Continues College On Accredited List

THAT "the College is doing its work well" is the conclusion reached by a committee of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools which made a three-day inspection of Dickinson in March. Their report has recently been submitted to College officers.

In a penetrating analysis of the organization and operation of the College, both academic and financial, the Committee's report singles out what in its judgment are the essential facts about the College and, in some instances, offers suggestions of improvement and change.

The Middle States Association is the voluntary organization of the colleges and secondary schools, both public and private, of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia, to establish and maintain sound academic standards. Accreditation by this group means that the graduates of the college may enter other institutions and proceed to graduate schools without special examination or other disability. Dickinson had been accredited since the founding of the Association. The College had never been inspected, however, because Dickinson was one of the colleges which formed the Association in the first place.

Two years ago the Association adopted a new policy and announced that each member institution will be inspected once every twelve years. The advantages of inspection by an independent group are obvious. President William W. Edel, when this resolution was adopted, immediately invited the Association to visit Dickinson this year. The inspection committee was composed of Dr. Paul D. Shafer, president of Packer Collegiate Institute, who served as chairman; Father William G. Ryan, president of Seton Hill

College; Dr. Seymour Dunn, dean of Hobart College; Mr. D. L. Helfferich, vice-president of Ursinus College; and Professor Alice Jackson, librarian of Manhattanville College.

During the academic year 1947-48 Dickinson College undertook a year-long re-appraisal of itself. Every member of the faculty and many students served on committees which examined practically every aspect of the College from the selection of its faculty and students to the adequacy of fire drills in Conway Hall. This re-appraisal, which was desirable in any case, proved a valuable preparation for the visitation of the Middle States committee. In consequence, there was hardly a suggestion of the inspection committee that had not been considered by the Dickinson authorities, and in some cases plans of improvement were actually being formulated while the inspection committee was drawing up its report.

The Committee operated swiftly and efficiently. Each of the five members had his special tasks, and the group met regularly three times a day to assess their data and plan their next interviews. They talked to college officers and faculty members; they visited class rooms; they inspected records of all kinds; they pored over college publications; they talked to students, individually and in groups. One man visited a fraternity house for dinner; all went to chapel. They sliced through the College in a dozen directions to get cross-bearings on problems they were interested in. If they missed anything of importance, the College officers do not know what it is!

Several points stand out in the report of the Committee. In the first place, they were favorably impressed by the "fluidity" they noted in the College program,

"especially as it is accompanied by alertness and frank self-criticism in most of the faculty and administrative officers interviewed." Again the Committee expressed itself as "impressed by the forward direction of the administration."

In the second place, the Committee referred frequently to the democratic spirit which prevails in the administration, the faculty, and the student body, within themselves and in their relations with one another. They approved the increasing use in the last two years of faculty committees to formulate college policy and the introduction of students into committees which are interested in student affairs. "Democratic procedure in the faculty," the Committee pointed out, "allows for a good deal of exchange of ideas, and relations between faculty and students seem easy and friendly." As to the president's office, "there seems to be no excessive centralization of authority" there, a condition the Committee approved.

In the third place, the Committee expressed the belief that the curriculum of the College "constitutes a well organized liberal arts program." Of certain lacks in the program, the Committee pointed out, the faculty has long been aware.

In the fourth place, the Committee considered the teaching staff "adequate, both in numbers and in professional competency." Faculty members are appointed "on the basis of definite, though not formally stated, standards, and a survey of the faculty lists indicates that this policy has been followed insofar as post-war conditions have permitted." Faculty recruitment seemed "careful." Permanency of tenure, a subject important to quality of instruction, the Committee found, is given only to full professors; "in practice, however, assistant and associate professors who have been with the institution more than seven years have in effect enjoyed tenure."

Finally, the Committee spoke in high terms of the careful management of the College's finances and of the good house-keeping apparent in most of the buildings and on the campus generally. "The physical facilities of the College are good, and in some cases very superior," the Committee declared; and it approved the plans for the expansion of the physical plant which are part of the Ten Year Development Program.

Commenting on the stated purpose of the College to provide a liberal arts education generally, mastery of written and spoken English, and the development of an ethical character and knowledge and appreciation of religion, the Committee pointed out that formal work in oral English is largely confined to a two-hour semester elective course; that the work in art and music ought to be increased; and that the work in religion tends to emphasize the merely rational aspects of religious life. More work in systematic philosophy was suggested as probably desirable.

Pointing out a problem that Dickinson teachers have often considered, the Committee suggested the necessity of providing for the best students in the College through a program of honors work which would attract most of the best students and give them an opportunity to do a good deal of independent work in their major fields. The present honors program has failed to attract many of the better student because its requirements are essentially for more work rather than a superior grade of work.

The Committee devoted a good deal of its investigation and report to the matter of student personnel. This is the work of the Dean of the College, the Dean of Men, and the Director of Admissions. Each of these officers is completing his second year in his post and delineations of authority are not yet clear. "The committee was impressed by the competence of the personnel and the extent to which they have the confidence of the students." "The college prides itself," the report continued, "on the fact that students at all times have direct access to the President, the two Deans, and the class deans."

But the Committee recognized that the increased size of the College has created problems which, in its judgment, some existing administrative procedures cannot efficiently handle. This is especially true of the class deans, who, the Committee pointed out, must provide academic guidance for 200-250 students and teach several courses as well. The Committee made several specific proposals to abandon the class dean system and substitute a guidance program in which the work will be spread more evenly over more of the faculty in the freshman and sophomore years and in which guidance of upper classmen will rest with the departments.

The library of the College was highly praised, first because its staff is well trained, second because it comprehends its role in the College, and thirdly because of the happy liaison which exists between the library and its staff and the faculty and administration of the College, which is the achievement of all parties. The Committee's report pointed out that although the Dickinson library, with 81,000 volumes, has more books than the minimum figure set by the American Library Association standards, certain subject fields are less well represented than others. The annual budget appropriation for the library, the report states, falls several thousand dollars short of the standard for colleges of Dickinson's enrolment fixed by the American Library Association. Several problems of library administration, the Committee indicated, are the inevitable consequence of the architecture and room arrangement of Bosler Hall; these problems should be solved as soon as the library can make use of the present chapel room, when the Ten Year Development Program is completed.

Financial Campaign Passes Halfway Mark

THE approaching end of the first year of the $750,000 drive to implement the initial phase of the Ten-Year Development Program finds the total within sight of the $400,000 mark and all aspects of the appeal moving ahead satisfactorily. The special gifts drives which opened the campaign early last summer and the intensive alumni appeals launched since then continue to receive simultaneous emphasis.

Upwards of 300 alumni and friends of the College are actively assisting as solicitors, and John F. Bacon, '38, director of the Development Program, reports that they have expressed appreciation of this opportunity to have a hand in helping make Dickinson the best possible small college, the objective of the Program.

The "175 Club" whose members have subscribed one or more shares at $175 apiece continues to grow. Names will be published in the next issue of The Bronze Tablet.

The areas of Trenton, Newark, Northern New Jersey, New York and Wilmington are now being organized for intensive drives on a schedule calling for completion of the work in these places by the end of June. It is expected that drives covering Washington, Baltimore, Easton, Allentown, Reading, Bethlehem and Chicago will be completed by the end of the current month. Harrisburg, York and Chambersburg, areas organized after the first of the year, have finished successful solicitations.

Areas not yet touched will be organized after the summer. Among these will be Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Altoona, Wilkes-Barre and Scranton.

Although the intensive general drives have brought satisfactory results to date, it is known that only about 30 per cent of the total will come from this aspect of the appeal. The universal experience in such efforts as the College is now engaged is that 70 per cent of the total raised comes from 10 per cent of the contributors. This experience underscores the need for continued emphasis on special gifts until all prospects have had opportunity to subscribe.

President Edel Making Survey Tour of Israel

PRESIDENT EDEL WITH BRIEFCASE IN HAND TURNS OVER ADMINISTRATION OF THE COLLEGE TO VICE PRESIDENT GILBERT MALCOLM AS THEY EXCHANGE FAREWELLS ON THE PRESIDENT'S DEPARTURE FOR ISRAEL. GEORGE SHUMAN, JR., TREASURER OF THE COLLEGE, LOOKS ON. THE PHOTO WAS MADE AT THE EAST ENTRANCE TO THE BASEMENT OF OLD WEST.

PRESIDENT William W. Edel left New York on April 20 for Israel as member of a group of 15 American educators, editors, businessmen and ministers chosen by the American Christian Palestine Committee to make a study tour of Israel and neighboring areas. His schedule calls for him to return to the campus about May 20.

He sailed from New York on the Queen Mary. From London the party flew to Paris and thence to Rome, stopping briefly at both capitals, before going on by plane to Tel Aviv. Fifteen days, May 1 to 15, were to be spent in Israel and vicinity for a study of conditions there, particularly the relations of the Israeli government with its minorities and the surrounding Arab nations. Members were free to confer with government officials, tour new settlements and to make their own appraisal of Israel's economic, social and political needs and problems.

In February President Edel was in Chicago to address leaders of Reform Jewish congregations in the Great Lakes region at a conference of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, which sponsors the Jewish Chautauqua Society whose speakers have visited the campus on a number of occasions through the years. In March he and Dr. Arthur M. Prinz, economist and member of the faculty, participated in a three-day meeting on international relations studies held at Princeton under sponsorship of the University's Woodrow Wilson School and the Brookings Institute, Washington, D. C., in cooperation with the U. S. Department of State.

The American Christian Palestine Committee, which has headquarters at 41 East 42nd Street, New York, announced that it had requested President Edel to make the trip to Israel because of his long interest in interfaith affairs and his practical knowledge gained by world travel in 30 years of Navy service. At a dinner for the tour group in New York on the eve of sailing, Dr. Carl Hermann Voss, chairman of the Committee's executive council, urged the members to bring back truths that would dispel "misinformation and untruths about Israel." He told them to go with open minds and with no preconceived notions or pre-established conclusions.

"We ask you to return with only one requirement fulfilled: come with facts and established truths," said Dr. Voss. "Too often is Israel inaccurately and inadequately interpreted, too often is she unjustly accused and unfairly described to the public. By your reports you can right the balance."

Newspaper dispatches from Rome stated that 11 members of the tour group had been received in special audience by Pope Pius during the group's brief stay in Rome but it was not known on the campus whether President Edel was in the audience. It is believed that he arrived in Tel Aviv in time to witness the celebrations of the first anniversary of the establishment of Israel as a republic.

Among persons on the tour with President Edel are: Mayor Stanley W. Church of New Rochelle, N. Y.; Marshall N. Dana, editor of the Oregon Journal, Portland; Mrs. Louise S. Freese, columnist on the Sioux City (Iowa) Journal-Tribune; Judge George E. Holt of Florida's 11th Judicial Circuit; Spencer D. Irwin, associate editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer; Dean Thomas Clark Pollock of New York University; the Rev. Reuben K. Youngdahl, pastor of Mount Olivet Lutheran Church, Minneapolis; the Rev. Harvey W. Hollis, executive secretary of the Albany, N. Y., Council of Churches; the Rev. Dr. John Paul Jones, pastor of the Union Church of Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Dr. Carl Baehr, executive secretary of the American Christian Palestine Committee.

The expenses of the tour were underwritten by local affiliates of the Committee, co-chairmen of which are U. S. Senators Owen Brewster and James M. Mead and Dr. Daniel A. Poling. Helen Gahagan Douglas, the Congresswoman, is the secretary. Sumner Welles and Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg are among the vice chairmen. The executive council includes Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, the noted theologian, and Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, Congressman Daniel J. Flood, 1927L, is on the advisory council.

To Teach at Southern Illinois

Dr. Walter B. Carver, '99, until his retirement a member of the faculty of Cornell University, has accepted an appointment to the summer faculty of the mathematics department at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill.

Dr. Carver has served as president of the Mathematics Association of America, and has been secretary-treasurer since 1943. From 1932 to 1936, he was editor-in-chief of the American Mathematics Monthly and he is one of the authors of Formulas and Tables for Engineers, published in 1914.

To Represent College

The Reverend Bishop Robert Nelson Spencer, '03, Episcopal Bishop of West Missouri, will serve as the delegate of Dickinson College and representative of President William W. Edel at the centennial commencement of William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo., on May 23 and 24. A few years ago, he served as the delegate of the College at the installation of President Binns, of William Jewell College.

Special Convocation Marks Founders Day

REVELLE W. BROWN

JOHN WESLEY LORD

FOUNDERS Day was observed at the College on May 5 with a special convocation at which four honorary degrees were conferred and an address was delivered by Thomas Creigh, of Highland Park, Ill., a corporation lawyer with offices in Chicago, who is descended from one of the early trustees of the College. Bosler Hall was filled with students, members of the faculty and many guests. Boyd Lee Spahr, '00, president of the board of trustees, presided.

Bishop John Wesley Lord, '27, resident head of the Boston Area, Methodist Church, received the degree of doctor of laws. This degree also was conferred by Vice-President Gilbert Malcolm on Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, special economic advisor to Paul Hoffman, director of the Economic Cooperation Administration, and on Revelle W. Brown, Philadelphia, president of the Reading Company. Samuel B. Schofield, dean of Western Maryland College and professor of chemistry there, received the degree of doctor of science.

It was the first visit to the campus by Bishop Lord since his election to the Methodist episcopacy last June, one of the youngest clergymen ever to reach that office. The College gave him the degree of doctor of divinity six years ago.

Mr. Taylor, who has held many high government offices, including Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Under Secretary of Commerce, and Mr. Brown, whose granddaughter, Patricia Vickery, is a student at the College, were at Dickinson just a year ago as panel speakers on the 175th anniversary celebration program.

Participating in the convocation as sponsors of the degree recipients were Frank E. Masland, Jr., and Merle W. Allen, local trustees of the College; Rev. Dr. William E. Watkins, '05, of Harrisburg, and Dean Russell I. Thompson. The College Choir sang. Dr. Lewis Guy Rohrbaugh was procession marshal.

Mr. Creigh, who made the address, is the great, great grandson of Judge John Creigh, an early leading citizen of Carlisle, who was a trustee of the College from 1788 to his death in 1813. A son of the judge, also named John, was a member of the Class of 1792 and a trustee from 1827 to 1833. Two sons of the latter were graduates of the College, Thomas, in 1828, and Alfred, in 1830.

SAMUEL B. SCHOFIELD

Mr. Creigh, a Princetonian, looked upon the devotion to freedom and liberty by the nation's founders as a challenge to this generation to "live true to the heritage." He expressed the fear that the "inalienable rights" are being stolen by overambitious men in government through subtle propaganda and other means and warned that the widening scope of governmental functions, including the growing number of social and economic schemes, is jeopardizing individual freedom as conceived by the founding fathers. America, he said, is faced with the "tyranny of too much government."

He said that the general objective of human rights and social programs of the United States and the United Nations is not so much the insuring the rights of the individual as the setting forth the duty of the State to provide such things as social security, medical care, stability of employment, just standards of compensation and the like. "This is a far cry from the terms and provisions of our own Declaration of Independence where it is the liberty of the individual citizen and his freedom from arbitrary restraints and impositions by government that are to be effectuated," he said.

During the year the College received a number of letters and other items of historical interest for the fast-growing Dickinsoniana collection and these gifts were acknowledged by Dr. Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., '35, of the faculty. They were on public display on Founders Day, and are listed elsewhere in this issue.

After the convocation representatives of the students and faculty went to the Old Graveyard to place wreaths on the grave of Charles Nisbet, the first president, and the Creigh family plot. Brief remarks were made by Dr. Milton E. Flower, of the faculty, whose family is connected by marriage with the Creighs, and Dr. Bell.

Visits Campus

Dr. Corneille Heymans, winner of the 1938 Nobel Prize and professor of medicine at the University of Ghent, who is in this country for a series of lectures, was among the campus visitors on Founders Day, having come up from Washington in company with Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, one of the honorary degree recipients that day.

To Award 9 Honorary Degrees At Commencement

JOHN WESLEY SNYDER

NINE honorary degrees, six to alumni, and including one to the Honorable John Wesley Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, who will be the speaker, will be conferred at the 176th Commencement exercises in the Alumni Gymnasium on Sunday, June 5, at 3 o'clock.

Five of the six alumni to be honored will receive their degrees in their class reunion years. They are Joel Claster and the Rev. Frank Y. Jagers, both of 1914; Lester F. Johnson and the Rev. Ira S. Pimm, both of 1919; and Dr. Paul R. Burkholder, of 1924.

The Secretary of the Treasury will receive the degree of doctor of laws, as will Frank E. Baker, prominent Philadelphian.

Joel Claster, '14, '16L, president of Luria Brothers and Company, Inc., Philadelphia, will be awarded the degree of doctor of commercial science.

The degree of doctor of science in education will be conferred upon Lloyd Wellington Johnson, '01, headmaster of Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn, N. Y., and also on Lester F. Johnson, '19, president of York Junior College, York, Pa.

Dr. Paul R. Burkholder, '24, discoverer of chloromycetin, Eaton professor of botany and Fellow of Silliman College at Yale University, will be awarded the degree of doctor of science. He already holds a Ph.D. degree from Cornell University.

Three will receive the degree of doctor of divinity: the Rev. Frank Y. Jagers, '14, Washington, D. C., the Rev. Ira S. Pimm, '19, Trenton, N. J., and Rabbi William Franklin Rosenblum, New York City.

A veteran of World War I, in which he served with the Field Artillery of the 32nd Division in the A.E.F., and holder of the Medal for Merit for his outstanding services in World War II, Mr. John W. Snyder has risen steadily in his banking career from his first job as a bookkeeper in the First National Bank of Forrest City, Ark., to be Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

Born in Jonesboro, Ark., Mr. Snyder graduated from the high school there and attended Vanderbilt University. After ten years at the bank in Forrest City, he joined the field service of the Controller of Currency in 1931 and demonstrated unusual abilities in the liquidation of insolvent national banks during the next six years. In 1937 he became head of the St. Louis agency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, serving until July 1940, when he was brought to Washington as special assistant to the chairman of the R.F.C. Board, and he soon became one of the organizers of the Defense Plant Corporation and its operational vice-president and director. Before the end of 1944 this Corporation had commitments in excess of ten billion dollars covering manufacturing plants and facilities connected with the procurement of war material in this country and many more millions for the production of critical materials in other lands. It was for his service with this agency that President Truman upon recommendation of the War Department and the Medal Awards Board, presented the Medal for Merit on May 14, 1947.

For a year after the war, Mr. Snyder was vice-president of the First National Bank of St. Louis, but in April 1945 President Truman appointed him Federal Loan Administrator. A few months later he became director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. He resigned from this directorship upon joining the President's cabinet as Secretary of the Treasury on June 25, 1946.

After his return from World War I, Mr. Snyder married Miss Evelyn Cook, daughter of R. F. Cook, a cotton planter of Mississippi and Arkansas. A daughter, Edith Ducie Snyder, is an only child. She is a graduate of John Burroughs School, St. Louis; Bradford College, Bradford, Mass., and George Washington University, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Frank E. Baker, who will receive an LL.D., since 1929 has been a member of the firm of Baker, Weeks & Harden, Philadelphia investment brokers and is a member of the New York Stock Exchange. His firm also holds membership in the Philadelphia Stock Exchange and the New York Curb Exchange and has offices in the Lincoln-Liberty Building, Philadelphia. He is a prominent Methodist layman, vice-president of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension, trustee and president of the board of Methodist Hospital, Philadelphia, and trustee and president of the board of Drew University. He served as delegate to the first assembly of the World Council of Churches. He is a director of Henry K. Wampole & Co., the Associated Hospital Service of Philadelphia, the Cramp Shipbuilding Co., the Better Business Bureau, and the Philadelphia Stock Exchange. He is a Mason, a member of Union League, the Midday Bond and the Philadelphia Country Club.

Born in Louisville, Ill., he attended Shurtleff College at Alton and received a B.S. degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1911. His wife is the former Miss Gladys W. Cambell, and their three daughters are married.

Joel Claster is a native of Lock Haven, Pa., and a graduate of the high school there. He received his Ph.B. from the College in 1914 and an A.M. in 1916 when he graduated from the Dickinson Law School with an LL.B.

After practising law in Harrisburg and service in World War I, he became associated with Luria Brothers and Company, a metal scrap brokerage firm, rising to become one of the leading figures in the industry. In recent years he has twice served on Presidential committees to survey metal salvage resources in Europe. His wife is the former Dora Silberman. They have two sons, Stanley and Robert, and a daughter, Marjorie.

A former member of the faculty of the old Dickinson Preparatory School will be honored when Lloyd Wellington Johnson, '03, receives the degree of doctor of science. He taught history and English there for three years after his graduation before going in 1907 to Adelphi Academy where he has been ever since, as teacher of history, then principal from 1919, and finally headmaster in 1948. He had one vacation when he taught during the summer of 1943 at the Dickinson war college. He received his master's degree at Harvard University in 1907. He is a Presbyterian, a member of Phi Kappa Sigma and for a number of years has been a member of the Board of Trustees of the College. His wife is the former Miss Georgia Harrison. Their home is in Caldwell, N. J., and they have a daughter, Carolyn Elizabeth.

Another educator who will receive an Sc.D. in education is Lester F. Johnson, who was born in Lewes, Del., and graduated from the high school there. For five years after his graduation from the College he taught mathematics at the Wesley Collegiate Institute in Dover, and since 1925 has been on the faculty of York Collegiate Institute and York Junior College, of which he is now the president. He has the degree of master of science from the University of Pennsylvania. He is a Theta Chi, a member of Phi Kappa Delta and the Rotary Club of York. His son was a student of the College prior to his admission to the Naval Academy, from which he graduated with the rank of ensign. He has a daughter, Ella Elizabeth.

FRANK Y. JAGGERS

The February 1949 number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, in an article "Finds Drug in Common Soil To Cure Mankind," attempted to tell part of the story of Dr. Paul R. Burkholder, '24, who will be awarded the degree of doctor of science.

A graduate of the Chambersburg High School, Dr. Burkholder received his A.B. from the College in 1924, and the Ph.D. degree from Cornell University in 1929. That year he became curator of biology at the Museum of Science, Buffalo, N. Y., and then in 1932-33 was a National Research Council Fellow in the biological sciences at Harvard University, and the next year he held the same fellowship at Columbia University. He was associate professor of botany at Connecticut College for Women, New London, Conn., from 1934 to 1938, and he held a similar post at the University of Missouri the next two years. In 1940 he joined the faculty of Yale University as associate professor of plant physiology. He is now Eaton professor of botany.

The Rev. Frank Y. Jagers, member of the Baltimore Conference and pastor of the Douglas Memorial Methodist Church, Washington, D. C., will receive his D.D. degree on the 35th anniversary of his graduation at the same time his son, Dr. F. Y. Jagers, Jr., physician of Chevy Chase, will be on the campus for his tenth reunion.

Born in Philadelphia, he graduated from Kensington Institute and since the day he entered Dickinson has been active in college and alumni affairs. He is a past president of the Dickinson Club of Baltimore and also of the Washington Club, where his son is now president. He is a Mason and past master of his lodge. He is the author of many poems, some published in the Christian Advocate and others in his own booklets.

Coming back for his own 30th reunion and the graduation of his son, Donald, the Rev. Ira S. Pimm will also receive the D.D. degree. He was born in Camden, N. J., graduated from the high school there and from Conway Hall. A member of the Class of 1919, his College career was interrupted by service as a second lieutenant of infantry in World War I. He received his B.D. from Drew Theological Seminary in 1922 and entered the New Jersey Conference, serving various churches until he became superintendent of the Trenton District in 1946. During that time he held many important posts and was a delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Church last year.

Rabbi William F. Rosenblum, who will also receive the degree of doctor of divinity, is the rabbi of Temple Israel in New York City. He has an A.B. from C.C.N.Y. and an LL.B. from the Tulane School of Law, and is a graduate of the Hebrew Union College, rabbinical course. He is the president of the American Association of Reform Rabbis, president of the Synagogue of America, a member of the President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency, a member of the National Commission of UNESCO, and is one of the outstanding leaders of the Boy Scouts of America, the Jewish Welfare Board, the National Hillel Foundation, and many other community projects.

Hospital Chief of Staff

Dr. Roy W. Mohler, '17, a trustee of the College and medical chief of the Methodist Episcopal Hospital, Philadelphia, was elected chief of staff at the January meeting of the medical staff.

Issues Warnings On Admission To College

BECAUSE many more young women have applied for admission to the September, 1949, freshman class than there are accommodations, there will be no further acceptance of applications from women unless there are cancellations, Prof. Benjamin D. James, director of admissions, has announced. Applications from men are still being considered.

Concerning 1950, Professor James states: "There are already many applications on file for September, 1950. The Committee on Admissions strongly recommends that prospective students apply during their third year in secondary school. The Committee then can base its decision on three years of secondary school work, the recommendation of the principal and the results of the College Entrance Examination Board tests. If a student is doing well scholastically in his first three years of secondary school and does equally well in the Scholastic Aptitude Test of the College Board in June or August, 1949, it is possible that his completed application can be reviewed in October, 1949, and that he can be accepted at that early date for admission in September, 1950."

All persons applying for admission must take either the College Entrance Board Examinations or similar tests administered by the College. Applicants who are not in the upper half of their class are required to take the College Entrance Board Examinations.

"Many Dickinsonians," said Professor James, "have been extremely helpful in admissions. Our sincere thanks go to them. Dickinson students become Dickinson alumni, so let us resolve to continue to assist the College in recommending fine students. The Office of Admissions will be glad to provide desired information."

Writes Book on College Life and Customs

DR. Janet A. Kelley, '24, professor of psychology and guidance in The City College of New York since 1947, is the author of an interesting and suggestive book for all college graduates and persons who are responsible for personnel work with college students. It is College Life and the Mores, published this spring by Teachers College of Columbia University where it was presented as a doctoral dissertation.

Dr. Kelley's book examines the interrelations of the culture patterns which the student brings to college from his home, the traditional and established culture patterns of the campus, and the material resources and physical equipment of the institution. Out of these elements, differently compounded in different institutions, come the distinctive flavors of colleges.

Any Dickinsonian, reading Dr. Kelley's pages, recalling his own college experience, will see illustrations that might have been drawn from the history of this college. As a matter of fact, Dr. Kelley does cite Dickinson in several cases, sometimes identifying the institution, sometimes referring to it anonymously.

What Dr. Kelley makes plain is what college educators have long known, that each college is a little society with its own standards and its own disciplines just as the larger community has. These standards and disciplines need to be understood and they may be used advantageously to the college. This is the interesting thing in Dr. Kelley's book, that she shows how college mores can and must be taken into account by persons working with students.

Although the book is designed primarily for a professional audience, any college graduate or other person interested in education will find in its well-written pages insights into his own college experience and into American education generally.

After her graduation from Dickinson in 1924, Dr. Kelley was a teacher of

JANET A. KELLEY

Latin and French and head of the department of foreign languages at Chambersburg, Pa., High School for 16 years until 1940. For the next two years she was guidance coordinator in the same school. From 1942 to 1944 she was dean of women and head of the foreign language department at Edinboro, Pa., State Teachers College. In 1944 she won the Nathan C. Schaeffer Scholarship for doctoral study offered by the State Council of Education of Pennsylvania. She had already received a master's degree from the Pennsylvania State College in 1936; she received her doctorate from Columbia University in 1947.

Dr. Kelley was head of the foreign language section of the western branch of the Pennsylvania State Education Association in 1943-44, and was a member of the executive committee of the State Guidance Committee of Pennsylvania in 1944. She is a member of a number of professional societies and honorary fraternities.

In addition to her book College Life and the Mores, Dr. Kelley is the co-author of several research articles in the Encyclopedia of Educational Research. As a member of the national personnel committee of the American Council on Education, she was assigned to write a brochure on "The Role of Campus Culture in Personality Development," which will be published this year. The Edward W. Hazen Foundation has asked her to write another brochure on "Values and Skills in Campus Living in the Present-Day World."

Dentist Writes History

Dr. Milton B. Asbell, '37, practicing dentist of Camden, N. J., is finding time to ride a hobby. It is the history of his profession.

One of his latest publications in this field is an article on ancient dental art in the Bulletin of the History of Medicine published at Johns Hopkins University.

Dr. Asbell is now serving as a member of the committee on bibliography of the history of medicine in the United States and Canada, an organization of the American Association of Medical History. This spring he was elected a member of the Société française de l'Histoire d'Art dentaire, the first French society devoted to the history of dentistry.

At her fiftieth anniversary in 1937, the College conferred upon her the honorary degree of doctor of science.

Recalls College Professors

Reference to his campus days is made by Alson J. Smith, '30, Methodist minister and writer, in an article, "Have We Ministers Failed?" in the May issue of the magazine Tomorrow in which he sets forth his conception of the kind of minister needed by the church today.

In mentioning the impress made by Dickinson upon him, he refers by name to Mulford Stough and the late Dr. Leon C. Prince, two of his history teachers. Dr. Prince, he writes, was "an unabashed chauvinist" who made "American history live with an endless series of tales of derring-do," while Professor Stough was "equally colorful in a dry, Rabelaisian way" and a "fountain of such delightful information as the fact that the most prolific cusser ever to occupy the White House bore the initials H. H." He writes, "Prince immortalized, Stough humanized. Prince built up the heroes, Stough cut them down to boudoir size. It was a good combination."

He recalls the student body as an "ingenious prankish lot who brought herds of Black Angus cattle stampeding into the library, hung countless thundermugs from the tail of the mermaid weather vane on Old West . . ."

Smith is pastor of the Roxbury Methodist Church in Stamford, Conn., and editor of the Social Questions Bulletin of the Methodist Federation of Social Action. His articles on religion, history and sociology have appeared in Harper's, American Mercury, New Republic and Christian Century. He is the author of two books.

Hard At Work In India Mission Field

DR. and Mrs. Edmund D. Soper, '98, who began a new career last year at a time of life when most persons are settled in comfortable retirement, has been hard at work preaching and teaching at the Leonard Theological College in Jubbulpore, C. P., India, since last November.

Dr. Soper, formerly a member of the faculty of Garrett Biblical Institute in Evanston, Ill., announced that he would soon leave for India when he was at his 50th class reunion in Carlisle last June. After teaching in two summer conferences in Arkansas and North Carolina, the Sopers left Evanston on August 25 and just eleven weeks later, after a seven weeks' delay in England which enabled them to sightsee in the Scottish highlands and the English Lake District, they reached Jubbulpore on November 10.

Dr. Soper teaches a full schedule of classes in the history of religions. Mrs. Soper teaches religious education, as she formerly did at Ewha College in Seoul, Korea. The students come from as many as ten different language areas, so that English is the only common tongue; and they are representatives of many different churches, including some very old Christian Indian churches.

In January, during a semester vacation, Dr. Soper went to Lucknow, where he conducted Religious Emphasis Week at Isabella Thoburn College. Last month, when the term closed, the Sopers went to the Himalayas to escape the heat. But even here Dr. Soper was scheduled to preach for eight weeks in the church of the town where he will "vacation."

FRANCIS G. WILSON

Hold Clinic On City Government

Walter H. Niehoff, assistant professor of political science at the College, set up and promoted a clinic on city government held in January in the city hall at York, Pa., for municipal government students at Dickinson, Muhlenberg and Pennsylvania State College.

Mayor Felix Bentzel cooperated. Heads of York city departments of public affairs, finance, public safety, streets and parks gave lectures and conducted discussions. There was a forum on taxation and assessments. A tour of York's water workers and other public plants concluded the all-day program. The clinic may have been the first of such a nature ever conducted in Pennsylvania for college students.

As a resident of Lehighton, Pa., before coming to Dickinson in 1946 to teach, Prof. Niehoff was influential in securing a council-manager government for that borough. He has been active in promoting the teaching of Pennsylvania State and local government in the public schools and colleges in Pennsylvania.

Join in Ministry Program

Dickinson College was among a selected group of schools to participate in a three-day Christian ministry program conducted in New York City last month by Union Theological Seminary in cooperation with the Federal Council of Churches.

From the College were Chester Stover, senior; Chase Davis, junior, and Richard Barnes, freshman, who were accompanied by Dr. Amos B. Horlacher, dean of men. Noted ministers, educators and laymen spoke on the work, program and philosophy of the Christian ministry. Promising students from leading eastern and mid-western college and universities were in attendance by invitation.

Meet at UN Session

An intimate, informal meeting with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt highlighted a visit made by 60 Dickinson students last month to the UN Assembly at Flushing and Lake Success.

Mrs. Roosevelt, one of the five American delegates to the Assembly, encountered the Dickinson group and their advisor, Dr. William Lonsdale Tayler, in a hall of the Security Council Building, Lake Success, and chatted with them for 20 minutes. She had known Dr. Tayler, head of the political science department, from other meetings.

While going through the Secretariat offices the students met Louis A. Hartheimer, '48, who is with the UN's Department of Social Affairs.

Law School Receives Relic

Dickinson Law School has received a relic from one of the ancient Inns of Court in London, in the form of a stone from the Inner Temple, which was badly damaged by Nazi bombings. The Inns are the oldest law schools in the English-speaking world.

Through arrangements made by the Corpus Juris Society at the Law School, the relic comes from the Benchers of the Inner Temple, as the faculty are called, and was sent by Lord Greene, Master of the Rolls, who also has given the Law School an illustrated book describing the Inner Temple as it was before the bombings and as it is now.

The stone is to be set into the wall beside Dean Walter H. Hitcher's door as a memento of the common source of the law in both the United States and the British Commonwealth, and as a greeting from one of the oldest law schools in England to one of the oldest in America.

Writes Paper on Pregnancy

Dr. E. C. Herber, of the biology department, has perfected a new technique in the use of male frogs to determine pregnancy. A paper based on his research was read at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science last month and accepted for publication.

In the course of 154 tests during which he had the assistance of students, Dr. Herber developed a new method of refrigeration which overcomes climatic difficulties that had barred the use of frogs as a reliable pregnancy determination. Until the new technique was devised experimenters had to use rabbits as specimens. Dr. Herber has estimated that the use of frogs will reduce expense to approximately one-twelfth the former cost.

At the same meeting of the Academy of Science, William H. McGee, biology instructor, read a paper entitled "The Occurrence of Potato Stalk Weevil in Ground Cherry."

On Municipal Bench

William B. Rosenberg, '35, of Manville, N. J., was appointed a judge of the Municipal Court in that state in March.

Following his graduation from the Columbia University School of Law in 1938, he was admitted to the Dauphin County bar in January, 1939, and practiced for a time in Harrisburg, Pa. Three years ago, he located in Manville, where he joined his brother-in-law, Leonard R. Blumberg, '36, in a formation of a law partnership.

Resigns As Class Dean

PROF. JOHN C. PFLAUM
Dean of Class of 1950

Dr. Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., '35, associate professor of history and chairman of the faculty committee on curriculum, was succeeded as dean of the Class of 1950 on March 15 by John Christian Pflaum, assistant professor of history, who has been on the faculty since 1946.

Dr. Bell, the class dean for two years, had asked to be relieved because of the press of other administrative work and in order to devote more time teaching and writing. He is preparing a biography of John Morgan, founder of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, for Henry Schuman, New York publishers. Last February he became editor of the bibliography committee of the American Association of the History of Medicine and in that capacity serves as editor of committee publications. He will be in England this summer to do research.

Professor Pflaum taught at Western Reserve Academy, Temple and University of Pennsylvania before coming to Dickinson in September, 1946.

Combats Encephalitis

Dr. James B. Brennan, Jr., '26, medical entomologist, has just returned from a several months' trip to the Dominican Republic, where he was sent by the United States Public Health service to help combat an outbreak of encephalitis, a form of sleeping sickness common to horses and men.

Dr. Brennan, who is on the staff of the Rocky Mountain Research Laboratories of the Public Health Service in Hamilton, Montana, is widely known among medical entomologists as one of the two-man team that succeeded in isolating the encephalitis virus last year. During the war Dr. Brennan conducted tests for the United States Army to determine the most efficient repellents to use in impregnating clothing against parasitic ticks, and successfully developed the use of two repellents of the two types of tick which carry Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Dr. Brennan's address is Box 574, Hamilton, Montana.

Philadelphia Club Meets

The annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Philadelphia was held in the Robert Morris Hotel with 87 present on April 28. Albert H. Allison, '16, retiring president, acted as toastmaster, and the Rev. A. M. Witwer, D.D., '00, offered the invocation.

The feature of the dinner was the presentation by Frank E. Masland, Jr., '18, of Carlisle, trustee of the College, of motion pictures in color of a trip he made last summer on the Colorado River.

Dean W. H. Hitchler, of the Law School, and George Shuman, Jr., treasurer of the College, spoke briefly.

Speaks to Pre-Meds

The 120 pre-medical students at the College were addressed on March 24 by Dr. Roy W. Mohler, '17, member of the faculty of Jefferson Medical College and leading obstetrician and gynecologist of Philadelphia, who spoke on preparation for careers in medicine. The occasion was arranged by the College as part of its expanding program of personal and career counseling.

Dr. Mohler told the students that, while medical schools are able to admit at present only about 50 per cent of the applicants, there is room in them for "all outstanding students who also possess outstanding personality." Advising the students to make the utmost of their undergraduate days for study and personality development, he told them that their college period constitutes a weeding out process during which they must convince their teachers and preceptors that they have the mentality, temperament and outlook on life for the medical profession. Students who fail to obtain admission to medical schools were advised to explore the possibilities of careers in allied fields.

Writes On UN Support

"How Much Support Are We Giving to the United Nations?" is the title of an article in the current issue of The Eleusis, national quarterly of Chi Omega, by Dr. William Lonsdale Tayler, head of the department of political science. He attacks the apathy and indifference with which the peoples of certain countries allow their governments to use or not use the machinery of the UN as suits their fancy, but he holds the opinion that the organization is stronger today than a year ago.

Dr. Taylor, who was a member of the International Secretariat at the San Francisco Conference in 1945 when the ground work for the UN was laid, states that if any mistake was made there in drafting the Charter it was a mistake not so much in the machinery of the organization as a mistake in leading the people of the world to believe that this machinery could of itself cure all of the world's ills. He believes that the UN is stronger structurally than many people had supposed but is weak morally in the sense that it lacks enlightened public opinion to champion its cause and rally to its defense.

The article lists a number of opportunities open to this country and its people to strengthen the UN and concludes with the statement that equally important with support from high public officials is support from the general public and a "steadfast resolution on the part of all of us to see that the UN does work."

Wins Fraternity Award

Weston C. Overholt, Jr., '50, of Norwood, Pa., was awarded a $300 scholarship by the Kappa Sigma fraternity in March because of his outstanding achievement both as a student and a campus leader.

Overholt has had a consistently high academic record at Dickinson. He is a first-string basketball player. He is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary activities fraternity, and of Ravens Claw. He received the 1902 Award last year, being adjudged by his classmates the most representative Dickinson student.

Represents College at Conferences

The Rev. Rowland R. Lehman, D.D., '23, of Harrisburg, served as the representative of the College at the annual session of the Wyoming, Pa., Conference of the Methodist Church in April.

Before President Edel left for Palestine last month, he asked Dr. Lehman to represent him and the College at the annual sessions of the Philadelphia Conference in Allentown and the Peninsula Conference in Wilmington, Del., this month.

Basketball Team a Winner

The basketball season, which found the varsity winning 11 of the 17 regularly scheduled games and splitting two post-season games, was highlighted by the individual accomplishments of Weston Overholt, a junior, who established a new floor record for the Alumni Gym and led the team in scoring with an average of 17.3 points per game.

Against Juniata, Overholt scored 39 points on 16 field goals and seven conversions to hang up a new record for the home court just two weeks after Joe Noertker, University of Virginia star, had set a new standard with 37 points in leading the Cavaliers to an 80 to 63 victory.

Coach "Chick" Kennedy's varsity twice defeated F. and M. and scored single victories over Elizabethtown, Albright, Susquehanna, P. M. C., Juniata, Western Maryland, Johns Hopkins, Lehigh and Bucknell while losing twice to Gettysburg and once each to P. M. C., Navy, Virginia and Albright. In a post-season charity game for benefit of the youth program of the Carlisle Kiwanis Club the team defeated the York Professionals but the following week was downed by Wagner College in a first round game of the Middle Atlantic Conference playoffs.

The Dickinson co-captains, Vince Schafmeister, 6-4 center, and Gene Evans, will be lost by graduation as will Fred May, a dependable replacement.

Freshman Coach Dave Kirk developed a strong frosh quintet that lost only two games in nine starts.

Swimming Team Flounders

Coach John Steckbeck's swimming team, although the strongest Dickinson has yet produced, could win only two of seven dual meets but individual members succeeded in setting three new College records. Lycoming was easily overcome in the first meet and Gettysburg in the last one but in between Dickinson lost to Loyola of Baltimore, F. and M.,

Lehigh, Penn State and American University, all outstanding teams.

John Whitmore, a sophomore, who had put three new freestyle records in the books as a freshman, added another last season, in negotiating the 100-yard freestyle in 57.4 seconds. Ted Miller, a sophomore, swam the 200-yard breaststroke in 2.48 for a new record and the 300-yard medley relay team, which was undefeated in dual meets, claimed a new mark with a 3:19.1 clocking.

A consistent scorer all season was Gene Beck, No. 1 diver, who will be the only squad member lost by graduation.

Plenty of Spring Sports

Dickinson's four spring sports teams are winding up this month a 50-contest schedule that is as extensive as any ever arranged by the athletic department.

A well-balanced track team studded with freshman talent has won all four dual meets on its schedule to become the first Dickinson track outfit to go undefeated in dual competition in 13 years. Coach Steckbeck's team defeated Johns Hopkins, Juniata, Albright and Bucknell. The victory over Bucknell probably was the most satisfactory as the Bisons had been undefeated for two seasons. Still ahead are the Middle Atlantics and a "Little Three" meet with F. and M. and Gettysburg.

Other spring teams have not been so successful. Lacking pitching depth and hitting, the baseball team lost eight out of nine games to May 11, the single victory being a 10-inning affair with Gettysburg. The tennis team has broken even in four matches while the golf team lost six in a row before overcoming Albright for the only victory to date.

Dave Kirk, assistant basketball and football coach, is directing the baseball nine while Charles "Chick" Kennedy, diamond coach for a number of years, is mentoring the golf team this spring. Gardner Hays continues as tennis coach and Richard "Old Mac" McAndrews as the advisory baseball coach.
