College and Law School Acquire Mooreland Tract

ON the afternoon of October 19th representatives of the College and of the Law School met in the office of Joseph P. McKeehan in Carlisle and completed negotiations for the purchase of the Mooreland tract, the College acquiring eleven acres and the Law School purchasing a plot with a frontage of 200 feet on College Street and a depth of 220 feet adjoining Trickett Hall. John M. Rhey, member of the Board of Trustees, and Gilbert Malcolm, Treasurer, represented the College, while Dean W. H. Hitchler acted for the Law School.

Dean Hitchler gave a check for $5,000 to acquire the portion of land for the Law School and the college Treasurer turned over a check for $49,965.66, which was the college share.

The total consideration for the portion bought by the College was set at $50,000 by the authorization of the Board of Trustees. Five hundred dollars of this amount had been given as a down payment to secure an option on it. The College took over two insurance policies in which the premium was $216, and paid its share of the taxes for the year 1932, amounting to $249.66. This brought the total amount to be paid to Joseph P. McKeehan, as executor of Euphemia P. Moore, deceased, and representative of the Halseys who also owned a one-half interest, to $49,965.66.

To meet this amount the College used $21,834.50 which had been paid on new subscriptions toward the purchase of Mooreland and $2,000 which had been collected on subscriptions made in the campaign of 1922. A borrowing of $16,131.16 was made from the current funds of the College and a note was negotiated in bank for $10,000 to meet the total needed.

At the Fall luncheon of the Alumni Council to the faculty, Boyd Lee Spahr, president of the Board of Trustees, rejoiced in the acquisition of the Mooreland Tract and stated that of necessity its development must await an improvement in the times, though he urged that the effort to secure buildings should not be forgotten or even postponed until conditions fully changed. He reminded his hearers that the property had been bought for the future and demonstrated the advisability of the purchase by reciting the experience of other institutions which had had to pay enormous sums for desired land. He recalled that Dickinson had recently had this experience when to build the Alumni Gymnasium it had been necessary to purchase the old Sigma Chi house, and looking forward to the acquisition of Mooreland at some future day the Mooreland Inn had been bought a few years ago.

No immediate construction is contemplated by the Law School on the acre adjoining Trickett Hall, though rumors have already built a new library and a dormitory there.

Subscriptions toward the purchase of Mooreland now exceed $27,000. Many alumni have sent in subscriptions since the publication of the last number of the magazine and any others who send in new subscriptions will have their names published in the next number. A total of 267 alumni have now made subscriptions toward the Mooreland purchase. The names of 173 alumni were published in the last number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS and the names of ninety-four appear in this issue. All but five classes from 1877 to 1932 are now enrolled in the list of subscribers. To date no subscription has been received from any member of the classes of 1879, 1881, 1890, 1892 and 1925. The only break from 1893 to 1932 is the class of 1925.

The Class of 1910 leads all the classes with seventeen subscribers, while 1914 is only one behind with sixteen, and 1912 with thirteen and 1911 with twelve are in hot pursuit.

Among the new subscriptions listed in this issue is one of $150 by the Dickinson Alumnae Club of New York, which was forwarded in cash through its president, Mrs. A. M. Chapman. Several members of the faculty and other friends of the college, who are not alumni, have added their names to those of this group published previously. Included in the new subscriptions is that of Brady McGonegal, college painter for the last thirty years. Those who have subscribed since the publication of the September number are as follows:

Early this month William W. Emmart, the college architect, made his first inspection of the Mooreland tract. Later a complete survey will be made and Mr. Emmart will make suggestions to the Board of Trustees concerning development of the tract for college purposes. He will draw several plans showing the possible location of buildings, walks, and the proper treatment of the land.

Workmen have already started removing all of the dead wood and cutting down some of the trees. Minor repairs were made to the house, in a portion of which William Stephens, caretaker of the tract, now resides with his wife and child. Part of the house will be used as a museum and Prof. M. W. Eddy, of the department of biology, is planning to use a portion of the garden for the development of biological specimens.

An early snowfall precluded the possibility of making a topographical survey of the tract under Mr. Emmart's direction and also prevented any immediate use of the property. In inspecting the land, Mr. Emmart stated that it would be necessary to know the different levels before much could be accomplished in a survey. A portion of the tract about the house is high and with the exception of the garden to the southwest little of it is level. In many places, limestone rock protrudes through the surface.

The many dead trees and fallen limbs made it imperative that these be removed before students of the college could use the tract. Plans are under way to use a portion near College Street for the outdoor running track required by the track team. Another part will make suitable land for the girl's archery.

It has been found that the large dwelling house on the tract is a stone building, having been plastered to a depth of about two inches. In the opinion of Mr. Emmart, the building was originally two stories high and a third story was added later. All of the trim throughout the house, including a winding staircase, is of solid walnut. All of the rooms are large and airy.

That the dwelling house is at least 100 years old, and also that the property changed hands just a hundred years ago, is evidenced by an advertisement which appeared in the Carlisle "American Volunteer" on September 6, 1832. This advertisement which was noted recently by Merkel Landis, '96, in going through the files of the newspaper for some historical data, reads as follows:

"FOR SALE

A VALUABLE PROPERTY

within the Borough of Carlisle of 15 acres of land, on which there has recently been erected a large and commodious Stone Dwelling House, Stone Stable and Carriage House, three cisterns, two of which have pumps therein, the third connected with the kitchen, an ice house and smoke house, bath house, milk house, and other out buildings. Near the kitchen door is a well of never failing water with a pump therein.

"On the property is a very large garden, also an orchard; in both of which there is a choice collection of various kinds of fruit.

"For further particulars and terms, apply to

HENRY DUFFIELD"

Henry Duffield was apparently an agent for the sale of the building, because he never held title to it. It has been a very difficult matter for Ralph T. Jacobs, '96, Carlisle attorney, to trace the title, for there are no plot plans of Carlisle during the early days of the town. It is known that the Mooreland property was owned by Isaac B. Parker as early as 1826 and he later apparently bought additional parcels to it. He left the tract, bequeathing a life estate to his daughter, Mrs. Mary P. Moore, who was the wife of Johnson Moore, and whose children received the estate upon her death. The tract eventually became the property of two sisters, daughters of Mrs. Mary P. Moore. One of these bequeathed her title to the Halseys of New York, while the other, Euphemia P. Moore, who died last, left the bulk of her estate to Carlisle charity and thus brought about the sale of the property.

Honor Dickinson in Prize Scholarship Contest

Five John Dickinson scholarships and five additional prizes are offered to students who will be qualified to enter college in September, 1933, in a contest in honor of John Dickinson, whose 200th birthday is celebrated this year, which was suggested and has been arranged by President Karl T. Waugh. At his instance, the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees recently authorized the program he outlined as a part of the Sesqui-centennial celebration.

Full terms and conditions of the prize-scholarship contest, as announced by President Waugh, are as follows:

In honor of John Dickinson (1732-1808) whose birthday, two hundred years ago, is celebrated this year, Dickinson College offers scholarships, consisting of a year's free tuition for the best essays upon the subject of John Dickinson and his patriotic services, written by seniors in high school or academy, or those who will be qualified to enter college in September, 1933.

Five John Dickinson scholarships, of the full value of $325, are offered, one for students in each of the following states: Delaware, Maryland and New Jersey; and two for students in Pennsylvania, one for those from the east of the Susquehanna River and one for those from the west of it.

Five additional prizes, each consisting of a $100.00 scholarship in Dickinson College will be awarded for the best five essays in the total number submitted, after the winning essay from each of the five sections has been determined.

A committee of judges has been appointed, who will judge the essays according to their content value and their literary merit.

The essay should be from 1200 to 1800 words in length and should be submitted before the first day of May, 1933. Announcement of the winners of the scholarships will be made at the Dickinson College Commencement, June 12, 1933.

First selection of the essays should be made at the high school, a committee of the teaching staff choosing from those submitted the best essay to be forwarded to Carlisle. Two essays may be forwarded from one school, in case the best two are judged of equal merit. More than two essays may be sent from one school, if the number sent does not exceed one-fourth of the number submitted for the competition in that school.

Each essay should be clearly marked with a symbol or nom-de-plume and addressed to the "John Dickinson Scholarship Contest", Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa. At the same time an envelope with the contributor's name, address and school, and containing the symbol or nom-de-plume which appears on the essay should be mailed to the President of Dickinson College.

Form Plans for Sesqui-Centennial Celebration

WHILE the celebration of the Sesqui-Centennial of the College has formally been opened and though the June Commencement will be flavored with references to it, the 150th Anniversary will be observed in a three day program on Friday, October 27, 1933; Saturday, October 28 and Sunday, October 29, according to the present plans of the committee headed by Lewis M. Bacon, Jr., '02.

A suggestion to hold a pageant in October was overruled and tentative plans are being made for such a presentation on the evening of Alumni Day during the coming Commencement. Undergraduates are also tentatively planning to hold a "Sesqui-Centennial Ball" on Friday evening of Commencement and cancelling the usual fraternity dances.

Chief among the products of the Sesqui will be the history of the College now in preparation by former President J. H. Morgan. A committee on publication is securing final estimates and it is expected that the volume will shortly be placed in the hands of the printer. It is expected that full announcement giving the prospectus and sale price will be made in the next number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS.

President Waugh has extended invitations to the Association of American Colleges, the Liberal Arts Movement group and the Association of Pennsylvania Colleges asking them to meet in Carlisle next October at the time of the Sesqui-Centennial and he is also engaged in securing prominent speakers for the various functions to be listed in the program.

At a meeting of the committee in November, it was decided to abandon a former plan to distribute after sale Sesqui-Centennial memorial plates. A subcommittee, headed by Mrs. J. B. Meredith, '01, made a report of an extensive survey which had been made regarding this project which led to a long discussion of the proposal.

Boyd Lee Spahr, President of the Board of Trustees, is actively seeking portraits of distinguished alumni and indications are that several fine portraits will be presented during the celebration. He is also communicating with descendants of the founders of the College, and an effort will be made to have them as guests of the College during the observance of the anniversary.

For publicity purposes, orders have been placed for one hundred thousand red and white seals one and a half inches in diameter and for ten thousand pennant labels. Each of these will carry a reproduction in miniature of the doorway of Old West and the words "Dickinson Sesqui-Centennial" and the dates "1783-1933." The seals and labels will be distributed to Dickinsonians for their use.

At the November meeting, Mr. Bacon appointed a Local Committee which will be in charge of all local arrangements and will execute the plans of the Trustee's committee. This committee is composed of Dr. Herbert Wing, Jr., chairman; President Waugh, E. M. Biddle, Jr., Merkel Landis, Dr. B. O. McIntire, Dean Meredith, Dr. E. A. Vuilleumier and Gilbert Malcolm.

Several meetings of the Local Committee have been held to consider various phases of the celebration. This committee has reacted favorably to the suggestion of staging a pageant in some form during the Commencement season rather than in the fall. It is believed impossible to stage a pageant in October, a month after the opening of college and for that reason largely the suggestion had been abandoned. The Committee has referred the project to the Alumni Day Committee, with estimates of the cost of presenting it in the Alumni Gymnasium on Saturday night of the coming Commencement.

Council Recommends Creating a Loyalty Fund

THE establishment of a loyalty fund to which alumni would make annual contributions will be recommended to the Board of Trustees following unanimous action at the annual fall meeting of the Alumni Council, held on November 11th. The Council will recommend that a committee be appointed to be selected from the Board of Trustees, the Alumni Council, the administration of the college, and the Library Guild, to study the possibility of creating this fund.

Many colleges and universities throughout the land now have similar funds to which the alumni contribute annually instead of being called upon periodically for miscellaneous causes. During the recent campaign for the purchase of the Mooreland tract, many alumni wrote in saying that they wished the college asked annual contributions instead of asking only for specific needs in emergencies.

For some years the Library Guild has been receiving annual contributions from many alumni. In fact, the Guild has created its endowment largely in this means. In recent years the alumni were called upon during the campaign for endowment, buildings, and other improvements in 1922, and some were solicited individually after the close of this campaign to swell the total. Another appeal to alumni was that for the fund for the erection of the Alumni Gymnasium on which there is still an indebtedness of $75,000. During the present year alumni have received letters from the President of the Board of Trustees and the President of the General Alumni Association, calling for subscriptions toward the fund for the purchase of the Mooreland tract for $50,000. Many alumni were called upon personally by representatives of the college. About $27,000 has been subscribed to date by alumni for the Mooreland project.

Three Alumnae Lifers

Helen E. Hackman, '28, and her sister, Alice E. Hackman, '30, both of Carlisle, Pa., became life members of the General Alumni Association in October.

Mrs. Janet Harman Hartzell, '26, Mt. Holly Springs, Pa., became a life member in December.

Members of the Alumni Council foresaw that no move should be made which would in any way endanger the present annual gift to the Library Guild. Therefore, representatives of the Alumni Council who may be appointed to study this proposed program will urge the inclusion of the Library Guild program in the proposed loyalty fund project.

If the Board of Trustees accepts the recommendation of the Alumni Council, as it probably will, the committee will study the successful funds of other institutions and devise a plan to meet the present need at Dickinson.

The annual fall meeting of the Alumni Council began with a luncheon to members of the faculty, President and Mrs. Waugh, in the Molly Pitcher Hotel on November 11th. President Harry L. Price, of the General Alumni Association, presided and Boyd Lee Spahr, President of the Board of Trustees, was the only speaker. Dr. J. H. Morgan pronounced the invocation.

At the meeting of the Council, held in the McCauley Room of West College late in the afternoon, it was decided that until further notice the publication dates of the ALUMNUS be September, December, February and May, instead of August, November, February and May, as has been the rule for several years. This change was made because May and August numbers were quite similar in past years. Last year the editors experimented with the publication of an ALUMNUS in September which carried the news of the opening of college, rather than a report of what had happened at commencement. The response to the publication of this number proved the desirability of the plan.

President Price reported to the Council on the subject of removing the body of John Dickinson to Carlisle, from the Friends' Graveyard in Wilminigton, Delaware, and this matter was held over for future meeting of the Council, following a brief discussion of the many developments since the project was first suggested. It appeared in these discussions that the newspapers of Delaware were protesting the removal of the body from that state, though it was also said that all of the lineal descendants of John Dickinson had consented to it and several of them were enthusiastic about the project.

A proposal to ask alumni to cooperate in vocational guidance programs at the College, which had been suggested in 1930, was renewed and by direction of the Council sent to President Waugh for his consideration. Several members of the Council reported that in their discussion with members of the student body, they had found very few of them with any definite ideas as to their probable vocations in life, and thus learned of the need for a vocational guidance and counsellor. Council suggested that members of the alumni body be asked to come to the college and speak to the undergraduates about the work in their chosen professions or businesses. The present Y. M. C. A. of the college is already carrying on a program of this kind in a modest way and the students themselves heartily favor it.

The Alumni Council rejected a proposal to make life membership in the General Alumni Association mandatory upon each member of the senior class. Under the plan it was proposed that the alumni life membership fee be charged as a part of the student college bill.

Following a complete discussion, the President was directed to appoint a committee to investigate the permanent investment of the life membership funds of the Association and report at the next meeting of the Council. President Price appointed on this committee F. B. Sellers, chairman, Dr. Harry B. Stock, and George Ross Hull. It was also directed, by motion following discussion, that approximately $1200 par value U. S. Government bonds be purchased with the funds then uninvested of receipts from life memberships.

Members of the Alumni Council who were present were: President Price, Dr. Harry B. Stock, Harry D. Kruse, Dr. W. Blair Stewart, George Ross Hull, Arthur L. Latham, J. Boyd Landis, G. W. Pedlow, F. B. Sellers, S. Walter Stauffer and Gilbert Malcolm.

Make Bequests to College

Dr. George Lancaster Brown, late physician of Lucknow, Pa., made a bequest of $25,000 to the College in his will which was filed for probate in Dauphin County in October while three other bequests were made by alumni. Dr. Edwin Post, '72, former dean of DePauw University, bequeathed his valuable Latin library to the college, and the wills of William P. String, '91, and W. W. Carhart, '80, contained monetary bequests.

A trust fund of $25,000 to provide for the education of needy boys was outlined in the will of Dr. Brown. His will was written in 1919 and eight years later he married and did not write another will. His widow has filed a widow's exemption petition, being entitled under Pennsylvania law to the widow's exemption of $500, the widow's inheritance of $5,000 and one-half of the residue of the estate. The appraisal shows that Dr. Brown left an estate amounting to $167,000. George Ross Hull, '07, Harrisburg attorney, is representing the College in the matter.

Beloved Professor Answers Divine Summons

THE Rev. Dr. Morris Watson Prince, retired clergyman, father of Prof. Leon C. Prince, and perhaps the most popular and best loved member of the faculty since 1896, died at his home in the early morning of December 22nd, succumbing to the infirmities of his years at the age of 89. Though in failing health for some years, Dr. Prince did not become seriously ill until a week ago when he was able to make a trip from his Mooreland Avenue home to the business district in the interest of others.

The late President, Dr. George Edward Reed, and Dr. Prince were college classmates at Wesleyan University. It was Dr. Reed who induced Dr. Prince to accept the call in 1896 to leave the ministry and become professor of history and political science at Dickinson College. Possessing a keen understanding of youth and a lovable and sympathetic classroom demeanor, Dr. Prince quickly became a beloved member of the faculty and his courses were highly popular. He served for fifteen years until his retirement in 1911, when his son, Prof. Leon C. Prince, who had been an instructor of the College, succeeded him, and became head of the department of history.

Dr. Prince was born in 1843 at East Boothbay, Maine, the son of Rev. Ammi and Jane Davis Prince. He was of old New England stock, one of his ancestors on the paternal side having come to this country on the Mayflower. He received his early education at Bucksport, Maine, and received his A.B. degree with Phi Beta Kappa honors in 1868 from Wesleyan. Later he studied at the theological school of Boston University, and in 1871 he entered the active ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

He quickly stamped himself as a preacher of unusual ability and enjoyed a wide reputation as an orator throughout New England, where he served many important charges. His first parish was at Plymouth, N. H., and he subsequently served pastorates at Concord, N. H., Dover, N. H., Haverhill, Mass., Stamford, Conn., Brooklyn, N. Y. Bristol, Conn., and New Haven, Conn.

In 1881 he interrupted his ministerial profession and entering the field of education, he became president of the East Maine Conference Seminary in Bucksport, Maine, which he served until 1884. Again taking up ecclesiastical duties as an active pastor, he repeatedly declined responsible positions with educational institutions until 1896 when he accepted a call to come to the college.

In 1890 Wesleyan University conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology. As an undergraduate he was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity at Wesleyan. He was a member of the American Historical Association and of the Society of Political Science, and he was a Knight Templar.

He was a frequent contributor to newspapers and educational magazines. As a preacher, his poetry of diction captivated and enthralled his congregations.

Although independent in political thought and act, Dr. Prince was always keenly interested in government and until his death was one of the few surviving persons who had voted for Abraham Lincoln in 1864.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Katherine Buck Prince, a son, Professor Leon C. Prince, a daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Swift, wife of Dean C. L. Swift, '04, of the Hill School, Pottstown, and a sister, Mrs. Martha Studley, of Warren, Maine.

Funeral services were held from the late residence, with the Rev. W. Emory Hartman, pastor of Allison M. E. Church, officiating. He was assisted by Dr. W. J. Thompson, of Drew, a lifelong friend of Dr. Prince, and by Chaplain Ruter W. Springer. Interment was made in the Westminster mausoleum in Carlisle.

Among the many floral tributes were remembrances from the Dickinson clubs of Harrisburg, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Northeastern Pennsylvania, Trenton and Atlantic City.

Former Dean of Women and Oratory Instructor Dies

Mrs. Lucretia Jones McAnney, former Dean of Women and Instructor in Public Speaking and widow of the Rev. Charles H. McAnney, died on November 26th at the home of her son, Lorraine, in New York City. She was in her 74th year and had been in failing health for some time, though her fatal illness lasted only a month.

Mrs. McAnney was born in Philadelphia on July 20, 1859, the daughter of Benjamin P. and Martha Yeoman Jones. She lived there until her marriage in 1886 to the Rev. Mr. McAnney whose parish was in Princeton, New Jersey, and who was later transferred to the New York Conference of the M. E. Church. After her husband's death in 1896, Mrs. McAnney taught Public Speaking and delivered lectures on Shakespeare in the New York Board of Education's lecture course.

She came to Dickinson College in 1906 as Dean of Women and Instructor in Public Speaking. At that time Lloyd Hall on West Pomfret Street was used as the women's dormitory. While acting as head of the Department of Oratory, Mrs. McAnney arranged for departmental and class oratorical contests which were largely attended and in which the competition for honors was keen. During her years at the college, she was active in promoting dramatics and directed the presentation of several outstanding successes by the Dramatic Club. At several Commencements, she presented plays of Shakespeare, and was always in demand as a reader of the works of that writer. She remained at the College until her retirement in 1914, when she went to New York to make her home there.

Surviving are her two sons, B. O. McAnney, who is assistant city editor of the World-Telegram, and Lorraine Y. McAnney, junior executive of the Commercial Investment Trust Corporation. Her son, B. O. McAnney, received his degree from the College in 1913, and Lorraine was a member of the Class of 1915, but graduated that year from DePauw University. Mrs. Lorraine Y. McAnney is also a Dickinsonian, having been Margaret Thompson, '14.

Burial was made in the Mount Prospect Cemetery, Asbury Park, New Jersey.

Dickinsonians Score in November's Election

NOVEMBER'S election was so unusual, involving so many upsets, that even now it is impossible to determine how Dickinsonians fared as candidates. That they scored in many places is indicated by available records.

The Dickinson quota in the United States Congress had been reduced by one in the primaries last Spring. Its survivors, J. Banks Kurtz, '93, of the Blair-Bedford-Clearfield District, and Robert F. Rich, '07, with a long string of North Tier Pennsylvania counties in his district, won their elections. To the quota was added Wilbur L. Adams, '05, attorney of Wilmington, Delaware, who won a seat in Congress with a large plurality vote in Delaware.

The Pennsylvania Superior Court was given a Dickinsonian in the election of Arthur H. James, '04 L, former lieutenant-governor of the State.

In the Senate of Pennsylvania the Dickinsonian delegation was increased to four members, in spite of the fact that it lost one in the defeat of Senator C. H. Clippinger, '99, from the Franklin-Adams District. He lost by only a few votes to an alumnus of Gettysburg, Senator Rice. Dr. Leon C. Prince, '98, member of the faculty, won a re-election. New Dickinsonians in the garb of solons are George L. Reed, '04, Dauphin District, and C. W. Staudenmeyer, '16 L, Schuylkill District. Prof. A. J. White Hutton, of Chambersburg, member of the Law School faculty, was re-elected to the House from Franklin County.

A bit of Horatio Alger atmosphere surrounded Robert E. Woodside, '26, '28 L, who was elected from Dauphin County to the Pennsylvania House in which he once served as a page boy.

Ivo V. Otto, '04, was defeated as the Democratic candidate for the Pennsylvania House in Cumberland County, when the whole county vote landed in the Republican column.

Outside of Pennsylvania the returns show that Dr. Milton Conover, '13, a professor at Yale, made a creditable run as an independent candidate for the United States Senate from Connecticut.

Florida returns show the election of W. Gerry Miller, '21, '23 L, of Fort Lauderdale, as prosecuting attorney of Broward County.

Robert A. Kendall, '25 L, was defeated for the office of circuit court clerk in Monongalia County, West Virginia, of which Morgantown is the county seat. He ran against a woman, Mrs. Evelyn Hughes Yorke, a Democrat, and did better than the other Republicans who were defeated. It was his first venture into politics, and he defeated the incumbent, Clarence Roby, who had held the office for years, in a hot primary campaign.

Soccer Team a Winner

The 1932 Dickinson soccer team wound up its season this month with a total of three wins, two ties, and two losses. This is the first time in the history of this sport, which had its inception in 1930, that varsity letters have been awarded to the soccer men.

During the season just ended Dickinson triumphed over Gettysburg, on two occasions, and Western Maryland, gained ties with Delaware, F. and M., and Bucknell, and lost to West Chester State College, and Western Maryland. This is the best record in Dickinson soccer history, and under the tutelage of Coach Stephens, the Red and White booters are gradually coming into their own.

The regulation varsity "D" was awarded to Knight, D. Woodruff, Captain Jessop, Miller, Montgomery, Buckingham, Fritchie, Captain-elect Day, Bolter, H. Woodruff, and Rogers. Class numerals were awarded to two Freshmen: Kersetter and Clinton.

Another Dickinsonian Goes to Congress

With the election of Wilbur L. Adams, '05, prominent lawyer, orator, and humorous story-teller of Wilmington, Delaware, as a member of the House of Representatives in Delaware, another Dickinsonian goes to Congress. His victory in Delaware was unique, for he was the only Democrat running for a state-wide office to win. His plurality on the final canvass was 2,857, his total vote having been 51,698. The high man on the Democratic State ticket, a candidate for Attorney-General, received 54,814 votes and yet was not elected. In 1924 he was the Democratic candidate for Attorney-General of Delaware and received 4,000 votes more than the next highest man on the Democratic ticket who was defeated.

The Republican candidate for Congress whom Adams defeated was running on a particularly wet platform, while Adams, as a Democratic candidate, considered personally dry, still publicly stated that he was standing on the Democratic National platform.

Mr. Adams was born in Georgetown, Del., October 23, 1884. He attended and graduated from the public schools of that town and then entered Dickinson College, leaving in his junior year to enter the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, from which he was graduated in 1907. Upon his graduation he returned to Delaware and was admitted to the bar in Georgetown in 1907. Subsequently he opened offices in Wilmington.

At Dickinson he became a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, while he was a member of the Miller Law Club at the University of Pennsylvania. His sole fraternal affiliation is with Franklin Lodge, No. 12, A. F. and A. M., of Georgetown, Delaware. He is also a member of the Delaware Bar Association.

Hornbook Makes Bow

With a forty-two page volume, The Hornbook, a new literary magazine published by the students of the college, appeared in November. In the first issue, it declares itself as attaining to accomplish three purposes, and announces that "the future of the magazine is bright."

Editorially the aims of the new publication are set forth as being to "satisfy to a great extent those high cultural objectives for which Dickinson stands," while also offering to the student the incentive to write, and being the standard of literary values for both the student and the college.

The Hornbook is sold for thirty-five cents a copy and subscriptions are one dollar per year. It will be issued three times a year in the autumn, winter and spring, with a changing editorial board for each issue. The magazine is sponsored by the English Department, and was motivated by Prof. Paul H. Doney.

Football Team Has Dismal Season

A WAVE of injuries and the failure of promising athletes of other years to return to College faced with strengthened opposition from all opponents combined to dash the apparent bright prospects and resulted in a dismal football season. The season record shows one victory and six defeats with the team scoring 27 points while opponents tallied 89.

Prior and on the very eve of the opening game, Coach J. H. McCormick's plans were upset when three of the starting regulars were injured. Every week throughout the season there were similar experiences and not in a single game was the coach able to send his first string into action.

Eddie Dick, star triple threat back, whose passing played a large part in the defeats handed Penn State and Swarthmore in the 1931 season, did not get into a game all year. He was hurt against F. & M. a year ago, and in the first practice scrimmage this fall he went down again.

In student body discussions and Dickinsonian articles during and since the campaign, there has been little calculation about what "might have been." Members of the coaching staff point out however that perhaps the greatest weakness of this year's eleven was in the absentees, rather than in the hospital list. They point to the fact that but one of the outstanding stars of last year's brilliant Freshmen eleven returned to college and that three out of four others who did not return played on other college teams.

Four men who would have been on this season's eleven had they not withdrawn from College for one reason or another include Yount, who played tackle at Lafayette; Shotwell, who is a center at Pittsburgh; Green, who was one of the guards at Lehigh, and Sherman, who did not go elsewhere.

The answer to the oft heard question, "What happens to the star Freshmen?" is given in part in this year's experience when four who played on that eleven in 1931 and undoubtedly would have won places on this season's varsity did not return to college for financial reasons. Of these men, Gaines, of Altoona, was a promising lineman; another, John Clark, of Pittsburgh, was a quarterback, and Crosswell, of New York, and Kamka, of Baltimore, were hard hitting, fast running backs.

The season opened with a disappointing loss to Ursinus by the score of 7 to 0, disappointing because many felt the score could have as easily been reversed. The game the following week with Muhlenberg, became a fiasco, when an official ruled interference on Dickinson on several successive forward passes. Spectators felt these decisions virtually presented Muhlenberg with a 13 to 0 victory and resulted in a near riot after the game.

The team journeyed to Meadville the following week to play the first of a series of three games with Allegheny. It was Home Coming Day, and the two elevens battled evenly with Dickinson emerging victorious for the only time during the season when Stover, a tackle, blocked an attempted punt, caught the ball and ran 91 yards for a touchdown, and then later the same Stover dropped on a fumbled punt back of the goal line after it had been touched by an Allegheny player to bring the score to 13 to 0.

The mighty team of P. M. C. proved no match for the Red Devils the following week at Chester. The Cadet eleven was the largest team faced all year and easily turned in a 25 to 0 victory.

Arousing from a lethargic start, the Bullets had things their own way in the annual clash with Gettysburg which was played in the Battlefield town and ended with the bells celebrating a 25 to 7 verdict in favor of the Brehm-Frank coached eleven.

Though bowing in defeat by the score of 13 to 7, against F. & M., the following Saturday on Biddle Field, Dickinsonians were thrilled with the remarkable fight staged by their eleven and the fine game played. Many found solaces for the hurts of the season in viewing this struggle.

The worst football weather in years marked the closing game of the season which Swarthmore won by the score of 6 to 0 on a rain drenched, miry gridiron. Football was practically impossible that day and it was anybody's game, played before a mere handful of spectators.

Basketball Team Faces Stiff Schedule

DICKINSON College opened its current basketball season on December 9th and 10th, tripping Pratt Institute in Brooklyn by a 27 to 21 score and losing the following evening to the College of the City of New York by a score of 45 to 17.

The initial showing of the Dickinsonians on the metropolitan invasion may be taken as a good indication of what the season's results will be. Dickinson with a varsity composed of four veterans and one sophomore, and plenty of good reserve material, will run into trouble on the road, but should have a comparatively easy time at home. Coach MacAndrews' team this year is composed of good floor workers and the teamwork will be close to perfect. However, there is an apparent lack of accurate shooters.

The schedule this year is one of the most difficult in recent years and lists eight games at home and seven away. Four teams that appeared on the Dickinson schedule last year are missing: University of Pennsylvania, Haverford, Moravian, and Crescent A. C. of New York. A like number of new rivals have been scheduled in their place: College of the City of New York, Rutgers, Villanova, and Penn A. C.

The rivalry between Dickinson and

C. C. N. Y. is one of old standing, likewise that of Villanova, but Rutgers and Penn A. C. have never opposed a Dickinson basketball team before. Dickinson and C. C. N. Y. have met on six different occasions during the past decade, Dickinson triumphing but once and this year's win bringing City College's total to six. The Dickinson-Villanova rivalry dates back even farther than C. C. N. Y.

The team this season is smaller in stature than usual, averaging about five feet ten inches, in height. Captain Joe Lipinski and Lloyd Hughes are the only regulars from last year's team. Lipinski will again play at guard but Hughes has been shifted from forward to center. Leon Sloan, who won his varsity letter as a member of Dickinson's crack 1930-31 team, and then last year could not break into the starting lineup, will be Lipinski's running mate in the back court. Charles Kennedy, first string substitute last year, and Percy Wilson, a sophomore, have won the regular forward berths.

MacAndrews' first team includes two seniors, two juniors and a sophomore. Both Lipinski and Sloan graduate in June. The reserve material consists principally of juniors with only one sophomore. The personnel of the second team: James Reeves and Robert Finney, forwards; Milton Davidson, center; and John Fowler and Ben James guards. All but Finney were on the varsity squad last year.

Fred Green, a promising sophomore, was slated for one of the guard posts on the second team, but a sprained ankle suffered just after Thanksgiving in a "tag football" game, will probably prevent his making the team this season. The ironical fact about Green's case is that he went through the regular grid season as varsity end unscathed, only to have misfortune overtake him, in the supposedly safe brand of football.

The Dickinsonians will continue to use the zone defense for which they are justly famous. Coach MacAndrews is varying it slightly this year to take advantages which the change in rules affords this style of defense. The "fast break" on the offense starting from the zone defense, which reached its peak during the Foley-Myers regime, is again in vogue and on the home court should work to perfection.

New York Alumnae Doings

Mrs. William M. Beard, of Westfield, New Jersey was hostess at luncheon to twenty-eight members of the Dickinson Alumnae Club at the fall meeting on the 15th of October.

The option for the purchase of the Mooreland tract was discussed and it was voted that the Club make a definite manifestation of their interest by pledging $150.00.

Professor Charles A. Philhower, an authority on the American Indian, spoke on the primitive implements used by the Indians, illustrating his talk by some very rare and valuable stones which he had uncovered in that section of New Jersey.

Mrs. T. K. Hawbecker, chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, assisted by Miss Margaret Craig and Mrs. Holmes Douglass, are planning for the next meeting which will be held on Saturday, the 4th of February, 1933, in New York City.

Becomes Temple Dean

Rev. G. Floyd Zimmerman, '15, has just recently been appointed Dean of the School of Theology at Temple University. For some time he held a similar post at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tennessee, and has been recently pursuing post-graduate work in Boston University, from which he graduated following his graduation from Dickinson.

Elevate Law Prof.

Prof. Leon D. Metzger, member of the faculty of the Law School, recently became Secretary of Revenue for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. For several years he had been deputy secretary and is a member of the bar of Dauphin County, where he practiced law. He is continuing as a member of the law school faculty since his elevation to the new post.

Becomes a Knight of Swedish Kingdom

William D. Thomas, '12, became a Knight of the Kingdom of Sweden at the offices of the Swedish consul at New York City in November, when the Swedish consul bestowed upon him the Order of the Vasa, first class. He will journey to Sweden in January to appear before King Gustav to receive knighthood from the royal hand, an honor that is attained by few people.

The presentation was made by the consul in the name of Gustav V, King of Sweden, in the stead of the Swedish minister to this country, who relayed the insignia of the order to New York from the ministry in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Thomas won his right to membership in the Order of Vasa through continued service in the interest of foreign countries in his position as president of the American Association of Fine Steel Importers. As president and general manager of Sandvik Steel, Inc., importers of products of Swedish steel manufacturers, with offices in the Woolworth building, New York City, Mr. Thomas became head of the importers' association at a time when foreign nations were protesting United States tariffs on their products. He represented the Associations before Congress and was able substantially to reduce projected tariff on steel products. These efforts and others of his have contributed greatly to the growth of trade between Sweden and the United States.

The Order of the Vasa was originated by King Gustav III, of Sweden, in 1772. It takes its name from the Vasa family of kings and was begun early in the 16th century by King Gustav I. The medallion, received by Mr. Thomas in court dress form, is featured by a device resembling a gold sheaf of wheat which is really a fascine, emblem of the Vasas. The medallion consists of an eight pointed cross, surmounted by a gold crown, with an oval insignia bearing the sheaf in the center.

WM. D. THOMAS, '12

Mr. Thomas is a native of Easton, Pennsylvania. He left that city when four years of age to live in Pottstown, where he graduated from the high school. He spent a year at Dickinson College and is a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. He left college to take a job as a laborer in the steel industry, working in the American rolling mills at Middletown, Ohio. He worked at manual labor in every department for two years and was then brought to the main office, first as a clerk, and then a salesman, and finally manager of the New York export sales force.

Twelve years ago he became president of the Sandvik Company. He now lives at 30 Nottingham Road, Rockville Center, Nassau County, New York, with his wife and seventeen year old daughter, Jean.

MOORELAND COLLEGE PROPERTY

ACTUAL purchase by the college of Mooreland is now a matter of official record. The trustees have taken possession and preliminary steps toward refurbishing the "deer park" are being taken.

For those trustees and friends of the college who have coveted this property for years, the actual ownership of it is difficult to realize. The feeling is general that the college is advantaged by having this desirable estate for "elbow room" in the future. Aesthetically it adds tremendously to the college plant.

Generous alumni made the purchase possible. They should not be asked by their fellow alumni to carry the entire burden. Everybody is aware of the present difficulties of raising money. The fact that more than $25,000 has been raised for this project, better than $20,000 of it in cash, speaks eloquently of the capacity and loyalty of the alumni ranks.

Perhaps now and certainly when the financial skies begin to brighten other alumni will want to share in the purchase of this desirable site. It is not completely a "bromide" to say that alumni getting the greatest satisfaction out of their college relationship are those who are serving, as best they can, their alma mater. The truth of this may be tested by any alumnus who for no good reason at all has been holding himself aloof. The Mooreland project is an appealing thing and highly recommended to graduates and friends of the college as a channel through which their generosity might flow.

DICKINSON DAY

UNDER the guidance of President Waugh, the college has won a place on the secular calendar. By ukase of the Governor of Pennsylvania, November 8 has been set apart each year as Dickinson Day, the anniversary of the birth of John Dickinson.

In a proclamation to the people of his Commonwealth, Governor Pinchot described Dickinson as "one of the outstanding pioneers in the founding of our Country" and his birthday anniversary "should be given proper observance by the schools and the people generally of our Commonwealth."

To give further meaning to Dickinson Day, President Waugh arranged a special program for the occasion with Dr. James N. Rule, State Superintendent of Public Instruction as the chapel orator and Dickinson as the theme of his address. The selection of Dr. Rule as speaker seemed especially appropriate inasmuch as the impressive Education Building in Harrisburg over which Dr. Rule presides, includes the name of Dickinson with other patrons of education on a frieze on the outside wall.

Still additional emphasis is given this red-letter date with the announcement that scholarships are offered by the college to winning essayists among high school students writing on a Dickinson theme. All such students resident in Pennsylvania east and west of the Susquehanna and Maryland, New Jersey and Delaware are eligible for the contest. One scholarship from each of the five districts enumerated will be granted.

This policy of commending the institution to the public generally and to high school students will be regarded as dignified as it is likely to become effective.

Persons familiar with the career of John Dickinson will welcome the opportunity to add further to the public knowledge of this remarkable man, who "stuck by his guns" both literally and figuratively before his country plunged into the Revolutionary War. And just as appropriate is it to acquaint high school students with the merits of not only the man himself but with the institution which benefited by his generosity.

In offering scholarships to superior essayists among high school students, the Waugh plan will not only be performing ethical missionary work for the college but promoting the cause of education.

SESQUI-CENTENNIAL PLANS

AS the Sesqui-centennial Committee proceeds with its work, it is obvious that the observance next autumn, of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the college will be an event of commanding importance. Not more than eleven higher educational institutions in the country have celebrated such an event and for that reason alone the occasion will be unique.

While many features are being planned, two have unusual interest. One is the forthcoming publication of former President J. H. Morgan's history of the college; the other is the effort to present a series of oil portraits of distinguished friends and alumni of the college.

The presentations are expected from individuals and from classes. The idea ought to appeal to both, especially classes with reunions next year or classes which for one reason or another failed to make presentations during reunion years. The price for these portraits is well within the reach of most classes even in straitened times like these. To have such a part in the Sesqui-centennial is worth the interest of any class.

JOHN DICKINSON'S GRAVE

THE suggestion of President Price of the General Alumni Association that the body of John Dickinson in the Friends burying ground in Wilmington, Delaware, be removed to Carlisle deserved a better fate. No sooner was it made than the custodians of the grave served notice that under no circumstances would the removal proposal be considered.

Friends of the college and admirers of its benefactor were elated over the storm of protest which the suggestion provoked throughout Delaware. It was good to know that the sons and daughters of Delaware prized so highly the guardianship of their fellow citizen.

Obviously President Price had no thought of running counter to the wishes of Delawareans. He shared with many others the appealing idea that the body of the man who did so much for Dickinson College which bears his name might rest closer to the institution which commanded so much of his interest. If those with possibly a prior right think otherwise, certainly Dickinsonians will not turn ghouls.

A COACH RE-ELECTED

DICKINSONIANS who are not troubled with athletic astigmatism will find satisfaction in the renewal of the contract of Joseph McCormick as athletic coach at the college. The fact that they know or do not know the man is of no consequence. His reelection typifies a principal.

Under the rules prevalent at many colleges and universities, Coach Mc-Cormick was due to get the "pink slip" after such a football season as the team had this year. Sporting pages are full these days of football coaches resigning under pressure or otherwise, consequent to a string of defeats.

Apparently under this code it matters not that the coach may have had poor or scant material or that his best players were out of the game through injuries. The coach is made the "goat" under such circumstances and must be beheaded at sunrise. Nothing could be more absurd or reflect more clearly the athletic code of the institution than such procedure.

It is refreshing therefore to find the athletic bigwigs at Carlisle taking the more sensible view. It must be assumed that to them Coach McCormick's work has been satisfactory and that he is no more responsible for the season's scores than the janitor of West College.

The institution which makes a saint or a sinner of a football coach, by the single yard-stick of victory or defeat has an abnormal slant on the relationship of athletics to college life. Coaches can fail or succeed in their vocation as can any other, but to acquit or condemn solely on the basis of victory or defeat without taking into account a host of other factors is not merely to deal unfairly with an athletic instructor but to reveal a cock-eyed conception of college sport.

Fifty-One Heirlooms Enroll in College

FIFTY-ONE of the students who entered college in September are related to seventy-four Dickinsonians, according to a survey recently made by Robert L. Brunhouse, college registrar.

A Glimpse of John Dickinson

by

EDMUND S. SNYDER, '29

IN this year of 1932 as Dickison College opens the observance of its 150th year another and more ancient organization within the borders of Penn's Woods brings to a close the observance of its 200th anniversary. Among the many "firsts" of which the City of Philadelphia boasts is the unique distinction of possessing the oldest institution in continuous, uninterrupted existence organized for the observance of the social amenities. When in the year 1732 a group of the original settlers, many of them emigrants with Penn to the New World, established on the west bank of the Schuylkill at a point where the Girard Avenue Bridge now crosses, the "Colony in Schuylkill," they instituted a social society destined to flourish through two long centuries. A fishing club in its essential purpose, it takes the form of a state (on the formation of the Union the Colony became the "State in Schuylkill") with Governor, Counsellors, Secretary of State, etc., and with its peculiar customs and traditions, all of which have been scrupulously observed to the letter year upon year. Though time has worked many changes, forcing the State to forsake the Schuylkill for a site on the Delaware and to seek most of their fish farther afield, yet each year there meets in the same Castle, after the same manner, an equally worthy group, many lineal descendants of the original company, and all imbued with the same patriotism, courteousness, and idealism that attracted to membership in the company such worthies as Samuel Morris, George Washington, General LaFayette and his Aide, Le Comte de Rochambeau.

Interesting as is the story of this the 49th State, we have not space here to follow it further. The interested reader may find it all set down in the History of the State in Schuylkill, the second volume of which has appeared within the year. The State is of import here merely as an instrument in bringing to us an unusual glimpse into the life of John Dickinson, worthy patron and benefactor whose name the College perpetuates.

Not many years after the Colony in Schuylkill first assembled, an association for similar purposes, called the "Society of Fort St. David's" enrolling on its list a large and respectable number of associates, emphatically termed the "Nobility of those days" was established at the Falls of Schuylkill. This location a mile or so further up the stream and on the west bank of the river must have been an ideal spot. Certainly the records laud it as such. The Falls have long since disappeared before the encroachments of the city but the name persists, and for one who may wander out through Fairmount to the river and thence along it to the Falls of Schuylkill it is easy to picture the scene two centuries ago. Here on an elevated and extensive rock projecting into the rapids was built a rude but convenient and sturdy structure of timbers hewn from the surrounding forest, wherein gathered the company for fishing expeditions, to be followed by convivial scenes celebrated for deeds of gastronomy. The War of Independence scattered the company and returning peace found their abode a heap of ashes, but happily they had secured their effects, including a rather good museum, in a safe place. Following the Revolution their depleted ranks rebuilt the Fort, only after several years to have it catch fire accidentally and suffer a second destruction. In pursuit of a common object, and but slightly removed in point of space, it was but natural that the Fort and the Colony, now become a State, should have passed from an interchange of civilities over rod and line to intimacies, and finally to personal friendships. So at this fresh calamity the Citizens of the State welcomed the members of the Fort into their midst, and the two organizations became one.

Into this background of interesting colonial social life, and while the Society of Fort St. David's was enjoying the years prior to the War, moves the person of Dickinson. We can do no better than repeat the facts as related in the first volume of the State's history:¹

"Amongst these choice spirits early appeared John Dickinson Esq., a gentleman highly respected for his virtues and attainments in the science of jurisprudence.

"His reputation was established in the political arena, as the author of the celebrated series of epistles known as the Farmer's Letters, published at an important crisis in Colonial affairs, and with an electric effect on the sensitive minds of the whole community.

"In the prevailing spirit of the times, the Governor and his people of Fort St. David's, conferred on the author of dignity of gratuitous membership in their society, and presented him with a large circular silver snuff box, with an appropriate device and suitable inscriptions.

"As the record of the certificate of admission is quaint and curious, a copy of it is given from the original document.

Fort St. David's,
XVI day of April, 1768.

Which day in the presence of his Excellency Governor William Vanderspiegel, Esq., commander-in-chief in and over his Majesty's Colony of Fort St. David's and the territories, fisheries, &c., thereon depending, and Vice Admiral of the same, in full council, ¹ Vol. I History of the State in Schuylkill. Historical Memoir of the Schuylkill fishing company. Phila., by the Company, 1888. p. 32-34.

John Dickinson, Esq., of the City of Philadelphia, in Pennsylvania, Barrister, (the friend of Liberty, the second Pitt, the author of the Farmer's Letter,) for his patriotic productions in behalf of the rights, liberties, and privileges of the present, as well as the rising and future generations in America, is hereby admitted one of our members, for good services done by him to the interest of the British plantations in America, and we do hereby declare that the said John Dickinson, Esq., his admission to be as valid, effectual and sufficient to him, as if he had paid the whole fees, in use to be paid by freemen. Extracted from our book of records, in the Government of St. David's by me Deputy Secretary thereof, Witness hereunto my subscription manual, and the seal² of the Government affixed.

Henry Vanderspiegel,

Dep'y Sec'y.

"The Silver Box accompanying this attestation of free admission to the privileges of membership, thus spontaneously awarded to Mr. Dickinson, as the tribute due to his patriotism from the society, and now believed to be in possession of his family bears the following inscriptions:

"On the top of the box, the cap of liberty on a spear, resting on a cypher of the letters J. D. underneath, Pro Patria, and in a marginal circle surrounding the whole is inscribed "The gift of the Governor and Society of Fort St. David's, to the author of "The Farmer's Letters," in grateful testimony of the very eminent services thereby rendered to this Country, 1768."

²This seal is a very handsomely carved one in silver, with a large black wood handle, and was used for impressing sealing wax. It represents a view in detail of what was known as the "long rock" at the falls, now partly under railroad bridge, over which the water is rushing as in a freshet. Planted in the rock is a flag staff, with a large flag waving in the wind, on which are to be seen three fish, looking like sharks, and above them the English crown. Around the margin is the legend "Fort St. David's Schuylkill Falls Fishing." This seal came into possession of the Company when the St. David's Society joined the State in Schuylkill and still remains with them.

"On the inside of the top,
 "The Liberties of
 The British Colonies in America asserted with attic Eloquence and Roman Spirit,
 by

John Dickinson, Esquire,
 Barrister at Law."

"On the inside of the bottom,
 "Ita cuique eveniat
 ut de republica meruit."

"On the outside of the bottom,
 A sketch of Fort St. David's."

Whether or not Dickinson made practical use of the courtesies thus extended him the history neglects to tell us, but it seems safe to suppose he probably did. Spending much of his time in Philadelphia, and constantly in contact with the society that comprised these social groups it were strange if he too cannot be pictured fishing the Schuylkill as one of the band from the Fort and later mayhap from the State. We cannot resist the observation that the piscatorial tendencies of certain of the present faculty at Dickinson ably continue the example thus early set by the founder.

That Dickinson was an interested sportsman when circumstances permitted is definitely attested however. In the appendix to this same volume quoted above, on page 405 appears the Memoirs of the Gloucester Fox Hunting Club, "composed of many highly respectable gentlemen, resident chiefly in the city of Philadelphia and partly in Gloucester county, New Jersey....." Herein we find the following:

Philada. 29th October, 1766.

We the subscribers, being about to provide and keep a kennel of Fox Hounds, do mutually agree with each other in manner following, viz:

1st.—That each of us do agree to pay into the hands of such persons of the company, as shall be hereafter appointed, the sum of five pounds current money, for the purposes aforesaid.

2d.—That as soon as a sufficient number of gentlemen have subscribed, we will call a general meeting of the company and agree by a majority of voices, to such rules and regulations, as will be most likely to answer the intended purpose.

Benjamin Chew, pr.	order, Robert Morris
John Dickinson	John White
Thomas Lawrence	John Cadwallader
Moor Furman	Samuel Morris, Jr.
	etc...

These two brief glimpses into the personal, social aspect of Dickinson's life reveal him to us as an interested sportsman, invited to share the joys of angling, and spending of his substance to follow the hounds. He doubtless found in these pursuits many of the friends, much of the humane viewpoint, and no small amount of physical vigor, which stood him in such troublous times as those that shortly followed. Patriot, Statesman, Philanthropist he is often pictured to us. As an interesting social celebrity a new aspect may present itself in this man whose portrait all Dickinsonians know so well.

A former page in the Pennsylvania State Senate will return in January as a member of the House of Representatives, when Robert E. Woodside, Jr., '26-'28L, of Millersburg, Pennsylvania, takes his seat.

During his junior year in the Millersburg High School, Woodside became a Senate page, and in his freshman year as a student at the College, he continued to serve as a page to the Lieutenant-Governor of the State.

Woodside maintains law offices in Harrisburg and Millersburg, also operating a general insurance agency which he took over at the death of his father in May. He is solicitor for the Millersburg School Board and Millersburg Borough.

A grandson and great-grandson of two Evangelical ministers, Woodside married a minister's daughter and a Dickinsonian. She was Miss Fairlee Habbart, '28, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. William E. Habbart, of Dover, Delaware.

E. E. Barnitz Dies Suddenly After Operation

EDWIN E. Barnitz, '09, '11 L, corporation lawyer and income tax expert, member of a family long prominent in Cumberland County and outstanding alumnus of the College and Law School, died in the Bryn Mawr hospital on December 13, of angina pectoris, after undergoing a sinus operation and suffering a week's illness, complicated by kidney trouble.

While not seriously ill at the time, Mr. Barnitz went to the hospital December 4, for treatment for the sinus condition with which he had been afflicted and for which he had been receiving treatments for some years. Complications followed the operation and so weakened him that death followed quickly. At his bedside were his wife, Mrs. Jean Fredericks Barnitz, and his brother, George W. Barnitz, '14, who with his mother, Mrs. Margaret Barnitz, survive him.

An authority on income tax matters, Mr. Barnitz had represented leading corporations in Harrisburg and Washington. He had offices in Harrisburg for a number of years. He was a son of the late J. Edwin Barnitz, a noted criminal lawyer and he was a member of the Cumberland and Dauphin County Bar Associations.

He was regarded as highly successful in his profession and within the past year had erected a mansion house on the Harrisburg pike, just on the outskirts of Carlisle. His new home was the scene of the funeral services on December 16th. It was thronged with friends and filled with flowers. The Rev. Dr. George M. Diffenderfer and Rev. Roy E. Leinbach conducted the services. Interment was made in the mausoleum in Westminster Cemetery.

Preparing at Conway Hall, he entered Dickinson College and was graduated in 1909. Two years later he was graduated from the Dickinson School of Law and in the same year, 1911, was admitted to the Cumberland County Bar. His profession while placing great demands upon his time did not restrain him from considerable activity in church and civic affairs. For a number of years he was a school director of the borough of Carlisle, and for many years taught Sunday School class of boys in the First Lutheran Church, of which he was a member. He also served for many years as president of the Cumberland Fire Company in Carlisle, and for several years was exalted ruler of the Carlisle Lodge of Elks.

He was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Delta Chi fraternities and retained an unusually active interest in them until his death. Practically since his graduation, he has been recognized as the alumni leader of S. A. E. and was in contact with the affairs of the local chapter, as well as conducting its relations with the alumni. It was largely through his efforts that the chapter acquired its present home a few years ago.

For a number of years Mr. Barnitz served as an alumni member of the athletic advisory committee of the Dickinson Athletic Association. When some of the other Harrisburg alumni began the movement ten years ago, he was active in securing winning football teams and was known to have personally given a number of scholarships to deserving athletes. While admitting it to be an evil, he championed the cause of subsidization of athletes, arguing that all colleges should come out openly and honestly on this basis rather than resort to subterfuge. His position in this matter won him many friends among whom were some who differed with his opinion, but admired his convictions.

His father, J. Edwin Barnitz, was a well-known attorney of Carlisle, and served as district attorney from 1890 to 1893. He was the grandson of the late William Barnitz, who was for many years president of the Farmers Bank of Carlisle, a prominent business man, farmer and school teacher. His great-grandfather, Jacob Barnitz, established a mill at Barnitz Station, which is still conducted by descendants.

Meetings of the Cumberland County Bar Association and the Dauphin County Bar Association were held following his death and appropriate resolutions of respect adopted, and eulogies given by fellow members of the Bar. The Cumberland County Bar Association attended the funeral services in a body.

Dr. and Mrs. Dunning have five children and seven grandchildren.

Dr. Morgan Seeking Material

In a letter to alumni, Dr. J. H. Morgan, who is at work on a history of the college, to be published during the Sesqui-centennial celebration, asks for help in a gathering of Dickinsoniana material. Feeling that no incident should be omitted from publication in the history, he asks the alumni to send any information to him, and to forward collections of any college publication. His letter in full is as follows:

"To Dickinson Alumni of Classes before 1901—

You may have seen in the DICKINSON ALUMNUS that I am at work on a history of the college. In this work I have come to the point where I need help from some of you who have information unknown to me, and I ask your help.

Anyone having knowledge of some peculiar incident in the life of the college, an incident probably unknown to me, can help me by sending me the facts. If you are in doubt as to whether it would properly belong, write it out in full, send it on and let me decide.

For many years we have been gathering documents and other articles of interest to Dickinsonians. A room has recently been set apart for this display, and there is already an interesting collection. It should be enlarged.

In the homes of many of you are the things needed for this enlargement. Catalogues, programs of college events, copies of college publications (the Dickinsonian, Literary Magazine, Minutal, Microcosm, etc.), letters from prominent Dickinsonians, and other things too numerous to mention, even if I knew of them at all.

These things have been prized by you, but they will in time fall into the hands of others not interested, and be destroyed. Will you not gather them and send them to me for permanent keeping in the possession of the college?

Hoping that you will cooperate with me in these two things, I am

Yours for the college,

J. H. MORGAN"

Faithful Custodian of Law School Dies

"Dad" Davidson, who has been custodian of Trickett Hall since the erection of the law school building in 1917, died at his home in Carlisle on November 6th, after a short illness, at the age of 71 years. In his fifteen years of service, as janitor, fireman, and caretaker of the building, "Dad" never lost a day from his work.

Shortly after his birth on February 17, 1860, at Kerrsville, he was christened William Alexander Davidson, and to the hundreds of law school men has been known as "Dad." They probably never knew him as Bill. In spite of his many duties, he always found time for a cheery greeting to all who passed him. He was ever ready to give a word of advice, or announce his opinion on any of the affairs of state, or the doings of the day.

Members of the faculty of the Law School served as pall-bearers at his funeral, and thus officially honored him. He is survived by his widow, who resides on West Louther Street, Carlisle.

OBITUARY

1872—Rev. Charles Thompson Dunning, a loyal Dickinsonian, educator, and retired member of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the M. E. Church, died after a lingering illness on October 22nd, in his 80th year.

Born in Dover, Del. on November 21, 1852, he entered the College in 1870 and received his A. B. in 1872 and his A. M. in 1875. The College conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon him in 1901 on the same day and on the same platform where his son Charles received his degree, a matter of much pride to him in subsequent years.
