowman & Co., next door.

Edward S. Kronenberg immediately announced that he would rebuild at once to carry on the business established in 1866. During the afternoon and while firemen were still fighting the fire, his architect arrived with the builder and began making plans for the new building.

Athletic Field Addition Heads More Improvements

THE purchase of additional land to the south of Biddle Field in preparation for a greater sports program was announced recently by President Filler and heads the list of a number of recent improvements and additions to the College plant. The new tract is 240 by 400 feet and will make possible the enlargement of the athletic field at any time. For a time the question of purchasing the entire block on which three houses now stand was considered, but it was decided this was not necessary.

A new Steinway upright piano was bought this month and installed in Bosler Hall.

A garage has been built under the dining room of the President's residence and a fine driveway laid around the house leading from High Street.

Seven tennis courts have been built back of the new gymnasium. Five are double courts while two are singles.

Through the gift of Boyd Lee Spahr, '00, full gymnasium equipment has been acquired and installed for the department of Physical Education.

The improvements to Old West were completed by the opening of the academic year when all of the administrative offices were in their new quarters. The appearance of the main hallway with its President's Gallery of portraits is especially striking and changes the whole aspect of the building. This number of the magazine presents pictures of all the changes in Old West.

The purchase of additional land at the athletic field will provide needed room for an expanded outdoor athletic program. Besides the football teams, there was a soccer squad at practice this fall and a girl's hockey team frequently in action.

TREASURER GILBERT MALCOLM IN HIS PRIVATE OFFICE

THE CARNEGIE SURVEY

DICKINSON took its "bumps" along with most colleges of the country in the Carnegie Foundation survey on the commercialization of football. The college authorities wisely made no efforts to dodge the situation at the time the survey was made, though frankly they could and did give out statements to the effect that conditions had changed radically during the years since the conference was organized.

Alma mater, though not put on the "white list" by the Carnegie surveyors was revealed as given to less reprehensible practices than many others of its own and other classes. This is some comfort to those who feel that college athletics are over emphasized and unless rationalized must go the Frankenstein route.

To go deeply into this question of college athletics, the ethics thereof, the purpose thereof and the results thereof is to open endless controversy. Where so many colleges are "tarred with the same stick" there is perhaps less humiliation than if the reverse were true.

But it is quite apparent, from the Carnegie disclosures that there are several formulae which if intelligently used can produce winning teams. Almost invariably it is a question of subsidy and subsidy in this cases means money. The world knows that any institution which chooses to adopt such formulae are more likely to have winning teams than those which for any reason at all do not choose to adopt them. Dickinson itself knows by experience how the thing can be done. Anytime it chooses to readopt the old formulae, it very probably can produce similar results.

So it ought to be quite apparent to the alumni of this institution as well as to those of others that while there may be other routes to victorious athletic teams, there is still another which if followed closely by the cash register in the hands of prudent and diplomatic cashiers is almost certain to produce if not hundred per cent results, at least results more or less gratifying to those who regard victory glorious no matter what the price.

Alumni of Dickinson therefore have their opinion of methods. The Carnegie survey has had the triumphant result of showing how widespread the subsidy method is. Each college may choose at what peril or safety it will, the way to athletic victory and prestige. It can be represented by athletes who in mild or vigorous form are "shanghaied" to the campus and training table or by the boys who can matriculate without removing some scout's hand-cuffs.

HOME COMING DAY

EVERY thing, even the split-hair difference between defeat and victory for the eleven proved conclusively the wisdom as well as the logic of garnishing "Home Coming Day" with a football game at Carlisle instead of Harrisburg. In retrospect nothing seems so incongruous as the old custom of having the "home-coming game" away from "home."

There was not much in the way of weather for the return of old grads and friends,—there never is for such events at Carlisle,—but the old grads came back just the same. They found a complete program of entertainment and the usual spirit of hospitality among the students and college officials.

Each year "Home Coming Day" means more to the college and its graduates. The future of it continues promising.

CLASS MEMORIALS

IT IS gratifying to record that at least two and possibly a third class have in contemplation the presentation of memorials to the college at their reunions in June. For a time it seemed as though the classes had caught the habit and that none would be too poor in spirit or substance to leave with alma mater some mark of affection. Recently there have been gaps in the ranks.

Perhaps in an institution like Dickinson it is too much to expect an unbroken line of class donors and still with the memorials now in prospect there are not many groups which will pass into history without leaving some mark of their loyalty on or about the campus.

Word comes that the class of '99, now more than thirty years out of college, has in mind a gracious tribute to Dr. Morris W. Prince, former head of the history department. The class plans an endowment for a prize to be known as the "Morris W. Prince History Prize," an expression not only of affection to a delightful and efficient teacher but of loyalty to the college.

It is known that the class of '09, which just passed its 20th reunion, is raising a fund which when completed will be used to serve the college welfare. So it is probably with other classes. Many of them have already made their contribution, some of them twice and contemplating a third and more at the appropriate time. It is an inspiring example in devotion which these classes set. It ought to be adopted generally. None is so poor in substance or in spirit that it cannot when it reaches a fitting stage, lay its offering in the lap of alma mater. Alma mater does not stand in so great a need of these gifts as do the classes themselves.

ALUMNI TRUSTEES

AMONG the many important actions taken by the Alumni Council at its fall meeting in Carlisle was the appointment of a committee to confer with the trustees of the college to leave the mechanics of electing alumni members of the board to the General Alumni Association.

Briefly this means that only members of the association will be qualified to vote for alumni trustees, nominations will be made by the Alumni Council and the four alumni districts will be abolished. The alumni will continue to have four trustees on the board, but their selection will not be restricted by district lines.

In this respect there is no thought of usurpation of the rights of the alumni, if rights they may be called. The present plan is largely ineffectual because it provokes so little response. The process of nominations is cumbersome and impractical.

There is nothing unreasonable in the view that the selection of trustees to represent the alumni should be reserved for those alumni who are interested enough to join the Association. Such probably are the only ones who function under the present plan of selection so the proposal is one to change form and not substance.

With the Alumni Council responsible for the nominations care will undoubtedly be given so that without the sacrifice of capacity alumni nominated will be representative both as to territory and classes. While it was not so specified, it is hoped that under the new plan terms of alumni trustees will expire at intervals rather than in the same year.

In recommending the change in procedure, the Alumni Council is not only adopting a practice common at many institutions, but adopting a practical and efficient method for one that is neither one nor the other nor both.

THE MORNING LIGHT IN MEMORIAL HALL

Many Attend Annual Fall Home-Coming Celebration

A TYPICAL Commencement rain-storm greeted the opening day of the annual Home-Coming and Parents Day but did not greatly mar this annual festival on November 1st and 2nd. Many alumni joined with the parents at the various events and the Alumni Council held its annual meeting in Carlisle for the first time.

The program opened with a luncheon to the Professors of the Faculty of the College tendered by the Alumni Council in the Molly Pitcher Hotel. The annual fall meeting of the Council followed in the McCauley Room.

On the eve of the Gettysburg football game a demonstrative "Pep" meeting was held in Bosler Hall. Prof. Leon C. Prince was the principal speaker and he startled his hearers by charging that the team was not receiving proper support from the student body. A reception was then tendered to all guests by the President and Faculty in Memorial Hall.

Saturday's program included special chapel exercises in the morning, the football game in the afternoon and open house at the fraternities in the evening.

Harry L. Price, '96, member of that body spoke to the students as the representative of the Alumni Council at the special chapel exercises, while all of the other speeches were made by the fathers of students. Dr. James N. Rule, Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction for Pennsylvania, father of a senior; Rev. Dr. Howard Ake, District Superintendent of the Harrisburg District of the M. E. Church, father of a junior; Dr. G. Gailey Chambers, Professor of Mathematics in the University of Pennsylvania, father of a Sophomore, and Boyd Lee Spahr, Trustee and President of the General Alumni Association, father of a Freshman—and a Sophomore, were the other speakers.

Though Dickinson lost to Gettysburg

6 to 0 in the annual football game, the day was not ruined. Dickinson entered the game the underdog and the team played a great game against a powerful team which won the plaudits of the thousands who saw the conflict.

The evening social events were well attended and many of the guests visited all of the fraternity houses where dances were in full sway.

Chapel Three Days A Week

With the opening of the academic year, President Filler inaugurated a new Chapel plan and since Chapel exercises have been held three days a week instead of six as had been the rule for many years. Chapel is held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday while there is optional Chapel on Friday when the orchestra presents bi-weekly musical programs. The other days are given over to class meetings, elections or such events as are subject to the call of undergraduates.

The plan was established so that greater devotional emphasis could be placed on the regular Chapel exercises.

The week of Prayer was observed this month in the Allison M. E. Church with Dr. Henry H. Crane, pastor of Elm Park M. E. Church of Scranton, Pa., as the speaker.

Conducts Huggins Services

The Rev. J. E. Price, '76, pastor of the Washington Heights M. E. Church, New York City, conducted the funeral services for Miller Huggins, manager of the New York American League Baseball Club in September. Newspapers told of the life-long friendship which had existed between the Mite-manager of the Yanks and his parson, the Rev. Price. Babe Ruth headed the delegation of players who attended the funeral with many others prominent in the baseball world.

MISS SARA BLACK, SECRETARY TO THE PRESIDENT

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARIES

SUPERINTENDENT OF GROUNDS AND BUILDINGS, J. M. BURNS

To Head Manufacturing Plant

Charles B. Houck, '89, of Hazleton, was elected president of the Harrisburg Pipe and Pipe Bending Company in October and will enter the duties of his office on January 1st. This company is one of the outstanding plants of Central Pennsylvania. It operates day and night and at present employs about 1,000 in the production of seamless steel cylinders, drop-forgings, seamless pipe couplings and seamless pump linings for oil wells.

During the war, Pipe Bending enjoyed its greatest production period, principally in the manufacture of shells and other munitions.

Mr. Houck has had a wide experience in the handling of transportation companies. Besides being head of the Wilkes-Barre and Hazleton trolley company he is vice-president and general manager of the Lehigh Traction Company; vice-president of the Wilkes-Barre and Hazleton Railroad Company, a holding company; vice-president of the Hazleton Auto Bus Company; vice-president of the Anthracite Power Company; chairman of the Wilkes-Barre and Hazleton Bondholders Protective Committee, and is president of the North Branch Bus Company which operates between Berwick and Sunbury.

To Join Scientific Cruise

In a short time Paul R. Burkholder, '24, will start on a two year cruise around the world with a group of scientists who will engage in a biological research of the food pollution in fish production. It will engage in a piscatorial study and is being arranged by the American Museum and the Buffalo Museum of Science.

Burkholder received his Ph. D. in Botany from Cornell University last June and he is now curator of Linnology in the Buffalo Museum of Science.

"Wait Till Next Year" May Come True

THE perennial cry in the midst of each gloomy football season "Wait till next year" was soon raised on the campus this fall, but the sages say that there is some truth in it. They point to two definite assurances for the days to come. One of these is the material in the Freshmen class, and the other the plans of Coach Griffith.

Most Dickinsonians respect the football opinions of Prof. Craver, who has played, coached and studied the game for more than thirty years. His declaration this fall when gazing over the Freshmen football field while thirty-five of the yearlings were going through their paces was "That's the best bunch of material I've ever seen at Dickinson," and in the next breath he added "I hope they can stay in school."

Few men will be lost from the varsity by graduation and Coach Griffith believes he can greatly develop the others before another season rolls around. He plans to allow the boys to forget football until they return from the Yuletide vacation. Then the first week in January, he will call out the men, including this year's Freshmen, who will make up next fall's squad. They will be formed into a regular physical training class under his direction and they will receive a course to fully develop their ability as football players.

The presence of a crop of athletes in the Freshmen class is owing to the plan inaugurated by President Filler. He early insisted that it is possible to interest athletes of scholastic ability in coming to Dickinson. He brought Paul W. Pritchard, '20, back to the College in the Department of Physical Education and assigned him this task. Many of the Freshmen athletes came to Dickinson largely through his efforts. The statement has been made that all of the present Freshmen met the entrance requirements and had graduated from their respective high or preparatory schools in the upper half of the class.

In the first roll-call at the end of the first six weeks, it was reported that three of the outstanding Freshmen athletes were on the scholastic danger line. Tutors were then procured for these men and they were declared ineligible for the balance of the football season. Whether they will be able to stay in college remains to be seen.

While no great effort is made to develop a winning Freshmen team, this year's eleven proved successful and waged several mighty battles. The team was coached by R. H. McAndrews and Wm. C. Shultz, '29. The Yearlings won three games, tied one and lost one.

For the first time in years, the Freshmen emerged triumphant in the annual Frosh-Soph game when the eleven of the Class of 1933 won by the score of 13 to 7 over a good Sophomore team.

The Frosh season opened by an impressive 19 to 0 victory over a very strong Dickinson Seminary team at Williamsport. Injuries and scholarship thinned the first string ranks in some of the other games and this played a part in the defeat by the score of 14 to 6 at the hands of Mercersburg Academy. "Bobby" Books is coach at Mercersburg and he groomed his charges for a hard game. As the contest closed, the Dickinson Frosh carried the ball from their own ten yard line to their opponents ten yard line where the final whistle blew.

The tie game on the Frosh record came in a 6 to 6 score with Gettysburg Academy and the big victory when the Gettysburg Freshmen team was defeated on Biddle Field by the score of 7 to 0.

Often throughout the hard season just closed, Coach Griffith looked longingly at the Freshmen squad, and sighed "Oh, if I could only pick about half a dozen of them up and put them over here."

"Wait till next year" may come true!

Dickinsonians Successful in Pennsylvania Elections

DICKINSONIANS again "brought home the bacon" in the municipal elections of Pennsylvania in November. District attorneys elected in four Pennsylvania counties are Dickinson men.

Ralph F. Fisher was elected as a Republican in York County. All the pre-election straws favored his opponent. He is 30 years old, the youngest man to be elected district attorney in the county's history. Mr. Fisher began to practice law in the office of Harvey A. Gross, a former district attorney and a Dickinsonian. Prior to his election, he served as United States Commissioner and solicitor to the school board of York.

In Snyder County a younger man than Fisher became district attorney when Henry J. Sommer, '26, '28L, was elected. In the primaries he defeated Wm. K. Miller the incumbent who sought a fourth term and was regarded as a powerful politician for the Republican nomination. While in College, Sommer was a member of the track team for three years, leader of the band and held several important student offices.

In Cameron County, Edwin W. Tomkins, of Emporium, was elected without opposition. He has been practicing two years and is the youngest man to be elected to his office in the history of that county.

Victor E. Bouton, Republican, carried the Dickinson flag in his successful campaign for district attorney of Westmoreland County. He is a resident of Greensburg. He was pitted against two rivals. He is a member of the Law class of '03.

After a hard fight and a close poll, Charles T. Hickernell won the office in Lebanon County. He also is an '03 Law man.

John H. Bonin, '17L, of Hazleton, where he has made a fine record as an attorney, was elected Prothonotary of Luzerne County. He was nominated on the Republican ticket.

Governor Honors Senator Prince

Senator Leon C. Prince, Professor of History, has been signally honored by Governor John S. Fisher, of Pennsylvania, in appointment as one of the two Senators to represent the Keystone State at the National Council of State Legislatures which will meet in the national capital December 16th and 17th.

The delegates to this body are exclusively members of State Legislatures from all over the United States, appointed by the Governors of the several states. Pennsylvania sends two Senators and three Representatives. The primary object of the Council is to resist the further encroachment upon state rights by the Federal Government—an object with which Prof. Prince has often expressed himself in hearty sympathy.

Governor Fisher named Senator Buckman as the other Senatorial delegate, and he is a veteran while Prof. Prince is a newcomer in the legislative halls. Senator Prince represents the 31st District composed of Cumberland, Perry, Juniata and Mifflin counties.

Requests Fraternity Burial

Newspapers carried the unusual story lately that a letter had been received by the Secretary of the Dickinson Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity from Edward Robert Johnstone, '70, now of College Inn, Doylestown, saying he did not have long to live and requesting the chapter to inter his ashes and conduct the burial service.

In part his letter stated: "I have a last request. When I die . . . which won't be long now . . . I want to have my body cremated . . . the ashes placed in an urn . . . and sent to Carlisle . . . and I want the Phi Kappa Sigma men to arrange for their interment near the graves of my parents in the Old Graveyard." His father, the late Rev. Mervin E. Johnstone, was at one time pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Carlisle, and his parents are buried near the Molly Pitcher Monument in the Old Graveyard.

Mr. Johnstone entered Dickinson in 1867 from Princeton University and withdrew in 1870 to become a journalist. He was on various newspapers and magazines until his retirement a few years ago. At one time he was with the Associated Press and was also editor of the Minneapolis Times, and managing editor of the New York Commercial Advertiser. He was an Indian fighter and also served in the Navy in the Spanish-American War.

Strong Track Team To Represent College

BY PROF. F. E. CRAVER

THE track squad began its year's work well by capturing the Eastern Collegiate Cross Country Championship which was contested over the Franklin and Marshall course in October. The order of the teams at the finish was: Dickinson, Franklin and Marshall, Gettysburg, Ursinus. Muhlenberg was not represented. A week later Union College at Schenectady took our measure by a score of 25-30, and again in the following week Franklin and Marshall revenged her defeat in the championship by defeating us by a score 25-30 over our own course here. Be it said that this final meet was run without the services of one of our best runners. Our cross country representatives were Boohar, Brown, F. P. Davis, Teller, Salter and Coslett.

With the cross country season over, we are trying to figure out what sort of track team we shall have in 1930. Shall we be able to duplicate the performance of 1929 by beating our old rivals Gettysburg, and by capturing the crown in the Central Pennsylvania Championships.

A glance at the losses by graduation and otherwise will cast some light on this problem. The mere mention of the names of the men lost tells its own story. Gunby, Shirk, Huey, Arbegast and Cartuiescello are gone. The total of points amassed by our trackmen in 1929 was 202. Of these points Gunby alone scored 45½; more than one-fifth of the total. Shirk accounted for 28; Huey for 15; Arbegast scored 6 and Cartuiescello 4. Summing it up we see that these five trackmen scored 98½ points, or almost one-half of our grand total.

Ten of the point winners of 1929 are still left in the ranks. Of the point winners three to enter the double digit score column are in order: Angle with 22½, Casner 19, Welliver 16, Brown 15, Bayley 12 and Boohar 11. Other point winners still with us are Davidson, Salter and Lavanture.

In addition to these veterans, the Freshman squad of last year will make some valuable contributions to our fighting force. Lehman in the sprints, Teller and Davis in the longer distances and Baker in several events, including the hurdles and pole vault have shown that they are varsity material.

The most apparent weakness of the team will be in the weights, as has been the case for several years. It is no far cry to associate our lack of weight throwers with the lack of big, fast men in the football squad. When you have the latter you almost invariably have the former.

Track work will start in earnest after the Christmas holidays. For several years a team has been sent to the Meadowbrook midwinter games, and this will probably be done this year if the proper strength is found for the special events on the Meadowbrook program.

The Penn relays will find us on hand as usual, with a good team. Four members of last year's relay squad are still in college; Welliver, Brown, Hallock and Salter. Last year's Freshman squad had several quarter milers of promise who will doubtless make the four veterans named step a lively pace to retain their positions on the team.

IN OLD BELLAIRE

George I. Chadwick, former teacher in Conway Hall, and for some years connected with the R. M. Beetem Co., became secretary of the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce on October 1st. The secretaryship became vacant on September 15th, when Frank M. Mantz resigned to accept a similar post at Hazleton, Pa.

Alumnae of Metzger College tendered a luncheon to Miss Kate Ege on the occasion of her 78th birthday on November 22nd in the Molly Pitcher Hotel. They also presented her with a radio set. Miss Ege for many years was in charge of Metzger and was a member of the faculty there.

Eugene L. Martin, a Bucknell alumnus, was campaign director of the Carlisle Community Chest which successfully reached its goal on November 1st.

The Carlisle High School football team won the Cumberland Valley championship and closed another successful season by defeating Mechanicsburg on Biddle Field on Thanksgiving Day by a score of 7 to 0.

The store occupied by the F. W. Woolworth Co., Hanover St., was again threatened by fire a short time ago. The fire was extinguished, however, before assuming a dangerous proportion. A spectacular fire occurred on the night of November 27th when the remaining old fairground buildings burned down near the Masland plant. Some of these buildings had been used for storage purposes by the Masland & Sons Company.

Jacob W. Humer, for many years in business as a locksmith with a shop across from the rear of the First Presbyterian Church, died from a heart attack at the age of 75 on October 26th. Many alumni who had him make their duplicate keys will remember him. He was the father of Christian P. Humer, '17.

PERSONALS

Edwin H. Linville suffered an attack of bronchial pneumonia in October and for several weeks was a patient at the Knickerbocker Hospital, New York City. Upon his discharge from the Hospital he spent a month with Dr. J. Warren Harper, '80, at his home in Hartford, Conn.

1882

After thirty-seven years of service as chemist to the Bureau of Health Dr. Wm. C. Robinson is now chief of the Bureau of Gas in the city of Philadelphia.

Pittsburgh Notes

R. R. McWhinney, Correspondent, 1501 Berger Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa.

D. Robert Davies, '15 was a visitor in Pittsburgh this month as a delegate to the Real Estate Association convention. He is a specialist in chain store leasing and he delivered a very able address on that subject before the convention. His place of business is located in Scranton, Pa.

The Pittsburgh Alumni Association is planning to have another banquet in the near future and it is hoped that it will surpass any previous event in attendance and in entertainment.

The Alumni who were in school during the days of the Carlisle Indian football team were reminded of that classic period by the visitation to Pittsburgh by another Indian football team from Haskell. They played here on November 23, 1929 with Duquesne University and the final score was Duquesne University 7 and Haskell 6.

Robert E. Woodward of Summit, N. J. who holds the commission of major in the Organized Reserves is one of the instructors of the class of 312th Infantry officers, which meets in Newark each week throughout the winter months.

J. Frank Puderbaugh, former superintendent of the Lock Haven High School, was elected superintendent of the Lock Haven Public Schools in August.

1917L

John H. Bonin, of Hazleton, was elected prothonotary of Luzerne County in the November elections. He won the nomination on the Republican ticket in the September primaries. His younger brother entered the College this fall as a Freshman.

1920

'77—The Rev. Dr. Frank Markey Gibson, for seventeen years librarian of the Maryland Ecclesiastical Library at the Johns Hopkins University, former lawyer, curate, editor and author, died at his home in Baltimore, on Sept. 24, 1929. He was 72 years old.

Dr. Gibson, who was the son of the Rev. Dr. Alexander Early Gibson and Mary Markey Gibson, was born January 16, 1857, in Bedford Springs, Pa. He received the degree of bachelor of arts from Dickinson College in 1877 and that of master of arts in 1880. He received the degree of bachelor of laws from the University of Maryland in 1879 and that of doctor of philosophy from St. John's College in 1893.

In 1879 he was admitted to the bar and practiced law for four years. Then he entered the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church, was made deacon in 1883 and ordained priest in 1884.

For two years he served as curate at Emmanuel Church, then was called to be rector of the Church of the Holy Innocents, where he served for a year, going from there to the Protestant Episcopal Church at Elkridge, where he served seven years.

He served for a time as curate of St. Paul's, St. Andrew's and Trinity Church, Washington. In 1904 he was called to the rectorship of the church at Westminster, where he served until 1912, when he was made librarian of the ecclesiastical collection.

From 1912 to 1914 he was editor of the Maryland Churchman, and from 1890 to 1899 was examining chaplain of the diocese of Maryland and of Washington. He also was a member of the ecclesiastical court from 1897 to 1898.

He held a membership in the Entomological Society of America, belonged to the Sigma Chi Fraternity and was a Mason. He also was a member of the Johns Hopkins Club.

Dr. Gibson was the author of "The Amateur Telescopist's Handbook" and a contributor in a number of church, scientific and literary magazines.

Surviving Dr. Gibson are his widow, who was Miss Mary Plummer, and a son, Alexander Stuart Gibson.

'78—One of the four surviving members of the Class of 1878, passed away when James Elliott passed away in Washington, on October 10, 1929. Those still living are Dr. S. L. Diven, Judge W. A. Powell and Dr. J. H. Morgan.

Born in Plainfield, Pa., he entered Dickinson in 1874, and received his A. B. in 1878, and his C. E. from Lafayette the following year. He then taught a year in Stewart's Academy. From 1880 to 1885 he was an assistant engineer of the Northern Pacific Railroad. He then returned to build the first railroad in Perry County. Subsequently, he made his home at Elliotson, near Carlisle and was in the grain business for many years. Always of scientific tastes he had more recently been in one of the scientific departments in Washington.

He was a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity.

'96—After thirty-one years in the ministry, the Rev. Everett A. Burnes, for the past seven years pastor of the Summerfield M. E. Church, Port Chester, N. Y., died in the parsonage on Sept. 21, 1929, after an illness of two weeks. He was 55 years old.

Born May 4, 1874, in Kensington, Conn., he was the son of the late Rev. Harvey E. Burnes, who occupied pulpits in Brooklyn and Connecticut. Graduating from the Flushing High School, he entered Dickinson in 1892. Following his graduation, he entered the Boston School of Theology from which he graduated in 1898 when he took his first pastorate at the Shaw Avenue M. E. Church, Brooklyn. He also served at the Third M. E. Church, Long Island City; Port Washington; Fourth Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.; Freeport, and the First M. E. Church in Meriden, Conn. He was a member of the Sigma Chi Fraternity and of the Masons. He was chaplain of the Port Chester Masonic Lodge.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Jessie Preston Burnes; his mother, Mrs. Grace Andrew Burnes; a sister, Mrs. Grace Munson, of New Haven; and a brother, Judge Charles D. Burnes, former Secretary of State in Connecticut. Burial was made in Norwalk, Conn.

'96—Ross Oenslager, Harrisburg real estate man, died in the Harrisburg Hospital, on October 21, 1929. Born in Harrisburg, April 20, 1877, Oenslager was the son of John and Harriet Oenslager. He was a graduate of the Harrisburg Academy and of Dickinson College, the Class of 1896.

He was a member of the board of directors of the Mechanics Trust Company and president of the Capital City Realty Company. He was a member of the board of directors of the former Capital City Construction Company.

He was prominently identified with the Harrisburg Club, of which he was a member of the board of directors for many years. He was a member of the old Social Club, which was later merged with the Harrisburg Club. He was a charter member of the Elk's Club, and a member of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

Besides Doctor Oenslager, he is survived by two other brothers, George Oenslager, Akron, Ohio, and Frank Oenslager, Harrisburg.

'01—Dr. Frank S. Ullom, prominent physician of Waynesburg, Pa., was found dead in his office, October 29th. He had been in ill health for some time and grown despondent. Dr. Ullom was 48 years old and prominent in professional circles and public affairs in southwestern Pennsylvania. He was a trustee of Waynesburg College from which he had graduated. During the World War he was in charge of a base hospital in France. Dr. Ullom matriculated at Dickinson with the Class of 1901. He spent his first year at Carlisle, later going to Jefferson Medical where he was graduated. He was a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

'13L—James K. Jackson, World War veteran and member of the Dauphin County Bar, died suddenly on October 14th in the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. He was 44 years old.

A few days before his death, he entered the hospital for treatment following a nervous breakdown. He had been there four days when the nurse after a short absence from his room found him dead of a heart attack.

Born in Mercer, Sept. 26, 1885, he later attended Harrisburg schools where he graduated from Central High School. Following his graduation from Princeton University, he taught languages in the Kiski Preparatory School and Harrisburg Academy before entering the Law School. After his graduation, he was admitted to the Dauphin County Bar and became the law partner of his father. At one time, he was the candidate of the Democratic Party for Register of Wills of Dauphin County.

'18—Russell R. Kohr, president of the Dickinson Club of Harrisburg, Representative of Cumberland County in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, died suddenly of a heart attack at his home in New Cumberland, on the night of October 19th. He was 35 years old.

Although he had been in ill health for a month, his death was unexpected. He first suffered an attack of neuritis, but was thought to have recovered when a blood clot caused his death.

A veteran of the World War and a former school teacher, he had been unusually prominent for a young man in church, welfare, lodge and business circles. Licensed as a local preacher in the Methodist Church, he was in constant demand for pulpit and platform work and was well-known to Central Pennsylvania audiences and congregations of all denominations.

A beautiful tribute to the many lives and hearts he had touched was paid in the impressive funeral services conducted at his home and in the Baughman Memorial M. E. Church, of which Rev. Robert C. Peters, '02, is pastor. More than 1,200 persons jammed the church edifice while hundreds of others lined the route from his home and to the cemetery while members of the American Legion with an escort from the U. S. Army bore the casket on a caisson in paying full military honors to the departed warrior. A large delegation of members of the State Assembly was also present at these services.

Born in Emigsville, York County, on May 25, 1894, he attended the grade schools of New Cumberland, for his parents moved there when he was four years old, and he graduated from the high school there. He taught in the New Cumberland High School following his graduation from the Millersville State Normal School and then became principal of the Oakville High School. He stopped teaching to enter Dickinson College where he was a Senior when war was declared in 1917. He immediately enlisted and left for Fort Oglethorpe where he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the 17th Machine Gun Battalion. Before his departure for France, he married Miss Henrietta Adams, of Williamsport, on June 16, 1918.

After service in the Argonne and with a fine war-time record, he returned after the Armistice to become affiliated with the Susquehanna Woolen Company as assistant treasurer and to ten years of remarkable activity which ended with his sudden death.

As the running mate of Senator Leon C. Prince, he was elected in the fall of 1928 on the Republican ticket as Cumberland County's representative in the State Assembly. As a member of that body he belonged to seven committees and was looked upon as one of the most promising young men in the House.

His affiliations with fraternal orders were many. He belonged to Robert Burns Lodge, No. 464, F. and A. M.; Harrisburg Consistory, Zembo Shrine; Riverside Council No. 87, Order of Independent Americans; Lahaska Tribe, No. 183, Independent Order of Red Men; New Cumberland Lodge, No. 1147, Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

He was also a member of the Citizen's Hose Company, New Cumberland, and was chaplain and member of William H. Nauss Post, New Cumberland American Legion.

A member of Baughman Memorial Methodist Church, New Cumberland, he taught the Ladies' Fidelity Bible Class, was a steward of the congregation and secretary of the official board of the church.

He was also a director of the Harrisburg Motor Club, a member of the New Cumberland Welfare Committee, and of the advisory board of the Harrisburg Hospital.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Henrietta Adams Kohr; three children: Russell Vernon, Marshall and Josephine Margaret Kohr, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Kohr, all of New Cumberland.

NECROLOGY

Mrs. Annie Bissett Malcolm, wife of Thomas D. Malcolm, and mother of Gilbert Malcolm, Editor of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, died of lobar pneumonia at her home in Bedford Hills, N. Y., on November 18th. She was 74 years of age.

A native of Strathmiglo, Fifeshire, Scotland, Mrs. Malcolm came to this country with her husband and a son, Thomas, since deceased, in 1890. She was prominent in Sunday School and mission work in New York City, until eight years ago when she fell and broke her hip. Since then she had been an invalid.
