February, 1931

Three More Alumni Become Life Members

THREE more alumni have become Life Members in the General Alumni Association since the last number of the magazine appeared continuing the new record that no number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS has been published since the inception of the Lifer roll without containing the announcement of additions.

To be absolutely honest the admission must be made that one of these Life Membership subscriptions namely that of Clarence Dumm, '11, of Kingston, N. Y., should have been announced in the August number. He sent in his $20 check for the first installment just prior to Commencement and his subscription was announced in the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association but it has never been chronicled in the magazine, through the carelessness of a rather busy editor.

The title of the "youngest Lifer" is now transferred to Edgar J. Kohnstamm, of 239 Central Park West, New York City, who graduated last June. When he sent in his check for the full $40 in January he became the first Lifer of the Class of 1930 and the youngest in the General Alumni Association. He knows that he will live more than twenty years and that he will save money by signing up for life at once.

The third Lifer subscription came from far off South America where Thomas F. Fagan, '19, better known as "Duke" Fagan, has been associated with the National City Bank of New York for some years and is now manager of the branch at Cali, Colombia. "Duke" plans a visit to the campus next fall, and wanted to be in good and regular standing.

Life membership costs $40 and is worth it! The amount may be paid in installments of $20 each unless annual dues have already been paid in which cases one installment of $18 and another of $20 is all that is necessary. It carries with it life membership in the General Alumni Association and a subscription to THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS for life.

Names Nominating Committee

Boyd Lee Spahr, President of the General Alumni Association, has appointed Judge E. M. Biddle, Jr., Merkel Landis and John E. Myers as the Nominating Committee to select the ten nominees for the annual mail election of the Alumni Council. The ballots which will also contain the names of candidates for Alumni Trustee will be mailed after April 1.

At the annual fall meeting of the Alumni Council, the candidates for the Alumni Trustee election were named but will not be announced until after April 1st. Until that date any group of twenty-five alumni may make a nomination for Alumni Trustee by sending such nomination to Dr. E. R. Heckman, Secretary of the Trustees, Carlisle, Pa. S. Walter Stauffer, '12, is the present Alumni Trustee whose term will expire this year.

The members of the Alumni Council whose terms expire in June are Robert H. Conlyn, '72; James Hope Caldwell, '80, Brig. Gen. Frank R. Keefer, '85, S. Walter Stauffer, '12 and Dr. Charles E. Wagner, '14. As secretary of the Association, Mr. Stauffer is eligible to nomination and reelection.

President Filler III

While attending a meeting of the Association of American College Presidents held in Indianapolis in January, President M. G. Filler was seized with a virulent attack of grippe and has been a sick man since. He managed to get back to Carlisle, leaving before the convention adjourned and lay ill in his home for some weeks.

He had recovered sufficiently to spend a week in his office in February and to attend the "A" dinner on February 20th in the Molly Pitcher Hotel when he presented the speaker of the evening, Prof. W. B. McDaniel, his former tutor at the University of Pennsylvania. He immediately suffered a relapse and failed to regain his strength as the attack of grippe left him in a very weakened condition.

In the following week, with Mrs. Filler he drove to Atlantic City to recuperate but he remained there only a single night. The next day, he entered the University Hospital, Philadelphia, where he is now a patient under the observation of leading physicians. Since his entry into the hospital February 24th, he has improved steadily and is gaining in strength. He will likely be able to return home early in March, though he will probably take a vacation to regain his full strength.

Since his elevation to the presidency, Dr. Filler has been working indefatigably and the attack of grippe came upon him when he was a tired man. It is his habit to work early and late, and his associates have long felt that he was setting a pace for himself which no one could maintain.

New York Club Dinner

Sixty Dickinsonians attended the annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of New York in the Salle Moderne of the Hotel Pennsylvania on the evening of February 26th. Parting somewhat from the usual run of alumni dinners, the dinner became a "stockholder's meeting" in which there was a frank discussion of the affairs of the College, and an intimate exchange of ideas.

In the course of the dinner officers were elected and Clinton DeWitt Van Siclen, '14, was named president; Rev. Fred P. Corson, '17, vice-president; Rev. Edgar H. Rue, '13, secretary-treasurer. An executive committee was also elected, to be composed of Walter V. Edwards, '10, L. W. Johnson, '03, J. Ernest Crane, '11, Robert E. Woodward, '17 and E. J. Kohnstamm, '30.

Walter V. Edwards, retiring president of the Club, presided and acted as toastmaster. The first speaker was Mrs. G. C. Cleaver, representing the alumnae. By request she recited three of her poems; one written during her college days, and another a recent prize winner, which will shortly be published. Everett F. Hallock, '30, then spoke as a representative of the Alumni Council and he was followed by the guest of honor, Dean Montgomery P. Sellers. Following the speech of Gilbert Malcolm, Dr. John R. Edwards, '96, spoke in behalf of the Trustees and Arthur J. Latham made his report as secretary-treasurer of the organization.

In a brief discussion after the dinner, the new officers practically reached a decision to hold the next meeting in the Town Hall and are also considering the formation of a Dickinson Club in northern New Jersey. The possibility of planning meetings to be held in Brooklyn and Newark was also considered.

One of the features of the dinner was the presence of four members of the class of 1930, the youngest alumni in New York.

Alumni Club Dinner Season in Full Swing

WITH the fixing of April 17th as the date for the organization of the Dickinson Club of Trenton, three alumni club dinners scheduled for March with three held in February and several others to be held after Easter, the annual dinner season is in full swing. Dinners have been held in Atlantic City, Scranton and New York City.

Under the leadership of I. Howell Kane, of 21 La Salle Avenue, Trenton, N. J., a committee has been appointed and all plans are being made for the organization of an alumni club in the New Jersey capitol at a dinner to be held April 17th. Announcements will shortly be mailed to alumni in that district but any desiring to be present are urged to communicate with Mr. Kane.

The Dickinson Club of Washington will meet in the Burlington Hotel on March 10, when Congressman J. Banks Kurtz will be the principal speaker. Dean W. H. Hitchler will represent the Law School and Prof. W. H. Norcross the faculty.

A nationally known speaker will be the headliner at the annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Philadelphia to be held in the University Club on the evening of March 20th, according to the announcements now in the mails. J. Frank Jones, of 6324 W. 21st St., Germantown, is secretary of the club and alumni who have not received notices should communicate directly with him.

On the day following the Philadelphia dinner, the Dickinson Club of Pittsburgh will meet at a noon day luncheon in Kauffman's on March 21st. The reservations for this function are being cared for by Mrs. W. A. Jordan, 1335 Singer Place, Wilkinsburg, Pa.

The first April gathering will be in the Hotel Emerson when the Baltimore alumni celebrate on April 10th. Dr. Harry D. Kruse, of 615 North Wolfe Street, Baltimore, will take in the money for this function.

No date has yet been selected by the Harrisburg club or by the Central Pennsylvania group which met for the first time two years ago in Williamsport.

"A" Students at Annual Dinner

The twenty-eight "A" students of the College were guests of the faculty at the annual dinner held in the Molly Pitcher Hotel on February 20th when announcement was made that four Seniors had been elected to Phi Beta Kappa and Prof. Walton Brooks McDaniel, of the University of Pennsylvania, was the speaker. A few years ago, the custom of holding this annual dinner was inaugurated by former President J. H. Morgan and it has been continued annually.

George B. Elliott, Edward O. Glaspey, Spencer R. Liverant and T. Guy Steffan were the Seniors elected to Phi Beta Kappa at the end of the first semester. They were initiated before the dinner and following the dinner received their keys after fitting introduction from Dr. Morgan. Dr. E. R. Heckman presided at the dinner and Dean M. P. Sellers called the roll of "A" students.

One of the best of the Virgil bi-millennium speeches yet heard at the college was made by Dr. McDaniel, who delivered an illustrated lecture which proved immensely popular with all who heard it.

The occasion also marked the first appearance of President M. G. Filler in public after a protracted seige of grippe. Dr. Filler introduced Dr. McDaniel as the speaker of the evening and revealed that during his course of graduate study in Pennsylvania he had been a pupil of Dr. McDaniel. Dr. Filler paid high tribute to his former tutor and Dr. McDaniel spoke even more glowingly of his high regard for Dickinson's president.

Basketball Team Enjoys Triumphant Season

One of the finest basketball seasons in Dickinson court history closed on March 4 when Gettysburg was defeated 35 to 26 in the Eddie Plank Memorial Gymnasium on the Battlefield campus and the season record showed fourteen victories and but two defeats. In the season of 1925-26, the Dickinson basketball record was seventeen victories and two defeats for the greatest number of victories ever tallied by a Red and White quintet.

Hundreds of students, faculty members, alumni, and Carlislars journeyed to Gettysburg to see the season's finale and all joined in giving Coach R. H. McAndrews a rousing ovation for the victorious campaign.

The only defeats were at the hands of Yale on the home floor on January 2 and from F. & M. in a game played at Lancaster February 11. Yale won by a score of 35 to 27 before the largest crowd which ever packed the Alumni Gymnasium in a game which was not perfectly played by either team. Dickinson's court stars cut short their Christmas vacation to return for practice while Yale was making a lengthy road trip.

Illness of some of the players who left sick beds to face F. & M. at a time when the team was in a bit of a slump and some questionable officiating accounted in part for the defeat by F. & M. by the score of 44 to 23.

Two victories over Gettysburg and single victories over F. & M., Ursinus and Muhlenberg gave Dickinson the Eastern Collegiate Conference Championship for the second successive year. An early season victory over the University of Pennsylvania, the double defeat of Mt. St. Marys and victories over Bucknell, W. & J., Swarthmore and Haverford were also highlights in the excellent season.

In the second game of the season against Pennsylvania, the Dickinson quintet was composed of J. Myers, center; Potamkin and Capt. Foley, forwards; Sloan and Fredericks, guards. They played the whole game and except for the shifting of Lipinski for Sloan carried the brunt of the campaign. Substitutions were few in any of the games played. This combination showed unusual power against Penn, but though victories were tallied never flashed the same smooth performance until the middle of February when a strong W. & J. team went down in defeat to be followed in succession by Bucknell, Swarthmore, Mt. St. Marys, Muhlenberg and Gettysburg.

The season's record was as follows:

Dickinson	61	Elizabethtown	22
Dickinson	39	Pennsylvania	31

The Dickinsonian Wins Cup

The DICKINSONIAN, undergraduate weekly at Dickinson College, was declared the winner of the general news contest at the fall convention of the Intercollegiate Newspaper Association of the Middle Atlantic States, representing twenty-four colleges and universities, held at Lehigh University recently.

Mr. John Merrill, City Editor of the Easton Express, in presenting a large silver loving cup, said that it was awarded to THE DICKINSONIAN because of its newsy appearance, well-balanced make-up, live heads and well written stories.

Install Electric Scoreboard

An electric scoreboard of the latest type was installed in the new gymnasium for use in basketball games in December at a cost of $500.00. The equipment was secured by the Athletic Association and was used in all but the first two games of the season.

Dickinson's score appears in red lights on the board, while the visiting team's score appears in green. The board also shows the number of minutes remaining to be played. It is controlled from the scorer's bench at mid-floor. The board is suspended at the south end of the gymnasium and can be read from any seat on the main floor.

Sends Congress Home

"Serving sixty-seven days as a Representative has convinced Robert F. Rich of Pennsylvania, that what this country needs is for Congress to adjourn and go home," read an Associated Press dispatch which was widely published in many newspapers on February 5. Mr. Rich, who is a Trustee of the College, a member of 1907, is one of the four Dickonsians now members of Congress. "He told the House Ways and Means Committee," the report continued, "it might be wise for Congress to convene at times."

A full account of the parry between members of that august body appeared in the newspaper accounts of the verbal barrage.

Football Team to Play Penn State This Fall

THE 1931 football team will meet the Penn State eleven at State College on October 17th in the third game of an eight game schedule announced for the 1931 season by the Athletic Committee in January. The seven other teams booked for the fall campaign were all met in 1930, when the George Washington University eleven was the eighth opponent.

Three of the games will be played at home and five on foreign fields. Meeting Gettysburg on Saturday, November 7th in the only home game after the P. M. C. affair on October 24th, automatically sets the date of Homecoming for the first Saturday in November and the Bullets will be the attraction. The third home game will be the season opener with Juniata on October 3rd. Ursinus, Swarthmore, F. & M. and Muhlenberg will all be met on their own fields.

Former coach P. W. Griffiths, who resigned in January after two years at Dickinson, began negotiations for the Penn State game some time ago. He is a former State star, and looked forward to leading his Dickinson eleven against the players of his alma mater. His successor, as yet unnamed, may not relish the idea so keenly!

In view of the action of the Alumni Council in November recommending that Dickinson play only the teams of institutions adhering to the same standards, it is likely that the 1932 schedule will be much different. This action came too late to make any changes in the 1931 schedule possible but no agreements are now being made for 1932. The Athletic Committee is now awaiting the full report of the committee which is now investigating the whole athletic situation as requested by the Alumni Council. Meanwhile, other colleges are closing their agreements for 1932 for football schedules are now agreed upon long in advance.

The 1931 schedule is as follows:

Griffith Resigns Post

President Filler announced that he had accepted the resignation of P. W. Griffith, head coach of football for the past two years and member of the Department of Physical Education of the faculty, the first week in January. The termination of his reign as coach caused some surprise for many were under the impression that "Red" was serving a three year contract. His contract was subject, however, to annual approval which was not generally known.

In his two years, Griffith coached teams won two games, tied three and lost thirteen. Many alumni felt that another season would tell a different story, but many others voiced dissatisfaction.

Mr. Griffith will remain at the college until June conducting the intramural sports program which has been highly developed under his guidance. He plans to continue his studies for the doctorate degree in Columbia University next fall.

Co-ed to Edit Dickinsonian

Esther F. Chambers, '32, was elected editor of The Dickinsonian, student weekly, and assumed the post the first week in March to hold the office for a year. She is the first co-ed in the long history of the publication to be named editor. She is the daughter of Dr. G. Gailey Chambers, '02.

Becomes Bank President

Joseph Parker McKeehan, '97, '02L, member of the Law School faculty, and prominent Carlisle attorney, who has been serving as executive vice-president, was elected president of the Carlisle Deposit Bank and Trust Co. at a meeting of the Board in February. He fills the post made vacant by the death of Abram Bosler on December 26th.

Mr. McKeehan has been one of the vice-presidents of the bank for a number of years. He is a grandson of Richard Parker, who was president of the bank about seventy-five years ago. The bank is the fourth oldest banking institution in active operation in the State of Pennsylvania.

Professor McKeehan is a native of Carlisle and prepared for college in the old Dickinson Preparatory School. He received his A. B. from the College in 1897 and his A. M. in 1899. He graduated from the Law School in 1902 and became a member of the faculty of the Law School that same year. He is professor of Law Contracts and Torts. From 1897 to 1899 he was an instructor of Latin, and from 1899 to 1900 vice-principal of the Dickinson Preparatory School. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

Heralds Floridan Charms

The ambitious plans of West Palm Beach and of the future development of Palm Beach County were accorded a full wide column in the December 15th issue of the Wall Street Journal in reporting an interview with Howard W. Selby, '13, who is president of the Central Farmers Trust Company of West Palm Beach.

During 1926 and 1927, nine banks in Palm Beach County closed their doors with a real loss of $50,000,000 the amount then on deposit and a paper loss of millions in readjusted values of real estate since 1925. Today there are four strong banks in Palm Beach and West

PROF. J. P. MCKEEHAN

Palm Beach, each with outside connections, ranking among the largest in the country. Mr. Selby points out that deposits are 14.9% greater in these banks than they were a year ago, while taxes have been reduced 25% and the enrollment in the schools is the largest in three years.

Calling attention to the Federal Government work of dredging an inland waterway from Jacksonville to Miami, and of the comprehensive Lake Okechobee $9,600,000 water control project now under way, and of the new sugar cane production promised through the government experimental station at Canal Point, Mr. Selby declared that the development of Florida is now on a steady basis and gives great future promise.

Youthful Law Grad Becomes Atlantic County Judge

BEFORE he passed his thirty-third birthday and with less than ten years at the bar, W. Lindley Jeffers, of Atlantic City, N. J., who graduated from the Law School in 1920, was appointed judge of the Atlantic City district court on January 19th. He is active in Dickinson affairs at the shore and is Vice-president of the Dickinson Club of Atlantic City.

In announcing his appointment the Atlantic City Press said:

"Progressive in spirit and possessing the foundation of an excellent educational training, W. Lindley Jeffers is taking a leading place in the younger group of professional men in Atlantic City, N. J., as attorney at law, and he has gained an assured footing in his chosen field of effort.

"He is a son of Andrew B. and Martha (Barrett) Jeffers, his father was many years one of the active business men of this city but now deceased. W. Lindley Jeffers was born at Atlantic City, February 27, 1898. His education was begun in the local public schools and he is a graduate of Atlantic City High School, class of 1917. Entering Dickinson College in the law department in the fall of the same year, he was graduated from that institution in the class of 1920 with the degree of Bachelor of Laws. Serving a clerkship in the offices of Judge Higbee, of Atlantic City, Mr. Jeffers was admitted to the bar of his native state, March 24, 1921. He has since gone forward along general lines of his practice and his activities have already carried him to a noteworthy position in professional circles in this city. Politically Mr. Jeffers is affiliated with the Republican party, but has thus far never accepted the responsibilities of leadership in public life. He is a member of the Episcopal church of the Ascension.

"The name of W. Lindley Jeffers, attorney, with offices in the Chelsea Bank building of Atlantic City was sent by Governor Larson to the state senate as his nominee for judge of the Atlantic City district court to succeed Judge Robert H. Warke, democrat, on January 19, 1931.

"While not openly an active figure in politics, Jeffers for the past 10 years has been one of the legal advisors of the republican organization of Atlantic City and County. He was the personal attorney for Enoch L. Johnson, county republican leader and actively identified with several county organizations.

"Senator Richards moved for the confirmation of Jeffers when the senate met in executive session the following Monday night. Jeffers is a director of the Banker's Trust company of which the Senator is president.

"Senator Richards, who offered Jeffers' name to the Governor issued the following statement soon after the latter submitted it to the senate:

"My feeling is that the position required the services of a seasoned lawyer of experience whose practice was such that he could give the required time to his duty. Mr. Jeffers has practiced before the chancery court and supreme court and therefore he is in a position to take over the respective duties of the district court of Atlantic County and perform these duties, not only impartially, but with a thorough knowledge of what the office requires. Therefore, I recommended his name to the Governor."

Lauds Bible School Work

"A few flowers here to one living his life" is urged by William Lenhart Moore, '91, of Tulsa, Okla., in writing to call attention to an unusual piece of work being done by Fred D. Oiler, '00, in the Tulsa Council of Religious Education, of which he is treasurer.

The Tulsa Council conducts the Tulsa Week Day Bible School which has grown from an enrollment of 350 in 1923-24 to an enrollment of 11,376 in 1930. In contrast to the Sunday Schools, all of these children actually attended classes. The work has grown so great that it has become impossible to conduct it through voluntary help and it is now being maintained by subscriptions and donations and pledges by the Tulsa churches. It is expected that 12,500 pupils will be enrolled this year and the budget of the Council is set at one dollar per child.

"Fred Oiler is very active in all Christian work here," Moore writes and adds "He is doing the biggest work as I see it, in this Tulsa Council which is really functioning."

Becomes U. S. Commissioner

Charles Scott Williams, '26, was appointed U. S. Commissioner at Williamsport, where he has been practicing law for some time, in February. He is one of the youngest men to hold this post, as he is but twenty-six years of age.

Williams is a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity and a member of the Lycoming County and also DuBois County bar. Following his graduation from the Law School in 1928, he served for a time as sports editor of the Evening News, Harrisburg and later was on the staff of the Altoona Mirror. He is the son of the Rev. A. S. Williams, pastor of the Newberry M. E. Church, Williamsport.

Dinner Season Opens in Atlantic City

THE Dickinson Club of Atlantic City opened the dinner season with a first meeting of an alumni club, with its annual function held in the Hotel Morton on February 6th. There were thirty-five Dickinsonians present, again testifying to the high attendance of alumni in that section of New Jersey.

Dean W. H. Hitchler of the Law School and Dr. Wilbur H. Norcross, Professor of Psychology at the College, were the speakers, while Gilbert Malcolm showed moving pictures of the last Commencement and told of alumni activities. The song-master for the evening was H. Walter Gill, '07, who is the author of several Dickinson songs.

That all Dickinson clubs will likely benefit from this meeting of the Atlantic City organization appeared when alumni and College officials present became enthusiastic over the decorative scheme used by the Atlantic City committee. The centerpiece for this unique feature was a huge seal of the College in red and silver, which had been made by an employe of the Hotel Morton for the occasion. It showed the College seal in red, with all of the symbols and lettering upon it in silver. This had been done by casting mica over the fresh drawing of the seal. Officers of the Atlantic City Club immediately made plans to have a more elaborate seal made which will later be presented to the College, to become one of the main pieces in the decoration of the Alumni Gymnasium for the Alumni Luncheon and other such functions. This plan will likely be adopted by other alumni clubs.

The officers of the Club were re-elected, including Dr. W. Blair Stewart, '87, president, W. Lindley Jeffers, vice-president, Miss Marjorie McIntire, secretary and treasurer.

Among those present at the dinner were the following:

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Whitmoyer, Miss Mabel B. Kirk, Albert A. Shahadi, Thomas G. Seidell, James A. McMenamin Jr., Gilbert Malcolm, Miss Marjorie L. McIntire, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gill, Wilbur H. Norcross, Dr. and Mrs. W. Blair Stewart, W. H. Hitchler, the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. W. Rolland Raver, Mrs. Andrew M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Spangler, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Creamer, Miss Agnes L. Bradley, M. Eleta Witmer, Mrs. Lucia V. Read, Raymond P. Read, Adrain W. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Irving E. Kline, and Joseph Webster Watts.

Dr. Clyde B. Furst, Educator, Dies Suddenly

DR. Clyde Bowman Furst, '93, educator and author, who had been secretary of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching since 1911, died on March 6th of heart disease while asleep in a chair at his home in New York City. His age was 57.

He had been suffering from high blood pressure since an attack of influenza a month ago. Otherwise he seemed to have recovered his health and no fears were felt for him, so that his sudden death was a shock to his family and friends. The near relatives who survive are two sons and a daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lowry Furst and Breeding Furst.

Ever since his graduation from Dickinson College in 1893 the career of Dr. Furst was concerned, directly or indirectly, with education. Throughout thirty-seven busy years he was either teaching, writing books of interest to teachers and pupils or serving as an executive in a university or an organization engaged in providing funds for retired teachers. In the course of his most important work, as secretary to the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, he was closely associated with Henry S. Pritchett, who recently resigned its presidency.

For eight years after he left college Dr. Furst combined with his own teaching and lecturing, post-graduate studies at Johns Hopkins, Oxford and Columbia. From 1902 to 1911 he was secretary of Teachers College, Columbia University, where he was at the same time an associate professor of English. In the period of this country's participation in the World War he was an advisor to the War Department's Committee on Education. Since 1918 he had been secretary of the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association, and on many occasions he had been consulted as an expert when various plans for pensions were being developed.

Dr. Furst was a trustee of the Harmon Association for the Advancement of Nursing, Spence School Retirement Fund, of the Boy Scouts National Council and National Committee on Education. He was a former member of the National Council of Phi Beta Kappa, a member of the executive committee of the New York Public Education Association, a former trustee of the Century and City Clubs, a member of the Faculty and Grolier Clubs. He recently completed a term of three years as chairman of the literary committee of the Century Club. He was a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity.

His books included "American Literature," "The Observations of Professor Maturin," and "A Group of Old Authors." He was a co-author of many educational reports, a contributor to the International Year Book, Encyclopedia of Education and the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Funeral services were held on March 9th in St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University. Burial was made at Brookhaven, L. I.

Building Memorial Chapel

Muhlenberg College will dedicate the new Egner-Hartzell Memorial Chapel which is now nearing completion, during the commencement exercises in June. The building which is of Gothic structure is entirely completed and workmen are engaged in completing the interior details.

The building was made possible through the gift of the late Mrs. George Hartzell, while alumni and friends of the college have made numerous gifts for the purchase of furnishings, pews, reredos, choir stalls, memorial windows and other articles.

The new chapel is a building of large dimensions and above the sanctuary rises a high vaulted ceiling. An elaborate organ and a modern heating plant are included in the equipment of the new structure.

Supreme Court Justice Sadler Dies

SYLVESTER Baker Sadler, '95, '98 L, member of one of Carlisle's most distinguished families, and an associate justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, former Chairman of the Board of Incorporators of the Dickinson School of Law, died on March 1st at Thornwold. He was fifty-four years of age and a bachelor.

Death came with unexpected suddenness, for it followed quickly on report that he was improving from an attack of pneumonia. He contracted influenza in December, and apparently had recovered, when pneumonia developed several days before his death.

Justice Sadler was one of the most eminent members of the Supreme bench, an authority on criminal procedure and a former judge of the Cumberland County court, having succeeded his father in that position in 1914. In November 1920 he was elected an associate justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

His father, the late Judge Wilbur F. Sadler, and Dean William Trickett, were the founders of the Dickinson School of Law as it is known today. Justice Sadler's intimate contact with the former dean largely contributed to his eminence in the study of the law. It also motivated him to continued interest in the welfare of the Law School. He was president of the Board of Incorporators until a year ago, when Judge W. A. Valentine was elected to that office.

Justice Sadler was by nature sedentary in habits. His scholarship, devotion to his library, both in the study of law and history, as well as literature, limited the circle of his intimate friends. But he was admired by countless numbers. He spent every spare moment in the perusal of books, which were his closest friend. His library is valued at over one hundred thousand dollars and was his particular hobby. He acquired many rare books and limited editions. It is not generally known that history was one of his favorite subjects. He was exceedingly well versed in the history of Carlisle and Cumberland County, and at one time stated that he intended writing a book about it.

Dr. Sadler was the son of the late Wilbur F. and Sarah Sterrett Sadler, and was born in Carlisle September 29, 1876. He received his elementary education in the Carlisle public schools and the old Dickinson Preparatory School. He entered Dickinson College in 1891, but withdrew in 1893 to enter Yale, where he received the A. B. degree and Phi Beta Kappa honors in 1896. He then returned to the Dickinson School of Law from which he received his LL.B. degree in 1898 and an A.M. from the College in the same year. The College later conferred the degree of LL.D. upon him.

Upon his graduation from the Law

School he became a member of the Faculty of the School and for some years combined his teaching with the practice of law. He was an authority on criminal law and while still a comparatively young man wrote a text-book, The Criminal Law in Pennsylvania, which was widely read by students and practitioners. He continued his teaching for over a decade and enjoyed a wide and lucrative law practice.

He was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church, Carlisle, member of the Cumberland County and American Bar Associations, the Hamilton Library, and Cumberland County Historical Association. He was also a member of the Philadelphia Art Club and the Union League.

He is survived by his brother, Dr. Horace T. Sadler, with whom he made his home at Thornwold. He was a brother of the late Lewis S. Sadler, State Highway Commissioner under Governor Sproul, and the late Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., Adjutant-General of New Jersey under Woodrow Wilson, when Wilson was governor of that state.

The funeral services were held at Thornwold on March 4, when hundreds of alumni of the Law School attended the services, which were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Glenn E. Shafer. The honorary pallbearers were the associates on the Supreme Court bench, and Colonel Thos. B. Kennedy, Jr. of Chambersburg and George H. Stewart of Shippensburg, both intimate friends. Interment was made in the family mausoleum in Ashland Cemetery.

Former Faculty Member Dies After a Long Illness

PROFESSOR Robert William Rogers, internationally known orientalist, author and teacher, died at his home at Chadd's Ford, Pa., on December 12th after a long illness. He was professor of English Bible and Semetic History at the College from 1890 to 1892, when he left to become professor of Hebrew and Old Testament Exegesis at Drew University, where he continued as a member of the Faculty until 1929, when he retired.

Professor Rogers is considered an international authority on Assyria, Babylonia and Persia and on the literature of the Old Testament. He is probably best known as a teacher of the Old Testament and through his writing, especially his "History of Babylonia and Assyria" in two volumes which first appeared in 1900.

He was honored by degrees from universities and colleges all over the world. Born in Philadelphia, February 14, 1864, he graduated from the old Central High School and then received his A. B. in 1886 from the University of Pennsylvania, and the following year from Johns Hopkins. In 1890 he received a Ph. D. from Haverford and the same degree from Leipzig in 1895. In 1894 he received a D. D. from Wesleyan, while he received the LL. D. from Baker University in 1899 and from Nebraska Wesleyan in the same year. In 1908 Dickinson College conferred Litt. D. upon him, as did the University of Dublin in 1914 and the University of Oxford in 1923 and the University of Pennsylvania in 1925.

He was the author of two texts of Esarhaddon, a catalogue of manuscripts, inscriptions of Sennacherib, "Outlines of the History of Early Babylonia," "History of Babylonia and Assyria," "The Religion of Babylonia and Assyria," "Cuneiform Parallels to the Old Testament," "The Recovery of the Ancient Orient," "History and Literature of the Hebrew People," "Great Characters of the Old Testament," "Old Testament Lessons," and "History of Ancient Persia."

Memorial services to Professor Rogers were held by the Faculty and the students at Drew University on January

6th in the University chapel. President Arlo A. Brown, Honorary President Ezra S. Tipple and Professor Linn Harold Hough of Drew, were the speakers. The Rev. S. Parkes Cadman offered the prayer and Professor J. Newton Davies of Drew pronounced the benediction.

Form Dickinson Club in San Francisco

THE organization of the Dickinson Club of California, looking forward to the round-up of every alumnus west of the Rocky Mountains, was effected with a luncheon held in San Francisco in the William Taylor Hotel on December 29th, when "Andy" Kerr '00, was the guest of honor. Officers were elected and the eleven alumni present became charter members of the organization.

Joseph Z. Hertzler, '13, had the honor of being the real promoter of the organization. On a business trip to the west he stopped at Palo Alto, seat of Stanford University, where he met "Andy" Kerr and Coach Glen Warner at lunch. Mr. Kerr reported some of the happenings at the last commencement and Mr. Hertzler conceived the idea of calling together the Dickinsonians in San Francisco to hear the story, as well as to pay honor to the distinguished coach of Colgate University. Mr. Kerr was coach of the representative team of the East to play a representative team of the West on New Year's Day. Returning the same evening to San Francisco, Mr. Hertzler conferred with Dr. Frank F. Flegal, '07, and together they interested Bishop Wesley T. Burns, '98, in the project.

Following the luncheon Bishop Burns was introduced by Mr. Hertzler who was master of ceremonies. The Bishop read a telegram which had been sent by President Filler relaying the greetings of the College to the new group. The guest of honor, "Andy" Kerr, was then introduced and gave a vivid report of his impressions of the College and the Faculty, gained from his experiences at Commencement.

Among the speakers were Guy LeRoy Stevick, '85, J. H. Shively, '86,

A. N. DeVall, '99 L, Horace D. Hoch, '02, and Dr. Flegal, '07. Resolutions were adopted commending the present administration of the College and one was also adopted conveying the best wishes of the group to William M. Frysinger, D.D., an honorary alumnus of the College who is now in his 88th year. A tribute was also made to Dr. Morris W. Prince and Prof. Leon C. Prince.

Frank F. Flegal was elected president, J. H. Shively vice-president and J. Z. Hertzler secretary-treasurer, while an executive committee was named to consist of Guy LeRoy Stevick, Bishop Wesley T. Burns, Dr. Frank F. Flegal, J. H. Shively and J. Z. Hertzler.

The charter members of the club as listed by the secretary are: Guy LeRoy Stevick, '85, J. H. Shively, '86, Robert K. Smith, '98 L, Wesley T. Burns, '98, A. N. DeVall, '99 L, Andrew Kerr, '00, Horace B. Hoch, '02, Frank F. Flegal, '03, John D. Alcock, '07 and J. Z. Hertzler, '13, and Dr. William M. Frysinger. Two of the charter members were prevented from attending the luncheon—Mr. Alcock was unable to be there because of the serious illness of his little daughter and Mr. Smith was prevented from being present, as he had to attend a funeral at a distance from San Francisco. Besides the charter members there were in attendance Frank and Scott Flegal, sons of Dr. Flegal, who are attending San Jose Junior College.

Any alumni who desire to be informed of the meetings of this Pacific Coast group, are advised to write to J. G. Hertzler, 1545 Green St., San Francisco, Calif. to learn when other meetings may be held.

EDITORIAL

Service to Alma Mater

A JOURNAL like THE ALUMNUS cannot serve its purpose faithfully unless it is constantly reminding the alumni of some of the ways in which service to alma mater can be rendered. Iteration and reiteration are the handy methods by which this reminder may be given.

THE ALUMNUS again calls the attention of its readers to the need for their cooperation in making the magazine readable. A very welcome and effective form is to tip off the editors to news articles. News is designed to be the essence and purpose of the magazine and only as alumni and others contribute it can the booklet serve its purpose.

The College Bulletin in its last issue cited still another form of graduate service. It is to recommend the institution to prospective students. The economic depression and the reaction from the mad post-war stampede for a college education (whether assimilable or not) has made it possible to reduce the squads of strong-arm men standing at college doorways to keep the applicants in line.

The smaller college, perhaps, feels this abatement of petitioners for admission less than the larger ones, but all feel it somewhat. Dickinson because of its high entrance requirements, will ever need the help of alumni in directing toward it the attention of students worthy and capable of admission.

And a third form of aid is in alumni readiness to point out to the philanthropic the merits of Dickinson as a worthy recipient of their generosity. Lawyers are specially gifted and situated in the drawing of wills to accomplish that purpose. Institutions like Dickinson fortunately do not depend upon government subsidy. Thus their professional independence is unimpaired but this freedom requires all the more a financial support from and through alumni almost entirely.

While opinions differ, the fact is pretty well established that for years at Dickinson, students received more than a quid pro quo. Tuition fees were ridiculously low. A great many students were graduated in actual and theoretical debt to alma mater. These ought to seize the opportunity to repay, though the greater satisfaction is to strive ever to repay however vainly for the intangibles upon which no price can be set, and to repay in service which takes many forms.

“Heirlooms”

ONE of the metropolitan newspapers within recent months took occasion to comment editorially on Dickinson's thirty-two “heirlooms” who are the sons, grandsons, brothers, uncles and other relatives of former students. The commentator's thought was that when an institution of Dickinson's size can muster in its student body of less than 600 as many as 32 students, every one of whom was preceded by a relative, the college need not care very much how it fared in athletics.

The robust football fan may not agree with this point of view and still a great deal can be said for it. Athletic championships are very desirable and worth striving to attain, but they do not make a grammar school a college. There are other things which do that and one of them is a continuity of family generations as students.

Loyalty to alma mater is a great and precious thing, but alma mater must be worthy of it. The most loyal father would rightly refuse to send a son to alma mater if that institution was not capable of educating that son. That is the way fathers look at things and quite properly and if, one generation after another, fathers decide that the school good enough for them is good enough for their son or sons feel that the institutions which educated their fathers is good enough to educate them, then that institution has a distinction which justifies what the metropolitan editor had to say about "heirlooms."

One of the great glories of the older institutions of the country is that they educate unto the sixth and seventh generation and in the main they do it not out of some dish of sentimental sauce but because they have demonstrated their efficiency and worth. Dickinson rightly prides herself on the large percentage of "heirlooms" constantly on her rolls.

Athletic Probe

THE investigation now under way by a representative committee of alumni, faculty and student body to reach the "low-down" on athletic policies at Dickinson is an entirely proper procedure. This inquiry follows such a recommendation made by a committee of the Alumni Council authorized by that body at its fall meeting.

Naturally the members of the present survey are not privileged to disclose their findings, but it is enough to know that in their sessions they are testing and examining every influence and circumstance that bears upon the athletic situation. Out of it ought certainly come enlightenment. If this be the result, the reasons for present conditions can be transferred from the realm of speculation to that of exact knowledge.

An Antidote

FOR graduates and friends of an institution who were steeped in deep gloom throughout the last football season, the achievement of Dickinson in basketball is a rather fat, jolly ray of sunshine. Out of sixteen games, fourteen were victories. Of the two defeats one was to Yale.

Basketball supremacy at Dickinson is not unusual. The calibre of the teams over a long period of years has been excellent. It was especially so this year. As an antidote for football disaster it was effective both for undergraduates and alumni.

So long as football continues to be regarded, wisely or otherwise, as a major sport of the campus, superiority in other branches of athletics will scarcely balance football defeats, yet it would surprise many of the older alumni to know the tremendous grip which basketball has on the interest of present-day students and the prestige that a winning team gives an institution.

This was especially noticeable in connection with the Yale-Dickinson game in early January. The Yale men in Central Pennsylvania organized a large party to attend the game and feasted their team afterward. The occasion was a delightful one in intercollegiate relations. While putting small institutions against large ones in athletics may be open to objections in some sports, it was not apparent in the Yale-Dickinson game.

The whole basketball season was one to justify pride and satisfaction on the part of the alumni and supporters of the college.

The Liberal Arts College Movement

DICKINSON College is one of the 208 colleges which have launched the Liberal Arts College Movement, which is about at the end of its first year. The movement grew from a pamphlet issued in December, 1929 by President Albert Norman Ward of Western Maryland College, and developed from a small meeting in Washington in January 1930 when 45 college presidents discussed this pamphlet. This led to the first convention held in Chicago in March 1930.

In his pamphlet, Dr. Ward pointed out that "within ten years or so the total student enrollment will exceed 1,000,000. About 125,000 of this million will be cared for in the institutions which will be in possession of one-half of the total college and university endowment funds in the United States. The remaining 875,000 will be cared for on the other half of the total endowment funds. And one-half of this one-half will be in the possession of about 150 institutions, including the state universities. The other half of this one-half of the total endowment funds will have to care for the balance. Should three-fourths of the money given for endowments be spent on one-fourth of the total number of students enrolled? Or, should there be a fairer division? A fairer division can only be brought about by adding substantially to the endowments of the small colleges. It is not a matter of taking from those who have and giving to those who have not. It is a question of giving more abundantly to those institutions which have not sufficient financial resources for the obligations society forces upon them."

President Ward suggested that the colleges of the country—state supported and privately maintained, institutions highly endowed or of insufficient means, come together for conference on the situation with a view, possibly, of forming an organization by which a concerted movement might be launched for securing financial resources that will enable all worth-while colleges to do their share in providing proper higher education for the students within their halls.

The pamphlet of President Ward was sent to every college and university president in the United States. From all sections of the country, from state institutions and privately controlled institutions, both large and small, came letters of warm appreciation urging that something be attempted to solve the problem. Preliminary steps toward a conference on the matter were taken by representatives of forty-five colleges who met after the close of the annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges at Washington on January 16, 1930. This group voted to issue a call for such a conference and appointed a committee on arrangements of which A. N. Ward was made chairman and Joseph H. Apple of Hood College, Frederick, Maryland, secretary and treasurer. These gentlemen and those associated with them on the committee applied themselves wisely and diligently to the planning of a conference and the enrolling of delegates, with the result that when the delegates came together at Chicago for the historic meeting of March 18-20, 1930, two hundred and eighty-eight colleges were represented. Representatives came from every state in New England, from each of the Middle Atlantic states, from all the states of the South and the Middle West, and from all but six in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific areas. Forty-two states and the District of Columbia were represented. Presidents and others from colleges ranging in attendance from a few hundred to more than five thousand, and from no endowment to fifty millions endowment, enrolled to consider the appeal on behalf of liberal education.

At the Chicago meeting a publicity program was adopted and plans laid for the study and government of financial campaigns as well as the maintenance of full cooperation with the Association of American Colleges. A convention of the Movement was held in Indianapolis in January when the following statement was presented setting forth the aims.

There are between 700 and 800 colleges and universities in the United States. In these institutions are enrolled nearly 1,000,000 students. Within the next decade this enrollment will probably reach 1,500,000 in both four-year colleges and the junior colleges. In making provision for higher education for the next decade we must take into consideration the needs of a four-year college student population considerably in excess of 1,000,000.

There are now enrolled in the state universities about 250,000 students. This total includes the summer school enrollments. One hundred institutions—those with the largest endowments—provide for approximately an additional 250,000 students, including the summer school enrollments. The state universities and these one hundred most highly endowed institutions have practically reached capacity enrollments. These institutions need greater endowments, but in most instances they do not propose to increase their enrollments. In many institutions the enrollments are already too large if the best results are to be attained.

The one hundred most highly endowed institutions, with a total enrollment of 250,000 students, hold about three-fourths of the total endowments held by all institutions of higher education in the United States. The remaining institutions—numbering between 600 and 700—provide higher educational facilities for approximately 500,000 students on about one-fourth of the total endowment funds held by the institutions of higher learning in the United States. Upon these institutions will fall largely the burden of the increasing enrollments to be expected during the next decade. It is easy to see where additional endowment funds can be applied to great advantage in making provision for over-crowded and over-taxed college and university conditions.

The proportions above stated are not fair all the way around to the 1,000,000 students who make up the total college and university population of this country. The large institutions—those most heavily endowed—need larger endowments than they now have. And in an increasing proportion the smaller institutions need larger endowments if they are to do the most efficient work in taking care of so large a share of the educational load.

Should three-fourths of the money given for endowments be spent on one-fourth of the total number of students enrolled in our institutions of higher education? Should there not be a fairer division? A fairer division can only be brought about by adding substantially to the endowments of the small colleges. It is not a matter of taking from the institutions which have and giving to the institutions which have not. It is a question of giving more abundantly to those institutions which do not have sufficient financial resources for the obligations which society forces upon them.

If it is important in as small an area as a state to attempt to equalize the advantages of elementary and secondary education so that all children of that area shall have equal educational opportunities, is it not important also to equalize as nearly as possible the advantages of a liberal education to the young men and young women of our country, north, south, east and west, who may be entitled to a college education? And where it is evident that the state cannot assume the whole responsibility in the support of higher education, is it not incumbent upon men and women of wealth to share this responsibility with the state, and thus lend their aid in placing before the youth of the nation more equal opportunities in higher education?

No communistic scheme is proposed whereby all institutions shall share alike. There will always be inequalities in endowments, in equipment, and in everything else that enters into the making of a college or of a university. But common justice requires that the great number of colleges, forced by the necessities of the case to carry such a heavy part of the educational load, should have the resources with which to do their work as society demands, and in the interest of that democracy in education which is the common right of all who may aspire to and who may have a right to a college education.

The colleges of liberal arts belong to a divine order. America has come by the way of the liberal arts colleges; and the liberal arts colleges are needed now more than ever before if that kind of leadership is to be had for the days to come which has given us the most worthwhile things in our national possessions.

College education for the American people is in the balance, and waits for the turn that will swing the things of the spirit into the ascendancy among those who are called to leadership, whether in church or in state. The American people need to be taught how to live more than they need to be taught how to make a living. The things of the spirit are the things out of which nations as well as individuals are made. Nations as well as individuals are redeemed out of the precious things of the spirit. The college of liberal arts, in its essence, stands for the redemption of the human intellect and for the redemption of the human soul.

The Liberal Arts College Movement proposes to face a situation in the field of higher education which calls for the serious thinking of serious-minded men and women everywhere who believe that the college of liberal arts has a distinct and permanent place in our American life. There are several hundred liberal arts colleges in the United States which need to be greatly strengthened financially if the opportunities of cultural education are to be fairly distributed among the million or more students who have a right to a college education. That the American people will respond generously to this appeal for the colleges is a foregone conclusion.

Let it be kept in mind that 500,000 of the 1,000,000 students must go to the small colleges if they go to college at all. There is not room for them in the well-endowed institutions. The institutions which must provide for these 500,000 students should be efficiently endowed.

"The resources of God are promised to those who undertake the program of God."

In Old Bellaire

The Cumberland Valley Telephone Co., has announced that it will erect a new building to house its business office, the telephone central office and auxiliary equipment at a cost of $328,000 during the present year. It will be located immediately across from the railroad station at site now occupied by the Carlisle diner, the G. B. Eby marble display room and part of the Shearer Bros. Garage. The building will have a 55 ft., frontage and depth of 155 ft. Through a merger the C. V. Telephone Co., recently acquired all of the Bell property in the Carlisle area.

Three major building projects at a cost of $735,000 are in sight at the Carlisle Barracks, it was recently announced by Col. C. R. Reynolds, Commandant. Completion of the project depends upon the passing of the Emergency Deficiency Act before Congress.

The Endicott-Johnson Shoe Corporation, one of the largest manufacturers of shoes in the world, recently leased a new store room in the Kronenberg Building for a retail store.

Purchase Amplifier Equipment

Following the recommendation of the Alumni Council made in the annual fall meeting, the College purchased amplifier equipment which has been installed recently in Bosler Hall. New equipment will also be used for functions to be held in the Alumni Gymnasium and will be available for use at the next Alumni Luncheon. Instead of speakers talking from their respective tables they will come to the speakers' table and use the amplifier.

At the fall meeting of the Council a resolution was adopted, authorizing the expenditure of $250.00 by the General Alumni Association for the purchase of amplifier equipment. The College contributed $600.00 to complete a contract price of $850.00 for the new instrument. Western Electric equipment has been purchased and installed and in the uses to date has proved very satisfactory.

Four Deputy Attorneys-General in Pennsylvania

WITH the appointment of Thomas W. Bender, '15 L, of Lilly and Herman J. Goldberg, '19 L, of Wilkes-Barre, by Governor Gifford Pinchot in January as deputy attorneys-general in Pennsylvania, Dickinson's quota in this important branch of State government was raised to four. Philip S. Moyer, '06, of Harrisburg and A. Lee Edwards, '12 L, of Osceola Mills, already held similar posts and were continued by Governor Pinchot.

Thomas W. Bender was born in Cambria County, Pa., forty-two years ago. He attended the schools there and started to work in the mines at the age of fourteen as a trapper boy, with a compensation of seventy cents a day. Later he entered the Indiana State Normal School, working his way through the course, and attained a teacher's certificate. He then taught school in his home township for a time, and worked for a year at the Cambria Steel Plant in Johnstown. Later he entered the Dickinson School of Law and worked his way through the three year course, graduating with the degree of LL.B. in 1915. He was admitted to the bar in 1916 and opened a law office in Lilly where he practiced for about a year, until the entry of the United States in the World War, when he immediately enlisted in the Army. He served as Battalion Sergeant-Major for two years in France with the 305th Engineers of the 80th Division.

Following the Armistice, with many other veterans, Mr. Bender availed himself of the opportunity of study abroad and took post-graduate work at Lincoln's and Gray's Inn, London, England which were open for study to the lawyers in the A. E. F.

Returning from military service, Mr. Bender resumed active practice of law in Lilly until 1929, when he established offices in the United States National Bank Building, Johnstown. He recently served as first vice-president of the Cambria County Republican Committee and was active in the political campaign of Governor Pinchot. He is an active member of the American Legion and is now serving a second term as District Commander for the 20th Pennsylvania District. He is married and lives in Westmont, and has six children.

The appointment of Herman J. Goldberg, who had been serving as Assistant District Attorney in Luzerne County, was well received by the alumni and others of the northeastern Pennsylvania district. The Evening News of Wilkes-Barre, in commenting upon his appointment, said "He is considered one of the most brilliant young lawyers practicing at the local bar."

Mr. Goldberg was born in Wilkes-Barre July 14, 1898 and attended grammar and high schools there before entering the Law School from which he graduated in 1919. He was admitted to practice before the Luzerne County Bar in 1920 and before the Supreme Court the same year. Since 1926 he has been serving as an assistant district attorney of his county. He is a member of the Luzerne County Bar Association, the Pennsylvania Bar Association and a director and solicitor of the Southside Bank and Trust Co. in Wilkes-Barre.

OBITUARY

1868—Captain Alexander Dallas Bache Smead, valedictorian of the Class of 1868, and last surviving graduate, died at his Carlisle home on the morning of February 6, 1931 after an illness of ten days. He was in his 83rd year, having been born March 24, 1848 in Carlisle, Pa., the son of the Commandant of the Carlisle Barracks.

His father, Captain Raphael C. Smead, served in the war with Mexico, leading troops into that country and on his way home after the war, contracted yellow fever and died.

Captain Smead had a colorful career, following his graduation from the College. Receiving his A. B. in 1868, he entered the Army the second year as a second-lieutenant in the United States Cavalry. In 1871 he was promoted to first lieutenant and served until 1878. In 1874 he was admitted to the Carlisle Bar. From 1878 to 1880 he was regimental adjutant of the Third United States Cavalry. He became a captain in the United States Volunteer Signal Corps in 1898. Resigning his commission from the Army in 1880, he practiced law in Carlisle.

On February 1, 1888, Captain Smead married Miss Martha Jane Stuart of Carlisle. Their daughter, Miss Jane Vaness Smead survives her father. Mrs. Smead died about six years ago.

Captain Smead was a member of Phi Beta Kappa fraternity, Phi Kappa Sigma, Second Presbyterian Church, Netherlands Association of Philadelphia, Cumberland County Bar and the American Bar Association.

1872—Rev. Daniel Webster Hart, a retired minister of the Free Methodist Church, passed away on December 16, 1930 at his home, 624 Avenue 60 S., Los Angeles, California. He had not been ill, but died of a heart attack brought on by active participation in church visitation. He was born November 14, 1848, in York County, Pennsylvania, and died at the age of eighty-two years. His parents were most excellent people residing on a farm near Lisburn, York County, Pa. His preparation for entrance into college was made in the Cumberland Valley Institute located at Mechanicsburg, Pa. After spending a year in Yale, he entered the class of 1872 at Dickinson College in the fall of 1870. He was an excellent student graduating with the class in 1872. He was a member of the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity. At the Junior Oratorical Contest for the Pierson Prize, he was awarded the gold medal, the subject of his oration being "The Dignity of Christian Manhood." After his graduation he pursued, for a time, the study of law in the city of Baltimore. Feeling a distinct call to the Christian Ministry, he discontinued this study. Prior to entering the ministry, he was Principal of the Princeton Academy near Baltimore. For a year he was on trial in the Wilmington Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, but feeling convinced that the doctrines of the Free Methodist Church were more in accordance with his convictions, he united with that body, and became a member of the New York Conference, and was a member of that conference from 1877 to 1895. He was transferred to the Wisconsin Conference at that time, in 1907 was transferred to the Illinois Conference, and in 1912 to the California Conference. He remained a member of that until his death.

During his residence in Wisconsin, he was Professor in Latin and Greek in Evansville Seminary. He was twice married, and became the father of thirteen children, twelve of whom survive him. The youngest is still in school while the rest are prominent in business, educational, and professional life. He was a Christian gentleman, excellent preacher, and was held in high esteem by his church and by those who knew him. He was very fond of his Alma Mater, and when possible greatly enjoyed participation in the reunions of his class. In 1927 he met with six survivors of his class in their fifty-fifth anniversary, with them renewing many youthful memories on the old campus. He was a devoted Christian, a Good Minister of Jesus Christ, a loving father, a true friend.

The funeral services were held December 18th, in Hermon Free Methodist Church in Los Angeles, conducted by Rev. R. H. Warren, pastor. His college classmate, Dr. Charles T. Dunning expressed a loving tribute to his memory on his behalf and that of the class.

1882—Thomas Newton Rawlins, former Treasurer of the State of Delaware, at one time teacher, farmer and lumber merchant, died suddenly on January 15th in Miami, Fla., where he and Mrs. Rawlins had gone in December to spend the winter. Born on a farm near Bridgeville, Del., October 6, 1858, a son of the late Rev. Philip H. and Rhoda A. Rawlins, he received his early education in the public schools of Delaware. He prepared for college at the Wilmington Conference Academy and received the A. B. degree from Dickinson College in 1882 and the A. M. in 1885. Upon his graduation from college he became principal of the public schools of Bridgeville and then taught mathematics and natural science at Pennington Seminary, before returning to the Wilmington Conference Seminary in 1884. Subsequently he gave up teaching and devoted his time to farming near Seaford, Del., while at the same time he was engaged in the lumber business and a number of kindred activities.

In 1904 he was elected state treasurer of Delaware and was re-elected in 1906. He was an active Republican and served his party as delegate at different conventions. He was also active in the Grange Farm Bureau movement in his state, while for more than thirty years he served as an official of St. Johns M. E. Church of Seaford. For more than 25 years he represented the Church and the Board of Stewards and in 1909 was elected a member of the Board of Conference Stewards. In 1924 he was elected to the General Conference. He was long a leader in the cause of Temperance in Delaware and in other religious movements. He was a member of I. O. O. F., and one time served as Grand Patriarch of the Grand Encampment of the State. He was a member of Theta Delta Chi fraternity and the Belles Lettres Society.

Mr. Rawlins was twice married. His first wife whom he married in 1896 was Miss Alberta Wright. They had two children, Sara, now the wife of Edward M. Jones, a representative of the Ludlow Jute Co., of Calcutta, India and Philip J. T. Rawlins, mechanical engineer of New York. His second wife, whom he married in 1927 and who survives him, was Mrs. Alva C. Davis of Selbyville.

1905—Abraham Bosler, banker, trustee of the College, leader in the affairs of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, and member of one of the oldest families in Cumberland County, died in his Carlisle home December 26, 1930. He was 46 years old.

Later he was made a director of the Carlisle Deposit Bank and Trust Co., and for the past nine years had been president of the board of directors of the bank, which is one of the oldest financial institutions in southern Pennsylvania. He was also a director of the Fidelity and Deposit Co., of Maryland, the former president of the Carlisle Shoe Co., selling his interest a year ago when he retired from the shoe manufacturing business. Until the organization disbanded, about the time of the World War, he was president of the Cumberland County Agricultural Society which promoted the old Carlisle fair.

In 1912 he married Miss Grace Wood of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the same year erected the palatial residence at the corner of College and High Streets. His four children, George Morris, 12, Martha Robinson, 10, Mary Wood, 7, and Abram, Jr., 5, also survive him.

1905—Mrs. Kathleen Gooding Rickenbaugh, wife of Dr. Calvin R. Rickenbaugh, prominent Carlisle physician and daughter of the late Prof. William Lambert Gooding, died following an operation in the Harrisburg Hospital on December 30th. Mrs. Rickenbaugh attended the Dickinson Preparatory School, graduated from the College in 1905. She was a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority and the Harmon Society. Following her graduation she took up professional nursing and upon completion of her course, accepted a position in the University Hospital of Pittsburgh, with which Dr. Rickenbaugh was also connected. After their marriage they moved to Carlisle, where Dr. Rickenbaugh began his practice.

While her chief interest was in her home, Mrs. Rickenbaugh devoted much of her time to the organizations of which she was a member and in acts of kindness toward her friends and acquaintances. She was a member of the Allison M. E. Church, the American Association of University Women, the Carlisle Garden Club, the Civic Club, Y. W. C. A., and Hospital Auxiliary.
