Bright Prospects for 151st Commencement

CLASS reunion chairmen having been busy for many months, alumni of other classes having indicated their intention of returning to commencement, there is every indication that throngs will attend the 151st Commencement, June 7th to 11th. An attractive program, closely following that of other years, has been arranged and details are being planned in ample time to perfect all arrangements.

John Dickinson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce of the United States, will be the speaker at the 151st Commencement exercises which will be held in the Alumni Gymnasium on Monday, June 11th, the closing event in the program. Honorary degrees and degrees in cursu will be awarded at these exercises.

Commencement will open with the presentation by the Dramatic Club of the play, "The Fugitive," in Bosler Hall on Thursday evening, June 7th.

Senior Day will be observed on Friday, June 8th, with chapel exercises in the morning and class day exercises in the afternoon. Following a plan inaugurated last year, an all-college dance, the Senior Ball, will be held in the Alumni Gymnasium from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Harry Reser and his Cliquot Club Eskimos, nationally known broadcasting orchestra, will furnish the music for the dance. The price of the tickets will be $2 each. During the evening from 10 o'clock to 11 o'clock, Open House will be observed by the fraternities.

The annual meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees and the dinner meeting of the Board of Trustees will be held on Friday.

Register First

Alumni upon arrival at Carlisle should immediately register in the Registration Room in Old West. As has been the practice in recent years, this will be the Commencement Headquarters.

Upon registration, alumni will receive a Commencement button and any tickets for the events for which tickets are necessary.

Any information desired regarding class reunions, lodgings, events on the commencement program may be obtained at the Registration Room. Alumni are urged to secure tickets for the various events just as early as possible.

Following the meetings of Phi Beta Kappa fraternity and of the General Alumni Association on the morning of Alumni Day, Saturday, June 9th, the alumni luncheon will be held at noon. It will probably again be held in a tent on the Mooreland Tract near High and College Streets and admission will be by tickets which will be distributed in the Registration Room in West College. This will be followed by the alumni parade and the baseball game on Biddle Field, when Dickinson will meet Bucknell. Fraternity banquets will be held in the evening.

A distinct flavor will be given to commencement by the presence on the campus of the 1914 Glee Club. This group will give a concert at 8.30 o'clock on Saturday, June 9th, with the present 1934 Glee Club, in Bosler Hall. Charles A. Goodyear, who was a director of the 1914 Glee Club, is now directing the 1934 Glee Club and he is assembling the same group which held a very successful reunion ten years ago. The present plan is for the 1914 Club to sing some of the same numbers which it sang twenty years ago.

The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, D.D., of the class of 1909, pastor of the Foundry M. E. Church, Washington, D. C., will preach the baccalaureate sermon in the Allison Memorial Church on Sunday morning, June 10th at 11 o'clock.

Vesper services which have usually been held on Sunday evening before Old West have not been scheduled for this year, but instead the Women's Glee Club of the College under the direction of Mrs. Leslie M. Karper will give a sacred concert in Allison Memorial Church on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

The majority of the classes which will meet in reunion will hold their class dinners after the baccalaureate services on Sunday afternoon. They will also have reunion tables at the alumni luncheon.

Several of the college fraternities will celebrate anniversaries this year with initiations and services which will be held Saturday evening, beginning at 5.30 o'clock. The annual Raven's Claw anniversary banquet will be held that same night following the glee club concert.

The attention of alumni is called to the fact that Carlisle is operating on Eastern Standard Time and all of the commencement events are scheduled for standard time.

Atlantic City Club Meets

The annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Atlantic City was held at the Morton Hotel on May 4th. Irwin E. Kline, '01, president of the Club, acted as toastmaster.

Addresses were made by H. Walter Gill, '07, as representative of the Board of Trustees, and by Saul E. Gorson, '17 L, representative of the Law School alumni of Atlantic City. During the dinner Percy L. Vosburg, '11, of Shamokin, Pa., who was a guest in the hotel, heard the singing and came in to find the Dickinson dinner.

Raymond B. Whitmoyer, '13, former vice-president of the Club, was elected president, while Marjorie McIntire, '10, was elected vice-president and Mabel B. Kirk, '05, was reelected secretary treasurer.

One Hundred Forty-Two Lifers on Alumni Roll

ANOTHER gain of five names over the list published last May is shown in the roll of Life Members to the General Alumni Association, published by edict of the Alumni Council in this number of the magazine. The roll now lists 142 names.

The hundred mark was passed for the first time in May, 1930 when 106 names were reported. In May, 1931 the list showed 121 Lifers, while the total in May, 1932 was 132, and last May the total was listed as 137.

During the present fiscal year, names of two alumni became memorialized through their deaths, and asterisks now appear before the names of the Rev. George A. Cure, of the class of 1876, and Dr. W. Blair Stewart, of the class of 1887. A new name heads the list of Lifers through the subscription of Dr. Charles W. Super, of the class of 1866, one of the oldest living alumni of the College, while the classes of 1932 and 1933 were given representation at the other end of the list through the subscriptions of Boyd Lee Spahr, Jr., and Christian C. F. Spahr. L. T. Colblentz sent in his payment and he enrolled under the class of 1900 L. Mrs. Janet Harman Hartzell became the fourth Lifer of the class of 1926.

The position of classes did not change during the present fiscal year and the class of 1902 still leads all other classes in the total number of Lifers by a large margin, having fifteen enrolled, while 1903 and 1912 both tie for second place, each having six Lifers. The classes of 1910 and 1915 are also tied for third place with five each.

While classes from 1866 to 1933 are now represented on the life membership roll, there are several gaps and the following classes are not represented: 1871, 1873, 1875, 1877, 1879, 1890, 1892, 1894, 1920, 1929 and 1931.

One hundred forty-two alumni having paid $40 each, the total life membership fund of the General Alumni Association is $5,680. This whole principal is invested and the income only is used for alumni association purposes.

Life membership costs $40 and may be paid in two installments of $20 each. The $40 invested at 5% yields $2 a year, the amount of the annual membership dues in the General Alumni Association. Life membership carries with it life subscription to THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS and entitles the Lifer to all the rights and privileges of active membership in the Association. It ends the annual payment of dues. Check for life membership may be sent to THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, West College, Carlisle, or the Treasurer of the Association, Rev. Dr. Harry B. Stock, Carlisle, Pa.

There are two other classes of membership in the General Alumni Association. One calls for the annual payment of $2 dues and the other, which costs $1 a year, is open to graduates of the College for the first three years after graduation.

Continue Student Aid Jobs

Fifty-seven students began work in March under the program of the State Emergency Relief Board on various college projects. The appropriation of $855 for the first month has been continued through April and May and the work will continue until June 11.

Through this medium, twelve women and forty-five men have been able to earn from $15 to $20 a month each.

One of the major projects has been the rebuilding of the college walks. Another supervised by Prof. M. W. Eddy deals with the making of lantern slides and charts for the various departments of the college.

One student has devoted all of his time to filling out the biographical record cards of alumni for the permanent alumni records, while three others have conducted an extensive research into the economic teachings of President Nisbet.

John Dickinson to Speak at Commencement

JOHN Dickinson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce and a co-lateral descendant of the founder of the college, will deliver the commencement address on June 11. He will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Mr. Dickinson is a descendant of an elder brother of John Dickinson, founder of the college.

He has for many years been recognized as one of the leading authorities in the United States on administrative law, especially the law relating to the authority and duties of administrative boards and commissions.

His work on "Administrative Justice and the Supremacy of Law," published in 1927, has become a standard treatise widely used and quoted in this country and in England. For many years Mr. Dickinson was engaged in the practice of law and has more recently engaged to some extent in consulting practice on questions falling in the border line between law and economics.

Because of the intimate relation between law and economics and the increasing trend to the enlistment of the legal-economic viewpoint in the solution of current business problems, Mr. Dickinson is well qualified by training and experience to administer the duties of Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

For a number of years he was a member of the Committee on Public Administration of the Social Science Research Council which has been engaged in promoting research and teaching in the field of public administration. He is at present a member of the Board of Directors of the Council.

He has served as a member of the Executive Committee of the American Political Science Association and is actively identified with various committees of the American Law School Association. He has made numerous addresses before various learned societies and state bar associations on subjects connected with public law and legislation.

The Assistant Secretary is the author of a number of economic surveys, principally a survey of the garment industry of New York City, prepared in 1925.

During the World War, Mr. Dickinson was attached to the general staff in Washington, with the rank of First Lieutenant.

He holds degrees from Johns Hopkins, Princeton, and Harvard Universities. He was a member of the faculties of Amherst, Harvard, Princeton, and the University of Pennsylvania.

President Roosevelt named him to be Assistant Secretary of Commerce and entered upon duty on April 15, 1933.

He was born at Greensboro near Trappe on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, February 24, 1894.

Eight Will Receive Honorary Degrees

REV. JOHN J. SNAVELY, '04

GEN. FRANK R. KEEFER, '85

EIGHT honorary degrees will be conferred by the College at the 151st commencement exercises on Monday morning, June 11th. Five of the degrees will be conferred upon alumni of the College.

John Dickinson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce of the United States, who will deliver the commencement address, will receive the degree of Doctor of Laws. This degree will also be conferred upon Vance C. McCormick, graduate of Yale, newspaper publisher and nationally known resident of Harrisburg.

The degree of Doctor of Science will be conferred upon Brig. Gen. Frank R. Keefer, '85, retired officer of the U. S. Army, and one-time commandant of the Carlisle Barracks.

W. Carlton Harrison, '09, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Baltimore, Md., will receive the degree of Doctor of Science in Religious Education.

Four outstanding clergymen will be awarded the degree of Doctor of Divinity. One of these will be Rev. G. W. Henson, graduate of Ursinus College, district superintendent of the Philadelphia M. E. Conference, while the other three are alumni of the College. These are Rev. John J. Snavely, '04, district superintendent of the New York M. E. Conference; Rev. Jacob E. Washabaugh, '10, district superintendent of the Newark M. E. Conference; and Rev. Carlton R. VanHook, '12, pastor of the M. E. Church in Pitman, N. J. At the same exercises, Philip VanHook, now a senior in the College and a son of Rev. Mr. VanHook, will receive his bachelor's degree.

Form Dickinson Club of Northern New Jersey

WITH sixty alumni present, the Dickinson Club of Northern New Jersey was organized at a dinner held in Morristown on the evening of May 8th. Plans for the dinner were inaugurated by the officers of the Dickinson Club of New York.

For several years many of the alumni living in New Jersey asked that a meeting of the New York Club be held there and a dinner was arranged as an experiment to find what response would be made to a call for a dinner in that area. Encouraged by the presence of a large group of representative alumni, immediate steps were taken to organize a club. Under the plans proposed, an annual meeting will be held in North New Jersey by the newly organized club and the members of the club will attend the annual New York dinner in New York which is usually held in December.

J. Ernest Crane, '11, of Newark, N. J., was elected president, Thomas Latimer Brooks, '06, of Somerville, was chosen vice-president, and Victor H. Boell, '11, who presided as toastmaster of the dinner, of Morristown, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Various novelty stunts had been planned by J. Ernest Crane in making arrangements for the dinner. He issued a call for the alumni to bring early photographs of themselves. Meeting with a poor response to this suggestion, he had provided caricatures and by vote of those present, awarded medals to Leon A. McIntire, '07, Mrs. Bessie VanAuken, '12, and Waldo Herritt, '83.

Two speeches were made at the dinner, one by Dr. John R. Edwards, member of the Board of Trustees, and the other by Gilbert Malcolm. Greetings were sent to President Morgan and best wishes to Leon C. Prince in his campaign for nomination as Lieutenant-Governor of Pennsylvania.

Many Prospective Students Visit College

PROBABLY for the first time in the history of the college, a visiting day for prospective students was held on May 10 when a luncheon was served to 175 in the Alumni Gymnasium.

The day's program began with registration which was in charge of Omicron Delta Kappa Fraternity, which sponsored the event. This was followed by tours of the campus conducted by students, and then opportunity was given for interviews with members of the faculty and college officers.

Following the luncheon, the visitors were escorted to Biddle Field to view the three-ring program staged there. It was significant that on that afternoon Dickinson teams scored a "grand slam." The baseball team defeated Delaware University, the track team defeated Bucknell University, while the tennis team won over Temple University.

Dean E. A. Vuellmeumier presided

at the luncheon as master of ceremonies. During the meal, the male quartet of the Glee Club sang several numbers and at its close the Women's Glee Club directed by Mrs. Leslie M. Karper sang two numbers.

A distinctive feature of the luncheon was the fact that there were but two speeches, both made by members of the Senior Class. The speakers were Priscilla McConnell and Harris R. Green, Jr., president of the class. They both answered the same question and did it most effectively in replying to the query "Why I Would Come to Dickinson?"

Invitations were sent to the several hundred prospective students on the list for next year. Many could not come but some have since visited the college while many others are planning to do so during the summer months after the completion of their high school studies.

Crowds Attend Law School Centennial Celebration

UNEXPECTED throngs answered the call to come to Carlisle to mark the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Dickinson School of Law, which was celebrated in a fitting two day program on April 6 and 7.

When the project was first discussed it was thought that a relatively small group would respond, but no sooner had the invitations been mailed than the committee realized that the event would be observed with the enthusiasm of alumni which its importance deserved. Several additions and changes were made to the announced program and hasty arrangements completed to care for all who came.

Instead of a few gathering for the dinner, places were laid by Conaway, the Baltimore caterer, for 550 places at a magnificent function held in the Alumni Gymnasium. The anniversary banquet proved to many to be the outstanding event of the celebration, though the smoker on the opening night with Pennsylvania's Supreme Court Justice, John W. Kephart, '94L, president of the Alumni Association, presiding with one Superior Court judge, and thirty-five judges among the several hundred alumni present, proved a highlight.

While the smoker was in session, the visiting ladies were also entertained in Trickett Hall by wives of the faculty and some of their friends. Refreshments were served to the joint group.

The second day of the celebration opened in the morning with a meeting of the Alumni Association and was followed at noon by class reunion dinners and several fraternity and other private parties. The dinner was held in the evening and was followed by dancing at the Carlisle Country Club, where as at the dinner the Club Royal Orchestra furnished the music.

Congressman James M. Beck, former Attorney General of the United States, was the principal speaker at the dinner, and he made a scholarly and appropriate address. Judge W. Alfred Valentine, of the Luzerne County Courts, president of the Board of Incorporators, acted as toastmaster. The invocation was spoken by President J. H. Morgan.

A feature of the dinner was the presentation of a portrait of Judge John Reed, founder of the school. The address of presentation was made by Dean Walter H. Hitchler, though he made a troubled start when a basket of flowers was presented to him just as he was about to begin his speech and became a signal for an exceptional demonstration in his honor. The speech of acceptance was ably made by Justice Kephart.

Dr. Herbert F. Goodrich, dean of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, conveyed the greetings of the Philadelphia institution and he was followed by Congressman Beck.

The Alumni Gymnasium was elaborately decorated for the banquet. This was done by Plack, Harrisburg decorator, while flowers were by W. S. George & Son, of Carlisle. The speaker's table mounted on a slightly elevated platform, was completely festooned with a surpassing array of flowers, while floral centerpieces graced each table.

The following committees arranged the details of the celebration: Anniversary Committee, John D. Faller, chairman; Judge W. A. Valentine, Judge Fred B. Moser, Judge Charles C. Greer and Clarence Balentine, Banquet Committee, Judge Fred S. Reese, chairman; Dr. H. T. Sadler, Addison M. Bowman, Joseph Kramer and Edwin Blementhal. Smoker Committee, Prof. F. Eugene Reader, chairman, John E. Myers, Mark E. Garber, J. Boyd Landis and Robert L. Jacobs. Invitation Committee, Prof. Harold S. Irwin, chairman, Prof. Spencer R. Liverant, Jacob M. Goodyear, A. Emerson Howell and Richard H. Wagner. Committee on Arrangements, Gilbert Malcolm, chairman.

Spring Sports Teams Setting Fast Pace

DICKINSON'S athletic teams are setting a fast pace this Spring. As the Spring schedules draw to a close this month, it appears that Red and White teams have enjoyed their most successful season in the half century of intercollegiate spring athletic competition.

Another fact that brings joy to the hearts of Dickinson sports followers is the fact that comparatively few men will be lost to either the baseball, track or tennis teams by graduation and each may expect even brighter prospects a year from now.

The Red Devil teams set a fast pace on a recent Saturday afternoon when the baseball team trimmed the University of Delaware, the tennis team took Temple's measure and the track team walloped Bucknell. This achievement according to Coach "Cap" Craver is without parallel in Dickinson spring sports annals. Another feat of which "Cap" Craver may be justly proud is the defeat which his track pupils administered to Gettysburg over at the Battlefield several Saturdays ago. Dickinson won by a score of 85.1 to 40.9, representing the largest margin of victory that any Red Devil team ever piled up against its arch-rival.

The baseball team has won seven victories and lost but twice, both on foreign fields. The high spot of the season occurred when Joe McCormick's team sent three Gettysburg pitchers to the showers in the course of a 12 to 3 victory. The stellar performers on the diamond this season are "Josh" Bartley who is setting the pace for the Dickinson batters with an average well over .400 and Pete Sivess, giant sophomore, who has pitched Dickinson to five victories and has been nicked but once, when he lost the Penn State assignment, 6 to 0. In addition to his hurling performances, he is leading his teammates in extra base hits with an average of .350.

Coach Gardner Hayes has a tennis team this year that is unusually strong, having won eight matches and lost but one. Justin Harris is setting the pace for the Dickinson racquet wielders, having won every singles match this season. The personnel of the tennis team, geographically speaking covers a lot of territory—Karl Ringer, German Exchange student from the University of Munich to the east and Robert Blewitt, of Madison, South Dakota to the west.

The trackmen, of whom Captain Wesley Day is the ironman, have won all three dual meets, placed seventh in the Middle Atlantic States meet at Lafayette and second in the Central Pennsylvania meet at Gettysburg. The mile relay team composed of Captain Day, Jack Gothie, Bob Finney and Bill McCarty, captured the Class B mile relay race at the University of Pennsylvania Relay Carnival.

Graduates Live Longer Than Non-Graduates

By PROFESSOR F. E. CRAVER, '99

Head of the Department of Physical Education

TO what extent does scholarship depend upon health among students at Dickinson? This query recently propounded by a Dickinsonian proved sufficiently intriguing to the department of Physical Education to bring about a study of the problem along lines that seem to furnish, if not a conclusive, at least an interesting answer.

It has been pointed out before that if two persons of equal mental capacity enter college, and one can work eight hours a day while the other, because of ill health, can work but six the two will be widely separated in attainments at the end of four years.

To the writer the thought occurred that perhaps a worthwhile comparison of scholarship might be made by a study of the comparative longevity records of students who had graduated from college and those who had failed to graduate. While it is undoubtedly true that other reasons may be offered to account for failure in college, it is also probably true that more students fail to graduate because of ill health than for any other reason.

A study was made of twenty-five college classes at Dickinson beginning with the Class of 1880, up to and including the Class of 1904. The study thus included a total of 1280 students, a sufficient number, we feel, to give some weight to the conclusion that health and scholarship are very closely related.

Of the 1280 students thus considered 761 graduated from the college while 519 did not. Of the 761 graduates there are now living 575, a percentage of survivors of slightly less than 75½ per cent. Of the 519 non-grads of the same period there are now living 312, almost exactly 60 per cent of survivors. A difference of 15½ per cent between the two classes of students seems to indicate clearly that ill health must, to a considerable degree, explain the reasons for the failure of many to graduate from the college.

We leave the logic of the situation to our readers and conclude with the presentation of certain discoveries in our study of the records, discoveries that may prove quite as interesting to others as they were to us.

Only four of the classes under consideration, the Classes of 1880, 1883, 1889 and 1892 show a percentage of survivors favorable to the non-graduates, and of these the best record for the non-grads is that of the Class of 1880 with 11 per cent advantage on the side of the non-grads.

The greatest advantage of grads over non-grads is held by the Classes of '87, '88, '90 and '94. The Class of '88 tops this group with a record of 45 per cent in favor of the grads. The exact figures, as given in the college records, show that '88 graduated 19 of whom 13 are living; the non-graduates numbered 8, of whom but one survives. Thus the grads show almost 68½ per cent of survivors; the non-grads but 12½ per cent.

Many Colleges Face Great Financial Problems

THAT many colleges and private schools are maintaining their services to students in face of great and increasing financial difficulties is revealed by recent reports to the Federal Office of Education. Colleges affiliated with churches are feeling the effects of economic conditions even more severely than other privately controlled institutions, according to information received from 279 institutions.

Almost half the church colleges were in arrears in payments due their faculties in February. Seven private colleges were also unable to complete salary payment due members of their faculties. Thirty-two institutions (30 church, 2 private) each owe faculty members more than $20,000. Nine church colleges and 1 private college were each in arrears on salaries more than $40,000, in February.

Reasons for the financial difficulties are that church and private colleges are carrying a large number of needy students, accepting notes for tuition; that some have accumulated obligations for salaries and other operating costs; that many have obligations for buildings and repairs which require refinancing; and that many have mortgages, bonds and other miscellaneous debts which are difficult to meet in these times.

Only 20 out of 210 church colleges, and only 7 out of 69 private colleges have no students who have not had to give notes for their tuition. In each of 28 church institutions and 15 private institutions, more than 300 students have given notes for all or part of their tuition.

Five church colleges and 6 private colleges each have more than $80,000 in tuition due them from students they are carrying through the hardships of the economic situation. Tuition notes to the amount of $10,000 and up are in the hands of treasurers of each of 96 church colleges and 43 private colleges reporting.

Although 85 church colleges and 52 private colleges report that they have been able to pay current operating costs, including salaries, many are not so fortunate. Seven institutions are "in the red" on current maintenance obligations to the extent of $125,000 or more; 29 have $50,000 or more outstanding.

The Federal Office of Education also asked these institutions the extent of their capital improvement obligations for buildings and repairs which call for early refinancing. The response from 228 institutions showed that 10 have $500,000 or more in this type of obligation.

Bonds requiring interest payment, mortgages, and other debts comprise the fourth source of financial difficulty. Sixty-three church colleges report a total of $10,399,713 in such debts; private colleges, $6,950,000; a total of $16,494,713 for 80 colleges.

The same reports which disclose the serious financial straits of private and denominational institutions tell what the faculties have done to help meet the situation. In 18 church institutions and 3 private colleges, salaries, which were never large, have been cut 50 per cent or more. Twenty-one of 69 private institutions, and 174 out of 210 church colleges reporting have reduced salaries 20 per cent or more.

Only 23 church colleges and 21 private colleges have not reduced the faculty salary scale.

Commenting on the facts revealed by the Federal Office of Education survey and in letters and conversations, Dr. Fred J. Kelly, Chief of the higher education of the U. S. Office of Education says:

"The critical financial situation confronting many of the colleges and universities at this time is a matter of serious national concern. Adequate facilities for higher education, always closely identified with social progress, are even more essential now than ever before. Rapid social changes call for rapid adjustments by leaders. The greater complexity of social and economic life requires more years of school and college attendance to prepare for it. The program of economic recovery properly tends to reserve jobs for former employees and heads of families and thus to make it difficult for youths to find jobs. In the absence of a program for youth employment, there is need for greatly increased college facilities. In the face of these needs, the financial difficulties experienced by many of the colleges, as indicated in the study here reported, is little less than tragic."

The final question asked for "other" obligations which the college would like to refinance. These are in addition to "current maintenance obligations," and "capital improvement obligations." They consist chiefly of bonds, mortgages, and current debts of a miscellaneous sort.

The answers total 63 church colleges with $10,399,713 such obligations and 17 private colleges with $6,095,000, or a total of 80 colleges with $16,494,713.

This means that 29 per cent of the colleges have outstanding obligations of this type amounting to an average of $206,184 per college.

Receives Faculty Appointment

Paul R. Burkholder, '24, has been elected as Assistant Professor of Botany at the Connecticut College for Women, New London, Conn., and will assume his new duties in the fall. For the past two years, he has been National Research Council Fellow in the Biological Sciences at Columbia University.

He is the third Dickinsonian called to the faculty of the Connecticut College.

Goes to Lawrence College

Dr. Herbert L. Davis, '21, former member of the college faculty and for the past two years assistant professor of chemistry at Westminster College, New Wilmington, has been named assistant professor of chemistry at Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis. Dr. Davis, who was valedictorian of his class in 1921, has also taught and studied at Cornell where he received his Ph.D. degree.

Honor Founders on May Day

The annual joint observance of May Day and Founders Day was held on Wednesday, May 2nd, when the Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill of Washington, Chancellor of Lincoln University, and former pastor of Grace M. E. Church, Harrisburg, delivered an address in the chapel hour. The celebration opened with a May Day breakfast in the alumni gymnasium, starting at 8.30 o'clock, to which the co-eds acted as waitresses.

Immediately following the chapel exercises, a delegation from the sophomore class marched to the Old Graveyard to place flowers upon the graves of Charles Nisbet, first president, George Edward Reed, Herman M. Johnson and Robert Davidson. The president of the class, Klein Merriman of Beaver Falls, delivered the traditional oration at Dr. Nisbet's grave.

From the Old Graveyard the students went to Westminster Cemetery to place flowers on the grave of President Mervin G. Filler and where members of the Mohler Scientific Club placed a wreath upon the grave of the late Dr. J. Fred Mohler.

An intra-mural track meet was held on Biddle Field in the afternoon and the all-day program ended with open house at Metzger Hall in the evening.

Club Holds Second Meeting

The Dickinson Club of West Branch Valley which was organized at a meeting held last December in Williamsport followed the program projected at that meeting and met again on May 10th in Jersey Shore. A number of alumni who had not attended the earlier meeting motored to the Jersey Shore gathering.

Carrol R. Macklem presided as toastmaster. Prof. W. W. Landis, of the College faculty and Dean W. H. Hitchler, of the Law School, journeyed from Carlisle as representatives of the two institutions and made addresses. Dr. M. E. Swartz was the other speaker.

EDITORIAL

GET THE HABIT

FOR alumni who have the habit, each year the appeal to return for Commencement grows more irresistible. Happily more and more are succumbing to the habit. This probably explains why even during the drab years of the depression, the Commencement visitors' book filled up in just about the same fashion as in fat years.

Even if Alma Mater were not summoning her children back home, the campus, its grey stone walls and the beauty of the Cumberland Valley itself with the remaining suggestions of the old colonial color of Carlisle itself would be lure enough for a week-end trip. Add to all that the satisfactions that come to old friends and companions when they meet after even a year of separation and one understands why each year the Commencement invasion continues to grow.

In its lay-out of events, the Commencement program is much like that of recent years. There is a charm in that. It is restful as well as entertaining. While the design of the program is to provide something for somebody every minute, it also gives to the discriminating visitor the cafeteria privilege of "pick and choose."

The highly desirable tradition of class reunions will be maintained this year. There will be a full Alumni Day schedule, June 9, with the fascinating luncheon the "pee-rade" and this year, in the evening, a glee club concert. More serious matters will be handled by the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association in the morning.

Not only the Administration but the Alumni Council urge and welcome a return of the old and the young grad. It is offered with a confidence that there will be no regrets and that, in the best neo-classicism, "a good time will have been had by all."

NEW STUDENTS

WHILE the experience of some institutions is to the contrary, most colleges and universities are coming to feel that so far as prospective students are concerned, the years ahead are to be just the reverse of the years behind. In other words the colleges will be seeking students rather than students seeking the college.

Such a situation is naturally a matter of some concern to college administrators. It will be somewhat different from that recent abnormal era when students were clamoring for admission. Some colleges will find it dangerous to be too fastidious about their matriculates. There will be a temptation to lower certain standards in the interest of a full roster of freshmen.

This condition is less likely to confront the colleges which have maintained high scholastic standards. It is by just that sort of policy that students are attracted to an institution. Dickinson itself has been the beneficiary of such a program. It will be regrettable if it should even think of compromising with its ideals.

Economic conditions, of course, are responsible for the changed order of things. Even the finest type of institutions may not escape the slump in the college-going population. Alumni of a college however can do much to offset the falling off of college matriculations by never missing an opportunity to recommend alma mater to likely college student prospects. It calls for the same sort of awareness and alertness that seizes the opportunity to suggest alma mater when wills are being drafted or considered.

There is much weight to the idea that the small liberal arts colleges of the country each year become more dependent on their alumni for a great variety of things. They do not have that assurance enjoyed by tax-supported institutions nor of those richly endowed. But even the heavily endowed private institution looks upon its alumni body for its growth in students and its promotion.

Dickinsonians with or without the ability to give support of substance to the college can help tremendously in the days ahead by cooperating in the enlistment of the right kind of members of the incoming classes.

A PERFECT SETTING

EVERY now and then Fate arranges a perfect setting. To many Dickinsonians that will be the conception of the selection of John Dickinson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce to deliver the Commencement address, June 11.

The mere association of the name of the speaker with that of the college has a pleasing flavor. That Mr. Dickinson is a member of the family of the man whose name the college bears accentuates it all the more. The conspicuous position Mr. Dickinson occupies in the Federal Government and his distinguished career as an educator emphasizes still more the wisdom of the committee's action.

For sentimental reasons if no others it is regrettable that all during the years there have been so few contacts between the Dickinson family and the institution which proudly carries that name. There is nothing much that could have been done about it or to do about it now, but it is gratifying to many Dickinsonians that at the 151st Commencement, its orator will be an outstanding representative of the family whose ancestor found so much to interest him and win his favor as the college at Carlisle.

ANOTHER CLUB

ORGANIZATION of the Dickinson Club of North Jersey brings to fifteen the number of alumni groups. This is highly gratifying to all Dickinsonians. It is another feather for the hat of the General Alumni Association, not to mention feathers for the hats of all alumni who have joined in this movement to maintain contact and interest in Alma Mater.

The Alumni Association can dedicate itself to no finer service for the College than the stimulation of alumni interest through such clubs. They are designed to be the generating plants for graduate loyalty and helpfulness. It is not always easy to point to definite results but their value cannot be questioned.

For the record, these clubs as clubs do not perform much beyond the annual dinners which are uniformly observed. But no person familiar with such dinners would belittle the tremendous influence they have in shaping alumni interest in the College. Some clubs develop amazing interest. The Philadelphia Club's dinner this year registered 164 present, the largest in the club's history. The success of that dinner is another reminder that the right kind of promotion brings results.

Fifteen clubs, of course, represent only a fraction of the number of clubs which ought to be included in the roster. There are still many centers in the East which ought to be organized. In some or all of these there ought to be one or more alumni willing to take the initiative in the organization of such units. It is an opportunity for service and satisfaction.

New Emphasis on Religion Arouses Deep Interest

AS THE result of an increased interest on the part of the students of Dickinson College in religious topics, a plan has been evolved seeking to provide for the religious needs of the entire college. Investigations have been carried out by Dr. Russell I. Thompson, associate professor of psychology and education, which indicate that the students of the College are favorably inclined toward the formal program of religion and possess a critical but intelligent attitude on its values in life.

Professor Thompson has stated that any program devised to meet adequately the present and future situation in the College must be based upon meeting the needs of all the students, conserving the religious background of new students, enriching the experience of students in religion while they are in college, and preparing students for intelligent future participation in programs of religious education in their home communities.

President Morgan has appointed a faculty committee on religious affairs, consisting of Professors Wilbur H. Norcross, Lewis Guy Rohrbaugh, Russell Thompson, Mrs. Josephine B. Meredith, Dean of Women and Ernest A. Vuilleumier, acting Dean of the College. The members of this committee have been interviewing students who are interested in an all-college plan for religious activities. This committee has approved the provisional plan for creating an all-college committee on religious affairs.

The proposed committee will include Jewish, Roman Catholic and Protestant students. Each group is to have a student executive committee, a pastoral adviser and a faculty adviser. Under the proposed plan, the groups will unite in certain projects, such as forum discussion, social service, chapel, fraternity house discussions and a freshman program. In addition to this, each group will have certain group activities, such as worship and deputation service. During the past weeks particular interest has been shown in the Young People's fellowship conducted by the Rev. W. Emory Hartman, of the Allison Memorial M. E. Church. There have been a series of meetings conducted by Jewish, Catholic and Protestant groups. Each group presented an outline of beliefs, the church government and organization, the ritual and beliefs.

Under the direction of Professor Thompson, twenty-eight discussion groups have already been held in fraternity houses. The discussions included moral, social and religious topics and were well attended and received.

It is proposed to set up a program definitely aimed to hold freshmen by securing relevant information concerning their religious connections and interests, and by setting up religious activities which will immediately attract them. Plans are under way for organizing teacher training classes, accredited by the International Council of Religious Education. This would prepare the students to take their proper places in their home church schools upon graduation from college. The fraternity house discussion groups held during the past weeks have been so successful that it is planned to continue them as long as they are found to be of value. Deputation work is being planned through boards of religious education. The students of the College are being given an opportunity to lead in club activities of Carlisle, in organizations which emphasize religious personality development.

A large number of students and members of the faculty have shown interest in the development of these plans for providing for the religious life in the College.

Four Receive Scholarships for Graduate Study

WM. R. WOODWARD

CHRISTINA MEREDITH

KATHERINE LODER

B. R. EPSTEIN

THREE members of the June graduating class and one member of the Class of 1933 have been awarded scholarships entitling them to a year's university study. Three of the scholarships provide for foreign study, two in Germany and one in France.

Christina Meredith, of the Class of 1934 and daughter of Dean Josephine B. Meredith, has been awarded the Pi Beta Phi Graduate Fellowship of $500 by the national fraternity. Miss Meredith plans to use the fellowship for a year's graduate study at Johns Hopkins University. She was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in February and will receive a bachelor of arts degree next month.

Katherine Loder, also of the Class of 1934, has been awarded a Franco-American scholarship entitling her to a full year's study at the University of Toulouse, France. She is the daughter of State Senator LeRoy W. Loder of Bridgeton, N. J., who was recently appointed Judge of the Cumberland County Court of Common Pleas. The award was one of four made by the Franco-American committee of the Institute of International Education in New York.

William R. Woodward, Class of 1934, son of Franklin T. Woodward, '01, and Benjamin R. Epstein, Class of 1935, have been awarded one year scholarships for study at the German university of their choice. These awards were also made by the Institute of International Education in New York and the recipients have indicated that they will both study at the University of Munich.

Epstein has been taking graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania where he was recently awarded the Jusserand Fellowship on the recommendation of the faculty of the University Graduate school, entitling him to $450 for travel and study.

Harrisburg Club Meets

The annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Harrisburg was held in the New Plaza Hotel on the evening of May 4, when about 40 alumni were present. Robert W. Crist, '23, president of the Club presided.

Paul R. Walker, '21, former vice-president was elected president, while Phillips Brooks Scott, '21, '23L, was chosen vice-president, and Seth Keener, '23L, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Following a discussion led by George Ross Hull, '07, a motion was adopted asking the Trustees of the College to appoint a tribunal to consider the facts concerning the resignation of Dr. Karl T. Waugh as president of the College.

Around The World In Five Weeks

By GEN. JAS. G. STEESE, '02, R.F.G.S.

LESS than three generations ago, Jules Verne wrote a number of fanciful romances, "From the Earth to the Moon," "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," "Three Thousand Miles Up the Amazon," "Around the World in Eighty Days," &c. These were purely imaginative works, and described adventures then considered impossible. However, granting the author his preliminary premises, these romances were, from a scientific standpoint, worked out quite logically and rigorously.

While we have not yet visited the Moon, such a project, by means of rockets, is now being seriously considered by some German scientists. We long ago developed the submarine and the flying machine, forecast by Jules Verne, and ocean-going vessels have sailed from New York City to and up the Amazon River well into Peru, and to within a few hundred miles of the Pacific Ocean.

Over fifty years ago, Nellie Bly, inspired by the last mentioned romance of Jules Verne, actually did make a trip around the world in a little less than eighty days. A year or two ago, two venturesome aviators made the trip around the World in just eight days.

Forty Day Period

Nevertheless, in spite of all modern developments and improvements, it still takes nearly one-half of the eighty days to make the trip around the World by the standard and more usual methods of land and sea transportation. The airplane and the hydroplane, except in isolated stretches, have not yet established themselves as a regular and dependable means of transportation around the World.

I returned a year or two ago from a trip around the World which took me a total elapsed time from New York City back to New York City of about five months. I was not out after any records, had business or pleasure in view which made a number of side trips and detours necessary or desirable, and I have done too much of it to be any longer interested in travel merely for the sake of traveling. In the past twelve years I have traveled over 420,000 miles, and until recently have spent an average of only about three months per year within the limits of Continental United States.

The Itinerary

Following my actual route, and disregarding detours and connections, I spent the following time actually traveling on a continuous route from New York City back to New York City:

From	To	Via	Days
New York City	Marselles	Boat	10
Marselles	Bombay, India	Boat	13
Bombay	Colombo, Ceylon	Rail	3
Colombo	Fremantle,
	Australia	Boat	10
Fremantle	Sydney	Rail	5
Sydney	Wellington,
	New Zealand	Boat	4
Wellington	Auckland	Rail	1
Auckland	Panama	Boat	24
Panama	New York City	Boat	9
Total Days			79

Obviously I did not take the shortest nor the most direct route, as I was not interested in the time factor, but I was interested in every stage of the actual route. However, I have considered fractions of a day as whole days, so that at each connecting point there is a gap of sufficient hours to make the connection; in other words, assuming daily steamship and train service, the above schedule would hold.

According to the calendar, the above trip would take only 78 days, the trip from Auckland, New Zealand, to Cristobal, Canal Zone, being scheduled apparently for only 23 days. Actually, the International Date Line, the 180th

Map Showing General Steese's Trip

Meridian, is crossed soon after leaving New Zealand, so we had two successive days dated, Sunday, December 13, or a Sunday forty-seven hours long. Fortunately there were no preachers on board.

Half of my five months, therefore, were taken up in traveling onwards. The remainder of my time was fully occupied with side-trips, pleasant delays in World Capitals, &c. From Marseilles, I detoured via Paris, Turin, Venice, Cortina d'Ampezzo, Bolzano, Genoa, Rome, Bari, Sorrento, Capri, Naples, Cagliari, Tunis, Marseilles, Paris, London, Gibraltar, and Algeiras, before again sailing from Marseilles.

Through India

Instead of then traveling straight through to Australia, I got off my boat at Bombay, and detoured through India and Ceylon to Colombo, where I caught a later boat.

In Australia, I spent some time in Perth, Melbourne, Sydney, and Brisbane, in addition to the long rail journey entirely across the Continent. In New Zealand, I motored from Wellington to Auckland via Palmerston, Napier, Taupo, Whakarewarewa, and Rotorua, with interesting delays to see something of its natural wonders and Maori native life.

In Panama, of course, I had to delay some time to see my friends and to live over again in recollection some of the events of my five years on the construction of the Railroad and Canal. Between Panama and New York, my boat stopped at Port Limon long enough for the magnificent rail journey up to San Jose de Costa Rica and return. We also delayed at Havana long enough for an afternoon and evening ashore.

Very early in life, largely for purposes of conversational ammunition, I adopted the policy of trying to do all my sightseeing in a new place upon my first visit, on the theory that it would take a lot of time and money to return just for some forgotten item. It has been my experience that two people comparing notes upon a place will pass up all items both have seen, but if either can find something the other has missed, he delights in insisting that that was the most important and interesting sight in the whole show.

For example, I climbed the Washington Monument when I was about ten years old, and so have been able to revisit Washington and to live there for years without having to do it again. Similarly, upon my first visits to Paris, Rome, Constantinople, &c., I hired professional guides to show me around. Now I return to Paris as often as I can and, except for a Sunday morning stroll in the Louvre Gardens or down the Champs Elysees, I never leave my hotel except to get into a taxi, and never leave the taxi except where there is an awning out to the street. I have never found good weather in Paris at any time of the year, but, on the other hand, I am thus not inconvenienced by the bad weather. If I go to Versailles, or to one of the many museums, it is because I am interested in some particular thing, and not from a sense of duty.

Gay Havana

So, having first seen Havana more than twenty years ago, and having been there several times since, the following is, in my opinion, the most satisfactory and convenient way of passing a pleasant afternoon and evening while the boat is in port. After luncheon on the boat, take an automobile drive of about two hours around the town and suburbs, ending at the Race-track or Coursing Park. This is a very beautiful drive and includes the Tropical Gardens where the Tropical Breweries hand out unlimited free beer to all visitors. After seeing a couple races, and depending upon one's luck with the Pari-mutuel machine, return to town for a couple Bacardi Punches at Sloppy Joe's; then back to the boat for a siesta, a bath, and a change of clothes. Returning to town in the evening, have a few cocktails at the Hotel Plaza Bar, followed by dinner at the Cafe Inglaterra. From then on until the boat sails in the early morning hours, visit the Casino and try to outguess the tables of roulette and the "little horses." The same program may be followed in most any world capital, but I mention Havana as it is the nearest and most recent.

Pitcairn Island

Probably the most unusual incident of my "round the world" trip was our call at Pitcairn Island, the only land sighted during the 24 days' sail from New Zealand to Panama. This island is only about three miles long by a mile and a half wide, and is very rugged as it contains a hill over eleven hundred feet high. It is inhabited by about 150 descendants of nine mutineers of H. M. S. Bounty and their Tahitian wives. These mutineers settled there in 1790, burned their ship, and it was not discovered until 18 years afterwards that the Island was inhabited. During the next hundred years, ships called there only a few times per decade, and only three outsiders joined the Colony. In recent years, boats have called more frequently, but it is still about the most isolated inhabited island in the South Seas.

The inhabitants are a pretty miserable looking bunch of half-castes, and though they speak English, they live little better than the semi-savages on other islands. They are extremely religious. After a hundred years of a belief based upon a Church of England Prayer-book, they were visited by a Seventh Day Adventist missionary from the States. His intelligence and knowledge may be inferred from the fact that he not only could not understand why, under certain circumstances there are two consecutive Sundays in the same week, or none, depending upon the direction in which the Date Line is crossed, but he actually published a tirade against it in one of his Society's secular publications. But the Pitcairn Islanders had no higher mentality and even less knowledge, so he was able in a few days to convert the whole crowd to the beliefs of the Seventh Day Adventists.

South Sea Piety

An idea of the narrow and unlovely lives these people live may be gathered from the following incident of our visit. Among the natives who came on board our ship were two little boys about ten or twelve years old. One of our lady passengers offered them a bundle of gramophone records. The boys asked: "Are they religious tunes?" "Oh, no!" said the lady, "but they are very good music." Said the boys, "Then, I guess we had better not take them." And they didn't. Before going ashore, the whole crowd sang one of their most lugubrious hymns.

Twice during the past century, the British Government has moved the Pitcairn Islanders to larger islands, where living conditions are less wretched and where there is more room for expansion and development of the Colony. In spite of free houses, land, and other inducements, these poor benighted people have always insisted upon being returned to Pitcairn Island.

Now, had I desired merely to make the trip around the World in the shortest possible time, without using airplane travel, I could have followed the schedule below which represents actual boat and train service. Every day is utilized at least in part in moving forward, with the exception of one day in Tokyo, October 16th, while awaiting boat connections. When I was in Tokyo some eleven years ago, I would have been glad to have had a great many more days than I actually did have available.

Exactly five weeks by the calendar, but here again the International Date Line would be crossed from west to east, so that the actual time spent on the trip would be thirty-six days. Between Yokohama and Vancouver, there would be two successive Wednesdays, making a total of nine days for the crossing of the Pacific Ocean.

Nine Game Football Schedule

Dickinson will open its nine game football campaign a week earlier this fall as a result of negotiations which were recently consummated with Hobart College for a game at Geneva, N. Y. on September 29. Although the contract is for only one year, it is understood that next fall's game will ring up the curtain on future athletic relations between the two institutions.

This is the first time in many seasons that Dickinson has scheduled a football game with a New York college. Hobart is the third newcomer on next year's schedule, Albright and University of Delaware completing the trio.

Dickinson's 1934 schedule lists five games at home and four on foreign soil. The schedule is as follows:

Sept. 29—Hobart, away
Oct. 6—Albright, away
Oct. 13—Swarthmore, home
Oct. 20—Allegheny, home
Oct. 27—Ursinus, home
Nov. 3—Delaware, away
Nov. 10—Gettysburg, away
Nov. 17—F. and M., home
Nov. 24—Muhlenberg, home

Receives Big Vote in Pennsylvania Primaries

Without having made any campaign or even a single political speech, Professor Leon C. Prince, '98, now State Senator, received a surprising vote for the Republican nomination for the office of Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania in a field of fourteen candidates at the May primaries.

While the returns from all the counties of the State have not yet been tabulated in Harrisburg, the prediction has been made that Senator Prince will have a vote close to that of the "Big Four," Harry B. Scott, who won, Cox, Talbert and Kaufman. The latter, David E. Kaufman, is a graduate of the Law School.

All of the "Big Four" and others of the fourteen made intensive campaigns, including elaborate advertising, radio addresses and many public appearances. Several had the backing of the strongest political organizations of the State. Meanwhile, Senator Prince simply was enrolled as a candidate and confined his efforts to a single letter mailed to alumni living in Pennsylvania.

In Cumberland County, Senator Prince had a plurality of 7,000 and a majority of 5,000. He carried all of his own counties, Juniata, Mifflin and

PROF. LEON C. PRINCE, '98

Perry in addition to Cumberland, and he ran second highest in the neighboring Dauphin, York, Adams and Lebanon, while in Lancaster County he was third.

In response to his letter to the alumni, Senator Prince received hundreds of replies. He attributes many of his votes and much of his showing at the polls to the co-operation and friendship of Dickinsonians. He says that he hopes to be able to reply to every letter he has received from alumni.

Debate Squad Enjoys Successful Season

In the season which has just closed, the college debating team scored five victories, four defeats and appeared in four non-decision contests, while the freshman squad had three victories and no defeats. In addition to the intercollegiate debates, the members of the squad engaged in debates before the Carlisle Rotary Club and Kiwanis Club.

Inter-collegiate debates were held at Penn State, University of Pennsylvania, University of Pittsburgh, Western Maryland, F. and M., Gettysburg, Allegheny, Muhlenberg, and Temple.

Two questions were debated in various contests. One of these was "Resolved, That the essential features of the National Industrial Recovery Act should be made a permanent policy of the United States," and the other, "Resolved, That the Federal Government should own and operate all the banking institutions in the United States."

The faculty debate council which is in charge of the debating activities consists of the following: Professors W. H. Norcross and C. W. Fink, Mr. Ralph Schecter and Professor Herbert Wing, Jr., chairman.

Dedicate Microcosm to Professor M. P. Sellers

The 1934 Microcosm, the 44th edition of the annual published by the students of the College which appeared this month, is dedicated to Dean M. P. Sellers, '93.

The dedicatory page reads: "Dedicated to Montgomery Porter Sellers, in recognition of the almost forty years of his life which he has spent in the service of this college. For twenty-nine of these fruitful years he has supervised the preparation of men and women in fields of rhetoric and literature, and for eighteen years has given his best efforts to the administrative offices of freshman dean and dean of the college. It is with a feeling of genuine respect and esteem that the student body dedicates this forty-fourth volume of the Microcosm to a scholar of the old school."

Dean Sellers has been absent on leave for the past year, following a physical breakdown. He spent most of the winter in Florida and then journeyed through the South by easy stages, stopping for a time in New Orleans, and is now in California. He reports that he has fully regained his sight and is very much improved physically.

Wayland A. Lucas, of Pennsville, N. J. and Willard K. Fohl, of Seneca Falls, N. Y., members of the junior class, served as editor-in-chief and business manager of the Microcosm.

School Administrators, Attention!

The College Teacher Placement Bureau is appealing to school administrators who have vacancies on their staffs to use the services of the Bureau. Not only are excellent candidates to be found in the graduating class of the College, but there are always teachers who are seeking opportunity for promotion. The Placement Bureau is in touch with the latter group as well as the former; and whereas it is difficult in normal times to find places for Dickinson graduates, the Bureau must depend in these troublous times more particularly upon the loyalty of Dickinsonians in positions of authority and responsibility to help place these worthy candidates.

The Placement Bureau appears to be serving a real need but its circle of influence and service seems to be circumscribed in part because many graduates of the College in administrative positions do not appear to be using its services. Those responsible for filling vacancies need not fear that in asking to have candidates recommended, that they will be deluged with an indiscriminate list of applicants. It is their privilege to ask for recommendations and have papers and credentials forwarded for preliminary examination, without having formal application from the candidate, if that procedure is desired. Communications should be addressed to Prof. C. J. Carver, Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. C. Elinor Fox, his mother and a son, Paul.

1912—J. Freed Martin, prominent Carlisle attorney, died suddenly on the night of March 24th in the Carlisle Hospital, two hours after he was stricken at his home with a heart attack. He was 47 years old.

Born in Newburg, Pa., he received his early education in the public schools there and at the Shippensburg State Teachers College. He graduated from Conway Hall and received his bachelor's degree from the College in 1912. Following his graduation he taught Latin at Bellefonte Academy and later taught at Westfield, New Jersey and Annapolis, Md. He returned to Carlisle to open an insurance agency office and matriculated at the Dickinson School of Law in 1923. After his appointment as a justice of the peace he was elected for a four year term in 1924. At the close of his second year at the Law School, Mr. Martin passed the Pennsylvania State Bar Examinations and was admitted to the Cumberland County bar in 1926 when he was awarded his degree from the Law School.

Throughout his life he was active in Democratic politics and in 1928 was a candidate for the office of district attorney. At the time of his death he was attorney for the Home Owners Loan Corporation for the Cumberland County district.

He was a past master of Cumberland Star Lodge, No. 197, F. & A. M., a member of the order of Independent Americans and the Odd Fellows. He was an active member of the First Lutheran Church and the men's bible class.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Groover Martin, two brothers and two sisters. Funeral services were held on March 28th and interment was made in Westminster cemetery.

He graduated from Wesleyan University in 1879 and entered upon a very active life in industrial, religious and educational fields. He retired from business in 1918 and later made his home in Carlisle. For a time he was assistant pastor of Allison M. E. Church.

Surviving him are his three sons, Russel F., Lahman B. and Harold M., and a daughter, Mrs. Florence B. Davison.

Mrs. Carrie Fahnstock Wile, widow of the Rev. Dr. Henry Barr Wile, died at her home in Carlisle on April 26 from acute pneumonia. She had been in ill health for the past two years.

Dr. Wile died in Carlisle in 1899 while pastor of the First Lutheran Church, which was then in process of construction. He was an outstanding Lutheran clergyman.

Mrs. Wile is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Joseph P. McKeehan, of Carlisle and a son Henry F. Wile, '06, of Harrisburg, and two brothers. For many years Dean W. H. Hitchler of the Law School lived at the Wile home.

James Andrew Steese, former member of the State Legislature, State employee in the Auditor General's department of Pennsylvania, father of four Dickinsonians, died on April 18th at the Harrisburg Club where he had been residing.

Surviving him are three sons and a daughter: Captain George M. Steese, Otay, Calif.; General James G. Steese, Tulsa, Okla.; General Charles M. Steese, Washington, D. C.; and Sophia Steese, Brooklyn, N. Y. His wife, Annie Sheaffer Steese, died April 16, 1933.
