MAY, 1944

171st Commencement Program Nearer Pre-War Lines

HIGH-LIGHTING the two day program for the 171st Commencement on May 27 and 28, which more nearly follows pre-war lines than the 1943 version, will be an address by President Fred Pierce Corson marking the tenth anniversary of his administration. This will be made at the Commencement Exercises on Sunday afternoon, May 28, at 3 o'clock in Bosler Hall, when honorary degrees and those in cursu will be awarded.

The Baccalaureate Services will be held that morning in Allison Methodist Church at 10:30 o'clock, when the Rev. William H. Ford, D.D., '94, member of the 50th Reunion Class and chaplain of the Methodist Hospital, Philadelphia, will deliver the sermon.

Unlike 1943 when the program began on Saturday afternoon, Alumni Day will open on May 27 at 10:30 A. M. in a meeting of Phi Beta Kappa. Then at 11 o'clock there will be a meeting of the Alumni Council in West College to be followed by the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association.

The withdrawal of the Army aviation cadets makes possible the restoration of the Alumni Luncheon to the Commencement program. The event will be held in the Old Gymnasium, which was converted into the Army mess hall a year ago. Accommodations are limited and admission will be by ticket costing 50c, and these will be sold first to alumni. Reservations must be made in advance by writing to Gilbert Malcolm, Alumni Secretary, Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.

A feature of the Alumni Luncheon will be the presentation of the Class of 1909 Scholarship, a gift to the college by the members of that class meeting in their 35th Reunion. Ellsworth H. Mish, Linette E. Lee and Charles E. Whitehead have served as a committee of the class this year to complete this project which was begun some years ago. The scholarship fund will be more than $1,000.00.

Following the Alumni Luncheon traditional undergraduate ceremonies will be carried out on the campus. With George S. Hewitt, president of the senior class, in charge there will be the "Passing of the Old Stone Steps" when the seniors turn over the duty of maintaining the traditions of the college to the juniors.

This will be followed by the presentation of The 1902 Award by Daniel R. Pepper, '02, of Lancaster, Pa., to George S. Harrison, of Dillsburg, Pa., who was chosen by his classmates as the recipient of the honor. The Ivy Oration will then be delivered at Bosler Hall where the seniors will plant their class ivy.

Judge Karl E. Richards, president of the General Alumni Association, will deliver the charge to the seniors at the Senior Induction which will then be held at the flagpole with Dean E. A. Vuilleumier reading the class roll.

President and Mrs. Corson will receive students and alumni, parents and friends from 4:00 to 5:30 o'clock at The President's Reception which will be held in the President's House.

Saturday's events will conclude with the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees which will be held at 7:30 o'clock in the Physics Lecture Room in the Tome Building.

Hotel accommodations are greatly limited in Carlisle. Alumni planning to spend any of the commencement nights in Carlisle are strongly advised to secure their accommodations well in advance. A limited number of beds will be available for men in the dormitories and for women at Metzger. Men should write to George Shuman, Jr. and women to Dean Josephine B. Meredith for these accommodations.

Honorary Degrees to Seven at Commencement

EDWARD G. LATCH

J. ROLLAND CROMPTON

FOUR Dickinsonians are among the seven who will receive honorary degrees at the 171st Commencement Exercises in Bosler Hall on Sunday afternoon, May 28 at 3 o'clock. The Dickinsonians are C. Grant Cleaver, '94; the Rev. J. Rolland Crompton, '20; the Rev. Edward G. Latch, '21, and Charles Wendell Holmes, '22.

The degree of Doctor of Laws will be conferred upon William H. DuBarry, Vice-President of the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Henry F. Graham, noted surgeon of the Methodist Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., will receive the degree of Doctor of Science. An honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity will be conferred upon President O. A. Bartley, of Wesley Junior College, Dover, Del.

The degree of Doctor of Literature will be awarded to C. Grant Cleaver, '94, '95L, on the occasion of his 50th Reunion. Following his graduation from the college, he taught school and was high school principal at Lock Haven, Pa. and Sharon, Pa. until he became associated with the educational department of Ginn & Co., text book publishers.

He was in charge of the high school and college department for Greater New York for this company for many years until 1938 when ill health caused his retirement. More than a year ago, he joined the Dickinson war college faculty and taught physics for thirteen months to the aviation cadets. His wife is the former Ethelyn M. Hardesty, '02.

The Rev. J. Rolland Crompton, '20, of Kingston, Pa., will receive the degree of Doctor of Divinity. He is superintendent of the Wilkes-Barre District of the Wyoming Conference of the Methodist Church.

The Rev. Edward G. Latch, '21, who will receive the degree of Doctor of Divinity, is pastor of Metropolitan Memorial Church, Washington, D. C., which is known as "The National Methodist Church," and is the church attended by the students of American University.

C. Wendell Holmes, '22, will be awarded the degree of Master of Arts. He is Registrar of the Upper Darby Senior High School, Upper Darby, Pa., and for a number of years has been the efficient secretary of the General Alumni

C. WENDELL HOLMES

Association of Dickinson College.

William H. DuBarry, who will receive an LL.D. degree, is a descendant of the Denny family for whom Denny Hall is named. He was born in Lewis-town, Pa. and is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. He served as a second lieutenant with the A.E.F. in World War I, and became Assistant to the Provost and President at the University of Pennsylvania in 1923, and in 1931 was named Director of Scholarships and Student Finance. In 1939 he became Vice-President and Assistant to the President there, and he has recently been named Executive Vice-President to take office on July 1, 1944. He is president of the Wistar Institute, a trustee of the Thomas W. Evans Institute and the Moore School of Electrical Engineering. He is a member of the Board of Managers of the University Museum and also of Graduate Hospital. He is active in the affairs of the Protestant Episcopal Dioceses of Pennsylvania and is a member of the vestry of Holy Trinity Church, Philadelphia.

Dr. Henry Flack Graham, who will receive the Sc.D. degree, was born in Troy, N. Y. He graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York City, in 1905 when he received his M.D. degree. From 1907 to 1928, he was assistant surgeon of the Methodist Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y. and has been senior surgeon since 1928. He was associate and attending surgeon at the Norwegian Hospital in Brooklyn from 1914 to 1928, and is consulting surgeon at Victory Memorial and Huntington hospitals. He is a member of the founders group of the American Board of Surgery, and a Fellow of the American College Surgeons; a member of American Surgical Association, New York Surgeon's Society, Kings County Medical Society and the Brooklyn Surgical Society of which he was president in 1924.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity will be conferred upon President O. A. Bartley, of Wesley Junior College, Dover, Del., which opened about a year ago. He is a graduate and holds a master's degree from the University of Delaware, where he also taught economics. He is a minister, a member of the Peninsula Conference of the Methodist Church since 1924.

Shot Down Over Adriatic

Lt. Ralph W. Schecter, Jr., '44, Army Air Forces, was shot down in a flight over the Adriatic Sea on March 18 and is now a patient in a British hospital in southern Italy, according to word received by his parents, Prof. and Mrs. Ralph W. Schecter.

Three members of the crew of which Lt. Schecter was the pilot lost their lives in the crash when the motors of the plane were shot away. Lt. Schecter suffered a wound to his leg, though his parents have not learned whether it is a serious wound or not.

Prior to the crash, Lt. Schecter, who went overseas shortly after last Christmas, had been on at least 35 combat missions. He entered the service June 1943 and received his commission and pilot's wings on August 30. He then received operational and combat training before going overseas.

Alumni Fund Passes Half-Way Mark

THE ninth annual Alumni Fund Campaign passed the half-way mark toward the goal of $30,000 when on May 6 subscriptions totalled $15,657.13. Of this amount, $14,933.13 had been paid in cash and subscriptions totalling $724.00 to be paid before June 15, 1944 had been received.

The last subscription on that day came from Arthur L. Tait, '46, who had been called from his studies at the college a short time ago to enter the service. He is now a Pharmacist's Mate 3/c in the Navy. He sent $5 and wrote: "I want to do something for the College, which did so much for me."

The spirit of Arthur Tait has been manifested by many Dickinsonians serving all over the world. The gifts of the men and women in the armed forces shed rare brilliance in the response of alumni to the appeal of the Trustees to raise $30,000 this year.

With the end of the Army training program at the college this month, and the graduation of about 30 seniors, the enrollment will fall to the all-time low of many years. There will be few students in the approaching summer session, when non-resident women are not in attendance, and it appears doubtful that there will be more than 200 present when the fall session opens. Forseeing these possibilities led the Trustees in a special meeting on February 12 to ask the alumni and friends of the college to contribute $30,000 to meet current needs.

In the first eight years, the Alumni Fund totalled about $10,000 and last year when $20,000 was asked a total of $17,311.02 was contributed. In response to the appeal to raise $30,000, many alumni are doubling or tripling their gifts of other years and there are many new subscribers this year. However, though the fund has passed the half-way mark, it is clear that many more additional subscriptions must be received, and many of them must be large gifts, if the $30,000 goal is to be reached.

Though it has been explained many times before, it must be stated again that payment of dues to the General Alumni Association or payments on subscriptions for life membership in the General Alumni Association, are not contributions to the Alumni Fund. These payments go into the treasury of the General Alumni Association. Annual dues and income from the Lemuel T. Appold Life Membership Fund are used by direction of the Alumni Council for the work of the alumni association and are now being used almost entirely for the publication of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS. The Alumni Fund, on the other hand, seeks gifts which go into the funds of the college. The money is used for the operation of the college, scholarship-loan grants to students and not less than $750 annually, or as much more as is designated, is added to the permanent endowment of the Library Guild, the income from which is used for the purchase of books for the library.

Because many Class Agents are in the armed forces, they cannot carry on the solicitation of members of their classes for gifts to the Alumni Fund. Alumni are urged, therefore, not to wait for letters from Class Agents or other class officers but to send their gifts directly to the college using the subscription cards and return envelopes which have been mailed twice to all alumni in recent months. This will save the alumni office a great deal of work in any follow-up efforts and it will also save the college the costs of such solicitation.

While the subscription card now being used asks for payment "on or before June 15, 1944" any alumnus wishing to use installment payments may so indicate when making his pledge.

A report of this year's campaign listing the names of all contributors by classes, without giving the amount of individual gifts, will be published in the July issue of the Dickinson College Bulletin.

ADAM is reported to have said to Eve as they left Paradise, "My dear, we live in times of transition." Surely that is the experience of an American college in war-time. One year ago we were re-organizing our colleges for the training of soldiers. With remarkable speed and efficiency this unusual feat was accomplished and 2,260 air cadets have passed through the college training program at Dickinson since then.

During that time we operated a full liberal arts college, demonstrating that a good liberal arts college can do two things at the same time. A few months ago we were predominantly a men's college with the men outnumbering the women three to one. Rather rapidly, however, we have been transformed into a "women's college" with the women outnumbering the men by three to one. Student activities, dominated by the men, are now being taken over by the women, with many evidences of marked improvement. A short time ago the college curriculum was a fixed order built upon the certainty of four years of college work with two semesters completed in each calendar year. Now virtually every student, because of changing circumstances, must have curriculum adjustments fitted to his particular and peculiar case.

College financing, which received about 70% of its income from student fees and 30% from other sources, now faces the necessity of a reversed ratio—about 30% from student fees and 70% from other sources.

Just as quickly as it began, the soldier training program has folded up, requiring major readjustment of faculty, plant operation and finances.

Yes, these are times of transition for the American College.

They are also days of testing of the soundness of college life, for the chance of all life to survive depends upon its ability to adjust itself to changing conditions, and I am glad to report that up to the present moment, Dickinson College shows no evidence of losing its life by an inability to "serve the present age."

Next year we will have a small college, but academically it will be the best in the 171 years of the existence of the College. We are planning for that, and the entire faculty expects it.

Financing must be along new lines, but they are opening up before us, and no alumnus really expects the College to emerge from these experiences with a weakened financial structure.

When the men begin to return from the battlefronts, another transition period will begin in American college life. No one knows when it will start. It may be within the next academic year. But whenever it comes, the colleges will be called upon to meet conditions as they develop quickly. Here again it is certain to be an individual rather than a mass problem which must be faced.

So for us on the campus, the present and the future will contain few if any dull moments. But the Old College with the eternal spirit of youth and with good courage meets each new situation gallantly.

We are making the best of the present, and will make the most of the future.

FRED PIERCE CORSON.

Makes Bequest to College

The will of Dr. H. H. Longsdorf, '79, of Centerville, Pa., who died on April 28, contains a bequest of $1,000 to the College, and the like amount to the Carlisle Hospital. He also made a bequest of $1,000 to his sister, Dr. Jessica L. Bozorth, '91, of Philadelphia.

Delaware Club to Present Portrait to College

WITH 70 present, the annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Delaware was held in the DuBarry Room of the Hotel DuPont, Wilmington, on March 31, the evening following the Philadelphia club dinner. The Rev. Walter A. Hearn, D.D., '14, offered the invocation, following the singing of the National Anthem and Alma Mater, with J. Ohrum Small, '15, at the piano and Rev. Ralph L. Minker, '20, leading the singing.

Everett E. Borston, '15, retiring president, acted as toastmaster. He announced progress was being made in a project approved by the club's officers to present a portrait to the College of Chief Justice Charles B. Lore, of the Supreme Court of Delaware. Justice Lore, who served as a trustee of the College, graduated in 1852 and received an LL.D. in 1894. He was an attorney general of Delaware, a member of Congress and a chief justice.

Gilbert Malcolm spoke briefly about the Alumni Fund in opening the formal program, and Dean W. H. Hitchler reported on the status of the Law School in war-time. Robert H. Richards, '95, was introduced but spoke only a few minutes. One of the features of the program was an address by Earle D. Willey, '13, on his experiences in Washington as Delaware's member in Congress.

Boyd Lee Spahr, president of the Board of Trustees, thanked the club for accepting his proposal to give the portrait of Justice Lore to the College. He also gave a resume of developments at the college and then introduced President Fred P. Corson.

W. Reese Hitchens, '28, Wilmington attorney, was elected president of the club. Three vice-presidents representing adjacent counties were elected. They are Leonard G. Hagner, '15; Dr. John Shilling, '08 and W. Fred Burton, '17. Ivy M. Hudson, '23, was named secretary and Edward C. First, Jr., '35, treasurer.

Alumni Meet in East Orange

The annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Northern New Jersey was held with 34 present on the evening of May 2 at Howard Johnson's restaurant in East Orange, N. J. The Rev. Howard R. Breisch, '18, offered the invocation.

Rev. Everett F. Hallock, '30, vice-president of the Club, acted as toastmaster in the absence of Robert F. Lavanture who is in service with the Red Cross and soon will enter the Navy as a lieutenant, junior grade. In the business session, Hallock was elected as president of the Club, John P. Milligan, '26, was elected vice president, and Roy D. Tolliver was reelected secretary-treasurer. The nominating committee was composed of Thomas R. Gallagher, '27, J. Ernest Crane, '11 and Mrs. Eva I. Townley, '37.

In the absence of President Corson, who was attending the General Conference in Kansas City, and of Dean Hitchler, who could not be there, Gilbert Malcolm was the only speaker.

Doney Fund Continues to Grow

Gifts from 175 contributors, totalling $600.50, have been received up to May 1 for the Paul H. Doney Memorial Fund. In the February number it was reported that 102 had contributed $352.25.

A copy of "The Broken Circle," a biography of the late Professor Doney, written by his father, Dr. Carl G. Doney, and with a foreword by President Fred Pierce Corson, is mailed to each contributor to the Fund.

The Fund will be set aside as an endowment, and the income will be used for the purchase of books in the college library.

Four Hundred Fourteen Alumni Are Lifers

JUDGE Karl E. Richards, president of the General Alumni Association, has moved up the goal of Life Members to 500. He earlier set a 400 goal during his presidency and Capt. R. Edward Steele, '35, now overseas, became the 400th Lifer on March 1. Seventy-nine new names are published in the roster of Life Members in this number of the magazine, these being additions since the last list was published a year ago. Of these, 18 have subscribed since the February number went to press.

A total of 79 new names is the largest addition in a year. Last year there were 35 new names to make the total 335. In this issue there are 414 alumni listed as Life Members.

The Class of 1943 appears in the roster for the first time, and sets a record in this first appearance with the listing of seven names. This is the largest total entered in a single year by any class in the history of the fund. The Class of 1941 comes second with five new names, a mark which was set last year by the Class of 1927. Four classes, 1920, 1922, 1937 and 1939 each gained four new Lifers in the year.

Though standing pat for the third year in a row, the Class of 1902 with 19 Lifers still leads all classes. The Class of 1927, which was tied with 1917 last year, jumps into second place with a total of 14, having gained two, while 1917 gained one to total 13 and drop into a tie for third place with 1915 which added two names. Then follow 1913 with 12 and 1926 with 11, while four classes, 1903, 1912, 1919 and 1933 have 10 each.

The February number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS announced that there were then 396 Lifers and asked "Who will be the four hundredth?" Since then 18 new subscriptions have been received. Even before that issue of the magazine was off the press, two subscriptions arrived on the same day from Henry Line, '38, of Carlisle and Mrs. Elizabeth Stone, '34, and on the last day of the month a $40 payment came from Lt. Washington L. Marucci, '41, who is with the army in the Pacific theater. He became No. 399 on the roll.

On the first day of March, Capt. R. Edward Steele, '35, became the 400th Lifer. A physician, he is serving with the Army Medical Corps in South America.

The next subscription came from John L. Pipa, '22, attorney of Shamokin, Pa., and on March 9, Helen B. Jones, '17, of Narberth, Pa., became a Lifer.

Elizabeth Madore, '26, was another co-ed to join the ranks in March. She is secretary in her brother's law office in Bedford, Pa.

The Rev. Edgar Cordell Powers, D.D., executive secretary of the Maryland Bible Society, and honorary alumnus of the college, sent in a $40 check in March to become a Life Member.

Pfc. Winfield A. Peterson, '43, Army medical student, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was added to the roll on March 15. A few days later a check arrived from Norris M. Mumper, '12, formerly of California, but now in an important government position in Washington.

The last March subscription came from First Lieutenant C. Joseph Foulds, '38, who is serving with a Marine Corps unit in the Pacific theater of the war.

William E. Matthews, Jr., '19, of Symrna, Del., handed over his first payment to the alumni secretary the night of the dinner of the Dickinson Club of Delaware. The next subscription arrived in the mails from Charles W. Burn, '24, who is head of Burn's Associates, a sales brokerage firm dealing in plastics in Detroit.

Pausing in flight, Lt. James W. March, '33, of the Army Air Transport Command, became the next Lifer. It is believed that his regular run is between Africa and Miami. The next day a letter arrived from a ship on the Pacific and brought the $40 payment of Ensign Douglas C. Bell, '43.

Another man in the service became the next Lifer in the person of Capt. Louis Reuter, Jr., '35, who is with an infantry outfit at Camp White, Oregon.

This was followed by the subscription of M. Louise Heckman, '33, of Lancaster, and the final one arrived from Clara J. Leaman, '13, now in Baltimore after her years as a missionary in India.

When the 414 subscriptions are fully paid the Lemuel Towers Life Membership Fund will total $16,560.00. The money is invested by direction of the Alumni Council and only the income is used and that principally for the publication of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS.

Life membership costs $40 and may be paid in full or in installments of $10 or $20 a year. Subscriptions should be sent to THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, West College, Carlisle, Pa.

Killed When Plane Crashed On Aleutian Mountain

FIRST Lieutenant Harry Rees Jones, '41, Air Corps, was killed when he crashed into the northeast side of Mount Adagak on March 13, 1944, according to a War Department letter received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence M. Jones, of 901 Morgan Avenue, Drexel Hill, Pa. The crash occurred near Adak, Alaska, while he was on an operational flight as a flight leader.

On June 9, 1941 he received his Ph.B. degree upon his graduation from the college and the next month he enlisted as an Army aviation cadet. He was enrolled in training in November of that year and received his commission on July 3, 1942. From that date until March 1, 1943 he served as Pilot Instructor in various basic training schools in the south. Then he secured a transfer to tactical training for combat as a fighter pilot. Sometime late in June or early July he left for the Alaskan area and apparently he was stationed on the island of Adak in the Aleutians from then until the time of the crash.

Born in Upper Darby, Pa., on December 11, 1919, he attended the schools there. Upon his graduation from the Upper Darby High School in 1937 he entered the college and graduated in 1941.

A member of Theta Chi Fraternity, he became president of the Dickinson chapter. He was also a member of Skull and Key and of the Student Senate and the Religious Association.

His parents first received a telegram advising them of their son's death and then a letter from the War Department dated March 23, 1944, confirming the telegram but giving few additional facts.

Commandant Receives Promotion

Captain James R. Poach, Jr., who has been serving as Commandant of the 32nd College Training Detachment (Air Crew) at the College, was promoted late in March to the rank of major.

LT. HARRY R. JONES

Reported Missing in Action

Sgt. Leo E. Chaplinsky, '42, was reported missing in action in the European theater in the casualty list released by the War Department on April 29. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Chaplinsky, of 407 West Oak St., Shenandoah, Pa.

A graduate of the J. W. Cooper High School in Shenandoah, Chaplinsky entered the college in 1938 and graduated with a Ph.B. degree in June 1942, shortly after which he entered the Army. A member of the Commons Club, he won his "D" as a distance runner on the track team. He was on the Microcosm staff one year, and was a member of the Catholic Club and the Dramatic Club.

Reported Missing

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Marshall of Collingswood, N. J., have been notified by the War Department that their son, Walter H. Marshall, '43, has been missing since April 20. A member of the Army Air Corps, young Marshall was believed to be en route to Africa to engage in the war in that area.

Presidential Citation Honors Pilot Posthumously

A PRESIDENTIAL citation was awarded in March to the late Second Lieutenant John E. Dale, Jr., '40, of Upper Montclair, N. J., as a member of the famous 480th Anti-Submarine Group for "contributing with heroism and superior efficiency to winning the Battle of the Atlantic."

It was not until this announcement was made that it was learned at the college that Lt. Dale, first pilot of a Liberator B-24 bomber, was killed with five others of his 10-man crew in a take-off crash May 11, 1943, in French Morocco. Of his squadron of 240 officers and men, 101 met their death in the battle zone. Following the return of the survivors to this country in December, Time published a vivid description of the work of this pioneer unit. The 24 bombers in the group served over 12 months, making trips as far as 1,250 miles from base; taking as long as 17 hours.

The group decoration, a royal blue bar encased in gold, was presented to Lieutenant Dale's parents. It is the only decoration worn on the right breast of an army uniform. The citation in part reads: "This is public evidence of deserved honor and distinction for outstanding performance of duty in the European and North African theaters of operation. This was the pioneer organization in the establishment of AAF offensives against submarines . . . in the home waters of the enemy. It contributed significantly to the success of the United Nations . . . participating in all phases of the Battle of the Atlantic and defeating the enemy above, on and below the sea. From July 6 to 11 alone it attacked 12 submarines, destroying or damaging eight."

After a year at the college where he became a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity, Lieutenant Dale graduated from Amherst College in 1940. He then secured a fine position as credit investigator with the Chemical Bank and Trust Company in New York City, and attended N.Y.U. at night for courses in the banking field.

He enlisted in the Army Air Corps the day after Pearl Harbor and received his pilot's wings on July 26, 1942. He was selected for bomber training and after five months in December, 1942, flew his Liberator B-24 bomber overseas and went right into combat. Before he was killed he was told that he had earned the Air Medal, but it was not until December, 1943, that it was posthumously awarded to him.

He was born in Philadelphia on July 23, 1919, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Dale. He graduated from the high school of Montclair, N. J., in 1936 and entered the college in September of that year and was a good student. He transferred to Amherst College in Sept., 1937. His parents reside in Upper Montclair, N. J., and his father is president of the John E. Dale Coal Company of Jersey City. Besides his parents he is survived by a younger brother, Richard, at home

A Review of Ten Years

(1934-1944)

By Boyd Lee Spahr, LL.D., President of the Board of Trustees

FRED PIERCE CORSON was elected twentieth President of Dickinson College on June 8, 1934, and formally inaugurated April 5, 1935. A review of the ten years of his administration would appear to be in order.

The average college alumnus knows in a general way that his institution has a board of trustees, but probably many of them are not familiar with the powers, duties and responsibilities of such boards. Except in state-owned institutions and denominational-owned colleges, the board of trustees is the legal owner of a college. It has authority to elect the college president and faculty, to grant degrees, to invest the funds of the institution, to fix the rate of tuition and other charges and generally to administer its affairs. Despite these broad and responsible powers, college trustees are seldom in the limelight.

The beginning of academic history in Carlisle is a deed from Thomas and John Penn, Proprietors of Pennsylvania, dated March 3, 1773, conveying to nine trustees a plot of land "for the purpose of keeping and maintaining a grammar school", which school was promptly opened under the principalship of James Ross, later distinguished as the author of widely used Latin and Greek grammars, and continued in operation until it was absorbed by the College, which was incorporated by the legislature of Pennsylvania on September 9, 1783, seven of the nine grantees of the deed of 1773 being among the Trustees of the College. Ross was immediately elected the first professor of languages in the College. The College occupied and enlarged the grammar school building and the legislature on October 3, 1788, passed an act reciting the grant of 1773, the incorporation of the College in 1783, and its use of the grammar school building for college purposes, including "a very respectable grammar school" and conveyed the title to the lot to the College Trustees. This lot continued to be the site of the College until 1803.

The original charter provided for forty trustees, increased to fifty by court decree in 1890, which further provided that four of the additional ten should be elected by the alumni. With this exception, the Dickinson Board of Trustees is self-perpetuating. The charter expressly provides that "persons of every religious denomination shall be capable of being elected trustees, president, professor or tutor", and that no pupil shall be "denied any of the privileges, immunities or advantages thereof, for or on account of his sentiments in matters of religion." As a matter of fact, the present membership of the Board is forty, including four trustees elected by the alumni.

The first President of the Board was John Dickinson, who served until his death in 1808. The first fifty years of the College were unfortunately marked by repeated difficulties between the trustees on the one hand and the President of the College and the faculty on the other. The trustees unduly interfered in routine matters of discipline, which should have been left to the faculty. The President of the College was not a member of the Trustees and harmonious relations did not always exist. The administrative difficulties of those days are fully reviewed in Dr. Morgan's history. Despite these troubles, in which both sides were probably at fault, the amazing thing is the remarkable number of graduates of the first fifty years who rose to eminence, including a President of the United States and a Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. By charter amendment in 1834, the President of the College was made the President of the Board of Trustees and occupied these dual positions until 1912.

when the court approved a petition of the Trustees to the effect that the President of the College should be a member of the Board, but not its President.

I have been a member of the Board of Trustees since 1908 and its President since 1931, thus having served with six college presidents. This period of thirty-six years represents an average college presidential tenure of six years, but this is misleading. President Reed was elected in 1889 and resigned in 1911, followed by President Noble 1911-1914, President Morgan 1914-1928, President Filler 1928-1931, President Waugh 1931-1933. The longest tenure in the history of the College was that of President Reed, twenty-two years. President Nisbet served twenty years and President Morgan fourteen, to which may be added his valued interim service following the lamentable death of President Filler in 1931 and again following the resignation of President Waugh in 1933.

The record of the ten year administration of President Corson more than justifies the hope and expectation that his tenure will in time surpass that of President Reed.

In the early days, the resources of the College and the number of its students were not out of line with the few other colleges of the country; they were all small and poor. Unfortunately and for a variety of reasons, we did not share in the wealth which has come to most of the older institutions in the last hundred years. Indeed, it is only in the last twenty-five years that the funds of the College have reached a substantial figure and even today the endowment is less than that of a half dozen other institutions with which the College ranks in reputation as one of the outstanding small colleges of America.

The increase in endowment funds and in plant assets during the ten years of President Corson's administration has been greater than in any corresponding previous period and this is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that the time coincides with the depression and with the present war situation.

A review of the figures is interesting. At the end of the fiscal year, July 31, 1934, the endowment was $1,030,132. At the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1943, the endowment was $1,530,277, with additional general fund assets, not earmarked as permanent endowment, that are available in whole or in part for current operations, of $283,243. Since June 30, 1943, over $116,000 has been added to permanent endowment, bringing it to approximately $1,650,000. If to this is added the general fund assets above mentioned, the resources of the College other than plant assets are over $1,900,000.

Plant assets were carried at $1,505,588 on July 31, 1934. On June 30, 1943, the figure was $1,744,069. This increase includes the rebuilding and enlargement of Bosler Hall, the exterior improvements to the President's House, the renovation of the old Moore mansion as the Baird Biological Building, the acquisition of the Rebecca McClure Gibbs house as the dormitory for senior women, the acquisition of the Sellers residence on High Street, immediately to the west of the Gymnasium, and the acquisition of the parsonage property, immediately to the east of the Gymnasium. This last mentioned building has been used for the past year as headquarters of the commissioned personnel of the 32nd College Training Detachment, U.S.A. (Air Crew) and will be demolished when the army detachment leaves.

It will be recalled that in December 1940 the Trustees authorized a campaign for endowment and building purposes to mark the 170th anniversary of the College in 1943. It was realized at the time that the European war might interfere with the successful completion of the campaign, but that apart from that possibility the conditions for generous gifts were favorable. The early part of 1941 was taken up with arrangements with professional campaign directors, printing of literature, etc., followed by the summer, which is a poor time for intensive campaigns, with the result that the project did not get well under way until the autumn of 1941. The plan put in operation was to have intensive campaigns in various metropolitan centers in succession, thus using the same professional personnel in each of them. The first locality to be canvassed was Philadelphia, where the completion of an intensive drive practically coincided with Pearl Harbor. At a regular meeting of the College Trustees a week after Pearl Harbor, the intensive campaign was suspended for the period of the war. Despite this temporary suspension, subscriptions were received in very substantial amounts generally payable in three to five year instalments, and to date a total of approximately $160,000 has been paid in.

In line with the increase in the endowment, the plant of the College has been materially improved in the last ten years. The acquisition of the Mooreland campus of twelve acres in 1930 antedates President Corson's administration by a few years, but it was not until 1939 that the old Moore mansion was entirely remodeled and enlarged and named the Baird Biological Building in honor of the distinguished scientist, Spencer Fullerton Baird, of the class of 1840, for use by the Department of Biology. In the same year the Fisher property at the southwest corner of High and College Streets was purchased and it and the adjoining house, acquired some years earlier, were both demolished. This double property occupied the corner of the Mooreland tract nearest the old campus but had not formed a part of it. The removal of the houses gives a fine unobstructed view of the Mooreland campus and in due course, as further buildings are erected on that campus, should be ornamented with a fine gateway. Trickett Hall, the brick Colonial building of the Law School, is located on the southeast corner of the Mooreland campus. In 1936 the College acquired several acres lying to the south of Biddle Field but separated from it by a plotted unopened street. The Borough Council of Carlisle removed the street from the borough plan and the College was thus enabled to throw this acreage into the field which now comprises over twelve acres, with ample room, without any overlapping, for both football and baseball, as well as for tennis courts and running track. Along the west side of the gridiron is a permanent brick stand with a seating capacity of 4,000 and there are also portable wooden and iron bleachers for the other sides. Biddle field is now as fine an athletic field as that of any comparable college. We are fortunate in not having sunk money, as did many colleges, in a huge concrete stadium.

The most outstanding improvement on the main campus was the complete rebuilding and enlargement of Bosler Hall. Constructed in 1887 this combined library and chapel was a good example of Romanesque architecture which at that time was much in vogue in the country, especially for institutional buildings, through the architecture prominence of H. H. Richardson of Boston. Bosler was designed by one of his students. But the building was badly out of harmony with the stately Georgian of West College, designed by Latrobe, with East College and with the Alumni Gymnasium erected in 1929, an excellent Georgian design by W. W. Emmart of Baltimore. These three were the nearest neighbors of Bosler, the location of which in a conspicuous part of the campus, emphasized its architectural incongruity. Bosler, as redesigned by Mr. Emmart, in association with Sydney E. Martin, of Philadelphia, is now a splendid limestone structure giving the library more than double its former floor space and including many other rooms, among them a large recreational reading room, equipped by the late Alexander A. Sharp, class of 1884, and a room of corresponding size housing the ever increasing Dickinsoniana collection.

Begun in a small way about fourteen years ago, the Dickinsoniana collection now comprises several thousand items of manuscript and other documents relating to the founders, presidents and distinguished alumni of the College. It includes many letters of President Nisbet, John Dickinson, Benjamin Rush, President James Buchanan, Chief Justice Roger Brooke Taney and others. The collection also contains a leather armchair, mahogany clock, a pair of carving knives, and a marble lion on a pedestal, all of which belonged to John Dickinson and which were given to the College in the will of his great-granddaughter, the late Maria Dickinson Logan, of Philadelphia. It also contains much of the apparatus of Joseph Priestley, including the famous lens he used in his discovery of oxygen. These valuable articles were secured for the College one hundred twenty-five years ago by Dr. Thomas Cooper, then professor of chemistry, who had lived with Priestly at Northumberland, Pa.

Those of us who graduated in the last century or the early years of the present century will recall the two story hall in West College, which, from 1804 until the building of Bosler in 1887, was used as the College chapel. At the turn of the century, the walls were covered with a hideous flowered red paper and the furniture consisted of a parlor organ and fifty or so collapsible chairs, which an up-to-date undertaker would have scorned. On the wall were hung the oil portraits of four or five of the early Presidents—the sole art collection of the College. Today, through the generous gift of the late Lemuel T. Appold of the class of 1882, who was one of the outstanding benefactors of the College, Memorial Hall, dedicated to the Dickinsonians who fell in World War I, is one of the most beautiful Colonial interiors in the country.

The long corridor on the north side of the first floor of West College is now a presidential art gallery, with portraits of all the twenty presidents of the College. All together the College has seventy-five oil paintings of founders, presidents and alumni, a collection probably unequaled by any small college in the country.

This article would not be complete if it stopped with the foregoing recital of the material side of the College. Dickinson has always ranked high scholastically. When the comparatively few and practically independent chapters of Phi Beta Kappa were brought together in the United Society in the 80's, the first charter granted by the United Society was that to Dickinson, in 1887, as the Alpha of Pennsylvania. Throughout the years Dickinson graduates have been accepted without question at the leading law, medical and other graduate schools of the country requiring a bachelor's degree for entrance. During President Corson's administration, the reputation of the College for sound and high class academic work has been fully sustained.

As indicated above, for over a year the College has had from 700 to 750 Army Air students, under contract with the War Department and at the same time has maintained the operation of its civilian liberal arts curriculum with not more than 225 students compared to the normal 550 to 575 undergraduates. On January 31, 1944, the War Department announced that Air Detachments in practically all colleges which had them would not be replaced, which means that as groups finish their prescribed course of instruction the Army students will all have left the campus by June 1st. As the War Department subsequently announced a great curtailment of its college program in other arms of the service, it appears likely that for the balance of the duration the College will have to operate, as a liberal arts institution only, with no more than 200 to 225 undergraduates, with a resulting loss of income of approximately $50,000. a year. This is the reason why the appeal is being made this year to increase the annual Alumni Fund to $30,000. Despite this discouraging situation, there is no doubt but that the College will be able to carry on successfully.

An indication of the standing of the College may be gathered from a recital of the names of men of distinction who have been the commencement and convocation speakers of the College since 1933. The list is as follows:

- 1933 (commencement) Owen J. Roberts, Justice of the United States Supreme Court
 1933 (convocation) Harold W. Dodds, President, Princeton University
 1934 John Dickinson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce
 1935 Josiah O. Wolcott, Chancellor of Delaware
 1936 Charles R. Gay, President of the New York Stock Exchange
 1937 Walter A. Jessup, President of the Carnegie Foundation
 1938 George F. Zook, President of the American Council on Education
 1939 Dixon Ryan Fox, President of Union College
 1940 Edwin H. Hughes, Bishop of the Methodist Church
 1941 Hu Shih, Ambassador of China

1942 Harry F. Byrd, United States Senator from Virginia

1943 (convocation) Daniel L. Marsh, President of Boston University

1943 (commencement) Oliver James Hart, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Pennsylvania

1943 (convocation) Sir Edmund Vivian Gabriel, British War Commission

1944 (convocation) Douglas Southall Freeman, historian

Dickinson is not "just another college". Both in academic circles and by college men and women generally, it is recognized as one of the outstanding small colleges of the country. To this happy situation, based on the traditions of the regime of President Nisbet starting almost two hundred years ago, the high standards and successful administration of President Corson have contributed greatly.

"Poker Bill" Kintzing Wounded in New Britain

WOUNDED in action in New Britain on January 28 after two year's service in the south Pacific, honored by a Presidential citation and wearing the Purple Heart medal, Lt. William B. Kintzing, '37, U. S. N. R. Medical Corps, has returned to this country for hospitalization. He is a wearer of the Far Eastern theater of war ribbon with stars for major battles in Guadalcanal, New Guinea and New Britain.

The former basketball star graduated from Duke University College of Medicine in 1940 and served his internship at Mountainside Hospital, Montclair, N. J. Then he entered the U. S. Naval Reserve Medical Corps and served as a Naval surgeon attached to a Marine detachment which opened the Guadalcanal campaign and later took Cape Gloucester air field.

His name appeared in the September, 1943 number of Harpers Magazine in the article "Marine, You Die" which painted the gory picture of the fighting Marines in the Guadalcanal campaign.

Shortly after he was wounded in January, the United Press carried a wire story about "Poker Bill" Kintzing. It told how he had been wounded and how he refused to be carried back to a first aid station by stretcher. He insisted that his great height would give the carriers too much of a job and he walked back himself.

On a 30 day leave from the San Diego base hospital where he was assigned for treatment, Lt. Kintzing was married on April 22 to Miss Florence Elizabeth Magner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Magner, 52 Prospect St., Rutland, Vt. in the Church of Christ the King, Rutland. The bride is a graduate of the West Rutland High School, class of 1939, and of the Mountainside School of Nursing, Montclair, N. J. For the past year, she has been on the Rutland Hospital staff of nurses.

Co-Ed Serving With the Red Cross in New Zealand

A LETTER written on March 1st reveals that Elaine Stradling, '35, had then been in New Zealand for nine months with the American Red Cross, and gives an interesting account of her work and life there. The letter she wrote is as follows:

Having been in New Zealand for nine months, I have virtually lost contact with my Alma Mater. In fact, I don't even know whether the bulletins are being published. However, I am writing this letter with the hope that the many Dickinsonians whose Christmas cards I have not acknowledged will learn the reason.

Twenty of us arrived here in June, 1943, for the express purpose of establishing service clubs and rest clubs for our fighting forces. With eight clubs and a hospitality center established, you can understand that we have been kept very busy. My own assignment is in a service club, through whose doors thousands pass daily. After renovations last August, we now have a modernistic club that is a beauty—interior walls of glass brick (You may have seen a picture of Mrs. Roosevelt laying one of the bricks. She arrived during the early stages of remodeling.), neon lighting, and modern furniture. In addition to the various services offered within the club, I have the responsibility of running a picnic and two dances each week. The work has been exceedingly interesting; the position of being able to offer a "bit of America" to men so long away from home is truly a joyous one. The people back home have done a splendid thing in financing the club program through their generous contributions to Red Cross.

In our operating the clubs, we shall be eternally grateful to the New Zealand women and girls who volunteer their time and energy so faithfully each week, serving as waitresses in our canteens and dining rooms, as information and checkroom girls, and dance hostesses. Without these thousands we could not begin to carry out the demands of the men upon our clubs.

New Zealand is a beautiful country. Of course, there's no place in the world like the States, but this country is lovely. Until recent years, it was "off the beaten track," so that development was slow. However, many people have learned a great deal in a short space of time, so that they are modern and one could say—almost "Americanized." The girls who go on many of the picnics I've learned to know quite well, and they seem much like our high school seniors and college freshmen and sophomores. After the war, there will undoubtedly be plenty of opportunity here for enterprising men and women.

Since it's about time for me to go to work, I'll run along now as I wish Dickinsonians all over the world an early realization of their most cherished dreams—an Allied victory and their return to happier days of life more or less as they care to spend it."

Bequeaths $50,000 to College

Under the will of Katharine F. Parsons, late of Philadelphia, who died January 21, 1944, the College will receive $50,000 upon the termination of a life estate. The will provides for the establishment of a chair to be known as "The John B. Parsons Professorship," the income of the fund to be applied toward the salary of the professor, and further that the choice of the chair is left to the trustees of the College, with the suggestion of a Professor of History.

Mrs. Parsons was the widow of John B. Parsons, who had been President of the Union Traction Company of Philadelphia and of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and who died August 14, 1919.

EDITORIAL

Twenty-One Years Old

WITH this issue, Volume 21, Number 4, THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS attains its majority.

Twenty-one years ago in May, 1923 the first issue appeared saying editorially "Born of a great hope in a cradle of humility, THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS utters this, its first 'blah.' It is conscious of its infirmities but confident that the niche it aspires to fill is a worthy and essential one to the proper development of Dickinson alumni spirit."

On this twenty-first birthday, the story of the founding of the magazine can be revealed. At Commencement in 1922 a handful of alumni met in what was supposed to be the meeting of the alumni association and they elected the late Lemuel T. Appold, '82, of Baltimore, president. He found out afterward that there apparently wasn't any alumni association except in theory and immediately determined if he was to be president there was going to be an association. One of his first steps was to consider the possibility of publishing an alumni magazine and he got results in that effort before the alumni association was reorganized and recreated. The magazine appeared in May 1923 and the General Alumni Association, as known today, came into being in November of that year.

"I would like a magazine which is as easy to read as The Atlantic Monthly and about the same size" were the only specifications Mr. Appold suggested in his first meeting with Gilbert Malcolm, '15, and Dean M. Hoffman, '02, who have been editor and associate editor throughout the life of the magazine. This was Mr. Appold's answer to their questions about what kind of a magazine he wanted.

It can be noted here that with minor changes the present format of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS has been the same in every issue. The first ornate cover design has been discarded, and there were two experiments with other cover designs in early issues before the present cover was adopted and since its adoption it has not been changed. All have carried the same vista of Old West through the 1902 Gate.

After several conferences with the proposed editors, Mr. Appold in his characteristic way, wrote a letter sending his check for $1,000 directing that THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS be published. For nearly two years prior to this underwriting there had been much oratory in many gatherings of alumni supporting the publication of a magazine. But Mr. Appold's gift made the birth of his brain child possible, and what the magazine has contributed to the weal of the college in these twenty-one years must be added at least in part to his crown of glory.

It was immediately discovered twenty-one years ago, that the "cart had been placed in front of the horse" so far as the mailing lists were concerned. This led to the development of the Alumni Office, the present alphabetical lists, class lists, geographical stencils and biographical records of alumni and the never ending tasks of keeping these correct. The College has paid the bills for this work in salaries, the purchase of elaborate equipment and supplies. It can be said that today, Dickinson has a well-equipped alumni office as a by-product of the magazine.

The editorial board has been the same for 21 years, except that a few years ago Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., '35, became an associate editor. He is now in Italy serving with the American Field Service. His valued help is missed but he continues to send in material for the magazine.

Accolades must also be tendered to some of the correspondents. Until he re-entered the Army shortly after Pearl Harbor, Captain Carlyle R. Earp, '14, writing the Baltimore Notes, had never missed having something he had written published in an issue of the magazine. Others who regularly supplied material are C. Grant Cleaver, '94, Major Robert E. McWhinney, '15, Everett E. Borton, '15, Lester S. Hecht, '15, the late I. Howell Kane, '21, and Mrs. Ann Bennetheum, '25.

Since its birth the magazine owes its growth and support to the thousands of alumni who have paid their annual dues or have become life members in the General Alumni Association.

To have served the college is the reward of the editors. If the magazine has done nothing more than inform the alumni of the things they should know and told them of their associates of college days, it has justified itself. If it has added to the recorded history of these twenty-one years, students will treasure it in years to come. Twenty-one years ago it aspired to fill a niche. It is for Dickinsonians to say whether that niche has been filled or not.

Tenth Anniversary

THE 1944 Commencement marks the end of the first ten years of the administration of Dr. Fred Pierce Corson as president of Dickinson College. The alumni hope that the anniversary notches a decade in a life sentence to the president's chair.

Boyd Lee Spahr, LL.D., president of the Board of Trustees, has written "A Review of Ten Years" which is published in this issue of the magazine. It properly records the attainments of the past and reveals the foundations for a fine future in a post-ward world.

Because of present conditions in a world at war, there never was a time in the history of the college when fine leadership was so greatly needed. President Corson has clearly demonstrated that he has the ability, energy and capacity to guide the old college through these troublous times. It is fortunate in these days that he is at the helm.

In rejoicing with him in the fine accomplishments of his first ten years and in celebrating his anniversary, alumni thank President Corson for his work in the past and in the present and look forward to the future hoping that he will have many more birthdays.

The Living Endowment

NOWHERE are the small gifts of many more important than in the present Alumni Fund campaign for the small gifts of many are just as effective as the large gifts of the few.

If every living Dickinsonian graduate and non-graduate gave $5 annually to the Alumni Fund the $30,000 goal set for 1944 would be passed. There are about 5,400 Dickinsonians whose addresses are known and another 200 or 300 whose addresses are unknown.

The receipt of $30,000 by the college in this ninth annual Alumni Fund campaign would be the equivalent to the income from an additional endowment of a million dollars invested at 3%. In this sense, the Alumni Fund is the income from a living endowment.

The 1944 Alumni Fund campaign has passed the half-way mark. It has reached that point in part through the small gifts of many. It will need many more small gifts, as well as the large gifts of a few, to reach its goal.

College Trustee Dies After Lingering Illness

H. WALTER GILL, '07, member of the Board of Trustees since 1928, prominent attorney and civic leader of Atlantic City, N. J., died in the city hospital there on March 6 after a lingering illness. He was first stricken in 1936 when he was seized with an arterial spasm while working on a case in his office. He was then found unconscious at his desk and was taken to a hospital where he lay between life and death for days but while he finally rallied sufficiently to be up and about, he never completely recovered.

With Ben. Hinchman, '05, he was co-author of the Dickinson Evening Song, and he assisted in the writing of other songs of the college during his days as a member and manager of the Glee Club. He led the singing at many of the meetings of the Dickinson Club of Atlantic City, which he also served as president. He was a life member of the General Alumni Association.

Prominent in civic circles of Atlantic City, he was one of the organizers and a past president of the Kiwanis Club there. He also served as an international trustee of Kiwanis. He was solicitor of the Chamber of Commerce and active in the Boy Scout movement. He was awarded the Silver Beaver Award in 1940 in recognition of his work as president of the Atlantic City Scout Council during 1936.

High tribute was paid to him in an editorial which appeared following his death in the Atlantic City Press, which said in part:

"It is doubtful if there was a more widely read man in our section than H. Walter Gill. He rightly prized a fine library, and it was not for looks; he made continuous and intense use of it. Only natural, therefore, that his skill in oratory should have crowned in public estimate all of the other characteristics, such as a broad philosophy of life, culture, pleasing personality, sound learning and the ability to pass it along to others, which made him an outstanding school teacher and lawyer and civic leader. That he never sought political responsibility may be the public's loss."

Born on November 3, 1881 in Coalport, Pa., he attended the schools there and then graduated from West Chester State Normal School. After teaching for a time, he entered the Dickinson Preparatory School and then the college from which he received the Ph.B. degree upon his graduation in 1907. The College awarded him an A.M. in 1912. At Dickinson, he became a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity in which he always maintained an active interest.

Following his graduation from the college he taught school in Cape May Court House, N. J., and later became supervisor of schools there. He held that position until 1911 when he went to Atlantic City to study law. In December 1913 he was admitted to the New Jersey bar and two years later became a partner in the law firm of Bolte, Sooy and Gill continuing until 1926 when he opened his own office after being admitted to practice as a counsellor in 1916.

He was a former president of the Chelsea Title Company, and a president of the Atlantic County Bar Association in 1927. He had been solicitor for the Chelsea National Bank and for the Seaboard Fire Insurance Company, of which he was also a director. He was a member of the New Jersey Bar Association and was a Mason, a member of the Elks and Moose.

Following her graduation from the college in 1908, he married Mary E. Leinbach, of Reading, Pa., who survives him with their two children, a daughter, Mary Ellen, now a senior at Wellesley College, and a son, Lt. (jg) Norman Gill. He is also survived by his mother, Mrs. Ella M. Gill, and a sister, Mrs. Augusta E. Walsh.

Young Alumnus Receives Distinguished Flying Cross

LIEUTENANT CALVIN S. DOPP, '45, whose college career was interrupted by his enlistment in the Army Air Corps, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross in addition to the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters. This report came to THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS from the Public Relations Office of the Strategic Air Forces Headquarters, bearing the press censor's stamp dated 17 Apr. 1944, and was received on May 8. The official press release is as follows:

An Eighth AAF Bomber Station, England—First Lieutenant Calvin S. Dopp, 21, of Harrisburg, Pa., bombardier on the Eighth AAF Flying Fortress "Holy Matrimony," has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for "extraordinary achievement" while participating in more than a score of heavy bombing assaults on important Nazi targets in the Reich and the Nazi-held countries of Europe. He already held the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters.

Lt. Dopp is a veteran of some of the most important bombing sweeps carried out over the Continent in recent months by the Eighth Air Force Fortresses, including the first attack on targets at Berlin. Included in his string of missions to blast vital industrial and military targets supporting the enemy's war effort were four offensives against Brunswick, three to Frankfurt, two to Augsburg, and trips to the shipping center of Hamburg and the plane manufacturing center of Regensburg.

"Strangely, our first mission was our worst one, as I remember," recounts Lt. Dopp. "We were out to blast a target at Emden, and we sure had our hands full. The skies were full of flak and fighters—especially fighters. That day, the Forts knocked 138 enemy planes out of the sky."

The AAF bombardier, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Dopp of 2166 N. 7th Street, Harrisburg, was attending Dickinson College at Carlisle, Pa., when he entered service as an aviation cadet June 8, 1942. He trained at San Antonio and Ellington Field, Texas., before winning his wings and commission June 24, 1943, at San Angelo, Tex.

Lt. Dopp's wife, Mrs. Margaret L. Dopp, is now residing at 314b NE 10th Street, Amarillo.

Receives Legion of Merit

General Douglas MacArthur has awarded the Legion of Merit to Colonel Robert E. Woodward, '17, of Summit, N. J. "for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services as Special Service Officer of the United States Army in the southwest Pacific area." The citation continues: "With elements of the command widely dispersed, and with few facilities initially available, Colonel Woodward planned a comprehensive special service program for the command and initiated measures for obtaining needed personnel and equipment. He completed arrangements for the broadcasting of radio programs for the troops, and for the local publication of a weekly magazine. Colonel Woodward, by his foresight, organizing ability and energy, contributed materially to the recreation, welfare and morale of United States forces in the southwest Pacific area."

Receive Dickinson Diplomas at F. & M.

Four Dickinsonians in the Naval V-12 unit received their Dickinson diplomas at the Mid-Winter Commencement of Franklin and Marshall College held in the Green Room Theater, Lancaster on the evening of Feb. 29. Boyd Lee Spahr, LL.D., '00, president of the Board of Trustees conferred the degrees.

The sailors who received their diplomas were George Benedict, Jr., of Philadelphia; William Henry Keen, of Lykens; Robert William Long, of Ashland and Ralph Eugene Lower, of Williamsburg.

Letter Reveals Courtship of Justice James Wilson

WHILE many fine additions are being made frequently to Dickinsoniana by Boyd Lee Spahr, '00, president of the board of trustees, one of his February purchases throws light on a courtship and is unlike the more historical documents which he has been acquiring. Many of his recent acquisitions have been letters of President James Buchanan.

Through Burton Konkle, Mr. Spahr acquired an original letter of James Wilson, dated June 20, 1793, to Miss Hannah Grey, whom he was courting and who became his second wife later that year. Justice James Wilson of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, trustee of the College from 1783 to 1798 and signer of the Declaration of Independence, was the author of the letter.

Few of the papers of James Wilson are in existence. According to Mr. Konkle one of the ladies to whom the last descendant of Wilson gave some of Wilson's papers had them in the care of a bank and took some of them out; and by accident they were destroyed by fire in her home, among them Wilson's own records of his moot courts and moot legislatures. The woman probably sent this letter to Mr. Konkle, and it was saved. The letter follows:

My dear Hannah

By this tender though familiar appellation, permit me to begin, as I wish to continue my written correspondence with you. I mentioned that, at the Conclusion of the Court here, I would either see you in Boston, or write to you, if I could not have the Pleasure of seeing you. To this last Expedient I now see, as I then apprehended, that, in all Probability, I must be confined. But why should I delay Writing till the Conclusion of the Court? Why should not my Pen Sooner take up a Theme so constantly present to my Thoughts? When I find it so difficult to delay Writing; you may easily judge how much I long for an Answer. Do—let that Answer be speedy and favorable. Let it authorize me to think and call you mine. Remember what I told you on this Subject. Your Letter, sent by the next Post, will reach me before I leave this Place. With Emotions of the purest and warmest Attachment, I am,

My dear Hannah,
Your affectionate
James Wilson

Newport, 20th June 1793
Miss Hannah Grey

Philadelphia Club Meets

Dr. William Harvey Perkins, dean of Jefferson Medical College, was the guest of honor and spoke extemporaneously at the annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Philadelphia, which was held after a year's intermission, in the English Room of Kugler's Restaurant on Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, on the evening of March 30. There were 80 present.

David H. Kinley, '17L, retiring president, acted as toastmaster. Following a tribute to Dickinsonians in the armed service, Gilbert Malcolm opened the speaking program. He was followed by Dean W. H. Hitchler, of the Law School, and then by Dean Perkins. In his remarks, Dean Perkins stated that twelve Dickinsonians are at present students at Jeff. He extolled the merits of a rounded liberal arts preparation for the student of medicine rather than intensified work in the sciences.

Boyd Lee Spahr, president of the Board of Trustees, spoke briefly and then introduced the principal speaker, President Fred P. Corson, who had also offered the invocation.

The Rev. Alexander K. Smith, D.D., '25, was elected president of the club to succeed Mr. Kinley. Murray H. Spahr, '12, was chosen vice-president and Mrs. Margaret Day Jones, '15, second vice-president. Dr. William C. Sampson, '02, was again re-elected secretary-treasurer, a post he has held in the Philadelphia Club for a number of years.

LETTERS FROM OVERSEAS

Vol. Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., '35, Associate Editor of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, is in a rest area early in May after months of duty about Cassino driving an ambulance for the British while with American Field Service. He had one of the unusual experience's of the war about which he wrote on March 4 as follows:

One day I was carrying an ambulance load of Indians (the British, not the Red kind) and as we pulled away one of them asked me how long a trip we had to make. I told him, and, surprised to find someone speaking English so well (usually if you get a load of Indians, you drive in solemn silence all the way—the warlike Gurkhas will smile shyly at you, but speech is impossible), I asked him if he had attended an English School. No, he replied, an American missionary school—only the elementary grades. He was a farmer. When he said "American missionary school," I asked him if he'd ever heard of South Andhra Christian College and of its principal, Dr. Strock. His face, always bright and eager, just beamed. "Everybody in India," he said, "knows of Dr. Strock." And he wanted to know how I knew of Dr. Strock. I told him and told him further what Dr. Strock had been doing in the last three years, and that he is (he is, isn't he?) now on his way back to India. The Indian—he was a sergeant—was much interested and pleased to know this. A world war indeed when a Christian Indian carried by an American driver in an ambulance attached to an English Army in Italy can find they both know of a Carlisler and A Dickinsonian!

By this time, Whit has heard from Dr. Strock, '03, who is in Baltimore awaiting the day when he and Mrs.

Strock, now recovering from an operation, may return to India.

On February 11, Lt. E. F. Hann, Jr., '31, of the Navy, wrote from somewhere in New Guinea, sending a one-pound note of the Commonwealth of Australia and saying:

Included with this issue was a bit of an extra dividend in the form of a blue slip of paper. Since the only Yank currency in my possession is my short-snorters certificate, I am sending a slightly worn picture of King George. If the Australian rate of exchange is holding up, it should cover my deficit for a year at least.

The Navy brought me to the Southwest Pacific by means of the naval air transport service. Since it was the first time I had been up in anything other than an elevator or a ferris wheel it was quite an experience to fly the Pacific—including a few dollars for the certificate above mentioned. Incidentally, the Pacific is a large ocean, contains a considerable amount of water, and looks very lonely from ten thousand feet when there is no land in sight.

For no good reason whatsoever I feel inclined to report that I first spent eight months in Australia on the staff of an air command, communications being the field in which my nautical career is cast. About two months ago I was made communications officer on the staff of an air operational command with incidental duties of running a radio station for a naval air facility. Thus—somewhere in New Guinea. Other incidental duties involve a study of the producer to consumer system with regard to cocoanut milk, and an overcoming of the conviction that some of those crazy looking fish could not be found outside an aquarium.

Returning to the justification for this letter, it was a great treat to read the names and recall the faces of old friends who once lived, moved and had their being under the kindly gaze of the Mermaid. I particularly appreciated reading the names of those who are now in the service, none of whom have I had the good fortune to meet as yet. It seems quite natural that the College should be making such a large contribution to the war, and let us hope that the spirit of Dickinson will be felt just as extensively in the making of the peace."

Lt. John W. Ell, '40, sent in a subscription some time ago to the Paul H. Doney Memorial Fund, and a copy of the book issued to subscribers was mailed to him. On April 11 he wrote from somewhere in England saying, "Received 'The Broken Circle' and read it with the deepest interest, for, with due regard for the other fine teachers I had to instruct me, Dr. Doney was ever my favorite. He was all his father said of him. Since being in England, I have had many occasions to remember the debt I owe him for the stimulation I received from the courses in English literature I took under his guidance. Dr. Doney was a great man and an excellent teacher."

Lt. Robert R. Owens, '41, who is with an anti-aircraft unit, wrote on April 11 "Life in England pursues its systematic progression towards its obvious culmination. The most of us know no more that is particular than you who read the newspapers. We have no choice but to wait."

Lt. Martin H. Lock, '39, is with an infantry cannon company somewhere in the South Pacific. When he sent in a contribution to the Alumni Fund in March he wrote: "I am on an island—thousands of miles from the states, the name of which I am not permitted to disclose. It is covered with dense jungles; inhabited by backward Melanesian natives; and infested with myriads of every type of insect. The contrast between the life I am leading on this island and the life I led while attending Dickinson is crystal clear. I don't know what is to be my fate, but I know that I am fighting for principles and ideals in which I firmly believe. The opportunity to acquire a liberal education is one of them."

Baltimore Club Meets

With 50 present the annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Baltimore was held in the Harlem Park Methodist Church on the evening of March 10. Ladies of the church prepared and served the dinner.

The Rev. James J. Resh, '97, completing a two year term as president of the club, acted as toastmaster and presided over the business session. Greetings of the club were sent to Harry L. Price, '96, former president of the club and also of the General Alumni Association, who was then a patient in the Maryland General Hospital.

Dr. M. G. Porter, '84, physician of Roland Park, was elected president in the business session. Clarence M. Shepherd, '10, who served as president some years ago was elected vice-president, and C. Wesley Orem, '35, was reelected secretary. Irene G. Yaeger, '42, was chosen as treasurer.

"The Philosophy of Education" was the subject of the address delivered by President Fred P. Corson. Mrs. Corson was also a guest at the dinner. Dean W. H. Hitchler of the Law School and Gilbert Malcolm were the other speakers. The Rev. Kemp Horn, pastor of the church, offered the invocation. Mrs. Forrest G. Cromer, soloist of the church, with Mrs. Smyser at the piano, sang two numbers "Homing" and "Katy Did".

* * * 1,058 Stars In Dickinson's Service Flag * * *

SINCE the February number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS was published, it has been learned that 32 more Dickinsonians have either recently entered the services or have been in the Army or Navy. This brings the total number of Dickinsonians in the various services to 1,058.

The names of five more co-eds, bringing their total to at least 18, appear in this issue. Dr. Frances Willoughby, '27, Michigan physician, is in the Navy Medical Corps; Pvt. Muriel Wood Hiller, '40, is a WAC; Norma Gardner, '43, is a WAVE, while M. Elaine Stradling, '36, and Virginia E. Heisey, '39, are with the American Red Cross.

There are 15 men serving as chaplains in the Army or Navy, a number of them now in foreign fields or on ships at sea.

Reports of promotions and transfers of service men and women appear in the class personals. Because of censorship regulations, complete addresses of troops overseas cannot be published. When desired by alumni these will be furnished on request to Gilbert Malcolm, Alumni Secretary. Those in the service are also requested to write him, giving their addresses and any information about promotions, meetings with Dickinsonians or news which will be of interest to their classmates. He regularly writes to Dickinsonians in all parts of the world and passes along the information he receives.

Thirty-three names are published in this issue, but the net gain is 32. Robert F. Lavanture, '31, was previously listed as serving with the Red Cross. He has just been commissioned in the Naval Reserve and reports for training this month. The new names are as follows:

Commander Charles Hastings, Navy

1927

Lieut. John S. Kreider, USNR
Lieut. Frances Willoughby, USNR

1929

John McCrea, Army

1930

OBITUARY

1877—Daniel Brodhead Heiner, former Congressman, United States attorney, and internal revenue collector, died at his home in Kittanning, Pa., on February 14. He was eighty-nine years of age.

His wife, Mrs. Belle T. Acheson Heiner, preceded her husband in death by just four days. The couple had been married more than fifty-seven years.

Born in Kittanning, Pa., December 30, 1854, Mr. Heiner, entered the College in 1873 and became a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. He withdrew from the College in 1875 and received the A.B. degree from Allegheny College in 1879.

He was district attorney of Armstrong County, Pa., from 1886 to 1892, and in that year was elected a member of Congress. At the end of his congressional term in 1897 he was appointed United States district attorney by President McKinley and served through 1902, when he began the first of two 12-year periods as internal revenue collector. He held that position under Presidents McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Taft, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

He was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal Church at Kittanning.

He is survived by one son, William Graham Heiner, an attorney in Pittsburgh, Pa., and by two grandsons.

1879—Dr. Harold H. Longsdorf, one of the last of the old fashioned country doctors, died in his home in Centerville, Pa., on April 28 in his 86th year. He suffered a paralytic stroke a few days before his death which ended a practice of 62 years.

His father, Dr. William H. Longsdorf, was a member of the class of 1856 and like his father he maintained a life-long interest in the college. He was a life member of the General Alumni Association. He forsook his practice at Commencement time and spent the days on the campus. Then he told many the story of how he and his father were at Gettysburg and heard President Lincoln's address there. His father was then on crutches as a result of injuries sustained while serving with the Union forces. President Lincoln saw the wounded veteran and summoned him and his son to the speaker's platform.

Dr. Longsdorf was active in educational circles. A former school director, he early wrote a book "Consolidation of Rural Public Schools", which was a pioneer work and he also championed the cause of free text books. He has been called "the father of the consolidated school system in Pennsylvania."

While president of the Cumberland County School Directors Association he was commissioned by the State in 1900 to make a study of school consolidation and pupil transportation. The State later published his 127-page report under the title "The Consolidation of Country Schools and Transportation of Scholars by Use of Vans."

A year following his birth in Bellevue, Nebraska on July 28, 1858, his parents returned to make their home in Centerville and he lived in that house until his death. He prepared for college at the Newville Academy, and received his A.B. degree in 1879 and an A.M. in 1882, the year he graduated with an M.D. degree from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Baltimore. At Dickinson he became a member of Chi Phi Fraternity.

He was an elder of the United Presbyterian Church, Newville, and a director of the Farmers Trust Company, Carlisle. He was a member of the Sons of Veterans, the Pennsylvania Medical Society, the American Academy of Medicine, the American Medical Association and the Tri-County Medical Society. He was author of "Medical Legislation."

He is survived by his widow, the former A. Eleanor Ernst, of Walnut Bottom, whom he married in 1885, their daughter, Mrs. John T. Mohler, of Camp Hill, Pa., and a son, Dr. Harold E. Longsdorf, of Mt. Holly, N. J. He is also survived by three sisters, Dr. Zatae L. Straw, '87; Dr. Jessica D. Bozorth, '91, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Ernest Sipple, '94, of Wallingsford.

Following services in the Centerville Lutheran Church, burial was made in Memorial Park, Centerville.

1889—Col. Hugh Harry Pitcairn died at his home in Harrisburg, Pa., on February 21. He was seventy-seven years old last November 18, and had been confined to the Harrisburg hospital for several months in the Fall.

Born in Harrisburg, he was the son of Dr. Hugh Pitcairn and Fannie Sherfay Pitcairn. He attended the College for two years, where he became a member of Theta Delta Chi; and later he attended Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, N. Y. for two and a half years. He was a civil engineer and worked in the West Indies, the Philippines, North Borneo, France, Argentine and Brazil.

He entered the Army as a private in the Spanish-American War, was commissioned a lieutenant, and in the World War became a major. In 1931 he was made a lieutenant colonel in the auxiliary reserve, and a few years ago he was retired as a full colonel.

He was a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers; American Society of Military Engineers, Tropical Engineers, Army and Navy Club; Military Order of the World War and American Legion.

Surviving are three brothers, Norman B., of St. Louis, president of the Wabash Railroad; Frank, of Philadelphia, who is associated with the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, and Roy, of California, and a sister, Mrs. David Waddell Frackelton, of Cleveland, the former Miss Nancy Pitcairn.

Following funeral services, burial was made in Altoona.

1889—The Rev. Morris E. Swartz, DD., prominent in the Central Pennsylvania Methodist Conference for many years, former editor of the Washington Christian Advocate and former member of the Alumni Council, died on April 9 in York, Pa., following a lingering illness. He had lived in York since his retirement in 1939.

From his undergraduate days, Dr. Swartz was active in Dickinson affairs. He was the leader for the Class of 1889 in promoting reunions, served as Alumni Fund agent and was an active worker in his term on the Alumni Council.

Twice during his ministry he was superintendent of the Harrisburg District of the Central Pennsylvania Conference and once of the Sunbury district. He was president of the Board of Trustees of the Methodist Home for Children at Shiremanstown, Pa.

Born in Pine Grove Mills, Centre County, Pa. on February 7, 1868, he was the son of George Musser and Mary Keen Swartz. He attended the Dickinson Preparatory School graduating there in 1885. He received his Ph.B. degree upon his graduation from the college in 1889 and an A.M. in 1892 when he graduated from Drew Theological Seminary with the B.D. degree. The college conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity upon him in 1910.

He served numerous central Pennsylvania pastorates, including six years at Shippensburg. From 1932 until his retirement in 1939 he was pastor of the Newberry Church in Williamsport. He was Washington area secretary for the centenary movement and Pennsylvania district secretary in the inter-church world movement. He was a member of Sigma Chi Fraternity.

He is survived by his widow, the former Miss Carrie Bashore, of West Fairview; two sons, Morris E. Swartz, Jr., '23, of Harrisburg and Robert B. Swartz, of York; a brother, E. F. Swartz, Punxsutawney, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Caswell, Coatesville.

1896—The Rev. Elmer Etherington Jones, retired Methodist minister, died from pneumonia, after a short illness, on March 16, at his home in Perry, N. Y.

Born in Philadelphia on October 11, 1871, he was the son of Daniel A. Jones and Virginia Etherington Jones. He attended Dickinson Preparatory School and received his A.B. degree from the College in 1896 and an A.M. in 1900. He was graduated that year from Drew Theological Seminary with the B.D. degree. At Dickinson he became a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity, and was a member of the Union Philosophical Society.

While a student at Drew he held a pastorate at Lawrenceville, Pa., and upon his graduation from the Seminary became pastor at Naples, N. Y. He served a number of pastorates in northern New York until his retirement in 1942, when he took up his residence at Perry, where he was pastor from 1921 to 1924.

He is survived by his widow, the former Nina M. Matson of Wellsboro, Pa., and three sons, all in the armed services: First Lieut. Stuart M. Jones, Seaman 2/c; Merle A. Jones, and Capt. Lyle M. Jones.

Interment was made in Glenwood Cemetery, Perry, N. Y.

1906—Robert Benneville Buoy, hardware merchant and president of the John Y. Buoy Co. since 1921, died of miocarditis after a two week's illness at his home in Milton, Pa. on April 13.

Born at Williamsport, Pa., on December 15, 1883, he was the son of John Y. and Mary Haag Buoy. He graduated from Milton High School and attended Bucknell University before entering the college, where he became a member of Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity.

He was a trustee and former treasurer of the First Methodist Church of Milton, of which he was a member. He was active in the Milton Chamber of Commerce and was a director of the First National Bank of Milton. He was a charter member of the Rotary Club there and chairman of that organization's crippled children committee. He was a 32nd degree Mason.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mary E. Kreitzer, whom he married at Milton on September 19, 1922, and a daughter, Margaret Kreitzer Buoy, now a student at Gettysburg College. He is also survived by a sister, Miss Margaret E. Buoy, of Milton, and two brothers, John H. Buoy, also of Milton and Charles W. Buoy, of Cleveland.

The hardware concern of John Y. Buoy Co. in which he served as president since 1921 was established 92 years ago in 1852 by his grandfather.

The Rev. Charles A. L. Bickell, assisted by the Rev. Samuel W. Strain, '24, officiated at the funeral services. Interment was made in the Milton Cemetery.

1908—William Henry Shipe died in Washington, D. C., on March 17, 1944, of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Born on April 22, 1883, at Treverton, Pa., he was the son of M. W. and Christie Haupt Shipe. He prepared for college at the Sunbury High School, and received his A.B. degree in June, 1908. At Dickinson he became a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. During the summer of 1939 he attended the summer session at Bucknell University.

Upon his graduation from the College, he became a teacher in the Middle Township High School at Cape May Court House, N. J., and was principal of that school from 1920 until 1924. From 1924 to 1939, he engaged in farming on R. D. 6, Danville, Pa., and then in 1939, returned to the Middle Township High School as a teacher, continuing there until 1941. He then secured a federal position in the House Office Building where he worked until his death.

He was married to Lillie M. Hauck on June 28, 1911, at Sunbury, Pa. His widow is employed in the Government Printing Office in Washington where she lives with her son, Phil W. Shipe and twin daughters, Dora H. Shipe and Christie E. Shipe, who are now in the ninth grade of school. An older son, Ward M. Shipe, resides in Danville, Pa., where he is employed in the post office.

Following funeral services, internment was made in the Odd Fellows Cemetery, Danville, Pa.

1909—Miss Carrie Butz, retired teacher and one of the most prominent and beloved residents of Schuylkill Haven, Pa., died on March 26 in a New York hospital, where she had gone for treatment. Her death occurred five weeks after the death of her sister, Miss Eva Butz.

Born in Schuylkill Haven, she was the daughter of the late Jonathan and Hannah E. Krebs Butz. She graduated from the high school there and after attending the Kutztown State Teachers College entered Dickinson College. She received her A.B. degree in 1909 when she was graduated second in her class and became a member of Phi Beta Kappa. She was also awarded a scholarship to the University of Berlin and she studied in Germany for a year, returning to teach in the Coatesville High School. She later received her master's degree at Columbia University.

For 16 years she taught at the Schuylkill Haven High School and later at the high school in Trenton, N. J. She retired from teaching in 1936.

Miss Butz was active in civic and church affairs. She was an organizer and charter member of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Reformed Church of Schuylkill Haven, of which she was a member and active in the affairs of the Woman's Guild of that church. She was president of the Schuylkill Haven Library Association and a member of the board of the Woman's Club there. She was also active in the affairs of the W.C.T.U.

She is survived by a brother, George W. Butz, of Schuylkill Haven and two nephews. Following funeral services from the Butz home, burial was made in the Union Cemetery.

1914—Walter Matson Herr was seized with a heart attack at his home in Mifflinburg, Pa., on the evening of February 14 and died within an hour. He suffered a coronary occlusion.

Born on December 21, 1890, at Salona, Pa., he was the son of Wesley Uriah Herr and Margaret Walter Herr. He prepared for college at the Central State Normal School. He received his Ph.B. degree from the College upon his graduation in 1914.

During World War I he was a private in the Army, serving with a headquarters company at Camp Hancock. Following his return from service he became an insurance agent and for some years he was a claim adjuster for Maryland Casualty Company and the proprietor of the General Insurance Agency. He was also a justice of the peace.

He was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, a Mason, a member of P. O. S. of A., and a past commander of the American Legion.

He is survived by his widow, the former Josephine Sarah Herr, whom he married at Montandon on December 25, 1917. They had no children.

Following funeral services, burial was made in the cemetery at Lewisburg, Pa.

1919—Dr. John A. Strausbaugh, Associate Professor of Romance Languages in Emory University, died on June 19, 1943, of cerebral hemorrhage, and was buried in York Road Cemetery near Hanover, Pa., it has just been learned.

Born on August 16, 1897, he was the son of Anthony and Sevilla Becker Strausbaugh. He prepared for college at Glenville High School. Upon his graduation from the College in 1919, he became principal of the Richmondville, N. Y., High School, and after a year there, became Instructor in Spanish and Italian at the University of Maine, continuing until 1933 when he went to Emory University as Instructor in Romance Languages. He was named Assistant Professor in 1927 and Associate Professor in 1935 which he held until the time of his death. He received his Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago in 1933. Since 1932 he had been Secretary of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association. He was a member of the Modern Language Association of America, American Association of Teachers of Spanish, Mediaeval Society of America, Facsimile Texts Society, and the American Association of University Professors.

The author of various minor publications, he was also the author of "The Use of Auer and Auer de as Auxiliary Verbs in Old Spain from the Earliest Texts to the End of the Thirteenth Century."

He is survived by his widow, the former Helen McGhee, whom he married in Decatur, Ga. on October 9, 1926, and a daughter, Mary Helen, born June 2, 1930.

NECROLOGY

Mrs. Ovando B. Super, widow of Professor Super, died on April 1 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. A. Ross, the former Emma Super, in Bozeman, Montana. She was in her 92nd year and had enjoyed life thoroughly in spite of blindness for the past ten years. She had been in failing health for some time prior to her death.

Prof. Super was a member of the faculty from 1884 until his retirement in 1913. During their years in Carlisle, he and Mrs. Super were active in affairs of the town and college. Mrs. Super was an organizer and first president of the Carlisle Fortnightly Club, and was elected honorary president some years ago.

Besides Mrs. Ross, she is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. Gertrude L. Curtis, '02, of Los Angeles and Mrs. Edith M. Anderson, of Long Beach, California. One grandson, Cpl. David B. Anderson, is serving with the AAF overseas, and a granddaughter, Olive Ross, lives in Hanford, Washington.

James Ramsey Loy, father of Janet E. Loy, '23, New York City, and Mary Louise Loy, '31, Carlisle, a retired rug manufacturer and member of an early Perry County family, died on April 7 in his Carlisle home.

He is also survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Kutz Loy, three sons, Linn N., Carlisle; J. McNeal, Ardmore and Paul B., Middletown, N. Y. and a sister, Mrs. J. R. Wilson, Landisburg.

Judge Benjamin Francis Madore, of Bedford County, Pa., father of Robert Madore, '24, and Elizabeth Madore, '26, died on March 18 after a long illness at his home in Bedford. His widow also survives.

When his term on the bench ended in 1932 he returned to the practice of law with his son, Robert. For 40 years he was a member of the official board of the Methodist Church. He was long active in Republican politics, as well as in banking, farming, fraternal and civic circles.

Mrs. Mary Kutz Stuart, mother of three Dickinsonians, wife of R. Bruce Stuart, died on February 20 at her home in West Pennsboro Township following a lengthy illness.

She was the mother of four children: J. William Stuart of Leonia, N. J., Captain Harvey M. Stuart, now overseas, and Mrs. Lewis D. Einstein of Narberth, who are Dickinsonians. Another son, Robert B. Stuart of Buffalo, N. Y., graduated from the Pennsylvania State College.

Mrs. Sallie Thomas ("Baby") Boswell, housemaid at the Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity house for 35 years died in her Carlisle home at the age of 68 years on April 27.

A devoted Phi Psi, Sallie was buried wearing one of her most prized possessions—an engraved wrist watch bearing the Phi Psi crest which was presented to her by the undergraduate chapter when the house was closed for the duration about a year ago.

Mrs. Boswell, a native of Reading, was a member of the Bethel A. M. E. Zion Church and Sunday School. She is survived by her husband, a son, Lawrence L., of Darby, two daughters, Mrs. Carrie Thompson, Carlisle; Mrs. Beall Scott, of Philadelphia; six grandchildren and a brother, Morris Thomas, of Carlisle.
