College Opens With Another Crowded Enrolment

A RECORD high of 993 students, an increase of 25 over last year, are enrolled at the College for the term which started on September 12. The formal opening took place three days later at a convocation in the Alumni Gymnasium with President Edel making the address.

Arrangements completed over the Summer to admit as students of the College qualified personnel from the Carlisle Barracks, the historic military station in Carlisle, added 50 persons to the rolls for courses of their own selection from the freshman and sophomore lists. For the convenience of these students, their classes are held at the Barracks, meeting two evenings a week.

The intent of this Dickinson innovation, made at the request of Carlisle Barracks authorities pursuant to the Armed Forces' emphasis on education, is to give to the service individual with less than two years of college the chance to obtain that goal. To the individual with more than two years of college work the opportunity is provided to earn additional credits toward a degree.

Students on the campus number 943, about 27 less than a year ago. For the second straight year the veterans are outnumbered, there being 269, a decrease of 117 from last year. The post war high in veteran enrollment, 548, was recorded in 1947.

There are 265 new students, including 245 freshmen. They were chosen from 2,100 applicants. Among the new students are six from as many foreign countries, New Zealand, China, Egypt, England, Puerto Rico and Costa Rica. Others hail from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Indiana, Louisiana and the District of Columbia. The geographical distribution of students within the states is also wide, it is pointed out by Professor Benjamin D. James, director of admissions. He points out that one-fourth of the freshmen graduated in the upper one-tenth of their high school class.

Professor James said the part that all alumni can play in helping to obtain students is suggested in the fact that over 33 per cent of the freshmen indicated in their application that the influence which led them to choose Dickinson came from alumni. Forty per cent said they had their first contact through Dickinson students and another 40 have parents or brothers or sisters who are Dickinsonians.

A 25 per cent increase in the tuition fee, from $200 a semester to $250, effective this Fall was unavoidable by reason of rising costs and the desire of the College to maintain the quality of instruction, President Edel stated in the notice to students and parents. Pointing out that tuition fees fail to pay the full cost of education, he disclosed that the gap had widened from an average of $130 per student just prior to the war to $282 in 1946 and $337 last year. Three years ago income from endowment came within $92 per student of closing the gap, which now, with a much larger student body, has grown to $205.

Pastor at Allison

The Reverend D. Fred Wertz, '37, was appointed pastor of Allison Memorial Methodist Church in Carlisle at the May Session of the Central Pennsylvania Conference. He was formerly minister of Camp Curtin Methodist Church in Harrisburg.

Name New Dean of Women

MISS Phoebe G. Follmer, for the past two years an assistant on the staff of the dean of women at the University of Pennsylvania, was appointed dean of women of the College by President William W. Edel in July, succeeding Mrs. Helen Burns Norcross, '12.

Mrs. Norcross was women's dean from September, 1946, to last June, when she gave her resignation to the Trustees at their Commencement meeting. She had rendered devoted service to the College during the difficult period of great expansion of the student body. She in turn had succeeded Mrs. Josephine B. Meredith, '01.

At 26 Miss Follmer, who took up her appointment August 1, may be the youngest dean of women in any first-line American college or university, but she brings to Dickinson training and experience for that office, particularly in the increasingly important field of guidance and personnel work.

Born in Milton, Pa., where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm M. Follmer, resides, she attended the public schools there and in 1945 graduated at Bucknell University with an A.B. degree after majoring in sociology and psychology. A year later she received a master's degree in student personnel administration at Teachers College, Columbia University, and then went to the Shipley school, Bryn Mawr, Pa., as a house teacher and counselor. She taught psychology in the 1947 summer session at Bucknell.

For the past two years she was the assistant director of residence on the staff of the dean of women at the University of Pennsylvania. In that capacity she was responsible for the personnel programs for a dormitory of 160 women students, advised the student council and developed social programs. She also conducted interviews with students of all classes.

Miss Follmer is much interested in music and for eight years studied voice.

MISS PHOEBE G. FOLLMER
DEAN OF WOMEN

She had been soloist in Milton and Lewisburg churches and has done recital work. She sang in the university choir at Bucknell, where she also was a member of Pi Beta Phi and Mu Phi Epsilon and was active in the Student Christian Association.

She is a member of the Methodist Church. Judge Frederick V. Follmer, of Milton, a Federal District judge, is an uncle.

Joins Penn State Faculty

Dr. Tien-Hsi Cheng, '37, has been appointed assistant professor of biology on the faculty of Pennsylvania State College and has been assigned to the Harrisburg College Center with the rank of assistant professor of biology. After receiving his doctorate at Ohio State University, he returned to China where he was a member of the faculty at Fukien Christian University at Foochow and where he also did some experimental work in agriculture. He has two children, a six-year-old son and a four-year-old daughter.

Mac Retires But He Doesn't Quit

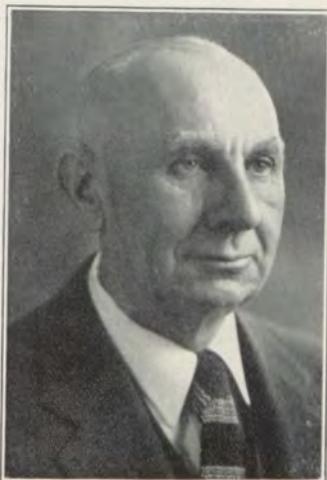

RICHARD H. MacAndrews, the beloved "Mac" of Dickinson athletics, retired in June with the rank of associate professor emeritus of physical education at the age of 69, after 38 years as trainer, coach, physical education teacher and general factotum of sports at the College.

So very much a part of the campus scene for so very long, Mac does not intend to step out entirely and, continuing to reside in his Conway Hall suite and calling Carlisle his home, is keeping his familiar white sweatshirt and grey gym pants handy. Students chauffeur him about in a new sedan he acquired in the spring. He spent the summer with his sister, Mrs. Thomas Burns, in Luzerne, Pa.

Mac, native of Luzerne, was playing professional baseball back in 1911 when Sylvester B. "Si" Pauxtis, then football coach, brought him to the College as team trainer. Mac also helped with athletics at Conway Hall until that prep school closed in 1917, after which he gave all of his time to the College teams. In 1918 he became baseball coach and to this was added the next year the job of basketball coach. He became a physical education assistant in 1920 and later helped to develop Dickinson's extensive intramural program.

Mac continued in all of these activities until two years ago when the burden was lightened by making him advisory coach of basketball and baseball and a new grid trainer was appointed. Indicative of his durability is the fact that his last basketball team was one of his best.

It was as basketball coach that Mac was best known off the campus. One of the first Eastern coaches to employ the five-man zone defense back in the '20s, he developed outstanding teams with that system and made Dickinson a name to be reckoned with in the sport. He regards the 1925-26 team which lost only two games and numbered among its 15 victims such court powers as CCNY, Penn, Princeton and Temple, as probably his best. That 15-2 record stands as the best in Dickinson history. His 1931 team won 14 and lost two against big-college competition. After the last war he laid the groundwork for the 1947 team which won 15 and lost 3. Mac singles out Fred Sweely, '28, Tom Foley, '32L, and John Hopper, '48, as the best he coached. His 28 consecutive years as head basketball coach at one institution is one of the longest court tenures in American colleges.

In the trophy hall of the Alumni Gymnasium hangs his portrait, one of the testimonies to the affection in which "the boys" he coached or trained over the years hold him. They presented it to the College in 1947 when they established also the Richard H. MacAndrews Scholarship. In June, 1948, Mac received the new Ravens Claw Award for "outstanding service to the College over a period of years." Last winter the Pennsylvania Little Three—Gettysburg, F. and M. and Dickinson—gave him a placque in recognition of his long years of service to intercollegiate athletics.

Add Five Teachers to College Faculty

CHARLES COLEMAN SELLERS

ROGER E. NELSON

THE College reopened this month with five new faculty members, a new library staff assistant and the return of two teachers who had been on leave. Six faculty and library staff members resigned since last term.

Rear Admiral Roger Eastman Nelson, USN, retired, for the past three years head of the department of naval science at Dartmouth College, where he also taught courses in the history of sea power, joined the faculty as an associate professor of mathematics. A graduate of the United States Naval Academy in 1922, he retired from the service on September 1. He taught marine engineering and aircraft construction at the Naval Academy for two years and spent a like period teaching navigation and marine engineering at the University of California, Berkeley, where he held the rank of associate professor. Dartmouth gave him an honorary M.A. degree in 1946.

Among Admiral Nelson's important service assignments are membership on the joint Army-Navy board to survey defenses of Alaska, operations officer for landing craft in the Normandy invasion and island commander of Guam.

In introduction of the LST's he trained the first crews and commanded the first group of this type of ship to cross the Atlantic. He holds many awards and decorations.

Charles Coleman Sellers, of Hebron, Conn., author of a number of biographies of early American figures, whose appointment to the faculty as curator of Dickinsonian was announced by President Edel in February, has taken up his work. The author of a two-volume life of Charles Willson Peale, he is writing a third volume on that prominent portrait painter of the late 18th century. Mr. Sellers had been on the library staff at Wesleyan University for 13 years, and at Dickinson he will help to adapt some of the advanced library techniques developed at Wesleyan by Fremont Rider.

Eric J. Josephson, of New York City, and Paul A. Corcoran, of Trafford, Pa., are new instructors in the departments of sociology and economics respectively. Mr. Josephson received a master's degree from Columbia last June, and Corcoran took the same degree at University of Pittsburgh this month.

His attendance at University of North

ERIC J. JOSEPHSON

PAUL A. CORCORAN

Carolina halted in 1943 by three years of Army service. Mr. Josephson graduated from New York University in 1947 and, receiving the Viking Fund pre-doctoral fellowship, spent the next year in an intensive study of the impact of the New York City metropolitan area on a rural New England community. He then made a professional evaluation of the Montclair, N. J., Civil Rights Audit, a self-survey, as a member of the staff of the department of research of the American Jewish Committee in New York City. He is a candidate for a Ph.D. in sociology at Columbia.

Mr. Corcoran graduated from the University of Pittsburgh in 1947 and remained there as a graduate assistant and lecturer in transportation while studying for his master's degree, which he received this month.

Mrs. Thelma R. Horlacher, wife of Dr. Amos B. Horlacher, dean of men, was appointed a part time instructor in the department of education and psychology where she will be in charge of psychometric testing. She holds a bachelor of science degree from Boston University and a master of arts from New York University and has also done graduate work at Temple University and Pennsylvania State College.

To the library staff has been added Miss Dorothy Yates, of Carlisle, Pa., who graduated from Oberlin College in June, 1948, and since then has received a master's degree in library science from Western Reserve University.

Professor Stacey E. Eaton, of the romance languages department, and Professor Charles F. Kellogg, of the history department, have returned to the campus from leaves of a year, during which Professor Eaton studied at Laval University and Professor Kellogg at Johns Hopkins.

Among resignations were Guido M. Crocetti, instructor in sociology, and Oscar W. Nestor, instructor in economics. Mr. Crocetti will do graduate work at Columbia while Mr. Nestor accepted an instructorship at the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania.

Miss Elinor M. Dobson left the library staff to accept a library position at Drew University, and Mrs. I. Dwight Fickes, the former Diana Joy Harrison, resigned from the staff following her marriage in July. Other resignations were Miss Lucie Fitzpatrick, instructor in French and Spanish, and Robert V. Price, mathematics instructor.

Finds Many Surprises On Survey Tour Of Palestine

PRESIDENT William W. Edel returned from his survey tour of Israel on May 25, just in time to prepare for the many activities of Commencement. He reported a crowded and busy trip with every hour of the days spent in Israel filled with appointments, conferences, inspections and meetings of various kinds.

A typical day involved an early breakfast at the Eden Hotel in Jerusalem, a morning tour through the front lines of the Israeli forces holding strong points in Jerusalem itself, luncheon with representatives of the Episcopal, Baptist and Presbyterian Missions in the Jerusalem area, afternoon conferences with members of the faculty of the University of Jerusalem, with the chairman of the Jewish agencies of Palestine, with the mayor of Jerusalem, with the Secretary of the Jerusalem Y. M. C. A., and with the leaders of certain political parties of the opposition, followed by a visit to an Arab community a few miles from Jerusalem and return in time for dinner with the sister-in-law of a member of the Dickinson faculty; this in turn followed by an evening session with the Foreign Minister of Israel and the editor of one of the foremost Jewish dailies. This particular day was brought to a close with a walk in the moonlight to a point which overlooked Bethlehem and a return to the hotel behind the barbed wire and barricades of the recently suspended fighting.

Dr. Edel sailed from New York on the Queen Mary, landed at Southampton and visited President A. Victor Murray of Cheshunt College in Cambridge, England. Cheshunt College was founded in 1768 by John Wesley and the Countess of Huntingdon, and is now affiliated with Cambridge University. It is a theological college which trains candidates for the ministry. President Edel was returning a visit made by President Murray to the Dickinson campus two years ago.

Leaving Cambridge, Dr. Edel flew to Paris and then to Rome. After three crowded days in Rome, the survey group flew from Rome to Lydda, arriving in Israel after a 4 A.M. breakfast of sardines, pickles, goat cheese and chickory.

The party made its headquarters in Tel Aviv but made frequent trips to various parts of the country, covering the Negev, the Shephela, the Sharon, Jerusalem, Haifa and Galilee, traveling the land of Israel from "Dan to Beersheba."

Arriving in Tel Aviv on the morning of May 1, the party watched the May Day parade of the thousands of members of the Israeli Labor Organization. In these marching thousands there was the first indication of the new nation's accent on youth, for in the parade were marchers from factory, farm and communal settlements, almost all of them boys and girls in their teens or early twenties. The crowds that thronged the streets of the modern Tel Aviv to watch them pass included every type "from the Cohen in Khaftan to the blond in slacks." The marchers carried the blue and white banners of Israel and the red flags of labor and waves of applause greeted each banner as it passed. A single group in the entire parade carried the red flag with hammer and sickle and as it passed there were a few scattered hand-claps and then silence. In the Knesset, the Parliament of Israel, there sit four Communist representatives, two of whom are Arabs, one a Christian.

President Edel found on every hand evidences of the recent fighting between the Arabs and the Israeli. Military installations, trenches and barbed wire, widespread destruction and ruins, and the presence everywhere of the troops of the Haganah, brought vividly to mind the realization that peace had not yet been concluded and only a tenuous armistice prevented the renewal of hostilities. One of the trips made by the survey party was on the so-called "Israeli Burma Road" from Rehovoth to Jerusalem, the hand-built road by which supplies were brought into Jerusalem during the period of heaviest fighting. Grim reminders of the fighting showed in the scores of burned-out lorries at almost every turn of the road.

The party made several surveys of new agricultural installations to be found from the Negev to Galilee. Communal settlements, collective farms, cooperative and partnership settlements and individual holdings, with the help of irrigation and power machinery, are establishing an agricultural base for the Israeli economy. The real aristocrat of the new Israel in the pioneer agriculturist who takes his tractor and his plows out into the desert, and begins new irrigation projects and new farm communities. He is supported by every resource the new country can bring to bear in finance, man-power, scientific experiment and research, idealism and propaganda.

Hard on the heels of agriculture come the development of agricultural industries, research and experimentation in light industries, transportation and foreign trade. Dr. Edel visited the communal settlements along the Jordan River and in the Galileean plain. He inspected also the Arabian settlements at Nazareth, Acre, on Mt. Carmel, at Abu Ghosh, and at Jaffa, as well as the camps established for the thousands of incoming refugees from the concentration camps of Europe. He saw how immigrants from the East and West are received, at an average of a thousand a day; how doctors, nurses and attendants care for them, how they are taught their new language (Hebrew) and the customs and manners of civilized living. He also spent some time in the camps of the Youth Aliyah, where the incoming orphan children are cared for. Into these reception centers come children of all varying culture and educational levels, many of whom have had no schooling, or home training of any kind. They must be taught to eat with knives and forks, to take baths, to use beds and to refrain from stealing food. Dr. Edel stated that the best meals he ate in Israel were those he had at the children's camps, surrounded by Polish and German orphans, many of them with the concentration camp numbers tattooed on their forearms.

One of the most interesting places visited during his stay in Israel was the Weizmann Institute at Rehovoth, just south of Jaffa. Here a magnificent research institute named after the great scientist who is the first president of the state of Israel, is dedicated to research in pure and applied science. A beautiful modern building, containing laboratories for research in organic chemistry, bio-chemistry and bacteriology, biophysics, optometry, isotopes and polymers, stands in the midst of a lovely landscaped garden a mile or two away from the long established agricultural institute where similar researches are being carried forward upon agricultural products. From the electron microscope to the infra-red and ultra-violet spectrometers, every item of equipment is the latest and best of its kind. Staffed with brilliant young scientists from all over Europe and America, the Weizmann Institute is potentially one of the greatest resources of the new state of Israel.

After leaving Israel, the party of which Dr. Edel was a member, broke up into smaller groups and returned home. President Edel made brief visits to Rome, Geneva and Paris before flying home by way of Shannon, Ireland, and Gander, Newfoundland.

Attend Inauguration

Dr. Ross Wilhide, '19, pastor of the High Street Methodist Church, Springfield, Ohio, was the representative of the College at the inauguration of Dr. Arthur Sherwood Fleming as the ninth president of Ohio Wesleyan University on June 11. The Honorable Herbert Hoover delivered the address.

Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, '09, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church, Washington, D. C., and chaplain of the United States Senate, offered the invocation at the exercises.

Pennsylvania and Gettysburg Honor President Edel

PRESIDENT EDEL RECEIVES AN LL.D. AT PENNSYLVANIA

PRESIDENT William W. Edel received the honorary degree of doctor of laws and made the address at the summer convocation of the University of Pennsylvania on August 24. He saw in the occasion a tribute to the friendship existing for over a century and three-quarters between the two oldest educational institutions in the state.

The same honorary degree was also conferred upon Dr. Edel and on A. J. White Hutton, long a member of the Dickinson Law School faculty, by Gettysburg College at its commencement in June.

In the citation accompanying the degree at the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. William H. DuBarry, executive vice-president, told Dr. Edel that his life "has been devoted to the work of God."

"As counselor, confidant and comforter of your fellow man through three decades as a chaplain in the United States Navy, you won the esteem and gratitude of those with whom you served. Trained in our sister colonial institution, Dickinson College, your talents as an historian and organizer and as an inspired leader were recognized by your Alma Mater who called you to be her president."

Dr. Edel in his address spoke of Dickinson's early link with the University through Benjamin Rush, principal founder of the College, who occupied a chair at the University, and James Ross, first member of the Dickinson faculty, who was made a master of arts of the College of Philadelphia, later to unite with the University.

He referred also to the liberal arts tradition in which Dickinson and the University were founded, and developed the theme that education which seeks to instill in the minds of the rising generation "virtuous principles and liberal knowledge," a phrase Dr. Edel took from the College charter and which he used as title of the address, is as imperative in our age as it was when the two institutions and the nation were emerging, if students are to be prepared for lives of service. While the passing years, he said, have enriched the curricula they have also demonstrated the dangers of a materialistic civilization.

"No lesson has been more rigorously reinforced than this: that our American democratic processes are dependent for their survival upon what are basically spiritual qualities—integrity, unselfishness, idealism, loyalty."

Declaring that this generation has failed to develop spiritual resources of mankind in equal step with the development of material resources, he said the paramount problem lies in the realms of ethics and religion.

He called on the 500 graduates assembled in the University's Irvine Auditorium to use their education to meet the responsibility of citizenship which the tradition of liberal arts places on the educated man.

Promoted to Department Manager

Wesley H. Day, '34, who has been division engineer of Shell Oil Company's Cleveland marketing division since 1946, was recently promoted to lubricants manager of the Chicago division.

Mr. Day has been connected with Shell since 1937, when he started as a marketing service clerk in the Philadelphia office. After progressing to positions of increasing responsibility, he became technical representative in the New York head office in 1942, and in 1946 was transferred to the Cleveland division.

He and his wife, the former Bernadette DeFalco, '35, now reside at 1965 Palmgren Ave., Glenview, Ill.

Named Beaver Professor

Dr. Eric W. Barnes, professor and head of the department of English since 1946, was named Thomas Beaver Professor of English Literature by the Board of Trustees of the College upon recommendation of President William W. Edel in June.

Dr. Barnes is the third man to hold this chair. His predecessors were Dr. Bradford Oliver McIntire from 1890 to 1929 and Dr. Paul H. Doney from 1929 to 1941. None was named to the chair after Professor Doney's untimely death in 1941.

Dr. Barnes' career before coming to Dickinson included study and lecturing at the University of Paris, several years' service in the United States Consular Service in Europe, seven years on the New York stage, teaching at Russell Sage College, and work with the O.S.S. in Africa, Italy, and France during World War II. He was professor of English at Russell Sage when he came to Dickinson in 1946.

Becomes School Principal

Walter D. Heckman, '30, was elected principal of the Boiling Springs, Pa., High School in July to succeed the late Ralph E. Wetzel, who had been principal for the last five years.

Following his graduation from the College, he served as a member of the faculty of the Boiling Springs High School for twelve years when he taught science and social studies and served as baseball coach. During the war, he was a member of the Dickinson College faculty, teaching physics during the 32nd Air Detachment College Program. Since then, he has been employed at C. H. Masland and Sons.

A graduate of the Lemoyne, Pa., High School and the College, he has also completed graduate work in the field of education administration at Pennsylvania State College and has attended the University of Pennsylvania.

Elect Lehman Alumni Association Head

ROWLAND R. LEHMAN

PAUL L. HUTCHISON

REV. Dr. Rowland R. Lehman, '23, director of the Methodist Ministers Pension Plan for the Central Pennsylvania Conference, was elected president of the General Alumni Association at the annual meeting of the Alumni Council at commencement, succeeding Paul L. Hutchison, '18, '23L, who had been the president since 1945.

Russell R. McWhinney, '15, a lawyer of Pittsburgh, was elected vice-president. He succeeds Arthur J. Latham, '10, who had held the office for three years. C. Wendell Holmes, '21, secretary, and Glenn E. Todd, '12, treasurer, were re-elected.

At the same meeting Hutchison resigned from the Council to accept mail election as alumni representative to the Board of Trustees for a term expiring in 1953. This resignation and the death of Clinton DeWitt VanSiclen, '14, left two Council vacancies. These were filled by the election of Lewis F. Adler, '30, Harrisburg lawyer, and Henry B. Suter, '31, an attorney of Baltimore.

It was announced that the five alumni elected to the Council from the ten mail nominees for three-year terms ending in 1952 were as follows: Russell R. McWhinney; Mervin G. Eppley, '17, corporation executive of New York City; Rev. Dr. Charles F. Berkheimer, '18, Williamsport, Pa.; Mrs. Helen Douglas Gallagher, '26, Milburn, N. J., new president of the Dickinson Club of Northern New Jersey; and W. Richard Eshelman, '41, lawyer of Reading, Pa.

The Class of 1949 had elected William R. Valentine, Jr., York, as class representative for a three-year period.

Hutchison in retiring as president was cited for "very fine service" to the College and the Alumni Association by Dr. Gilbert Malcolm, '15, who said also that under Hutchison there had been a "grand improvement" in Homecoming and Commencement.

Dr. Lehman, the new president, resides in New Cumberland, Pa. He became director of the Ministers Pension plan of the Central Pennsylvania Conference last year after five years as superintendent of the Harrisburg District. He has been pastor of churches in Milesburg, Unionville and Northumberland. He is a trustee of the Methodist Home for Children at Shiremanstown, and has been on the Alumni Council for two years and is a member of Kappa Sigma. The College awarded him the honorary degree of doctor of divinity in 1943, 20 years after graduation.

From 1933 to 1937 he was chairman of the Emergency Relief Board of Northumberland County, having been appointed by Governor Pinchot. Later he became the executive director of a five-county relief area.

He is married to the former Miriam Gouldy. They have two children, Rowland R., Jr., a student in the College, and Miriam.

Heads Fraternity Committee

Dr. Amos B. Horlacher, dean of men, has been appointed chairman of the National Scholarship Committee of Alpha Chi Rho fraternity. A graduate of Wesleyan University in 1926 with Phi Beta Kappa honors, he received his S.T.B. from Union Theological Seminary in 1929, and in 1943 Wesleyan honored him with the degree of doctor of divinity. He is a member of the New York East Conference of the Methodist Church and served as a chaplain in the Navy throughout the war.

Nine More Lifers Raise Total To 826

SINCE the publication of the roster of Life Members in the General Alumni Association was published in the May number of the magazine, nine subscriptions have been received to raise the total to 826.

The first subscription in this period came when Miriam W. Blair sent in a check for $40 to enter the name of her sister, the late Elizabeth H. Blair, '09, as a memorial.

A few days later, a check came from Lewis F. Adler, '30, attorney of Harrisburg, Pa.

The Class of 1939, which has the largest number of Lifers, gained another name when Dr. Donald P. Bloser, physician of Enola, Pa., sent in his check for $40 on May 27.

The next subscription came from Mrs. Erick B. Berglund, the former Pamela L. McWilliams, '28, of Garden City, N. Y.

While he was on the campus for Commencement, Gilbert Schappert, '30, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., turned over his check for Life Membership.

A few days after his twentieth reunion, the Rev. Paul A. Friedrich, '29, pastor of St. Luke's Methodist Church, Long Branch, N. J., sent in his check for $40 for Life Membership.

The next day another member of the class of 1929 became a Lifer when a subscription was received from Dr. J. E. A. Bucke for the Rev. D. Perry Bucke, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Tyrone, Pa.

The first subscription in July came from Robert L. Myers, Jr., '17, attorney of Carlisle and Lemoyne, Pa.

The next day a $40 money order arrived from Leon M. Wingert, '49, of 1362 Club Avenue, Allentown, Pa.

Life membership costs $40 and may be paid if so desired in $10 or $20 annual installments. Checks should be made payable to Dickinson College and sent to The Dickinson Alumnus, West College, Carlisle, Pa.

Joins Gettysburg Faculty

Robert L. Bloom, '34, has been appointed a member of the faculty of Gettysburg College in the department of history and is now living at 201 Hanover Street, Gettysburg. After withdrawing from the College, he received his B.S. degree from State Teachers' College at Shippensburg in 1936 and an A.M. from Duke University in 1941. He has been doing his graduate work for a doctorate in history at Columbia University and expects to receive the degree in June, 1950. He graduated from the Carlisle High School in 1930.

Light Fast Squad Faces Eight Grid Games

IF Professor Ralph R. "Dutch" Ricker, starting his fourth season as head football coach, succeeds in reconstructing a line to go with a backfield that will have speed and depth, the season opening September 24 with Western Maryland on Biddle Field may produce better than an even break in the eight-game schedule.

The squad is light but fast, as the character of Dickinson teams has been so often in the past. There are only three players over 190 pounds, none over 200, on the 40-man varsity squad, 16 of them lettermen, which put in a week of preparatory practice before the term opened.

But lack of angus-shouldered candidates does not worry Coach Ricker and his staff so much as the need for rebuilding the line. Loss of Tom Guest by diploma and Richard Thompson by exhaustion of eligibility took last year's great guard duo. A blow was struck when five players, three of them ends, on whom much reliance was put, did not return to College and a fourth wingman, Steve Koblisch, co-captain last year, who is married and a father, decided to work after classes. As has been the case since the war, tackle is a team weakness.

The switch-back this Fall to the freshman rule after a lapse of seven years, removes the possibility of fresh manpower from the incoming class to help out in the line problem. Line strength may depend largely on the coaches' success in bringing along nine lineman up from last year's junior varsity and converting backs for chores up front. They look hopefully to Harry Towe and Walt From, seniors and the biggest of the linemen, and lettermen Roy Kreiger, Bill Zapcic, Les Weidner and Edward Ermak to carry much of the line burden.

The backfield situation has encouraged optimism. Here Coach Ricker has such holdovers as Jerry Miller, last year's leading scorer, who holds the College sprint records; John Mathewson, biggest of the backs and the hardest runner; Eugene Oyler, passer-quarterback; Oscar Meneses, John Lyter and Bill Falen. Mathewson, a sophomore, has apparently overcome the spine injury suffered in last Fall's third game which ended his services for the season. The coaches expect much from Wilbur Goebrecht and Charles Herber, sophomores, who were brought up to the varsity late last season for fine work with the jayvees and quickly made good.

Except for the replacement of Thiel by Western Maryland, opponents are the same as last year when Dickinson won three, lost four and tied one. By pre-season appraisal toughest on the card are Western Maryland, opening rival and a big team, F. and M. and Johns Hopkins.

Assisting Coach Ricker with the varsity are David Kirk, backfield coach, and Benjamin Coren, line coach. John Steckbeck, varsity trainer, is coaching the College's first freshman team since 1941. Fifty frosh prospects answered his first practice call.

The freshman schedule follows: Oct. 7, White Hill Industrial School, home; Oct. 14, Stevens Trade School, home; Oct. 21, Mercersburg Academy, home; Oct. 28, F. and M. frosh, at Lancaster, and Nov. 4, Western Maryland frosh, home. All are Friday afternoon games.

Publishes Fourth Volume Of Studies On Justice

COMPLETING a monumental work in which he has been engaged for more than a decade, Ruby R. Vale, D.C.L., LL.D., '96, distinguished member of the Philadelphia bar and trustee of the College, has recently published the fourth volume of his deliberative studies on Justice.

The book, which is titled "Justice Under Law and For Humanitarianism As Foundation of Society and Challenge of Civilization," was printed by the Press Democrat Publishing Co., Santa Rosa, Calif.

While there are many books on the various aspects of Justice, the four volumes of Mr. Vale as a whole constitute an approach to the study of human polity with psychological, sociological and economic approach to individual freedom and human justice. They are not books for the casual reader, but will challenge the thinking of scholars and those who are concerned with the problems of society and the aspirations of mankind.

The first volume of the series "Some Legal Foundations of Society" was published about seven years ago. The underlying idea of this book was to suggest a coalescence of the laws of nature and of man, which stem from the same evolutionary processes and result in similar uniformities of action in jurisprudence. It was followed by two other volumes to form the foundations of three theses on Understanding, Purpose and Conciliation as means of positive law and representative government.

The concluding volume, "Justice under Law and for Humanitarianism" summarizes, supplements and applies a philosophy of life relations which the preceding volumes consider in outline. It does not formulate an exhaustive philosophy of law, but in it, in the words of one reviewer, "Mr. Vale has made a profound and scholarly contribution—giving to mankind a new philosophy of law and government and an approach to remedial justice that may prove epochal."

In the foreword the author says that the publication of the volume "at this instant is impelled alone because catastrophic happenings in world affairs, basic changes in the political structures of governments and in the societal and economic aspects of civilization have induced this expression of convictions as the performance of a duty."

The attention of any reader will become riveted in two paragraphs which say, "Strange are the ways of inscrutable fate for formulating the scroll of human history. In the instant world crisis, the immediate future of mankind awaits the final decision of fifteen minds in autocratic mastery of Soviet Russia. If these leaders of the forces of totalitarian aggression, in zealotry or fear, continue to thwart the decrees of a world tribunal for universal justice or do not stop the use of methods of terror, purge and concentration camps against free thought, speech and action and persist in their threats and intimidations of violence in aggrandizement of world political and economic power to the global dominance of Russian arms, then indeed the nations of liberty and justice will cease to live as free peoples or they must defend to death the values of human culture and so preserve for civilization the everlasting things of the mind.

"They are not easy words to utter," the author continues "and they are written in the deep conviction that America, England and France are without choice and that the mind of the Slav yet will be animated by the aspirations of universal justice. Discerning the futilities of the resurgence of Marxist power and class wars, humanity may indulge the hope that Russia will join her former allies who, in enlightened self-interest, accept the conciliations of representative democracy for the arbitrament of those basic antitheses of life from which the civilization of man is never free."

The book is divided into twelve parts, some of which will stimulate the thought and hold the attention of a reader interested in that field. Lawyers will see the beginnings of the fundamentals of law and government, their development through the centuries and as applied to our present social and economic structures by the latest decisions of the Supreme Court. Business men will find chapters proving the interdependence of law and human relations, of government and the basic changes in industry and economy, and they will form the conviction that confiscatory taxation and capital-labor conflicts can be ended without violence, and that individual enterprise must be saved if democracy is to continue.

Ministers and educational and secular leaders will find especial interest in the chapter dealing with Justice and Religious and Educational Antitheses in Human Interests as it traces the rise and fall of justice in the rise and fall of religious faith in its many expressions through the centuries. They and all readers of the book will be gripped by the very last paragraph which crowns the volume in these words "America and the British Commonwealth as the leaders of the free governments of man and the hierarchies of all religions as seekers of the universal rule of the God of righteousness must now bear the heaviest burden world civilization has ever placed upon the loyalties or faiths of any peoples. The fate of mankind challenges these nations to stand armed and world religions to remain steadfast and unyielding in defense of the human freedoms and everlasting things the nation's organization is ordained to preserve—understanding, purpose and conciliation as the foundations of universal order, tolerance and justice under law and for humanitarianism."

Three Dickinsonians are mentioned by the author in his acknowledgments, J. Wesley Oler, '32, "for constructive suggestions on reading the manuscript"; Professor Joseph P. McKeehan, '97, of the Law School faculty and to his brother, the late E. Mode Vale, '87, for their work in reading the page proofs.

At Arch Street Church

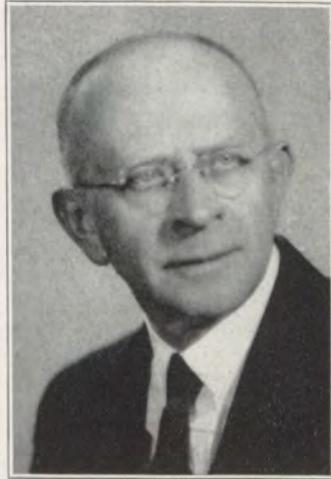

The Rev. John Alexander McElroy, '35, was appointed pastor of the Arch Street Methodist Church, Philadelphia, at the May session of the Philadelphia Annual Conference. He had been the minister of the First Methodist Church of Roxborough since 1947.

Following his graduation from the College in 1935, he received his B.D. degree from Drew Theological Seminary and earned the degree of master of sacred theology at Temple University. For many years, he has been associated with the Garden Spot Institute for Methodist Youth, serving first on its faculty, then as secretary of Life Service, and then as dean of the Institute, and he is now a member of the Commission. He is also a member of the Board of Ministerial Training and Qualifications, a member of the Board of Education of the Philadelphia Conference, the Philadelphia Missionary and Church Extension Society, and the Conference Education Society. The McElroys have three daughters.

Promote Two Faculty Members to Full Professor

MAY MORRIS

MULFORD STOUGH

TWO longtime members of the faculty of the College were raised to the rank of full professor by the Board of Trustees on the recommendation of President William W. Edell in June. They are Mulford Stough of the department of history and Miss May Morris, '09, librarian.

Professor Stough, who came to the College in 1925 as an instructor in history, had been associate professor since 1928. Miss Morris was named College librarian in 1927 and was given the rank of associate professor two years ago. Miss Morris is thus the second woman in the history of Dickinson to be raised to the highest academic rank; the first was Mrs. Josephine B. Meredith, '01, who was made professor of English in 1943 and is now professor emeritus.

A native of Cumberland Valley, Professor Stough was born in Shippensburg, Pa., and was graduated from the Shippensburg Normal School in 1907 and from Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va., in 1911. During the next 13 years he was in business, manufacturing buggies and operating fruit orchards. The illness of his first wife took him to the Southwest for a time.

In 1924 he entered the graduate school of the University of Pennsylvania and received a master's degree in the following year.

At Pennsylvania Professor Stough studied under Dr. St. George L. Sioussat and from Sioussat's great course on the expansion of the United States Stough derived some of the methods and points of view which made his own general course in American history at Dickinson one of the best known and most generally elected in the institution. Essentially a social and economic historian, Professor Stough makes history real for successive generations of students. In addition to his work in American history, Professor Stough teaches the history of modern Europe and the history of the British empire.

Last December Professor Stough suffered a mild stroke which required him to give up his teaching during the remainder of last year. As the new year opened this month, his physician thought it wise that he take another semester of convalescence. He hopes to be able to resume his work at the opening of the second semester in February.

One of Professor Stough's greatest services has been as a member of the Library Committee of the College. Professor Herbert Wing, Jr., excepted, Professor Stough was one of the first men on the faculty who had reserved book lists and required frequent reports on "collateral reading." As the Library's resources in those days were often limited, books had to be borrowed from other institutions.

In this and all other matters relating to the use of the library Miss May Morris has been not only cooperative but has displayed imagination and library statesmanship of the first order. Independent commission surveying the College have always singled out the Library for special praise.

Miss Morris, who was born in Delaware, studied library science at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, N. Y., and was on the staff of the library at Bryn Mawr College for a number of years before coming to Dickinson in 1927.

During the more than 20 years that Miss Morris has served as librarian, the book collection has almost trebled in size; borrowings per student have increased several times; the library building has been enlarged and the problem of its administration complicated. Each year Miss Morris, working with members of the faculty, has made the library an increasingly integral part of the academic work of the College.

Becomes An AXP

John Wesley Robb, instructor in the department of philosophy and religion, was initiated into the Phi Beta Chapter of Alpha Chi Rho at Dickinson College on June 4.

A native of California, he came to the College a year ago. He received his A.B. in 1941 from Greenville College, Greenville, Ill., and his master of theology degree in 1945 from the University of Southern California. During the summer he returned to California to continue his graduate work.

Kahler Unable To Coach

Arthur D. Kahler, former football coach at the College, who coached at Southwestern College, Winfield, Kan., after the war, has been forced to give up coaching as a result of an operation for removal of a brain tumor in May, 1948. He was hospitalized for 11 months.

On a visit to the campus in August with Mrs. Kahler, he said he had regained over 40 pounds and was slowly getting back his health. They plan to continue to reside in Winfield, where they own a home.

In July, Mrs. Kahler and their son, Conrad, who began his education at Dickinson, were in the same graduating class at Southwestern. Mrs. Kahler has taken a teaching position in the high school at Oxford, near Winfield.

Their other son, Daniel, who was married in the Spring, is a senior at Southwestern this term. He is starring in sports, as his brother did.

Gene Beck Seriously Hurt

Eugene Beck, '49, of 4 North Virginia Ave., Atlantic City, may be paralyzed for life as the result of a fall on a wooden jetty while he was on duty as a lifeguard at the shore resort in August. He is now in a plaster cast from the chest down at the Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, where he is a patient.

According to the first reports he may have suffered a severed spinal cord when he slipped on the jetty while warning a group of children away from the structure. The 24-year-old former paratrooper, who had made a number of jumps while in the Army service during the war, had been a member of the Beach Patrol for eight years. He graduated from the college last June and had expected to enter the Law School this month.

For the past two years he was captain of the college swimming team. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Form Another Alumni Club in California

The Dickinson Club of San Diego was formed in that city at a dinner meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. while President William W. Edel was at work on the Ten Year Development Program in California during the summer months. Meetings were also held by the clubs in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Dr. Fred M. Uber, '26, who is engineer in charge of the U. S. Navy's electronic laboratories at San Diego, was elected first president of the new club. Robert S. Plummer, '42, who is in the west coast office of the Fidelity & Casualty Company of New York, was chosen secretary-treasurer.

Earlier a dinner meeting of the Dickinson Club of Southern California was held in the Chapman Park Hotel, Los Angeles, when Hewlings Mumper, '10, was elected president in succession of Robert W. Heffelfinger, and Joseph S.

Stephens, '26, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

On July 19, the oldest of the California clubs met at a dinner in the Whitcomb Hotel in San Francisco where they had been called by Joseph Z. Hertzler, '13, secretary-treasurer. At that meeting the Rev. Frank E. Flegal, '03, who is associated with the Goodwill Industries was named president while the Rev. Lewis D. Gottshall, '22, was elected vice-president.

President Edel was the speaker at all of the dinners, to which he was accompanied by Mrs. Edel and on each occasion the movie "John Dickinson—His College" was shown. Mr. J. Wesley Robb, instructor in the department of philosophy and religion, who was in Los Angeles doing graduate work at the University of Southern California, attended the Los Angeles dinner and was a speaker.

Named Theological Professor

Rev. Dr. Jacob A. Long, '25, for the past seven years secretary for city and industrial work of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions, on January 1 became Margaret S. Dollar professor of Christian social ethics at San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo, California.

After graduating from Dickinson College, Dr. Long was in business for several years before entering the ministry. He took his theological training at Princeton Seminary and subsequently earned the degrees of master of arts and doctor of philosophy from Columbia University. He served 12 years in pastorates in Pennsylvania, and was for several years executive secretary of the Presbytery of Philadelphia North before joining the Board of National Missions.

He is the author of several books, the last, entitled The Church in City and Industry, having been published in 1945.

Persian Grad Found Alive

Faloullah A. Hoosmand, '38, who was a foreign student at the College in 1935, wrote in June from Teheran, Iran, that he was "quite surprised" to learn about his reported death during the war. He had just been informed of the report in a letter from the College which contacted him through an address obtained from the Iranian Embassy.

He wrote that he received an M.A. in education at Teachers College, Columbia University, in 1939 and a Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh following study there the next year, that he is now a full professor of education at Teachers College of the University of Teheran, has been married six years and has a son, Keyhan. It is his great wish, he wrote, to educate the son in the United States.

He had had no opportunity, he stated, to write from Iran during or after the war but had constantly thought about the College. He wrote: "I am a real Dickinsonian and proud of it."

Three Classes Present Gifts At Commencement

CLASS OF 1924 PRESENT PORTRAIT

Prof. E. A. Vuilleumier, Prof. Horace E. Rogers and Edward J. Gayner

AT what was hailed as the largest of all the annual alumni luncheons, a portrait of Dr. E. A. Vuilleumier, a member of the faculty since 1920 and dean of the College from 1933 to 1947, was presented to the College in June by the Class of 1924. Other gifts were $3,500 from the Class of 1919, $750 from the graduating class and a watch once carried by James Buchanan, the gift of Dr. Lynn H. Harris, '06, head of the English department at Southeast Missouri State College.

After an introduction by Edward J. Gayner, Class president, the portrait presentation was made by Dr. Horace E. Rogers, Dr. Vuilleumier's associate in the department of chemistry, who said the Class of 1924 claimed Dr. Vuilleumier as its own because he and the class had arrived at the College together and he had married the class valedictorian, the former Frances E. Smith.

Painted by Wilbur Fiske Noyes, of Boston, who has done many other portraits for the College, the painting shows Dr. Vuilleumier seated in a chair and holding a test tube. With his customary wit, he noted in acknowledging the tribute that "it proves a 'man of distinction' can have a test tube in his hand."

The Class of 1919 gift, presented by Thomas C. Mills, consisted in part of subscriptions from individual members to the Development Program, and $2,500 of it was earmarked for dedication of a room in the proposed women's dormitory. In presenting the 1949 Class gift, James Hunter, vice-president, said that with this start the graduating group hoped some day to provide a new gateway for the Benjamin Rush campus.

The Buchanan watch was presented to President Edel through the Alpha Chi Rho chapter. Dr. Harris, the donor, who was not present, was one of the founders of the chapter. Dr. Edel said the watch, acquired by Buchanan, Class of 1809, while he was Ambassador to Russia and presumably carried by him in the White House, will be added to other Buchanan items in the Dickinsoniana collection. Walter Weylman, '50, made the presentation for Dr. Harris and the chapter.

The Ravens Claw Award, a cup, was presented to Dr. Gilbert Malcolm by George Heffner, '48, who said the vice-president of the College had "devoted his life to Dickinson." The award, established last year, is presented annually to an individual closely associated with the College in recognition of outstanding service over a period of years.

Paul L. Hutchison, '18, presiding, introduced Dr. Rowland R. Lehman, '23, as his successor as president of the General Alumni Association. In a recognition of older alumni and reunioning classes, Dr. Malcolm introduced John M. Rhey, '83, only member there of the earliest class represented; Russell T. Boswell, '84; Dr. Edward S. Gifford, '91, and three members of '93, George W. Kessler, Jr., Dr. Morris Wooden, J. Henry Baker and J. Banks Kurtz. Singled out for having traveled the farthest distance were Fred R. Johnson, '09, Denver, Colo., Mrs. Florence Strock Bickley, '14, Madison, Wis., and Edward J. Gayner, 3d., '24, Brunswick, Ga.

In concluding the luncheon with informal remarks, Dr. Edel, noting the record attendance, said that the Development Program has stirred up increased interest in the College. He remarked, "Our interest in the College grows as we work for it."

German Exchange Student Died In Combat

Jurgen von Oertzen, '34, who had been a German exchange student at the College, lost his life on August 21, 1941, in the battle at Riga. The death is the first of a foreign student in the war to come to the attention of the College.

The word was received in July from an uncle, Dr. Detlof von Oertzen, of Rostok, Germany. His letter was addressed to Judge Dale F. Shughart, '34, who had written to classmates last spring urging attendance at their 15th reunion at Commencement. Postal authorities had forwarded the reunion letter to Dr. von Oertzen.

Jurgen's widow, Mrs. Elizabeth von Oertzen, and their son and daughter, live in Gevelinghausen bei Bestwig im Sauerland, British Occupation Zone.

The uncle wrote: "I often spoke with Jurgen about his life in the U. S. A. and therefore know with what affection and gratitude he looked back on this period and all the good comrades that he had there. He had returned to Germany enriched in body and soul."

Attend Triennial Meeting

Dr. Herbert Wing, Jr., and Dr. Horace E. Rogers, members of the faculty, and Dr. Craig R. Thompson, '33, of the faculty of Lawrence College, served as the three delegates from the Dickinson College chapter at the Triennial National meeting of Phi Beta Kappa held at the University of Wisconsin early this month.

Promoted at Penn State

Dr. A. Witt Hutchison, '25, was appointed administrative assistant to the dean of the department of chemistry at Pennsylvania State College in June. He became a full professor there last February.

Tests Child Abilities To Learn Foreign Language

MISS ELINOR G. DERR, '44, had a key role in a much-publicized experiment conducted at the University of Maine this summer by the romance languages department to test a theory that younger children learn foreign languages more readily than at high school age, before the inhibitions and frustrations of adolescence have a harmful effect on learning habits.

While attending the university's summer school Miss Derr was the instructor of a French class of 23 children between eight and 12 years with whom she met daily for six weeks. She had been chosen by Dr. Wilmarth H. Starr, of the department, because of her experience in teaching both the younger child and the high school pupil and to further her search for material for a children's course in French. No textbook at the desired age level was available, so Miss Derr chartered a course of her own devising, which in itself was regarded as a considerable contribution to the experiment.

She made full use of wire and disc recorders and record players to enable the children to observe their faults in pronunciation by hearing themselves. With French the only spoken word, a game called "Merci," like bingo, was played to liven up study, and the geography of France was taught to supplement the speaking and writing of French. Emphasis was placed on speaking French and understanding it. Charts were kept on each child's progress.

Miss Derr found that the children had no inhibitions on pronunciation and that they learned more easily and quickly than the high school age. Especially did they reproduce sounds more accurately. In this respect the eight-year-old children excelled the 10- and 12-year-olds.

Miss Derr has studied at University of Maine for the past three summers toward a master's degree in romance languages. Following graduation from Dickinson she taught a year at Easton, Md., and since then has been teaching French and English in the high school at Carlisle, where she resides with her parents. Richard E. Derr, '42, Buffalo, N. Y., is a brother.

Law School Trustees Plan For New Dormitory

Judge W. Clarence Sheely, '26L, of Gettysburg, Pa., was reelected president of the Board of Trustees of the Dickinson School of Law at their annual meeting in June. George W. Lloyd, '01L, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., was reelected vice-president; while Paul A. Koontz, '35, '38L, former district attorney of Bedford County, Pa., was named secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of John D. Faller, Sr., '07L.

Judge Dale F. Shughart, '34, '38L, of Carlisle, and Ellwood F. Kirkman, '25L, president of the Boardwalk National Bank of Atlantic City, N. J., were elected members of the Board to fill vacancies.

The Board gave its dormitory building committee full authority to obtain architectural plans for the construction of a 12-unit dormitory adjoining Trickett Hall. The committee was instructed to obtain plans preparatory to asking for bids. No date for the start of construction was fixed. Meanwhile the campaign to raise $350,000 for the dormitory building was authorized to be continued.

Former Governor Arthur H. James, '04L, of Plymouth, Pa., spoke at ceremonies in Trickett Hall when the Law School received a stone from one of the Inns of Court, London, which was damaged during the war. The stone is the gift of the Corpus Juris Society. It was placed in the wall of Trickett Hall.

Grant Graduate Scholarship to Chinese Student

An newly-created $400 scholarship from the Dickinson chapter of Phi Beta Kappa and gifts of cash from co-eds and faculty are helping Miss Lan-Ying Lin, Chinese exchange student, who graduated last June at the head of the record class of 220, to finance graduate work at University of Pennsylvania this term.

With very limited funds, Miss Lin had entered Dickinson last fall from Foochow as a senior. Important financial help from sources beyond the campus on which she had counted failed to materialize. By commencement the quiet Chinese girl was without funds. But she had won the affection of the campus by her modesty, classroom brilliance, and burning desire to obtain a doctorate in America.

Co-eds with whom she lived in Old East gave her $75 and personal effects as graduation presents. Faculty members and other campus friends contributed to a fund for her. The Phi Beta Kappa chapter initiated her at its commencement meeting and then gave her $400. It was the first financial help given to a student since the chapter was chartered in 1887. These and other gifts made it possible for Miss Lin to accept a tuition scholarship from Penn for graduate study in physics this term.

Delaware Club Dinner

The tenth annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Delaware was held in the duBarry Room of the Hotel duPont in Wilmington on May 12 with 55 present.

Dr. William Frederick Dunkle, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, Wilmington, was the principal speaker. Other short addresses were made by Dean Russell I. Thompson, Dean W. H. Hitchler, Robert H. Richards, '95, and Professor Benjamin D. James. Clement Wood, retiring president, acted as toastmaster.

Dr. C. E. Wagner, '14, was elected president and three vice-presidents were named for New Castle, Kent, and Sussex counties, namely, Clarence A. Cover, '26, Howell O. Wilkins, '44, and Dr. Oliver A. James, '29, Mrs. Mary Prince Caum, '35, was re-elected secretary, and Leslie H. Glickman, '27L, treasurer.

To Attend Installation

R. T. Mutzabaugh, '23, attorney of Bradford, Pa., will serve as the representative of the College at the installation ceremonies of the Very Reverend Juvenal Lalor as president of St. Bonaventure College at Olean, N. Y., on September 22.

Makes Gift To China

A gift of $31,300 has been made to the United Board of Christian Colleges in China from the estate of the late Dr. Julia Morgan, '11, for some years a professor in the medical school at Chee-loo University in Tsinan, China. The fund was designated for the medical education of Chinese women and may be used either in China or in the United States.

Dr. Julia, who died on January 26, 1948, was the daughter of the late Dr. James Henry Morgan and Mrs. Mary Curran Morgan. She served for many years as a missionary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church.

Elected to Phi Beta Kappa

Dr. Carl C. Chambers, '29, professor of electrical engineering at the University of Pennsylvania, who was acting dean of the University's Moore School of Electrical Engineering last year, was elected to honorary membership by the Dickinson chapter of Phi Beta Kappa at its commencement meeting. He was on the campus for the 20th reunion of his Class.

Eleven Faculty Members Receive Promotions

HENRY E. SMITH

J. CLAIR McCULLOUGH

ELEVEN members of the College faculty were promoted by the Board of Trustees on the recommendation of President Edel in June. Two were made professors, six associate professors, and three assistant professors.

Mulford Stough, associate professor of history, who has been a member of the faculty since 1925, was made a full professor. Miss May Morris, '09, librarian since 1927, who had held the rank of associate professor was advanced to that of full professor. On another page the ALUMNUS reports these promotions more fully.

The six new associate professors represent as many departments. With one exception, all have joined the faculty of the College since the war and have seen not more than three years' service at Dickinson.

Professor Henry E. Smith, '11, who has been a member of the faculty since 1941, when he came partly to direct a wartime defense education program, was made associate professor of physics. Professor John C. Pflaum, who is also dean of the class of 1950, was made an associate professor of history. He came to the College in 1946 from Western Reserve Academy, Hudson, O., after earlier service at Temple University and the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

Professor John R. Embick taught chemistry and geology when he first joined the faculty in 1946. But student interest in geology has grown so great because of Professor Embick's enthusiasm for his subject, that he now devotes all his time to the work of that department. Professor James Clair McCullough, '09, was named assistant professor of education in 1947 after a long career in public school work. He was made associate professor of education in June.

Professor Stacy E. Eaton was named assistant professor of romance languages in 1946. He had been a teacher in Western Reserve Academy and is completing work for his doctorate at Laval University in Quebec. He was promoted to the rank of associate professor of romance languages. The last appointment to the rank of associate professor was that of Dr. Milton E. Flower, '31, who had been assistant professor of political science and is now associate professor of fine arts.

STACY E. EATON

He received his master's degree in 1938 at Columbia University and his doctorate in history there in 1946, when he joined the College faculty.

Three men were named assistant professors. Mr. Joseph B. Smith had been an instructor in the department of history since 1946. He is a graduate of Harvard University, has done advanced work at Yale, the University of Michigan, and the Johns Hopkins University. He will receive his master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania in February. He is continuing work for his doctorate there this year. Mr. Daniel A. Zaret, a graduate of Moscow University and student at Madrid who has taught Spanish and Russian at the College in the last two years. His rank is that of assistant professor of modern languages.

Bob Lee Mowery was named catalogue librarian in 1947 with the rank of instructor. He is a graduate of Catawba College in North Carolina and is doing graduate work at the University of Chicago, where he has already received the degree of bachelor of library science. He remains catalogue librarian with the rank of assistant professor.

MILTON E. FLOWER

Heads Youth Conference

The Rev. Wilton J. Dubrick, '31, pastor of the Methodist Church of Waverly, N. Y., was dean of men of the Northeastern Regional Youth Leadership Conference held on the campus August 22 to 29. Over 100 selected Methodist young people from 19 annual conferences in 12 Eastern states and Puerto Rico attended. They were the sub-district, district and conference officers of Methodist Youth Fellowships.

The facilities and cordiality of the campus so impressed the group that they elected to hold the conference at Dickinson again next August. In the past the conference was held at a different college each summer.

Makes Gift to the Library

Lester G. Roskam, of Philadelphia, has made a contribution of $500 in the name of his son, Richard H. Roskam, '49, for the purchase of books for the American History room in the College Library. A special selection has been made by members of the department of history to provide many unusual volumes for this collection.

Political Science Students Observe City Government

RESULTS derived from a "field trip" to York, 32 miles from the campus, made last January by his class in city government and administration, are described by Walter H. Niehoff, of the political science department, in the March-April issue of the bi-monthly magazine published by the League of Cities of the Third Class in Pennsylvania.

The one-day trip was planned and the program set up by Niehoff with the active cooperation of Mayor Felix S. Bentzel and other York officials, to give the students opportunity to observe at first hand the normal daily operations of principles studied in the classroom and to encourage them to look for good points in government as against the student tendency to seek out the corrupt and inefficient. Niehoff, who in April was elected to the executive board of the Pennsylvania Political Science and Public Administration Association, states that good local government is among a state's greatest assets. York was chosen for the trip because of its high rank among third class cities. Classes from Muhlen-berg and Penn State Colleges participated.

Heads of all city departments addressed the students on problems of their particular domain. Juvenile delinquency, city planning and zoning and property assessments were studied. Utilities, parks and playgrounds were visited. Among trip results noted by Niehoff in the article, entitled "Good Government in Pennsylvania," were greater student interest in regular class work, better integration of theory and practice and observation of techniques not generally covered in textbooks.

In addition, Niehoff observes, it gave a convenient method of emphasizing major topics discussed in the classroom and provided the student an opportunity to observe at first hand the desirability of city administration as a career. "But the most gratifying and revealing achievement," he states, "was the realization among the students that good government does exist in every community, and in abundant supply, if only one looks for it."

OBITUARY

1890—The Rev. William Lincoln Orem, aged 87 years, a retired member of the Baltimore Methodist Conference, who served in Maryland churches for 24 years, died on August 18 at the Methodist Home for the Aged in Washington, D. C.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Orem began his ministry in 1889 in Southern Maryland after studying at Dickinson College for two years. He was a member of Sigma Chi fraternity and the U. P. Society. He served churches at Taneytown, Forestville, Baltimore, and West Falls, all in Maryland, as well as at Congress Heights, D. C., but it was necessary for him to retire in 1913 because of chronic ill health.

His widow, a daughter, a son and a sister survive. Funeral services were held on August 20 at Chevy Chase Methodist Church, near Washington, D. C., by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. C. H. Richmond, and interment was also in Washington, D. C.

1896—Charles Tyndale Evans, a leader in industry and in religious and fraternal affairs in Titusville, Pa., for nearly three decades, died at the hospital there of a heart attack on May 13. A vice-president of the Universal-Cyclops Company, he was well known as a metallurgist and for his contribution toward the development of stainless steel. A former educator and one-time assistant head master of the Hill School, he was a 33rd degree Mason and an elder in the First Presbyterian Church at Titusville and superintendent of the Sunday School for nearly 28 years.

Born on July 14, 1872, in Glenmore, Pa., he attended the Pinegrove High School. Following his graduation from the College in 1896 with an A.B. degree, he taught three years in Centenary Collegiate Institute, Hackettstown, N. J., before going to the Hill School in 1901. He graduated from the college with Phi Beta Kappa honors and received his A.M. in 1898 and after attending the University of Pennsylvania a year, he entered Harvard University from which he received his A.M. in 1901.

He moved to Titusville in 1918 when he became an official of the Cyclops Steel Company where he did development work on stainless steel which led to his receiving several patents. When the Universal-Cyclops Steel Corporation was formed in 1935, he became vice-president and director of the new organization and became general manager of the Cyclops Division. In 1946 he retired as general manager but retained his other offices until his death.

A member of S. A. E. fraternity, he was also a member of the American Society for Metals, American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, a member of the board of directors of the Titusville Chapter of the American Red Cross, and of the Titusville Hotel Corporation and Country Club. He was a Past Master of Titusville Lodge, No. 754, F. & A. M.; Past High Priest of Aaron Royal Arch Chapter, No. 207; Past T. I. M. of Occident Council, No. 41, Royal and Select Masters; Past Commander of Rose Croix Commandery, No. 38, Knights Templar; and a Past Master of the Venango Lodge of Perfection, Oil City. He was a member of Pittsburgh Consistory and received the 33rd degree September, 1930.

He is survived by his widow, a son, Charles T. Evans, Jr., of Belmont, and a sister, Mrs. Howard Smith, of Pottstown.

1904—The Rev. Dr. John J. Snively, retired Methodist clergyman, died on August 27, the day after he suffered a heart attack while mowing the lawn of the Grace Methodist Church Parsonage, Southington, Conn.

Dr. Snively had been appointed supply pastor at Grace Church upon his retirement last May from the pulpit of the First Methodist Church, Waterbury, where he had served ten years. From 1932 to 1938, he was superintendent of the New York District of the New York East Conference.

Born in Quarryville, Pa., on January 1, 1881, he prepared for college at Franklin and Marshall Academy in Lancaster. He graduated from the College in 1904 with Phi Beta Kappa honors. He received his M.A. from the College in 1907 and he graduated with the B.D. degree from Drew Theological Seminary and that year entered the New York East Conference. During his ministry, he served churches in New York City and in Connecticut. The College conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of divinity in 1934 at his 30th class reunion. He was a Mason and a member of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity.

He is survived by his widow, the former Miss Ada May Kauffman, of Rawlinsville, Pa., and a daughter, Miss Helen Snively, of New York.
