Setting Stage for Sesqui-Centennial Commencement

A DISTINCT Sesqui-Centennial flavor will mark the 150th commencement to be held from June 8th to 12th. Several changes in the usual program have stimulated interest in the forthcoming events.

One of the principal departures calls for the holding of a Sesqui-Centennial Ball in the Alumni Gymnasium on the evening before Alumni Day. For some years the fraternities have had open house on Thursday evening of Commencement Week, but this year individual dances at each fraternity house are omitted from the program and in their place the Sesqui-Centennial Ball will be held.

Another departure calls for the staging of the Sesqui-Centennial Pageant depicting the 150 years of history of the College in the Alumni Gymnasium on Saturday evening.

In spite of prevalent business conditions early reports from class secretaries and committees in charge of class reunions indicate that there will be another banner attendance in June. Many are planning to use the commencement as their annual holiday season to attend all the events planned.

Another unique feature of this year's commencement will be an attempt to hold the Alumni Luncheon outdoors on the Mooreland Tract. This is the only event which is scheduled on the newly acquired tract and plans are being made for the erection of several tents to provide shelter in the event of rain. A box luncheon which proved popular at other times when it was tried will again be used and the College band will be present to furnish music and a newly purchased loud speaking apparatus will be used to convey speeches from representatives of the various reunion classes.

The attention of the alumni is called to the fact that Carlisle is operating on Eastern Standard Time and that all of the commencement events are scheduled for standard time.

The first event of commencement will take place on Thursday evening, June 8th, when the combined Glee Clubs of the College will render a concert in Bosler Hall.

"Senior Day" is the new designation for Friday, June 9th, which formerly was called "Class Day." Confronted with present conditions, the seniors recently voted to abandon Class Day and curtail expenses. Only two features of former Class Day exercises will be observed when the seniors gather for the oration on the Old Stone Steps at 3:30 in the afternoon just prior to the senior induction. The day will open with special chapel exercises at 10:15 in the morning, when the award of the Class of 1902 will be presented. The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees will meet for luncheon in the President's home at noon, and the annual Trustees meeting will be held in the evening while the Sesqui-Centennial Ball is in progress.

Eddy Duchin and his original orchestra, nationally known artists, have been engaged to furnish the music for the Sesqui-Centennial Ball. The gymnasium will be attractively decorated and souvenir programs will be distributed. Tickets have already been placed on sale for this event at $3.00 per couple. Any alumnus desiring tickets may communicate immediately with Gilbert Malcolm, West College, Carlisle, Pa. During the period of intermission of the dance from 10:00 o'clock to 11:00 o'clock, "Open House" will be observed by the fraternities and refreshments will be served. The Sesqui-Centennial Ball will begin at 8:00 o'clock and will run 'till 1:00 A. M.

Saturday, June 10th, will be Alumni Day and will open with the meeting of Phi Beta Kappa Fraternity at 8:30. President Harry L. Price of the General Alumni Association has invited President Karl T. Waugh to deliver an address telling of the work of the year at the annual meeting of the Association which will be held at 10:00 o'clock in the Social Rooms of West College.

Officers of the recently organized "D" Club have extended an invitation to all alumni who are wearers of the "D" to attend a meeting of this organization in the Psychology Building at 11:00 o'clock on Saturday morning.

Following the Alumni Luncheon at Mooreland will be the annual Alumni Parade. Reunion classes are making special preparation for this event, and it is expected that another picturesque procession will be staged. The parade will terminate at Biddle Field, where there will be a baseball game between Dickinson and Gettysburg.

All alumni and friends of the College are invited to the home of President and Mrs. Waugh where a reception will be given from 4:00 to 6:00 o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

Fraternity banquets will be held on Saturday evening at 5:30 o'clock and several of the class reunion dinners are scheduled for the same time though the majority of the reunion dinners will be held on Sunday afternoon after the Baccalaureate Services.

The Sesqui-Centennial Pageant will be presented on Saturday night at 8:15 in the Alumni Gymnasium. The pageant is the work of Mrs. Josephine B. Meredith, '01, Dean of Women. Approximately one hundred and eighty-five students under the direction of Dr. Wilbur H. Norcross will appear in the

Register First

Alumni upon arrival at Carlisle should immediately register in the Registration Room in Old West. As has been the practice in recent years, this will be the Commencement Headquarters.

Upon registration, alumni will receive a souvenir Sesqui-Centennial Commencement button and any tickets for the events for which tickets are necessary.

Any information desired regarding class reunions, lodgings, events on the commencement program may be obtained at the Registration Room. Alumni are urged to secure tickets for the various events just as early as possible.

pageant, music for which will be furnished by the College orchestra under the direction of Professor Ralph S. Schecter. A special stage will be erected in the south end of the gymnasium and VanHorn and Sons, theatrical costumers of Philadelphia, have been engaged for the costuming. Admission for this event will be by ticket, and the tickets will be on sale in the Registration Room in Old West.

The custom of the years will be followed by winding up Alumni Day in an Alumni Sing on the Old Stone Steps following the pageant at about 10 o'clock.

The two services and the dinners of several of the reunion classes will mark Baccalaureate Day which will be observed on Sunday, June 11th. The Baccalaureate Sermon will be delivered in Allison M. E. Church by Rev. W. F. McDowell, D.D., retired bishop of the Washington Area of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The Rev. Mr. Harry Eval, '12, will be the speaker at the Vesper Services on the Old Stone Steps at 6:00 o'clock.

The 150th Commencement Exercises will be held in the Alumni Gymnasium on Monday morning, June 12th, at 10:00 o'clock, immediately following the Academic Procession over the campus. The Commencement address will be delivered by Rollo Walter Brown, Litt.D., well-known author and lecturer and former member of the faculty of Harvard University. Before he turned to the writing of biography and fiction, Dr. Brown's volume on literary tradition in French education had already been accepted as authoritative in its field. He was a pioneer in behalf of the creative spirit in American education and American life. He is a frequent contributor to magazines and a widely known lecturer on educational and literary topics. His home is in Cambridge, Mass.

Debating Team Enjoys Successful Season

A RATHER successful and unique debating season was concluded on April 28th during which the teams engaged in seventeen debates. Of these the affirmative teams won four and lost two decisions, while two debates were no decision affairs; the negative teams won six and lost two and one was undecided. These mental and oratorical conflicts centered upon the question: "Resolved, that all intergovernmental World War debts, including reparations, should be cancelled."

In addition, a Dickinson team maintained successfully the negative side of the question: "Resolved, that Democracy is an outworn form of government," in a debate with the Williams College team.

A Dickinson team composed wholly of Freshmen won the decision on the question of the cancellation of war debts.

In three meetings between the Dickinson affirmative team and the Dickinson negative team, the negative won. These were before the International Relations Club of Dickinson College, the Rotary Club of Carlisle, and over the radio through station WCOD.

Two innovations were tried this year,

Call Off Summer School

No session of the Summer School of Religious Education will be held at the College in July of this year it was recently decided by the Board of Governors of the School. The inability of the Board of Education of the Methodist Church to supply customary funds and the probable difficulty of securing an enrollment in the supporting conferences in the light of present conditions, led to the decision to abandon the session for this year.

Some of the work will be undertaken at the various training camps operated by the Baltimore and Central Pennsylvania Conferences.

besides the organization of a Freshman debating team. These were the securing of a single critic judge in place of the usual board of judges, and the use of a kind of modified direct clash. In this particular type of debate, the first affirmative delivered an eight-minute talk. That was followed by fifteen-minute talks on the part of each of the other men on the two teams. These fifteen-minute talks were supposed to include the entire constructive and rebuttal cases of the respective teams. The debate was concluded by a seven-minute summation on the part of the first affirmative speaker.

The members of the debate squad in the past season were Roy R. Kuebler and D. C. Woodcock, Seniors; J. F. Gothic and W. R. Woodward, Juniors; E. C. First, Jr., W. A. Lucas, R. W. Nevins, W. B. Rosenberg and A. E. Smigel, Sophomores; and the following Freshmen: L. Blumberg, H. L. Edwards, G. T. Hayes, Edward Raffensperger and John Swomley.

The Debate Council is composed of the following faculty members: Dr. Herbert Wing, Jr., Dr. Wilbur H. Norcross, Prof. C. W. Fink and Ralph S. Schechter.

Form New Alumni Clubs in Reading and Boston

IN THE directory of Alumni Clubs printed on the third page of the cover of this magazine it will be found that there are two new Alumni Clubs listed in this issue. A new Dickinson Club was formed in Reading on the night of March 31st and less than a month later, on April 22nd, a group met for the first time in New England in Boston and organized a Club.

Thirty alumni of the College and the Law School formed the Dickinson Club of Reading-Berks at a dinner meeting in the American House held in Reading on March 31st. Thomas H. Ford, '14, Assistant Superintendent of the Schools of Reading, was elected President of the new organization and Anna Dickinson, '23 L, was chosen as Secretary. A committee of six consisting of Elizabeth B. Reynolds, '22; George C. Kerr, '18; Thomas H. Ford, '14; Anna Dickinson, '23 L; Judge H. Robert Mays, '03 L, and Harry W. Lee, '18 L, made the arrangements for the dinner and secured the attendance of their fellow alumni. The first get-together was called for the purpose of determining whether the group was to organize into a Club and an affirmative decision was made in the dinner meeting.

The former proposal to organize a Dickinson Club in New England crystallized on the night of April 22nd when a dozen alumni met in the Parker House, Boston, to meet with Gilbert Malcolm who had gone there on some other business. Enthusiasm for the formation of an Alumni Club quickly developed and officers were elected.

Lieutenant Colonel William A. Gano, '02, who is in command of military training and a member of the faculty in Boston University, was elected President of the Club. A. Norman Needy, '16, Vice-President of Bachrach Incorporated, was named Secretary-Treasurer. Plans were inaugurated for holding an annual dinner of New England alumni in Boston. Among those present were four members of the Class of 1931 who are doing graduate work in the Boston area. These were: Edward O. Glaspey, who is at Tufts; David P. Davis, Jr., who is at Harvard Law School; Raymond W. Hallman, who is at Boston University, and Frank L. Dughi, who is doing graduate work at Harvard in History. Frank D. Llewellyn, '32, who is attending Harvard Law School, was also present.

Those who attended the organization meeting of the Reading-Berks Club were as follows: J. Wilmer Fisher, '96 L; S. Lauer, '98 L; Walter B. Freed, '00 L; H. Robert Mays, '03 L; J. Howard Jacobs, '04 L; Oliver Goldsmith, '17; Harry W. Lee, '18 L; John W. Speicher, '19 L; Emanuel Weiss, '20 L; Anna Dickinson, '23 L; Sidney D. Kline, '24, '26 L; Bernard Rosenthal, '30 L; Stewart G. Lutz, '31 L; Clarence C. Mendelsohn, '32 L; James F. Marx, '32 L; Rev. J. H. Price, '92; Rev. A. E. Piper, '94; Robert S. Loose, '01; Amos M. Cassel, '03; Edna M. Handwork, '12; Thomas H. Ford, '14; Cora L. Handwork, '14; Joel Claster, '14; William L. Eshelman, '15; Mrs. Harry W. Lee, '18; George Compton Kerr, '18; Mrs. Gregg D. Reynolds, '22; Leona Barkalow Kline, '27; Lillie K. Rhoads, 28; Alex. R. Burkot, '30.

Betas Honor McMaster

The 29th annual banquet of the St. Louis Beta Theta Pi Club was tendered in honor of Dr. LeRoy McMaster, '01, in the Park Plaza Hotel, St. Louis, Missouri, on April 27th. Since 1905 the St. Louis Club has given an annual dinner in honor of a distinguished member of the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity.

Dr. McMaster is head of the Department of Chemistry at Washington University. He received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science from Dickinson College at the 1931 commencement.

One Hundred Thirty-Seven Lifers on Alumni Roll

CONTINUED gain in the number of Life Members of the General Alumni Association is shown in the roll published in this number of the DICKINSON ALUMNUS. By edict of the Alumni Council the Life Membership roll is published annually in the May number. The roll now lists 137 names.

Dr. Herbert N. Shenton, '06, a member of the faculty of Syracuse University, is the last name to be added to the membership roll. He became a Lifer in April while on a visit at the College to speak in the Vocational Conference.

Five names have been added since the May, 1932, list which showed 132 Lifers. The hundred mark was passed for the first time in May, 1930, when 106 names were reported and the May, 1931, list showed 121 Lifers.

During the present fiscal year one alumnus died who was on the Life Membership roll, namely Professor John D. Brooks, '01. Eight other alumni who had become Lifers have died while one subscription, namely that of Captain John Zug Steese, '04, made by his brother, General James G. Steese, '02, was made as a memorial.

With fifteen Lifers, the Class of 1902 still leads all other classes in the total number of Lifers by a large margin. The Class of 1903 which returns for its 30th reunion at commencement is still tied for second place with the Class of 1912. The Classes of 1910 and 1915 are also tied for the next place with five Lifers each and a number of the other classes have four or three Lifers each.

The new names which have been added since the last number in which the last Life Membership roll was published are: Dr. Herbert N. Shenton, '06; Rev. Lester Ward Auman, '14; Mrs. Charles L. Warren, '26; Helen E. Hackman, '28, and Alice E. Hackman, '30. During the year, Ruth W. Bortz, '24, changed her name to Mrs. Eugene R. Raiford. When Helen E. Hackman sent in her subscription, she put the Class of 1928 on the roll for the first time. While classes from 1870 to 1930 are represented on the Life Membership roll, twelve classes as yet have no Life Members. They are 1871, 1873, 1875, 1877, 1879, 1890, 1892, 1894, 1920, 1929, 1931 and 1932.

Members of the General Alumni Association will quickly realize that from 137 Life Members at $40.00 each, the total Life Membership Fund of the Association is $5,480.00 and that this has grown in a very few years to its present total. The whole principal is invested and the income only used for Alumni Association purposes.

Life Membership costs $40.00 and may be paid in two installments of $20.00 each. The $40.00 invested at 5% yields $2.00, the amount of the annual membership dues in the General Alumni Association. Life Membership carries with it life subscription to the Dickinson Alumnus and entitles the Lifer to all the rights and privileges of active membership in the Association for life while it also ends the annual payment of dues. Checks for Life Membership may be sent to The Dickinson Alumnus, West College, Carlisle, Pa., or to the Treasurer of the Association, the Rev. Dr. Harry B. Stock, Carlisle, Pa.

In addition to Life Members there are two other classes of membership in the General Alumni Association. The number of annual members has fallen off somewhat this year because of present conditions, but usually it totals around one thousand who pay $2.00 a year. The first three years out of College an alumnus is entitled to class membership which costs $1.00 a year.

Enthusiastically Praises Morgan History of College

by

NO Dickinsonian, whether he is loyal or disloyal, can decently avoid pride in the history of the College soon to be published. That history has been compiled and written with infinite pains by Dr. James Henry Morgan. In addition to delving deeply into the records of the College for the full 150 years involved, he has sympathetically and entertainingly covered the successive administrations and epochs of the College.

Not many alumni can fail to realize that the history of Dickinson College is closely parallel to the history of the United States of America in its present entity. When the College began to evolve from the Carlisle grammar school there wasn't any Constitution of the United States. It came along as the College came along. Indeed, the College related extraordinarily to it, because one of the greatest of Chief Justices was an alumnus of Dickinson, and the record of great men provided to the growing country under the first nineteen years of the College history, guided by that unique individual, Dr. Nisbet, makes it read like a romance.

Outstanding Facts

Two facts stand out strongly in this first great section of the College history. Charles Nisbet was an amazing man, and his contacts with Benjamin Rush, and less importantly with John Dickinson, seem almost impossible. The erudition of the first principal who was not a president; the energy, vision and vigor of Benjamin Rush, who did not attend trustee meetings; the utter impossibility of the trustee government which persisted for the first fifty years, worked together into a fabric of fact which is stranger than fiction, and it proves the vitality of the idea of a college of essential importance at Carlisle.

That Dr. Nisbet, wholly free from any tact, amazingly witty and good-humored, outrageously under-paid both in amount and time of payment, should so tie in the big men who helped to build the foundations of America, is one of the astonishing parts of this history which is not romance but fact.

So along through those first fifty years the succession of blunders and successes could not, it seemed, materially interfere with the vitality of the idea until the complete success of trustee stupidity closed the College in 1832. Within this period came the astonishing Atwater regime, in which the New England ideals clashed with the French Revolution, with the new Jeffersonian thought, with the Priestly liberalism by way of the pugnacious, difficult and yet erudite Professor Cooper.

Twenty-one Toasts

Not without humor were some of the doings. To consider that on one July 4th twenty-one toasts were drunk (and deeply drunk, without doubt), and that twelfth in this list was one to "the Congress of the United States; may they do more and say less," indicates the way in which we moved. That at this same banquet or celebration another toast was drunk to "Thomas Cooper, Esquire, the profound philosopher, the genuine patriot, and the endeared friend," despite the fact that the gentleman thus celebrated had been removed from his judicial seat in Pennsylvania by the Governor on the demand of the Legislature, had supervised a duel in the College, had burned his face by a stupid chemical experiment, and otherwise shown all forms of independence, including independence of common sense, only makes the history the more picturesque.

Seemingly the taking over of the College in 1833 from Presbyterian domination which did not dominate to Methodist control which did not control, could certainly be called providential. Dickinson College seems at no time to have dominated in the least the thought either of its Principals, who were really presidents, or its Masters, who were certainly professors. Money had been secured from the Pennsylvania Legislature, because it was presumably non-sectarian before the closing in 1832, and yet money was secured from the Methodist conferences in the hope that it might be sectarian, as it never became.

But here came the most careful preparations, beginning in 1833 in the administration of a president, Dr. John Price Durbin, who, with his immediate successor, Dr. Robert Emory, in the fifteen years preceding 1848 profoundly influenced a body of young men who had much to do with carrying along the United States in sound thought, even though a large number of the student body was by origin earmarked for secession when the Civil War broke.

Four Years of Amusement

Dr. Morgan's story gets into the fun of one administration when Jesse T. Peck, who later became a Methodist bishop, provided the young men of the College with four years of amusement as well as a considerable amount of education. Space is not to spare for telling the pranks which form part of this college history.

All down through the balance of this Methodist century which was without Methodist domination came the College to its present prosperous condition and high standing. One after the other Dr. Morgan has treated the successive administrations fairly and appreciatively, with one exception. After he has described the way in which Dr. Reed increased both the student body and the debt, he is most unjust to his own administration, which carried forward the student body and eliminated the debt.

In this interesting summary of an interesting College living through the first 150 years of the United States to the present condition of vitality and importance are included discussions of literary societies, the libraries, the fraternities. Even athletics are discussed. Student expenses come in for a statement in which one finds the amazing financial plan of early days when one principal asked for students on the basis of board at a dollar a week, "with good board for $1.50 a week;" when "the tuition money is only 5 pounds per annum, to be paid half yearly, and 25 shillings entrance." We discover that when there were no books in the early days, students had actually to write the lectures as delivered to them by Dr. Nisbet and some of his successors.

That most important organization, the Dickinson School of Law, is built into the history where it belongs, and as an important portion of Greater Dickinson.

This forthcoming History, issued at the completion of the sesqui-centennial of the College, ought to be the cherished possession of every alumnus of the College. Proud as most alumni are of Dickinson, their pride will be honorably increased as the relation of the College to the United States of America is made apparent through Dr. Morgan's extraordinary work.

Escapes Bomb in China

Myrl Scott Myers, '06, United States Consul General in Mukden, Manchuria, escaped unharmed when bombs were discovered in his residence there before they exploded on May 11th, according to press dispatches.

Bombs were also found at the same time in the British Consulate General's residence. The discovery of the explosives was reported to the Japanese authorities who announced they would investigate.

Myers has been active in gathering facts for the United States Government concerning the Japanese military occupation of Manchuria and Japan's sponsorship of the Manchukuo government in the territory seized from China.

Five Alumni to Receive Honorary Degrees

FIVE graduates of the College will return to the 150th Commencement to again mount the platform to receive degrees from their Alma Mater, and these awards to alumni will be the only honorary degrees conferred in June. Three of the alumni to be so honored will be meeting in reunion with their classes.

Under present plans, honorary degrees will also be conferred during the celebration of the Sesqui-Centennial in October.

Three degrees of Doctor of Science and two of Doctor of Divinity will be given at Commencement.

Returning for his 30th reunion, Major Robert Y. Stuart, of the Class of 1903, will receive the degree of Doctor of Science. He has been Chief Forester of the United States Forest Service since 1928. Upon his graduation in 1906 from the Yale Forest School, he entered the Forest Service and remained until 1920 when he resigned to become Commissioner of Forestry and Secretary of Forests and Waters of Pennsylvania. In 1927 he returned to the Forest Service as Assistant Forester, in charge of public relations. He has ever been an active, interested alumnus and served a term as a member of the Alumni Council. He was elected an Alumni Trustee several years ago and is at present a candidate for re-election in the annual mail ballot for the Board of Trustees and Council.

The degree of Doctor of Science in Education will be conferred upon John Shilling, who as a graduate in 1908, will return to Commencement also for his 25th reunion. He is Assistant State Superintendent in charge of Secondary Schools in the Department of Public Instruction in the State of Delaware. On May 25th he represented the College and spoke on "John Dickinson and Dickinson College" at the West Street

Friends' Burial Ground, Wilmington, Del., when unveiling exercises were held under the auspices of the Historic Markers Commission of Delaware for the dedication of a John Dickinson tablet. This marker indicates the grave of John Dickinson.

The third degree of Doctor of Science will be conferred upon Professor Milton Conover, graduate of the Class of 1913, who also will be coming back for a class reunion, his twentieth. He has been a member of the faculty of Yale University since 1924, where he has been Associate Professor of Government since 1930. Since his graduation he has studied at the University of Minnesota where he received his M.A. in 1916 and at Columbia, Harvard, Oxford University in England and the University of Munich, Germany. He taught school in New Jersey and California before he was a fellow in Political Science in Indiana University in 1916-17. With the entry of the United States into the World War he enlisted as a private of infantry in June 1917. He was commissioned a Second Lieutenant on the field while serving with the 42nd (Rainbow) Division during the Argonne Offensive.

Upon his return from the World War, he became instructor in Government in the University of Pennsylvania and after a year there he served two years on the faculty of New York University before going to Yale in 1924.

Two other alumni will receive the degree of Doctor of Divinity. They are the Rev. William L. Armstrong, of the Class of 1900, who is a member of the Central Pennsylvania M. E. Conference and at present pastor of the M. E. Church in Chambersburg, Pa., and the Rev. Harry Evaul, of the Class of 1912, member of the Baltimore M. E. Conference and pastor of the Center Street M. E. Church, Cumberland, Md.

Vocational Conference Stimulates Student Interest

NEARLY four hundred personal interviews were held by students with forty counsellors while the whole student body heard three special addresses in chapel during the first vocational conference ever held at the College from April 2nd to 5th.

What had been suggested as an experiment in a meeting of the Alumni Council of the General Alumni Association a few years ago became a major contribution which aroused considerable student interest. The project which had been discussed a few years ago by the Council was again taken up at the annual meeting last Fall and the recommendation to have such a conference was repeated to President Waugh. He immediately endorsed it and appointed a committee which set to work in planning the conference. While the conference was sponsored by the Y Council and the General Alumni Association, much of the credit for its success fell to Rev. W. Emory Hartman, pastor of the Allison M. E. Church. He had participated in a similar conclave while at State College and his experience there enabled him to guide the committee. Observers who had participated in other such conferences declared that the Dickinson session surpassed any other they had ever known.

The conference program opened on Sunday morning, April 2nd, with a worship service at Allison M. E. Church when Rev. Hartman preached on the subject "Creative Values." The theme was continued in the evening supper of Young Peoples Fellowship in the church when Charles H. Masland II of Carlisle spoke on "Manufacturing as a Vocation."

The chapel services were held on the next three successive days. In the opening service on Monday, April 3rd, Dr. John Lapp, Editorial Director of the Institute of Vocational Research of Chicago, Illinois, former head of the Department of Social Sciences of Marquette University and former member of the Federal Commission on Vocational Education, spoke on the subject "What is There to Be?" On Tuesday, April 4th, Dr. Herbert N. Shenton, '06, Professor of Sociology, Syracuse University, delivered the chapel address on the topic "What Your Vocation Will Do to You." At the final chapel service on the following day, Dr. Rev. Wilbur V. Mallalieu, '99, pastor of Grace M. E. Church of Harrisburg, spoke on the subject "What Will You Achieve Through Your Vocation?"

Prior to the opening of the conference the students had filled out questionnaires in which they indicated their preferences in the business and professional world and the subjects in which they sought advice, and from the results of these questionnaires counsellors were selected in the various fields and definite appointments were made between them and the students. Individual conferences took place over the three days of the conference and individual or group meetings were held in various professors offices which had been assigned for this use. In addition, a special alcove in the College Library was prepared for those who wished to read vocational material.

Four alumni served as counsellors in the field of business, namely, Merkel Landis, '96, President of the Carlisle Trust Company; Robert W. Crist, '20, Assistant Secretary of the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce; E. J. Presby, '01, former sales manager of the Wear-ever Aluminum Company, New Kensington, Pa.; and S. Walter Stauffer, '12, manufacturer of York, Pa. Mary Wetzel, '22, manager of the Chocolate Shop of Carlisle, Pa., and Mrs. John Wetzel, representative of the Provident Life Insurance Company, acted as counsellors for the women interested in the business field.

The counsellors for those interested in the profession of law were: E. M. Biddle, Jr., '86, Carlisle, Pa., former Judge of Cumberland County Court; Dean W. H. Hitchler of the Dickinson Law School; John M. Rhey, '83, attorney, of Carlisle; Harry L. Price, '96, attorney, of Baltimore, Md., and president of the General Alumni Association, and Elizabeth McCullough, '29, member of the Cumberland County Bar.

Counsellors were provided in the field of education for both secondary school teaching and college teaching. Those who served as advisers for secondary school teaching were: J. W. Potter, '13, Superintendent of the Carlisle Schools; Professor C. J. Carver, '09, professor of Education in the College, and Miss Ruth White, '04, teacher in the Washington Irving High School, New York City, while the college teaching advisers were: Professor A. V. Bishop, head of the Department of Latin in the College, and Mrs. Mulford Stough, wife of Professor Stough, and former dean of Shippensburg Teachers College.

The advisers in the field of journalism were: Dean M. Hoffman, '02, editor of The Patriot and The Evening News of Harrisburg, Pa.; Carl Sprout, managing editor of The Patriot, Harrisburg, Pa.; and Miss Agnes Woods, '17, journalist and writer.

Dr. A. H. Gerberich, '18, associate professor of Modern Languages in the College, who had considerable experience in the consular service, acted as adviser in the field of diplomatic service, while Dr. E. A. Vuilleumier, professor of Chemistry in the College, was the adviser in the field of chemical pursuits.

Those interested in considering the study of medicine turned to the following counsellors: Professor M. W. Eddy, professor of Biology in the College; Dr. E. Robert Plank, physician and surgeon of Carlisle; Dr. W. Baird Stuart, a practicing physician of Carlisle; Dr. Chloe Fry, '25, practicing physician in Newville, and Dr. Katherine Cowell, a practicing physician of Carlisle.

Dr. George W. Line, practicing dentist and dental surgeon of Carlisle, who keeps the Carlisle Hospital staff in X-ray work, counselled with the students interested in dentistry.

Rev. W. E. Hartman, pastor of the Allison M. E. Church, and Dr. W. V. Mallalieu, '99, held individual interviews with the students who are interested in entering the ministry.

Considerable interest was manifested in the conferences on social work in which the counsellors were: Carter Taylor, who is director of the Associated Aid Societies of Harrisburg, and his assistant director, Miss Alice Hill. Mary Grove, '32, who is doing work in the Y. W. C. A. in Carlisle, also served in this field.

C. H. Masland II of C. H. Masland & Sons, rug and carpet manufacturers of Carlisle, held conferences with those students interested in considering the field of engineering.

The students who sought counsel in the field of library science held their interviews with the counsellors: Mrs. Wilbur H. Norcross, '12, former librarian of the College, and Mrs. John M. Rhey, wife of John M. Rhey, '83, former librarian of the New York Public Library.

Mrs. Edward B. Rosa, '89; Mrs. Ralph S. Schecter, and Mrs. Herbert Wing, Jr., as representatives of the American Association of University Women, held a number of conferences with the women students who are interested in the consideration of graduate work.

The concensus of opinion about the College at the conclusion of the conference was that an effort should be made to hold a similar conclave every other year. Announcement has also since been made that Professor C. J. Carver of the Department of Education will offer a course to students next year interested in studying the teaching of vocational guidance.

EDITORIAL

COMMENCEMENT BALM

BY THE time THE ALUMNUS reaches most of its readers, the balm of Commencement will be in the air. And was that of Gilead more soothing to the Dickinsonian? Not in a million years, says the rhapsodist who speaks accurately.

There is an ecstasy about a June Commencement at Carlisle (weather permitting) that is difficult to exaggerate. Even with the weather in rebellion, there is a satisfaction in meeting old chums, seeing old places, recalling famous and infamous experiences that serves as adequate remission of money, energy and anything else spent in getting back to the campus.

Each year the list of returning grads and friends grows larger. Less and less stimulation is required to turn out a crowd. "The momentum got 'em," as it was bound to do once they realized the rewards of returning at least once a year to Alma Mater.

The program this year will be touched by the spirit of the Sesqui-centennial. More formally that event will be celebrated late in October. Commencement will be a sort of prologue on top of all the features which have made recent Commencements so delightful.

For those who know by contact what the modern Commencement has become, no words of entreaty are necessary. For the skeptics, accept the challenge of those who know. Come, see what a fine time can be had. The curtain rises June 8 and drops June 12 with the big act June 10, Alumni Day.

NEW ALUMNI CLUBS

ORGANIZATION of two new alumni clubs with almost a perfect dinner score for those already in existence demonstrates that the alumni spirit is not the sort of thing to wither in a depression. Nothing could more emphasize the Dickinson spirit than the progressive interest and enthusiasm of its alumni.

Boston and Reading furnished the stage for the new alumni clubs. They bring the number of graduate organizations to sixteen and demonstrate further the possibilities of still more units in the alumni field. To the sponsors of these organizations, other organized alumni groups send felicitations.

A casual study of the geographical grouping of alumni scattered over the nation indicates even greater possibilities for alumni organization. There is nothing difficult or complex in the formation of alumni groups into clubs. And the satisfactions are worth while. Some clubs do no more than dine once a year. Others are more ambitious, even to creating scholarships for their communities. Others in formal fashion deal in promoting the interests of the college in other ways.

But if a club does no more than gather about a dining table once a year, sing the old songs, hear first-hand information from the campus, listen perhaps to some undergrad songsters and keep green the memories of their college days, it renders its members a pleasant and delightful service, and the college as well.

VOCATION WEEK

ANOTHER contribution to the usefulness of the College was made under General Alumni Association auspices the first week of April, when the institution's first full-fledged Vocational Guidance Week was observed. The idea sprung from General Alumni sources and was carried out in ruddy cooperation with them.

Nearly two score of graduates returned to the campus that week to offer their services to Seniors in determining a vocation. Some of the graduates delivered inspirational talks; others confined their work to clinical counsel.

The program embraced clinics in law, medicine, the ministry, education, business, manufacturing, journalism, engineering, diplomacy, dentistry, even housewifery. Apparently the alumni got quite a "kick" out of the experience. Neutral observers branded the experiment as a success.

It is gratifying to those pioneers in the organized alumni movement to find that the simple program they laid down years ago is rapidly expanding into a very varied and effective plan of cooperation and assistance. It shows again that alumni service can manifest itself in many fields.

ATHLETIC DECENCY

WHILE details are not available at this writing, the action of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania at its meeting at Collegeville in May suggests further progress in the direction of preserving athletic ideals at their institutions.

The theme of the action is the prevention of subsidies. Suggestions were made that institutions ignoring such ideals be "blacklisted" and that a eligibility commission be set up to screen the bogus from the genuine.

After the strong action taken some time ago by the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Middle Atlantic States against professionalism in the colleges, the state association was under some obligation to take note of the situation. Happily this action came naturally to some of the Pennsylvania colleges who had cleansed their stables aforehand.

There is only one effective, if unpleasant way, to deal with institutions which will not match their athletic code with the highest. That is the "blacklist." Institutions which are willing to be unscrupulous can escape. In many instances it is impossible to build up against them a case that would stand the scrutiny of a criminal court, though there is no question of its guilt in the eyes of its competitors.

In such cases institutions which do not live in glass houses have no other option but to cancel athletic relations and let the public draw its own conclusions. A few institutions with courage enough to take such action will soon set the fashion for athletic cleanliness which offending institutions are bound to respect or pay the price of intercollegiate ostracism.

One has the feeling that if the alumni will assign this question of athletic decency to the college administrations and the undergraduates and a husky quota of alumni whose sense of sportsmanship is keener than that of victory at any price, intercollegiate athletics will lose some of its pungent odor.

NEWSPAPER PUBLICITY

EASTERN alumni, at least, can scarcely have failed to note during the past college year an increase in newspaper publicity which has been accorded Dickinson. There's a reason. The administration has created what the ultra-refined linguists term a "bureau of public relations," alias, a publicity man.

The time has long since passed when educational institutions need to apologize for this sort of thing. It is a "fait accompli" in most colleges and universities. Newspapers welcome the service. Both they and the colleges gain mutual advantage.

It is entirely becoming that colleges no less than other worthy projects should want to keep themselves before the public in an ethical fashion. To do this effectively the code of cheap theatricalism must be avoided, not only because it is undignified but because it is wholly ineffective, the newspapers themselves taking care of the latter.

A college, which is a "going concern," incubates news quite as or more interesting than the familiar sport chatter. The public reads that sort of story. Dickinson by virtue of its forthcoming Sesqui-centennial has a very timely message for the newspaper.

Under intelligent direction, a great volume of legitimate news can be fed to the newspapers. This has been done and widely used in the press of Philadelphia, Baltimore and New York, as well as the smaller newspapers nearby. The results surely justify the venture.

CLASS GIFT EVOLUTION

ONE of the unique class gifts to the college came from '03, made at the 20th reunion ten years ago. It was a comprehensive campus improvement plan, involving the actual planting of shrubs and trees, intelligent landscaping.

The gift had the appealing quality of requiring years for its completion. It looked forward, in one instance, to the removal from the campus of all electric light poles, which could not help but be unsightly. Within the month the last of the offensive poles was removed, giving to the class and the college community a more attractive campus.

Members of this class, notably, Major Robert Y. Stuart, United States Forester, are still actively pushing the idea for a further comprehensive study of the enlarged campus, made so by the recent purchase of Mooreland. To these graduates as time works out their class plan, there must come a satisfaction which other classes might well covet.

CHANCE TO HELP

ALUMNI loyalty to the college may manifest itself in a variety of fashions. Certainly it is not bound up exclusively in gifts of money. Service, perhaps, is as fine a gift as it is possible to bestow. And it need not always be sacrificial service.

For instance, graduates of the college this year face a paucity of jobs in the "wide wide world." This is especially true of those aiming to teach, though it is relatively true of all. As a matter of cold fact, but one graduate of the June group is sure of a teaching position, as this is being written.

What alumni, especially those in the education game, can do to better this situation is uncertain. Obviously though, here is a time for them to be watchful of an opportunity to serve a fellow Dickinsonian. The same might be said appropriately of alumni in all other lines. It might be difficult to prove that a precise moral obligation rests on the shoulders to see that other Dickinsonians land jobs, but clearly it is an opportunity which no considerate Dickinsonian will evade.

That 250,000-Man Job

by

R. Y. STUART, '03,

Chief Forester U. S. Forest Service

THE passage of President Roosevelt's unemployment relief bill affords the opportunity of putting 250,000 men promptly to work. In view of the prominent part our forests have played in the economic life of the American people, it is especially fitting that in the present economic crisis we should turn to those forests as a source of work with which to employ in healthful occupation our large number of idle men.

President Roosevelt decided upon work in the forests as the first form of employment in his relief program, largely because of the unusual opportunities it offers to men from all walks of life to take a fresh start in a healthful occupation in the open. While the work which will be accomplished is much needed and will be largely self-liquidating, the primary object of the plan is to put men to work immediately. To quote from President Roosevelt's message, "more important, however, than the material gains will be the moral and spiritual value of such work. The overwhelming majority of men who are walking the streets and receiving private or public relief, would infinitely prefer to work. We can take a vast army of these unemployed out into healthful surroundings. We can eliminate to some extent at least the threat that enforced idleness brings to spiritual and moral stability. It is not a panacea for all the unemployment but it is an essential step in this emergency."

The plan, broadly stated, calls for putting into effect a wide spread program for unemployment relief through the performance of useful work in the forests. As those of us who will carry it out envision it, its effects will be far-reaching. It will help to lighten the burden of local relief agencies; it will provide a stimulus to business through the increase of purchasing power and the supplying of wholesome food and necessary equipment for the thousands of forest workers. At the same time it will be accomplishing some enormously important public work much needed for the rehabilitation and improvement of our forest resources. It will be building for future national wealth. The labor performed in the forests will render a vital public service by helping to put the forests of the country in a productive condition which would have taken years to attain under ordinary circumstances.

Large numbers of men throughout the country will be given a better understanding of land uses, of restoration and protection of land values, and of the possibilities for building up the country's natural resources. All recesses of this country will be entered by these men who will know their "America First." For many, it may lead to new, permanent occupations in fields of public usefulness.

And beyond all that, the forest work program will render far-reaching service to the men. To thousands of men it should mean valuable training in useful, healthful work, physically beneficial and morally uplifting. To thousands of men it will mean a chance to get away from discouragement and distress, to face the world with a renewed purpose.

The details of just how the plan will be put into effect are being worked out as this is written, but the primary lines of action have been decided upon. The administration of the Act will be by a director of Emergency Conservation Work, Robert Fechner, acting for the President. Funds will be allotted to the Federal departments concerned with the execution of the projects. The Department of Labor will enroll the men for work. They will then be transported to assembly camps maintained and operated by the Army and will be furnished with food, shoes, clothing, and necessary medical attention. After "conditioning" at these camps they will be sent to the forest work camps from which the forest work to be done is to be manned.

Enrollment will be for a period of six months, but the period of employment can be terminated upon the request of the employee for good cause. The government will dismiss any employee who shows inability or unwillingness to do reasonably satisfactory work for which he is suitable or may be trained, or for failure to comply with the reasonable rules and regulations prescribed by those in charge. Men sick or injured while on the job will be cared for at Government expense. The relief allowance will be at a monthly rate of $30. Arrangements are made at the time of enrollment to have a portion of the compensation due paid direct to dependents. Except for emergency work to prevent the destruction of life or property, the hours of work will not exceed forty a week. In emergencies the men will be subject to call for forest fire-fighting. As with all other forest work, any fire-fighting work done will be under the direct supervision of experienced men who are thoroughly qualified to look after the safety of the men in their charge.

Every effort will be made to obtain the necessary personnel for supervision and technical direction from the enrolled force. When it cannot be obtained from that source it will be supplied from the ranks of foresters and other forest workers of proven experience and ability to supervise the type of operations undertaken.

The whole project is primarily a relief measure and in taking advantage of it any man should be willing to serve to the best of his ability in any capacity. It is expected that just as rapidly as the need for relief dissipates and the opportunity offers, men will leave the camps, take their place in the field of commercial occupation for which they are best suited or capable of filling, and give way to those less fortunate.

At this writing a first contingent of 25,000 men is being assembled from sixteen cities. Members of this first unit, selected by the Labor Department, are men with dependents, between the age limits of eighteen to twenty-five, unmarried, physically fit, and with the expressed willingness to assign a major portion of their compensation to their dependents. The work on the forests will be of such variety that any man of reasonable physical fitness should be able with some training to give a satisfactory account of himself.

Supervision of the work on Federal lands will be given by the Department having jurisdiction over the lands. Work on National Forests will be directed by the Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, and on National Parks and Indian Reservations by the Department of Interior. Work on state, county, municipal and private forests will be supervised, in most instances, by the states. No distinction will be made in the scope of the work done on National and State Forests. Some of the activities contemplated on the National Forests are the construction of telephone lines, fire breaks, fire protection structures, administrative structures, public camps, range fences, water development and truck and foot trails. In connection with those activities directly related to the growing of trees there will be forest planting, timber stand improvement, insect and blister rust control. Work on the National Forests has already been planned which could provide more than a million and a half man months of work that needs to be done and would be done sooner or later. No projects are included in these plans which would be classed as "made-work." All of the work is in furtherance of an established National Forest improvement program looking to the development and protection of vital public resources.

The Act limits the character of work which can be done on county, municipal or private forests to such kinds of co-operative work as are now provided for by Acts of Congress in preventing and controlling forest fires and the attacks of forest tree pests and diseases and such work as is necessary in the public interest to control floods. Among these authorized activities will be the construction of fire breaks and improvements for strictly fire protection purposes, assignment of men to fire prevention and fire suppression work, and to assist in practical measures for the control of tree diseases and insects and of floods.

Plans are already under way to provide feeding and housing facilities for the men who will work on the National Forests. By the time the men have been assembled, equipped and "conditioned," camps convenient to the work to be done will have been established and be ready to take care of the men as rapidly as they are needed. The work camps will be equipped to take care of groups of men up to 200 in number, and will be maintained in an orderly and sanitary way. Constructed by the Army, these camps will also come under Army maintenance. Commanding officers of the various Army Corps Areas have been ordered to assign officers to the camps and to arrange for their supply, administration, sanitation, welfare, medical care and hospitalization. The order authorizes the drawing on the Army Reserve Corps, in necessary cases, to carry out the plan. As set up at this time, it is planned that each forest camp be supplied with three line officers.

Actual work projects and their technical planning and execution will, as proposed at the beginning, be under the immediate control and supervision of the Forest Service on the National Forests, the various state forest or conservation agencies on state forest lands, the National Park Service on National Parks and National Monuments, and other federal departments concerned in the work. The Army will be assisted by the Red Cross and other organizations in carrying out active welfare work.

The first fifty camps to be approved are in the eastern National Forests and affect thirteen states. They are located as follows: Alabama, one camp; Arkansas, four camps; Georgia, one camp; Maine, one camp; New Hampshire, three camps; North Carolina, six camps; Oklahoma, one camp; Pennsylvania, five camps; South Carolina, one camp; Tennessee, five camps; Vermont, one camp; Virginia, ten camps; and West Virginia, five camps. As soon as feasible, camps will be established on the western National Forests and in a large number of state forests.

There is no reason to believe that any man cannot be perfectly comfortable in one of these camps, even though he be city bred. With the variety of work needed to be done on the National Forests it is reasonable to expect that many of the men can be placed in types of employment suited to their abilities or that they can adapt themselves through training and practice to the necessary requirements of the jobs to which they may be assigned. There will be need for a wide variety of skill, such as carpenters, cooks, pick and shovel men, teamsters, powder-men, farriers, ax-men, tractor drivers, woodsmen and others. Surely most of the men given this relief, if they be sincere, can fit into one of the available occupations.

American Forests.*

Who Knows the Answer?

The original name plate having been lost, no one at the college can tell who gave the portrait of the late Prof. Henry M. Harman owned by the college. There is a theory that it was presented by one of the classes of the early nineties. Who knows the whole story and the name of the artist? Tell Gilbert Malcolm.

Another Alumni Club Plans to Give Scholarship

A PLAN to raise a scholarship fund of $100.00 was inaugurated at the annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Trenton held in the Hotel Hildebrecht on March 23rd. Stanley G. Wilson, '15, who proposed the project, was made chairman of the committee to solicit subscriptions for this purpose and to make the plan effective with the opening of College in September.

Under the proposal, some student entering College from Trenton or the district represented by the membership of the Trenton Club will be awarded the scholarship in the Fall. The plan as proposed contemplates the annual raising of this amount for scholarship or scholarship loan purposes.

Henry G. Breneman, President of the Club, acted as toastmaster and introduced Professor Forrest E. Craver, who was the guest of honor. Other addresses were made by President Karl T. Waugh and Gilbert Malcolm, while the College quartet, composed of Charles Thrush, Robert Wayne, William Eastman, and Lester Etter, sang two groups of numbers.

Henry G. Breneman, President; Raymond S. Michael, '15, Vice-President; and I. Howell Kane, '21, Secretary-Treasurer, the officers of the Club, were re-elected during the business session.

The distinguishing feature of the meeting of the Trenton Club was the fact that, in spite of present conditions, the attendance at the annual dinner increased this year over the previous year. Among those who attended were Beverly W. Brown, '03, and Rev. Percy Comer, his classmate, who also journeyed the following night the opposite direction to attend the dinner of the Dickinson Club of New York.

New York Club Has Another Big Party

With eighty alumni present at its annual banquet in the Town Hall Club on March 24th, the Dickinson Club of New York again won the attendance prize in the current club dinner season. Clinton DeWitt VanSiclen, '14, retiring President of the Club, acted as toastmaster and kept a carefully arranged program running smoothly and pleasantly through his own wit and ability.

Following several selections by the College quartet which made the Trenton-New York trip, impromptu speeches were made by Rev. J. E. Price, '76; J. Hope Caldwell, '80, and Dr. Frank T. Baker, '85, as representatives of the "Silver Grays."

Formal program was opened by Mrs. A. A. Chapman, President of the Dickinson Alumnae Club of New York, who told of the objectives and work of that body. She was followed by Professor F. E. Craver of the College Faculty, who was the guest of honor. Mrs. Ethel Hardesty Cleaver, '02, then read four of her poems, "To New England a Chance of Love," "Great South Bay," "On the Desert," and "Memories of the Cruise."

In response to an unexpected call for a speech, Mrs. F. E. Craver responded cleverly and cordially welcomed the alumni to visit Carlisle more frequently. Addresses were also made by President Karl T. Waugh and Gilbert Malcolm and several numbers were sung by the College quartet.

Dr. Fred P. Corson, '17, District Superintendent of the M. E. Church, was elected President of the Club to succeed Clinton DeWitt VanSiclen during the business session. E. H. Mish, '09, was elected Vice-President and Arthur J. Latham, '10, a member of the Alumni Council, was named Secretary-Treasurer. An executive committee was also chosen consisting of C. DeWitt VanSiclen, '14; Walter V. Edwards, '10; J. Ernest Crane, '11, and Charles S. VanAuken, '12.

Many Attend Baltimore Club Dinner

WITH the largest attendance in three years, the annual dinner and reunion of the Dickinson Club of Baltimore was held on Friday evening, March 17th, at the Blackstone Hotel. Dr. Harry D. Kruse, '22, the president of Baltimore alumni group, was toastmaster and presented as speakers President Karl Tinsley Waugh, Dean Walter H. Hitchler of the Law School, Gilbert Malcolm, '15, Treasurer of the College, Carlyle R. Earp, '14, the secretary of the local scholarship committee, and Prof. Wm. W. Landis, the senior member of the College Faculty.

The entertainment features of the dinner were more interesting and varied than at any dinner held in recent years. Miss Letitia Shenk, Baltimore soprano, sang a group of ballads and arias, and the Dickinson College quartet, composed of a member of each undergraduate class, pleased the audience with glee club songs. Rev. Frank Yewdall Jagggers, '14, pastor of Chatsworth Church, Baltimore, recited selections from Paul Lawrence Dunbar's negro dialect poems.

The singing of College songs, led by Mr. Jagggers, was an enjoyable punctuation of a pleasant evening for in it is blended homage and devotion to Alma Mater and reminiscence of the Old Stone steps "sings."

The officers for the coming year will be Alvin D. Chilcoat, '20, president; William H. Davenport, '08, vice-president, and Rev. Frank Yewdall Jagggers, '14, secretary-treasurer.

A feature of the dinner was the presence of five prospective students from Baltimore schools, who will enter College in the fall. Each had been invited as the guest of an Alumnus and the dinner provided the first introduction to Dickinson College affairs.

Among those who attended the dinner-reunion were: Dr. Wm. W. Landis, '91; Dr. Morris Wooden, '93; Harry

L. Price, '96, and Mrs. Price; Isaac T. Parks, Jr., '97, and Mrs. Parks; Oscar Cunningham, Lewis M. Bacon, Jr., '02, and Ruth Heller Bacon, '12, and Miss Nancy Bacon, '38; Sumner M. Drayer, '02, and Mrs. Drayer; Carl F. New, '02, and Mrs. New; Rev. Martin L. Beall, '97, and Mrs. Beall; Edna Albert, '05; Benson B. Boss, '08; Wm. H. Davenport, '08, and Mrs. Davenport; Carlyle R. Earp, '14, and Mrs. Earp; Rev. F. Y. Jagggers, '14; Clarence M. Shepherd, '10; Foster H. Fanseen, '15, and Mrs. Fanseen; Gilbert Malcolm, '15; Homer M. Respass, '17, and Mrs. Respass; Major Louis E. Lamborn, '16, and Lewis Gatchell, a McDonogh School student; Robert A. Waidner, '32; Charles C. Duke, Trustee; William W. Emmart, College Architect; Dr. Harry D. Kruse; Alvin S. Chilcoat and Mrs. Chilcoat; Dean Walter H. Hitchler; Dr. Karl Tinsley Waugh and Monroe H. Hess.

Present Rose Plants to College

Dr. C. C. Bramble, '12, and his wife, Edith Rinker Bramble, '13, early this year presented about 200 rose plants to the College. The plants were received in March and the majority of them were used in planting about the tennis courts in the rear of the Alumni Gymnasium and on the lawn of the President's house.

Dr. Bramble has a hobby of developing climbing roses. All of the plants presented to the College were two years old and grew last year and throughout the winter in the open. Thirty-five of the plants were all root grown by Dr. Bramble and are of the Dr. Van Fleet variety. Forty-two of the plants were their own root Paul's Scarlet roses and eighteen of them were budded on multi-flora.

To Announce Winners of Dickinson Essay Contest

President Karl T. Waugh will announce the winners of the John Dickinson Prize Scholarship Contest which he inaugurated as part of the Sesqui-Centennial Celebration, at the Commencement Exercises in June. Following a system of elimination through the high schools in the five districts, twenty-eight essays reached the hands of the judges and from these the prize winners will be selected.

Though five John Dickinson Scholarships of the full value of $325 were offered, but four will be awarded as no essay was received from a student living in the State of Delaware. The four awards will be made one to Maryland and one to New Jersey and two in Pennsylvania, one for a student east of the Susquehanna and the other from the west of it.

Four $100 scholarship prizes will also be awarded instead of five to the second best essay writers.

The offers were made to students qualified to enter College in September 1933 for the best essays of from 1200 to 1800 words in length upon the subject of John Dickinson and his patriotic services. The contest jointly recognized the two hundredth birthday of John Dickinson and the Sesqui-Centennial of the college he played a large part in founding.

Club Meets in Nation's Capital

The annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Washington was held in the Raleigh Hotel, Washington, D. C., on May 5th with fifty alumni present. Brigadier-General Frank R. Keefer, President of the Club for the past six years, presided.

Refusing to allow himself to be a candidate again at the election of officers, General Keefer announced the election of J. Fred Laise, '06, as President and Maude E. Wilson, '14, as Secretary-Treasurer.

Dean M. Hoffman, '02, Editor of The Patriot and Evening News, Harrisburg, Pa., and Associate Editor of the DICKINSON ALUMNUS, was the speaker of the evening. He was preceded by Harry L. Price, '96, President of the General Alumni Association, who traveled from Baltimore to attend the dinner and by Professor W. W. Landis of the College Faculty and Gilbert Malcolm. The Rev. Dr. F. B. Harris, '09, pastor of Foundry M. E. Church, Washington, delivered the Invocation and professional musicians provided entertainment. The committee in charge of the dinner consisted of General Keefer, J. F. Laise, R. Y. Stuart, '03, W. R. Schmucker, '01, and Maude E. Wilson.

"Thirty Years Out"

A forty page booklet which tells the story of the thirtieth reunion of the Class of 1902 recently came off the press and was distributed to members of the class. Dean Hoffman served as editor and assembled the material and wrote a good bit of it.

Among the illustrations there is a picture of the Class just before the thirtieth reunion parade appearing in the regalia worn for that function. The lay-out shows the Class in the Alumni parade and also the kiltie band which led the '02 section.

A poem by Maud Irving "After Thirty Years Out" appears as a foreword while articles from Dean Hoffman's pen tells the story of the reunion and doings at the Commencement luncheon and other items concerned with the reunion. Several pages are given to the sermon preached by Rev. James Cunningham of the Class and devotions which were held in the tent in the form of Sunday morning service. An interesting section is that containing messages from the members of the Class who could not attend the reunion and there is a detailed report of the 1902 Award. The Class Roll shows that on November 1st, last, there were sixty graduates and twenty-four non-graduates, three who had been officially adopted and seven kinsfolks.

Harrisburg Club Has Breezy Party

With Pennsylvania Supreme Court Justice John W. Kepkart, '94L, as guest of honor, the Dickinson Club of Harrisburg held its 22nd annual dinner at Hotel Harrisburger, April 24th. Homer L. Kreider, '21, the president, was toastmaster.

The dinner had a breezy legal flavor with Judge W. A. Valentine, '01L, and Judge E. Foster Heller, '04, both of Wilkes-Barre, at the head table and near them, Judge Fred S. Reese, Dean Hitchler and Prof. A. J. Hutton of the Law School faculty. Also present were

State Representatives Thomas B. Wilson, '03L, Bradford; Jacob A. Raub, Jr., '19L, Easton; Robert E. Woodside, '26, Dauphin County; and State Senator George L. Reed, '04.

General James G. Steese, '02, who was on his way West, choose to miss a few trains to attend the dinner.

President Vaughn and a group of glee singers along with Gilbert Malcolm represented the college.

These officers were elected: president, Robert W. Crist, '23; vice-president, Paul Walker, '21, and secretary-treasurer, Seth Keener, '27.

A Way to Help

Any alumni who can give summer employment to either men or women students of the College are urged to communicate immediately with Gilbert Malcolm. The students this year are finding considerable difficulty in returning to posts which they had in other summers and others are unable to obtain new employment.

In the College community are students qualified to do almost any kind of work and officers of the College would be glad to recommend to alumni students to fill any particular need. Wherever possible, alumni are urged to consider the employment of Dickinson undergraduates to enable them to return to College the next academic year. Distinct contributions to the College can be made in this way as well as to the welfare of an undergraduate.

Death Claims Prominent Dickinson Orator

WHEN death claimed Anthony T. Walsh, '02 L, on the morning of March 9th, another of that vanishing race of men who, by their own perseverance, have risen from low to high estate answered the summons while his passing shocked a multitude of friends and left a beautiful memory of his friendship. A stalwart Dickinsonian interested ever in the events of the College and the Law School, a regular attendant at all Dickinson meetings, it seemed fitting that he should have made his last public appearance at the annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Northeastern Pennsylvania a little more than a week before his death.

Following a brief illness of intestinal influenza and pneumonia "Tony" as he was best known to all Dickinsonians, died at his home in Pittston, Pa., in his sixtieth year.

Born in Pittston on October 26, 1873, the son of early settlers, he started life's labors about the mines there and served as a mine-patch boy. He attended the schools of Pittston until he was about eleven years of age and then, as was the custom, he went to work in a breaker as a slate picker. He later advanced to the position of doorboy and mule driver in the mines, but all the time he studied at night school to learn telegraphy and in his early twenties he became station agent for the Lehigh Valley Railroad at Upper Pittston where he continued his preparation for the Dickinson School of Law.

When he acquired sufficient funds he entered the Law School and in 1902 upon his graduation he was admitted to the Luzerne County Bar and subsequently to the higher courts of the State and Nation. He served as counsel in many prominent cases and from 1916 to 1920 was the first assistant to the District Attorney, Frank P. Slattery, in Luzerne County. He was the Democratic nominee for District Attorney in 1923, but was defeated by his Dickinson undergraduate associate, Arthur H. James, now Superior Court Judge. During this campaign "Tony" Walsh "waved the flag" for the Democrats at all their rallies. Bitter attacks were made on the Republicans by the Democrats, but "Tony" refused to permit any attacks on Arthur James, the incumbent, for alleged failure of his office to carry through prosecutions in liquor law violation cases. He called off a campaign that had been prepared on this line.

Mr. Walsh never married. He lived with his sister, Miss Katherine Walsh, in the house in which he was born, until her death when he moved to the central section of Pittston and had another sister, Mrs. John McLane, and her four daughters live with him.

"Tony" Walsh was noted as an orator and after dinner speaker and was in demand throughout Eastern Pennsylvania as a toastmaster. His rare sense of humor and his remarkable memory for the dialect stories of coal region characters and their peculiarities featured many Dickinson gatherings in the coal regions and in Carlisle. He was a versatile character, quickly transforming his conduct from the serious pursuits of his profession to the humorous vein of a talented entertainer and speaker.

Always interested in sports, Mr. Walsh was long an intimate of Hughey Jennings and John J. McGraw and spent several spring training periods with the New York Giants in Florida. When he was ten years of age "Tony" was caught under the fall of a roof in the mines and injured while serving as a doorboy. He was rescued by the grandfather of "Bucky" Harris, the present manager of the Detroit baseball team, after other mine workers had run out and left "Tony" wedged under his door against a mine car. Thirty-five years later "Tony" paved the way for "Bucky" Harris' entry into baseball by getting him a trial through John J. McGraw.

Intimates of Mr. Walsh believed that he overtaxed his strength in serving as a court appointed defense counsel for Frank Stabinski, a young desperado whose career in one week in mid-November resulted in two murders and several robberies in the coal regions. Public indignation was aroused over the brutality of this young criminal and his pal and Mr. Walsh fought vigorously against the resentment which had been stirred up against the pair to the point where he felt they would not get fair trial. In spite of his stirring pleas and vigorous defense they were both found guilty and sent to the electric chair in February.

OBITUARY

1874—Richard McCune Parker, native of Carlisle, where for many years he practiced law, member of one of the oldest Cumberland Valley families, died in Washington, D. C., where he had lived and practiced his profession for a number of years, on March 28th.

He was born in Carlisle on July 20, 1854, the son of Richard and Hadassah Graham Parker. He graduated from the Carlisle High School in 1870 and entered the College that fall. He received his A.B. degree in 1874 and his A.M. in 1877. He was a member of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity and the U. P. Society. Following his graduation, he read law, was admitted to the Cumberland County bar and practised in Carlisle during the '80's, later moving to Washington.

Prof. Joseph P. McKeehan, of the Law School faculty, was his nephew.

1874—George Henry Miller, a lawyer in Savannah, Georgia, for many years specializing in real estate and corporation law, died at his residence there on October 1st, last, after a long illness. He was born in Savannah on February 1, 1854, and prepared for college in the high school of that city. He entered Dickinson in 1871 and withdrew in 1874. While an undergraduate he was a member of Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity.

He was admitted to the Georgia bar in 1877 and was very active in the practice of his profession until 1918 when he was first taken ill. He suffered a heart affliction and the last five years of his life was subject to severe and unexpected heart attacks.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Emily K. Miller; one daughter, Mrs. W. N. Pierce, Bloomingdale, Georgia; two sisters, Misses E. I. and Lillian E. Miller of Savannah, and three grandsons.

Funeral services were held from his residence and interment was made in Bonaventure Cemetery, Savannah.

1897—Dr. Wilbur M. Yeingst, Superintendent of Schools in Mt. Carmel, Pa., for the past sixteen years, died suddenly on April 12th from a heart attack. He had had heart trouble for several years but had been about his duties as usual until a day or two before his death.

Born in Boiling Springs, Pa., on June 12, 1875, Dr. Yeingst prepared for college in the old Dickinson Preparatory School. He entered the College in 1893 and received his Ph. B degree in 1897. He received the degree of Doctor of Pedagogy at Susquehanna University in 1927. The two years following his graduation from the College he was Principal of the Boiling Springs public school and then for a time was Principal of the public schools of Halifax, Pa. He later went to Minersville as Principal and from there he became Principal of the Mt. Carmel High School where he also was coach of the football team for a number of years and is credited with having placed football on the high plane that it enjoys in Central Pennsylvania. As an undergraduate, Dr. Yeingst was a member of the football team and had considerable prowess as a wrestler.

The educator was a Mason and a member of the Shrine. He was also an official of the Episcopal Church. Dr. Yeingst was the author of text books on Algebra, Arithmetic, Primary Work, and on Beginners Latin which were sold in many cities in the East. His practice was to fill specific orders from the publisher to write a text book along the lines as desired by specific school districts.

He is survived by his widow, who was Olive K. Mountz of Patton, Pa., and his daughter, Mrs. Howard D. Bare, '23, and a daughter, Helen, who is a student in the Dickinson School of Law. The schools in Mt. Carmel were closed out of respect to the deceased superintendent and his body was brought back to Cumberland County for burial in the Mt. Holly Springs Cemetery.

1927—Word of the death of Robert Bruce Trego at his home in Santa Monica, California, was received in Mechanicsburg on May 16th, though the date of his death or the cause was not reported. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Ruth Colby Trego, and an uncle, W. F. Fishburn, of Mechanicsburg.

He was a graduate of the Boiling Springs High School. After two years as a student of the college, he worked for a time in New York City, and later in Alaska. He had been living in California but a short time prior to his death. He was a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity and was 28 years of age.

NECROLOGY

Mrs. Anna Zug Schaeffer Steese, donor of the Captain John Zug Steese Scholarship at Dickinson, died suddenly on Easter Sunday at her home in Mt. Holly Springs, Pa. She is the mother of Gen. Jas. G. Steese, '02, a Trustee of the College; Capt. John Z. Steese, '04; Col. Chas. M. Steese, '07; Capt. George M. Steese, '13, and Prof. Sophia M. Steese, Metzger '09. Mrs. Steese is one of less than half a dozen American women to have four sons serve as Commissioned Officers of the Army during the World War, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and Mrs. Wm. L. Sibert being two of the others.

While primarily interested in her home and family, the shrubbery on her place at Mt. Holly Springs being one of the sights of the Valley in summertime, Mrs. Steese has always taken an intense interest in education, and under her direction her five children have received ten degrees from Harvard, Yale, West Point, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Columbia, Syracuse, Alaska College, and Dickinson. Up to the time of her death, Mrs. Steese was a member and Secretary of the Board of Trustees of the Amelia S. Givin Free Library in Mt. Holly Springs.
