College Enrolment To Reach 800

NEXT fall the College enrolment will reach 800.

This figure, largest in the history of the College, has been made necessary because of the rapid demobilization of the armed forces and the influx of new students to the College under the educational provisions of the G.I. Bill of Rights.

Early in the period of demobilization the College committed itself to accept every former Dickinson student who wishes to resume his interrupted education. Meanwhile, during the war years, the College had continued to enrol women high school graduates, and discharged veterans who were beginning their education. A simple addition of the former Dickinsonian students to the men and women already at the College produced a figure hovering close to 800.

This unusual expansion of Dickinson's student body is paralleled in every educational institution of the country. Because of an obligation felt toward the returning veterans and under pressure from the Veterans Administration and political agencies, the colleges and universities are straining their capacity to accommodate all the men their physical plant and teaching staffs will allow.

The increased enrolment at Dickinson—the pre-war enrolment never reached 600 and seldom passed 575—has necessitated the construction of additional dormitory rooms in Conway Hall and possibly an increase in the number of occupants of the larger rooms, a greater utilization of classroom space, and an increase in the teaching staff.

Already the "trunk room" in Conway Hall has been converted into dormitory rooms and the Conway Hall annex, formerly the infirmary, will be remodelled for the same purpose. Some of the rooms constructed in Denny Hall for the use of the Army Air Cadet Program in 1943 and 1944 may have to be used for classes. Several of the departments are engaging additional instructors to care for the increased enrolment.

An enrolment of 800, however, is regarded by College authorities as an emergency measure. As rapidly as the demand of the veterans for admission to college ceases, Dickinson will return to its pre-war limitation of enrolment to 600.

Coach Kahler Resigns

Coach Arthur D. Kahler, who returned to the College in December after more than three years' service in the Navy, resigned his post last month to accept the position of director of athletics at his alma mater Southwestern College, Winfield, Kans.

Coach Kahler, who came to Dickinson in 1935, coached seven Red Devil football teams through 1941. In his first year at Dickinson, his team defeated Gettysburg for the first time in a dozen years and it repeated that performance in 1936 and 1937, when it had an undefeated season. Kahler entered the Navy in the spring of 1942.

After the retirement of Professor Forrest E. Craver as coach of track a few years before the war, Kahler was made track coach in addition to his football chores. Upon his return to the College last winter he assumed direction of the intra-mural athletic program.

Professor Craver Retires After 46 Years' Service

ONE of Dickinson's greatest athletes and coaches, organizer and director for more than 40 years of College inter-collegiate and intra-mural athletics, and one of the memorable teachers of the College will end his connection with Dickinson when Professor Forrest E. Craver, '99, retires at the age of 70 at the end of the current term.

Intimately associated with Dickinson athletics for half a century, as an end on Dickinson football teams in the late '90s, as track coach until five years ago, and as director of intra-mural athletics, Professor Craver is known to almost every living Dickinsonian. He has held the rank of professor of physical education since 1920.

Born in 1875, Professor Craver prepared for college at Wyoming Seminary and the old Dickinson Preparatory School, and in 1895 entered the College he left for only two brief periods in the ensuing 51 years. He was graduated with Phi Beta Kappa honors in 1899. As an undergraduate he was a member of Phi Kappa Sigma and Union Philosophical Society.

After a year as teacher of Latin and Greek at Dickinson Seminary, Professor Craver returned to Carlisle as physical instructor in the College and teacher of Latin and Greek in the Preparatory School. In 1905 he left Conway Hall to become teacher of Latin in Montclair, N. J., High School, but returned to Dickinson in 1909 as physical director and adjunct professor of mathematics, a post which he held until 1917, when, because of declining college enrolment, he left Dickinson for the second time. For a year he was physical director in the Tome School, Port Deposit, Md., and another year was physical director in Friends School, Baltimore. He returned to Carlisle in 1919 and the following year was made professor of physical education.

During his many years at the College, at various times Professor Craver coached the football team, and he was track coach without interruption until 1941. In his early years at Dickinson he taught Latin and Greek, but more recently he taught freshman Greek and freshman mathematics.

The extensive intra-mural athletic program which aims to give every student an opportunity to participate in sports was organized in the early '30s, and for many years directed by Professor Craver. The Forrest E. Craver Trophy is awarded annually to the man who makes the most improvement physically during his college course.

Professor Craver was married in 1905 to Miss Margaret Moore, of Laurel, Del., and they had two children, Forrest, Jr., and Margaret, wife of Professor John C. M. Grimm, of the College faculty.

Becomes Headmaster at the Pennington School

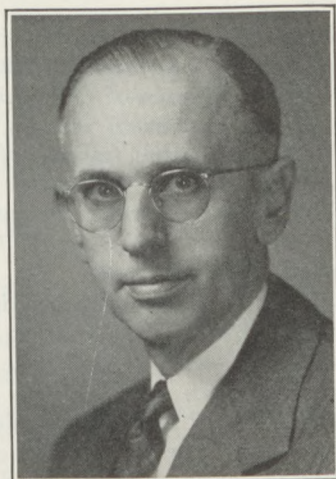

FOLLOWING in the steps of several other Dickinsonians, the Rev. J. Roland Crompton, D.D., '20, has been elected headmaster of the Pennington School, Pennington, N. J., and was installed on May 10. Bishop Fred P. Corson, '17, delivered the address on that occasion.

At the time of his election, Dr. Crompton was serving as superintendent of the Wilkes-Barre District in the Wyoming Conference of the Methodist Church. Dr. John P. Milligan, '26, dean of instruction of Jersey City State Teachers College, served as the representative of the College at the installation.

Born April 20, 1899, in Unadilla, N. Y., he is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Crompton. He graduated from Binghamton Central High School in 1916, and after spending 2 years at the College, transferred to Syracuse University from which he graduated and received the A.B. degree in 1921. In 1927 he received the B.D. degree upon his graduation from Drew Theological Seminary. Dickinson College conferred the honorary degree of doctor of divinity upon him at the 1944 commencement. He was admitted to the Wyoming Conference of the Methodist Church in 1920, and has served churches in Kirkwood, N. Y., Apalachin, N. Y., Scranton, Meshoppen, Kingston and West Pittston. He became a district superintendent in 1941.

A member of Theta Chi fraternity and the Torch Club, he is also a Mason and a former member of Rotary and Kiwanis.

On February 26, 1921, he married Miss Ruth Andrus of Binghamton, N. Y. They have three children, Richard Edgar, a junior in Syracuse University College of Medicine; Sgt. Wesley Rolland, who is with the Army in Germany; and Patricia Ruth, at home.

J. ROLLAND CROMPTON

Heads Church Synod

The Rev. Howard Schley Fox, '20, has been serving for the past three years as the president of the Synod of Mercersburg Evangelical Reformed Church with offices at Gettysburg.

He was appointed by the president of the Evangelical Reformed Church to the chairmanship of the special committee for placing the returning chaplains throughout the Church.

Recently Mercersburg Synod honored him by naming him to the Board of Visitors of the Theological Seminary at Lancaster. As a member of this board he was placed on the Committee of Curriculum. To this committee was given the task of setting up a graduate school of theology and a school for lay workers.

Becomes Librarian At Brown

In April Lydia M. Gooding, '10, went to Brown University, Providence, R. I., to be in charge of the Pembroke College Library. Since the summer of 1940 she had served as acting librarian of Mt. Holyoke College.

Appoint New Head of English Department

DR. ERIC W. BARNES, professor and chairman of the department of English at Russell Sage College, Troy, N. Y., has been appointed professor of English and head of the department at Dickinson College. He succeeds the late Professor Paul H. Doney, who died in 1941 and whose chair was not filled.

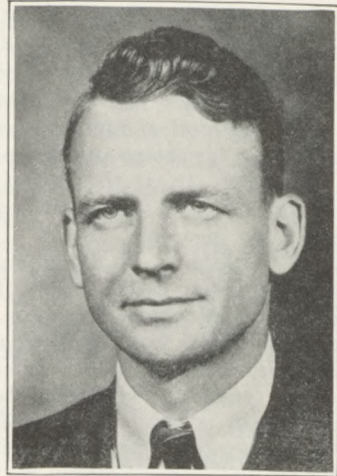

A teacher of varied experience and international education, Dr. Barnes will come to Carlisle at the end of the summer and begin his work at the opening of the fall term. He is married and has a small son.

Born in Little Rock, Ark., in 1907, Dr. Barnes was a student at the University of California in 1925-26 and then went abroad where he was graduated in 1930 from the Ecole des Sciences Politiques and in 1931 received the diplome d'Etudes superieures of the University of Paris. During three years in Paris he was an American teaching fellow at the Sorbonne.

Dr. Barnes entered the United States Foreign Service in 1930 and was assigned as vice-consul at Bucharest and then at Sofia, Bulgaria. In 1932 he returned to the University of Paris as an instructor and in the following year returned to the United States. For several years he was on the legitimate stage, appearing in numerous New York productions under the stage name of Eric Wollencott.

In 1938 Dr. Barnes was named an instructor in English at Russell Sage College. He became an assistant professor the following year, an associate professor and chairman of the department in 1940, and full professor in 1945. During the war, between 1942 and 1945 he was a civilian consultant to the Joint Chiefs of Staff. In 1940 he received the degree of doctor of letters from the University of Paris.

Receives Second D. S. M.

His first Oak Leaf Cluster, equivalent to a second D. S. M. award, was recently conferred on Lt. General Stanley D. Embick, '97.

The award was made to him for services from August, 1940, to September, 1945. For nearly three years he was senior Army member of the Joint Strategic Survey Committee, and was also chairman of the Joint Canada-United States Defense Commission, and president of the Inter-American Defense Board.

Two Law School Faculty Members Resign

TWO MEMBERS of the faculty of the Dickinson School of Law have resigned this spring to enter private practice.

Donald J. Farage, a member of the faculty for 12 years, will leave the Law School at the end of the current term to join a legal firm in Philadelphia. Last month F. Eugene Reader, on the faculty of the School of Law since 1932, announced his resignation to enter the private practice of law in Carlisle.

Professor Farage is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Law School. Before coming to Dickinson he was an assistant to the late Professor Francis H. Bohlen, authority on the law of torts. Recently he was the author of "Annotations of the Restatement of Restitution," published under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Bar Association.

Like Professor Farage, Professor Reader is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Law School. He is a member of the Cumberland County bar and during the war became chief counsel and executive vice-president of the Standard Piezo Company, manufacturers of radio crystals.

Professor Reader has made the study of administrative law a specialty and is the author of a number of articles on that subject. He served on a special committee of the State Bar Association to draft legislation on administrative tribunals and in that capacity drafted the original Register Act and assisted in drawing up the Pennsylvania administrative agency law.

Both Professor Reader and Professor Farage have been active in community as well as Law School affairs. Professor Farage directed the Carlisle Community Chest campaign of 1942 and the Cumberland County USO drive in the same year. He was president of the trustees of the Community Chest and is treasurer of the J. Herman Bosler Memorial Library in Carlisle.

Lieutenant Rogers Killed Over Holland

LIEUTENANT Allan Scott Rogers, '46, was gilled in action in a flight over Holland on July 29, 1944. Original reports had it that he was missing in action; subsequently he was listed as a prisoner of war; but on April 28, 1945, the War Department notified his parents that he had been killed.

Lieutenant Rogers was co-pilot of a B-17 Flying Fortress and was on his 14th mission when his plane suffered a direct hit and exploded. The plane was on its way to bomb a synthetic oil plant near Meresburg, Germany, and was shot down near Margarten, Holland. The War Department has received information that Lieutenant Rogers died in a German prison hospital on the day his plane was hit.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. H. Rogers, of Jenkintown, Lieutenant Rogers was a graduate of Abington High School and spent one year at Duke University before enrolling at Dickinson in 1942. While at College he enlisted in the Army Air Corps reserve, and was called to active duty in April, 1943. He was trained at Maxwell Field, Ala., and was commissioned in January, 1944, at Blytheville, Ark.

After final training at Avon Park, Fla., and Hunter Field, Ga., Lieutenant Rogers was sent overseas in June, 1944, joining the Eighth Air Force in England.

In addition to his parents Lieutenant Rogers is survived by three brothers, one of whom was a captain in the Army Dental Corps and another of whom is an infantry officer with the Eighth Army in Japan.

Lieutenant Rogers was a pledge of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

Missing, Lost in Action

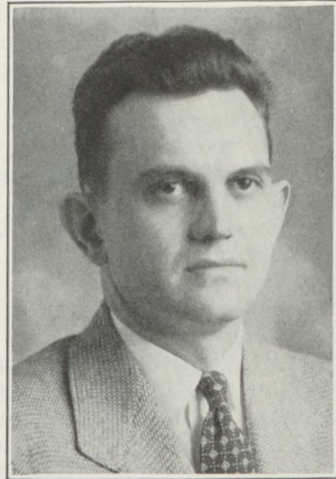

RAE G. DeMATTEIS

Lieutenant Rae Guy DeMatteis, '45, was reported missing in action on a bombing mission over Germany on March 22, 1945, and is presumed dead.

Part of the 15th Air Force in Italy, Lieutenant DeMatteis was on the 1500-mile flight from the Foggia air fields to Berlin when his plane was hit by flak over Ruhland, Germany. Forced to leave the squadron, the plane headed for the Russian lines, but was attacked by German fighter planes and the crew was forced to jump. The parachutes were seen to open; some of the crew landed safely; but no information has been received concerning DeMatteis.

Lieutenant DeMatteis was born in Altoona, on August 20, 1924, the son of the late Guy DeMatteis and Mrs. Mary Petregalo DeMatteis. He was graduated from Altoona High School and entered Dickinson College in 1941. He left College in December, 1942, to begin his training with the Army Air Corps.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by his brother Lieutenant Michael A. DeMatteis, '42, who is stationed in Washington with the United States Navy.

New Reference Librarian

JAMES W. PHILLIPS

James W. Phillips, of Farmersville, Tex., has been appointed reference librarian in the College library. He began his work on March 15.

A graduate of Southern Methodist University, in 1937, Mr. Phillips received his librarian's training in Columbia University, from which he was graduated in 1941 with the degree of bachelor of science in library science. In 1938 he was a graduate student at the University of Virginia.

For several months after his graduation from Columbia, Mr. Phillips was on the staff of the library at Southern Methodist University. He then entered the Army, where he was subsequently commissioned in the Medical Administrative Corps. At the time of his discharge last fall he was a captain in the Medical Administrative Corps, attached to the Army Air Forces at Cochrane Field, Ga.

In addition to his general work as reference librarian, Mr. Phillips is cataloguing the Dickinsonian collection of materials relating to the history of the College.

Lieutenant Hart Killed in Hawaii Plane Crash

LIEUTENANT John F. Hart, '38, USNR, who was previously reported missing in action on a flight from Oahu, T. H., was killed in the Pacific area in a plane crash on May 19, 1945, according to a final report of the Navy Department.

Lieutenant Hart, who won a 13-months' battle against death and disability after suffering third degree burns in a plane crash in North Africa, had returned to active duty in the spring of 1944, and was assigned to the Naval Air Bases at Pearl Harbor. In making a routine flight from Pearl Harbor on May 19, his plane crashed and he was killed.

Lieutenant Hart enlisted in the Naval Reserve in the spring of 1941, and was subsequently assigned to training as a naval aviation cadet. He was commissioned ensign on April 3, 1942, and served in the Caribbean, South America and the South Atlantic. His squadron arrived in Africa at the time of the North Africa invasion in November, 1942.

On April 11, 1943, while flying anti-submarine patrol with a PBY squadron from North Africa, his plane crashed and burned. After hospitalization in Morocco and the Boston Naval Hospital, he was sent to the Naval Air Hospital at St. Albans, N. Y., where surgeons and neurologists restored his limbs to usefulness. His hospitalization ended on May 6, 1944, and he was attached to the Naval Air Station at New York for further duty involving flying.

Lieutenant Hart was born in Syracuse, N. Y., on October 20, 1916. He entered Dickinson College in 1934, and was a member of Phi Kappa Sigma. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Hart, of 403 Oak St., Syracuse.

Young Henry Harman Tells Father of College Days

A LETTER Professor Henry M. Harman wrote his father when he was a sophomore in the College just 100 years ago has recently been presented to the Dickinsoniana collection by Rev. Dr. Richard N. Edwards, '97, of Baltimore, Md. Professor Harman retired from the faculty as professor of Greek and Hebrew just 50 years ago this spring, and Dr. Edwards was a member of one of his last classes.

The letter informs the elder Harman of his son's health and academic progress. Young Henry had just passed through the College examination period, in which, so he had been told, he had led his class in Greek. Apparently the boy spent some of his time poring over books in the library; at least he had found a Koran and a book "nearly three hundred years old." And his interest in science is suggested by his having looked at the planets through the College telescope, then on South College, and his request that his father mail him his compass and scales.

The two sons of Governor Shunk to whom Harman referred were Caspar and William Findley Shunk, both of the class of 1847. Neither received his diploma from the College.

The text of the letter is as follows:

Dickinson College Jan. 3, 1846

Dear father—

I wrote a letter to you, nearly two months ago, but I have received no answer to it yet. I have been waiting to receive a letter from you, before I would write to you again. I am in tolerably good health, thanks be to God, and I am endeavoring to glorify God in my body and spirit, which are his.

The examination of all the classes in college took place about two weeks ago, and I passed my examination as well as I could expect. One of the Professors told me that I passed the best examination of any in my class in Greek. I overtook the class in Algebra, though they had about six weeks start of me. I am now in the second class in college, which is the Sophomore.

We have had a little more than a week's vacation. College commenced yesterday. I have a great deal of hard studying, which I might have got rid of, by remaining in the other class. There are about a hundred and fifty Students in the college and Grammar School, among whom are two sons of Francis Shunk, Governor of Pennsylvania. There are a great many books in the libraries. The college library contains a great many old and Scarce books. I noticed one nearly three hundred years old. Among them is the Koran of Mahomet, The works of Hume, Bolingbroke &c.

You recollect a piece in the Academical Reader entitled "La Roche." The philosopher who accompanied him is thought by some to be Hume; and indeed I think it could have been no other, from the circumstances connected with it. It is stated in Hume that some disappointment having befallen him in England, he went to France in 1734. The piece in the academical reader was written in 1778 and says that this circumstance took place more than forty years ago &c. There are a great many philosophical apparatuses here. I have seen Saturn's ring, and Jupiter's Satellites through a telescope.

I now send you a catalogue of the College for the present year. I wish you would Send me my compass and Scales, as I shall want them. You can wrap them up in a small piece of paper and send them by mail.

please write to me and let me know how you all are.

your affectionate Son

H. M. HARMAN

P.S. There is still snow on the ground here.

Harrisburg Club Meets

Sol Hurwitz, '26, '28L, Harrisburg attorney, was elected president of the Dickinson Club of Harrisburg on May 2, when more than a hundred persons attended the annual dinner in the Civic Club.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Martha Stull Gorman, '40, and William C. Fry, '28, vice-presidents; Dr. Charles William Smith, '33, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Margaret Brinham Trace, '38, and Robert M. Sigler, '38, members of the executive committee.

Rev. Spencer B. Smith, '34, retiring president, presided at the dinner and meeting which followed. Dean Walter H. Hitchler, of the Law School, Gilbert Malcolm, '15, executive and alumni secretary of the College, and Professor Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., '35, spoke to the group. Other speakers included Paul L. Hutchison, '18, '23L, president of the General Alumni Association, who presented briefly the program for Alumni Day in June, and Robert W. Crist, '23, and Morris E. Swartz, '23, who presented arguments for and against the establishment of a college commons. Howard Gale, '36, led the group singing.

Alumni Meet in New York

A combined meeting of the Dickinson Club of New York and the Dickinson Club of Northern New Jersey was held in a dinner at the Midston House on Friday evening, May 3, with about 100 alumni present.

After an informal speech, telling of his experiences during 3½ years as a Japanese prisoner, by former Lieut. Commander Donald E. Austin, '38, there were addresses by Paul L. Hutchison, '18, president of the General Alumni Association, and Gilbert Malcolm, '15, of the College.

During the first part of the dinner Mervin G. Eppley, '17, president of the New York Club, acted as toastmaster, and later the Rev. Everett F. Hallock, '30, filled the role.

During joint business sessions, the officers of the Northern New Jersey Club were re-elected. They are Rev. E. F. Hallock, '30, president; Dr. John P. Milligan, '26, vice-president; and Roy D. Tolliver, '31, secretary-treasurer.

Mervin G. Eppley, was re-elected president of the New York Club, and Dr. Irving A. Marsland, '14, vice-president, while Henry Logan, '10, was elected secretary-treasurer. Those named to the executive committee were J. Cameron Frenlich, '13, Paul R. Walker, '21, and Clayton G. Going, '37.

The officers plan to return to the former procedure of holding separate meetings, with the New York Club meeting in December, and the New Jersey Club, in late April or May.

The Rev. Arthur C. Flandreau, '03, offered the invocation, while Dr. John M. Pearson, '18, pronounced the benediction.

Elected School Head

Dr. Hobart M. Corning, '11, superintendent of public schools in Omaha, Neb., since 1940, was elected superintendent of schools in the District of Columbia, and began his work on March 1.

A native of Elyria, O., he attended the public schools of Washington, D. C., and entered Dickinson College in 1907. He was graduated in 1911, and subsequently received a master's degree from Columbia University and the honorary degree of doctor of education from Colorado College.

He is a life member of the National Education Association, a former president of the Colorado Education Association, and is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and a 32nd degree Mason.

President Frowns on Faculty Dancing, 1830

HOW dark and pinched a place Dickinson College was in the last days of the Presbyterian control before 1832 is revealed in a letter which young Professor Henry D. Rogers wrote to a brother, explaining his experience with the narrow-minded president, Dr. Samuel B. How, who reprobated his dancing.

Readers of the College history come away with a feeling that Dickinson in the first half century of its existence was really not a warm and pleasant place. While Dr. Nisbet lived, the College was at least occasionally brightened by his wit, caustic and ungentle though it was; but after the death of the first president in 1804, matters worsened rapidly. The College entered a kind of dark age in which prejudice succeeded principle and rules became restrictions.

Students were disorderly and their lawlessness and the restraints placed upon them increased in step. In 1830 Dickinson students were covered by a set of rules which forbade them to leave Carlisle, to enter any eating house in town, or even to "go into the town" at night without permission. And by a vote of 17 to 2 the Board of Trustees, which meddled outrageously in the discipline of the College, had forbidden students to attend theaters, balls, or dancing classes.

What was sauce for the goose was sauce for the gander, however; and at least one member of the faculty found himself criticized severely for doing one of the very things the students were not permitted to do. He danced!

Henry D. Rogers was not yet 22 years of age when he came to Carlisle in the first days of 1830 to teach chemistry in the laboring institution. He had not been at Dickinson six weeks when, at a private party attended by several of the local trustees, young Rogers accepted an invitation to dance and did so, to the great scandal of the Presbyterian priesthood, as he called them, who ruled the College.

His experience and his reactions are detailed in a letter he wrote his brother

James. This letter is printed in full in a sketch of James B. Rogers by the late Provost Edgar Fahs Smith, which appeared in a late number of the Journal of Chemical Education. It is reprinted by permission of the editor of the Journal.

The text of the letter is as follows:

"I did not discern until recently how prostrate must be the independence of all who take their hire of a nefarious priesthood. But now I find full amply that the tenure of my station must be a deep hypocrisy and an oppressive and ignominious servitude. Some evenings since, I attended a pleasant party at which the choicest society of the place was present. To gratify the company, the host produced his violin, and all united in a dance. Now I, poor devil, knew no reason why I should not with the rest taste the gaiety of the evening, nor could I apprehend that any should scruple at my conduct. In deference therefore to the mistress of the house, I danced, and saw in the same cotillion two of the Trustees of our College. But, behold, in due time I was notified through a private interview with one of our priestly rulers how greatly I acted amiss, and was made abruptly to know how little my greatest services might avail me to retain my place should I disavow the requisitions of their church, or fail in my conduct and expressions to cooperate in rendering the College a school of religious discipline. Now this was gross tyranny and insult, and my soul burned to defy it. Then was it that I felt the lofty spirit of my father in me, and answered that, if such must be the fetters I must wear, then Dickinson and I must part; but I afterwards softened my expressions and all was appeased between us. Since, I have held myself mute and continue cautious. I think I have fair expectations of re-election in the spring, but certainly I should forfeit all chance of such an issue were I not now to bow low to dictation."

Rogers swallowed his anger this time, but he was not satisfied with conditions at the College. In 1831 he resigned, leaving the College for European study and then a brilliant career as a geologist at the University of Pennsylvania and at the University of Virginia.

Hold Dinner at Williamsport

With 50 present the first alumni gathering of the year was held at Williamsport, on April 2, when the Dickinson Club of West Branch Valley held its annual dinner in the Swan Restaurant.

Judge Charles Scott Williams, '26, '28L, retiring president, acted as toastmaster. The Rev. Charles F. Berkheimer, '18, offered the invocation, and the Rev. F. P. Davis, '32, Episcopalian rector, made the closing prayer.

Clyde E. Carpenter, '26, '28L, introduced Dean W. H. Hitchler of the Law School. Gilbert Malcolm, '15, was the other speaker.

Lee M. Bowes, '29, of Jersey Shore, was elected president; Dr. William D. Angle '30, vice-president, and Nancy Jane Person, '45, secretary-treasurer.

Among others in attendance were: J. Milnor Dorey, '00, teacher in the Williamsport High School; Harry M. Showalter, '04, of Lewisburg; Dr. John W. Long, '07, president of Dickinson Seminary; J. Milton Skeath, '21, who had just been named dean of Dickinson Junior College; and the Rev. Elvin Clay Myers, '24, who will receive the honorary degree of doctor of divinity at the coming commencement.

Named College Dean

Dr. Alvn B. Biscoe, '27, who received a leave of absence from Bucknell University in 1942 to serve with the War Labor Board in Washington, became dean of the College of Business Administration of the University of Georgia, Athens, Ga., on July 1, 1945.

When Dean Biscoe left Bucknell, where he was a professor of economics and business administration, he was named an administrative mediation officer. A few months later he was transferred to Atlanta, Ga., as wage stabilization director for the eight southeastern states of the Union. Subsequently he became vice-chairman and public member of the Regional War Labor Board.

Dr. Biscoe resigned as public member of the Board last June to accept the deanship of the College of Business Administration, but continued as a part-time public member until the Board was discontinued at the year's end.

The College of Business Administration is expected to have an enrolment of 1100 in September, when it will be the second largest of the nine colleges of the University of Georgia.

West College Halls Renovated

Alumni returning for Commencement will find that the restoration of West College begun some years ago has been extended to the second and third floor hallways.

This spring carpenters, plasterers, and painters fell to work and remodelled the upper hallways of the building after the pattern of the main floor and basement. Archways were constructed, false doors were closed, and the old pine flooring was covered with linoleum.

It is expected that these halls, like the first floor hallway, will be hung with pictures of professors, alumni, and benefactors of the College, thus forming counterparts of the Presidents' Gallery.

To Alternate Dinners

A plan to alternate the annual dinners of the Dickinson Club of Northeastern Pennsylvania between Wilkes-Barre and Scranton was adopted at a dinner meeting held in the Irem Temple Country Club, Wilkes-Barre, on May 9, when 60 alumni were present.

The suggestion which was adopted provided for the 1947 dinner meeting to be held in May somewhere in Scranton, with an effort to double the attendance of these annual affairs.

Judge John S. Fine, '14L, was re-elected president, while R. Wallace White, '29, '31L, of Scranton was elected vice-president. Hopkin T. Rowlands, '31L, was reelected secretary, and Edward E. Johnson, Jr., '32, was elected treasurer.

Judge Fine presided through the business session, and then introduced Judge J. Harold Flannery, '20L, who performed as a capable toastmaster. The speakers were Dan S. Reese, '99L, Gilbert Malcolm, Dean W. H. Hitchler, and W. Gomer Morgan, '11L.

Accepts China UNRRA Post

Robert A. Waidner, '32, Baltimore attorney and until recently a lieutenant-colonel in the Army Air Forces on the staff of General Chennault, sailed from San Diego on March 22 for China, where he is executive officer for the China Program of the United National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Mr. Waidner, who was graduated from the University of Maryland Law School in 1936, entered the Army in 1942. He served more than a year in China with the Army Air Forces.

UNRRA is sending not only food but also medical supplies, seeds, fertilizers, machine parts, clothing, and raw cotton to China. With the supplies go a large number of welfare and medical experts, transportation specialists, and engineers to assist in the rehabilitation of the country. Sailing with Waidner for Shanghai were 69 other American specialists.

"That Dickinsonian Influence"

In April the Cape May County Gazette of Cape May Court House, N. J., under the heading, "That Dickinsonian Influence Again!" published the following article:

The Dickinsonian era has returned to the county prosecutor's office.

Harry Tenenbaum is the third alumnus of the Dickinson Law School, Carlisle, Pa., to serve as prosecutor here in recent years.

T. Millet Hand, now congressman, who served as prosecutor 17 years ago, was graduated in the same class with Prosecutor Tenenbaum, in 1922. French B. Loveland, retiring judge, who succeeded Mr. Hand as prosecutor, received his law degree at Dickinson in 1923.

Judge A. J. Cafiero, who resigned as prosecutor to accept the judgeship, is a graduate of the New Jersey Law School, Newark.

Becomes Graduate Assistant

John J. Ketterer, '43, has been appointed graduate assistant in the department of biology and began his work on May 1. He was discharged from the Naval Reserve in April and expects to continue graduate work in biology in the fall.

A native of Philadelphia, Mr. Ketterer attended Northeast High School in that city, and entered Dickinson in 1939. As an undergraduate he was president of the local chapter of Kappa Sigma, president of the Student Senate, and Vice-president of his class.

Upon graduation in 1943 Mr. Ketterer was called to active service in the Naval Reserve, attended Midshipmen's School, and was commissioned an ensign. He spent most of his three years' service in the Pacific, returning to the United States last winter. He was discharged as a lieutenant, junior grade.

EDITORIAL

June 7-9

FIVE THOUSAND alumni scattered across the world from Bikini to Boiling Springs are beginning to think of the 1946 Commencement. And well they may! For this year's Commencement week-end promises to be the biggest and the best ever held in Carlisle. For five years there has been no commencement not overshadowed by war; since 1941 there has not been an Alumni Day normal in spirit and in attendance. But this year promises—even threatens—to make up for all those lost reunions.

Even before the war had ended letters began coming into the alumni office from soldiers in Italy and Newfoundland and the far reaches of the Pacific. Those men promised themselves the best of all possible reunions in Carlisle the first June after the peace. Older alumni at home, busy with war jobs, kept close by travel restrictions, echoed their sentiments. And now that long-awaited commencement June is here. If Dickinsonians do what they have promised, the walls of the campus will bulge with a record-breaking crowd.

Dickinsonians never need an invitation, rarely even an excuse, hardly more than an occasion, to visit the old College. They will need none of these things to draw them back this June 7-9. Everything they look for will be here—the quiet summer town, the friendliness, the Mermaid, and, most important of all, more of their classmates and fellow-Dickinsonians than anyone has ever seen collected together in one place before.

The Teacher And His Boss

EARLY this month a number of members of the College faculty, who have held their appointments at least 15 years, attended a "faithful service" dinner tendered by the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce and local employers to their older workers. Altogether the banquet was an impressive testimony to the friendliness and mutual respect and trust of many employer-employee relations in Carlisle. By inviting the College administration to participate in this celebration with its employees, the Chamber of Commerce graciously recognized the undeniable fact that we are all of us workers, whether we push a wheelbarrow, conduct an orchestra, or cure a horse of colic.

But as the professors of history and physics and languages sat down to their dinner, the question came irresistibly—is a college an employer and are professors employees in the usual sense of the term? Is education a business and the liberal arts a stock in trade? Shall we then speak of endowment as capital; of laboratories, classrooms, and libraries as plant; of tuition fees and alumni fund as income; of students as customers, instructors as labor, and the administrators as bosses? Obviously not! Merely to speak in business analogies is to show the absurdity and shallowness of thinking of a college in any of the terms appropriate to a factory or mill.

For these terms fail entirely to recognize what it is that makes a college—the spiritual element which no money can buy but without which no instructor is worthy of his hire. Those teachers who possess this quality—and every teacher worthy of his name does possess it—make the college what at best it is—an association of the mind, a community of intellect and scholarship. In short, the teachers are the college.

Thus they have no business with congratulations for "faithful service." They have only done what, as teachers, they had to do. They serve no institution, as a mill hand serves his boss; they serve no employer, but only their students and the truth. There is thus a timelessness about a teacher's work so awful, when well done, that none of earth dare say, in the patronizing manner of accountants, "Thou good and faithful servant;" but only, as the humble and the grateful do, "From him I learned to seek the truth."

"Cap" Craver Takes Time Out

HAVING passed his seventieth birthday last September, Professor Forrest E. Craver has tendered his resignation as head of the department of physical education and teacher of mathematics and Greek to become effective at the close of the present academic year in June.

Since his graduation with Phi Beta Kappa honors in 1899, Professor Craver has taught at Dickinson or elsewhere for nearly half a century. If his attendance record could be compared with others of his vintage, it is claimed that it would likely be found that he would be the leader. Blessed with a fine body and always in training, sickness practically never laid him low. Filled with a sense of duty, he sought no excuses to be absent from his post. Few, if any, teachers come to their retirement with no cuts for absences as he will do.

While he taught many in the classroom, his colleagues hail him as one of Dickinson's greatest athletes on the gridiron, track and gymnasium floor. Others call him one of the best football coaches in Dickinson's history. The record stands that he coached the 1917 eleven through an undefeated season. There are Dickinson gridiron coaches who will testify that "Cap" Craver's scouting of opponents evolved their strategy and resulted in many of their victories. Without debate, he can be named as Dickinson's best track coach and indeed in his hey-dey as one of the leading track mentors of the country.

"Cap" Craver is taking time out. But he won't be on the bench long. He planted a big garden near town, and it's Spring.

R. I. P. Freshman Math.

THE MERMAID dropped her tail a few degrees the other night. She still flies bravely nowhere at her post atop West College, but her heart isn't in it and she's hollow where her stomach ought to be. For a century and a half she has watched presidents come and go—and sometimes only go! she has heard everything, told nothing, and given the best advice; she has been a symbol of certainty in a restless world. She has stayed. She was there. And so was freshman math.

War, panic, and depression—Presbyterians, deists, Methodists—Morgan, Durbin, and Fitzhugh Lee's Confederate shells have all left their mark upon the College. But freshman math. was immune to the touch of all, even time.

Now that is all gone. The faculty have decreed that freshman math. is no longer a required course. If students want to permutate, prove the binomial theorem, and calculate how wide the river is when a pole casts a shadow of 173.9, they can. But the faculty won't push them into it.

Tempora mutantur. It is a scientific age—but who needs the language of science with Time and the Reader's Digest to put atoms and budgets in simple prose? It is an age of economics—but counting might dampen fiscal enthusiasms! 'Tis a kaleidoscopic age—why deal with what is timeless? And besides most of them can't pass freshman math, anyway!

Life Membership Roster Passes 600 Mark

AS predicted in the last number of the DICKINSON ALUMNUS, the roll of Life members in the General Alumni Association has passed the 600 mark and in this number 604 names are published.

John H. McAdoo, '39, then in Abilene, Texas, became the 600th Lifer when his check arrived on April 3. He was one of the twenty new subscribers since the publication of the last issue of the magazine.

After holding the lead for the largest number of Lifers for a number of years, the Class of 1902 must bow to the Class of 1939. With a gain of 10 Lifers in the past year, the Class of 1939 has raised its total to 20, which is also the number in the Class of 1902. Even in this slot, 1902 finds itself in a tie with the Class of 1943, which added 5 new Lifers in the year. There is also a tie for the next place, with the Classes of 1917 and 1942 having 18 each.

The last number of the magazine should have reported that Germaine L. Klaus, '32, had become a Lifer, but her name was inadvertently omitted.

Four former coeds became Lifers on the first day of the new series. One subscription came from Mrs. Romaine S. Wert, '12, who lives in Carlisle. The other three are all the daughters of Professor and Mrs. M. W. Eddy. They are Mrs. Fred V. McDonnell, '35, Miss Frances D. Eddy, '37, and Mrs. Clifford P. Graham, Jr., '43.

The first subscription in March came from Francis H. S. Ede, '17, '20L, attorney or Penn Argyl and Stroudsburg, Pa.

The following day Benjamin D. James, '34, member of the College faculty, became a Lifer.

Dr. Robert P. Banks, '17, physician of Miiffintown, was the next subscriber. In his letter he reported that his son, Robert, Jr., was then in Manila, and had been promoted to the grade of T/5 in the Army, but hoped soon to return to the College as a student.

On the same day 3 subscriptions were received. One came from Mrs. Anne Hoyer Rupp, '26, of Steelton, wife of Judge J. Paul Rupp of the Dauphin County Courts. The second was from Ruth M. Youngblud, '37, who has returned to her home in Spring City, Pa. The third was the subscription of Alvin G. Blumberg, '39, and was mailed shortly after his return from duty overseas.

Shortly after he opened his office for the practice of medicine at 136 W. Louthier St., Carlisle, Dr. Luther M. Whitcomb, '34, became a Lifer in March.

Soon after his discharge from the Army, Robert M. McWhinney, '41, visited the College in March and became a Lifer.

Two subscriptions came the same day when one was received from Miss Elizabeth Hess, '34, of Atlantic City, N. J., and the other, from Robert H. Carter, '39, of Suffern, N. Y.

On the last day of March, a $40 check was received from J. David Weidenhafer, '18, of Newton, N. J.

At the dinner of the Dickinson Club of Delaware on April 5 Abel Klaw, '20L, attorney of Wilmington, wrote his $40 check for life membership.

On April 23 Ellen B. Morrow, '45, of Philadelphia, sent in her $40 check to become a Lifer.

Dr. Frank Porter Flegal, '03, executive secretary of Goodwill Industries of Oakland, Calif., was the next new subscriber.

Bernard Ikeler, '42, of Millville, Pa., became the 604th on May 1.

Life membership costs $40, and may be paid in full or in installments of $10 or $20. Subscriptions should be sent to the DICKINSON ALUMNUS, West College, Carlisle, Pa. Payment on life membership ends the payment of annual dues, and carries with it a life subscription to the DICKINSON ALUMNUS. A subscription to life membership is not an Alumni Fund contribution.
