Select Architect For New Dormitory For Women

CARRYING out the directions of the Board of Trustees given at the meeting in December, a special committee is at work considering the erection of the new dormitory for women and earlier this month selected Sidney E. Martin, of Philadelphia, as the architect.

Merle W. Allen, of Carlisle, is chairman of the committee of which the other members are S. M. Drayer, of Baltimore, Samuel M. Goodyear and Frank E. Masland, Jr., both of Carlisle, and S. Walter Stauffer, of York, who is also chairman of the committee on grounds and buildings. Boyd Lee Spahr, president of the Board; President William W. Edel and Vice-President Gilbert Malcolm are members ex officio, while George Shuman, Jr., treasurer of the college, is secretary of the committee.

The Building Committee was authorized by the Board to secure plans, specifications, and bids and also to select the site for the new building. The recommendations of this committee will then be presented to the Board for its approval. It is likely that the work will be expedited in time for the committee's report to be presented to the Board at the annual meeting in June.

It was Mr. Martin who prepared the first proposed plan for the new dormitory and drew the sketch of the building which has been printed in various pieces of literature used in the Ten Year Development Program effort. From the outset a number of the Trustees felt that this plan would entail too great an expenditure. It was first contemplated to build one unit at a cost of approximately $500,000 and to eventually complete the whole structure at a cost of more than $1,000,000. Feeling that these costs would be prohibitive, Mr. Martin was asked to suggest other plans and he has made rough drawings of two other proposals.

The Committee will recommend that the building be constructed of native limestone and be built on the Rush Campus facing College Street at a cost of $500,000 to $600,000. Mr. Martin has said that a building can be erected for this sum to house 120 women students in double rooms and with adequate dining facilities, social rooms and provision for all the needs of a modern dormitory.

Realizing that placing a building on the Rush Campus entailed consideration of the whole development of that tract, the committee first studied a number of proposed layouts prepared by the late William W. Emmart, of Baltimore, who served as the college architect for years. In 1932, Mr. Emmart made a topographical survey of the Rush Campus, then known as the Mooreland Tract, and presented seven proposed layouts, three of which have now been selected by the committee.

The Baird Biological Building is now the only college structure on the Rush Campus. The Law School owns an acre to the north of its building on which a dormitory is planned for students of that school. It is contemplated that in the years ahead the college should erect the women's dormitory, then a building housing an auditorium, possibly a new science building and another classroom building and a small chapel on the Rush Campus. The Committee feels that Mr. Emmart's plans provide well for all of these sites.

In recent months various Trustees as well as members of the Building Committee have visited other colleges and universities where new dormitories for women have been erected or are now in construction. A great deal of information and literature has been gathered for the consideration of the committee. Mr.

Martin has been the architect for a number of the colleges in the Philadelphia area and has had great experience in this specialized field of construction.

Former College Architect Dies In 81st Year

WILLIAM WIRT EMMART, Baltimore architect who with the late Lemuel T. Appold, '82, played a major role beginning about 1920 in the establishment in the words of President J. H. Morgan of "an artistic standard" for the college, died suddenly on December 31 in his 81st year. He was the past generation's leading spokesman for far-sighted Baltimore city planning.

It was Mr. Emmart who carefully studied and prepared the plans for Memorial Hall and the restoration of West College as it stands today. He also designed most of the class memorial gateways, the flagpole given by 1910 and 1912's lighting standards. He drew the plans for the Alumni Gymnasium, the changes in the President's House, the alteration of the Baird Biological Building, the rebuilding of East College, and alterations at Metzger Hall and Conway Hall. His last work at the college was in conjunction with Sidney E. Martin, Philadelphia architect, in the rebuilding of Bosler Hall.

Mr. Emmart also completed a topographical survey of what is now called the Rush Campus, known best to alumni as the Mooreland tract, where the new dormitory for women will be erected and where other buildings will be placed in the years to come.

His vision of the Baltimore of the future, incorporated in a survey of blighted areas drawn up in 1934, involved covering the Fallsway and railroad tracks in the area and building underground parking facilities and instituting vast changes in the layout of the shopping district and eliminating slums. So far, much of this planning has turned out to be little more than a vision in Baltimore.

More substantial monuments to his career exist today in the numerous churches, schools and library buildings, which he designed in Baltimore. The late Mr. Appold was associated with Mr. Emmart on the Board of the Baltimore Museum of Art and it was this friendship that brought about his selection as architect of Memorial Hall in Old West in the early twenties.

Born in Baltimore, Mr. Emmart worked in several architect's offices after finishing his formal schooling and prior to 1920 worked for Joseph Evans Sperry, Baltimore's then leading architect. Afterward Mr. Emmart was in business for himself until his death.

He planned Bonnie Blink, the home for aged Maryland Masons at Cockeysville, Maryland, and just recently the corner stone of its infirmary was laid.

Mr. Emmart held membership in the Baltimore Engineers' Club, the Torch Club, in many Masonic bodies, in the American Institute of Engineers and in the Methodist Church. He was a regular attendant at the annual dinners of the Dickinson Club of Baltimore.

He is survived by a brother, Charles L. Emmart, and by two daughters, Dr. Emily Emmart Trueblood, the wife of Professor Charles K. Trueblood of American University of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Dorothy Dempster of Redwood City, California. Mrs. Emmart, who was a medical doctor, died some years ago.

The funeral was held at a Baltimore funeral establishment and the Rev. Robert H. Parker, the pastor of Northwood-Appold Methodist, which Mr. Emmart planned and saw dedicated a year ago, was the officiating minister at the funeral service. Burial was in Loudon Park cemetery in Baltimore.

Named President of Drew Seminary for Young Women

THE Rev. Dr. John M. Pearson, '18, director of the Pension Fund and a former district superintendent of the New York Conference of the Methodist Church, was elected president of Drew Seminary for Young Women at Carmel, N. Y., in December. He entered upon the duties of his office on January 1.

Drew Seminary for Young Women was established in 1866 under the auspices of the Methodist Church. It is a boarding school for the junior grades.

The year after he became the superintendent of the New York District of the New York Conference, Dr. Pearson received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from the College at the June, 1940, Commencement. Following his graduation in 1919, he attended Columbia University and received the B.D. degree from Drew Theological Seminary upon his graduation in 1923. That year, he entered the New York Conference, first serving as an assistant pastor at Christ Church in New York, and then as pastor at Bedford Hills and Dobbs Ferry. Following his term as a district superintendent, he became pastor of Washington Square Methodist Church in New York City until he was named director of the Pension Fund of the Conference.

Born in Hurffville, N. J., on December 25, 1896, Dr. Pearson graduated from the Glassboro, N. J., High School and entered the College in 1914. He is a member of Alpha Chi Rho Fraternity and is also a member of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Church and a trustee of Drew University.

Dr. Pearson married the former Ruth Stewart, of Delaware, Ohio, a graduate of the Ohio Western University, on September 2, 1922. They have a daughter, Margaret Joan, born May 26, 1926.

Named United Council Chairman

Mrs. Alfred M. Chapman, the former Sara M. McCrea, '21, of Washington

JOHN M. PEARSON

Crossing, Pa., was appointed chairman of the Christian Social Relations Department in the United Council of Church Women on December 24 by Mrs. Harper Sibley, Council President.

The United Council represents 10,000,000 church women of 83 Protestant denominations across the country.

A member of the National Council of the Episcopal Church, Mrs. Chapman was assistant presiding officer at the church's Triennial meeting in San Francisco last September, has served as parliamentarian for the women of her church at two Triennial meetings and for the United Council's National Assembly in Milwaukee in 1948. In 1947 she was the first chairman of the National Executive Board of the Episcopal Women's Auxiliary ever re-elected to a second term.

Confirmed at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church in New York in 1929, Mrs. Chapman was a vice-president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church in the diocese from 1932 to 1941, and also served as chairman of the women's group of the New York Federation of Churches.

Appointed To Important Post In Germany

APPPOINTMENT of Dr. James Morgan Read, '29, Director of the Foreign Service Section of the American Friends Service Committee, as Director of the Division of Educational and Cultural Relations for the High Commissioner of Germany, was confirmed in December by Clarence E. Pickett, Executive Secretary of the American Friends Service Committee.

Dr. Read, who assumed the post soon after January 1, is serving as advisor for higher education, secondary and primary education, as well as adult education, community activities, religious affairs, women's and youth activities and welfare work.

In making the appointment, Mr. Ralph Nicholson, Director of Public Affairs of the High Commissioner's Office, issued the following statement: "We think Dr. Read is one of the best qualified men in the United States for this undertaking. The High Commissioner and his associates are happy in having been able to persuade him to take the position. He has so many of the essential qualities which make him eminently fitted for the job: Fluency in the German language, knowledge of the German scene, present and past, a deep sense of mission, and demonstrated administrative ability.

"His educational background, including Doctor of Philosophy degrees from the University of Chicago and the University of Marburg in Germany, study at the University of Berlin, and his experience at the University of Louisville, is evidence of his high standing and ability as a scholar and educator.

"The High Commissioner and his associates are deeply grateful to the American Friends Service Committee and to Clarence E. Pickett, its Executive Secretary, for releasing Dr. Read for this task. He comes from an organization that still enjoys in Europe today the enviable position that it gained after World War I."

Besides directing the far-flung relief and rehabilitation activities of the Friends Service Committee, Dr. Read has had considerable experience in the Committee's School Affiliation Service, International Student Seminars and Institutes of International Relations. In 1945 he spent several weeks in Germany for the Committee, making an intensive study of conditions of food, clothing, housing and health of the German people. He also spent considerable time in Germany in 1948.

Prior to his association with the Friends Service Committee, Dr. Read served as Professor of History and Chairman of the Division of Social Sciences at the University of Louisville. He is author of several books including Europe—1870-1918, Atrocity Propaganda 1914-1919, and numerous magazine articles.

Named "Man of Year"

Nathan W. Stuart, '38, '41L, attorney of Williamsport, Pa., was presented with the Williamsport Junior Chamber of Commerce second annual "Young Man of the Year Award" at a dinner on January 28 at the Lycoming Hotel, Williamsport.

The award was given to him for his leadership and service with the blind in the Williamsport area. He served as president of the Upper Susquehanna branch of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind during 1948 and 1949.

Married and the father of three children, Mr. Stuart resides at 381 Lincoln Street, Williamsport. His practice of law there was interrupted during World War II by service overseas with the army.

Named Compensation Referee

Howard G. Stutzman, '28, '30L, attorney of Pottsville, Pa., was appointed a workmen's compensation referee by Governor James H. Duff, of Pennsylvania, in December.

Becomes Full Professor at Thirty-Six

NOT many months after his thirty-sixth birthday, the Rev. Dr. William Kerstetter, '36, was promoted to the rank of professor of philosophy at Baldwin-Wallace College last September, where he had been a member of the faculty since 1946, the year he returned from service as a chaplain with the Army Air Forces.

Into his thirty-six years, "Bill" Kerstetter, as he is known to his fellow Dickinsonians, has already crammed the accomplishments of several lifetimes. He has won honors as a student, a number of varsity letters as a star athlete, while he has worked with the Bell Telephone Company, served as a pastor and a director of religious education, then soldier, and as a teacher, while also finding the time to write many magazine articles and book reviews.

Born in Lykens, Pa., on April 25, 1913, Dr. Kerstetter graduated from Girard College, Philadelphia, as salutatorian in his class in June, 1930, and then was employed by the Bell Telephone Company until he entered the College in 1932. He was captain of the basketball team, co-captain of the baseball team, a member of Phi Kappa Sigma and Omicron Delta Kappa Fraternities. While at the College, he was student pastor of the Methodist Church at Blain, Pa., and also assisted the minister of Allison Church in student work.

He graduated Magna Cum Laude from the Boston University School of Theology in 1939 and was awarded the Jacob Sleeper Fellowship and then the Kent Fellowship by the National Council on Religion in Higher Education for 1939, 1940, and 1941. During four of those years, he was a part time director of religious education in the United Church of Norwood, Mass., and then served from 1942 until he entered the army in 1943, as pastor of the Hull Methodist Church. He served as a chaplain with the Army Air Forces from 1943 to 1946 in Arizona, Japan, and the Philippines holding the rank of captain and was command chaplain for the Fifth Air Service Area Command.

Upon his return from the service, he was named chairman of the department and associate professor of philosophy at Baldwin-Wallace College, Berea, Ohio, and since 1947, has been director of religious life. He was promoted to the rank of professor last September.

The Philosophical Forum published his article, "Locke's Capitalistic Economy and Human Freedom," in the Spring of 1943 and this was followed by "John Locke's Conception of Freedom" published by the Boston University Graduate School the same year. Since then, he has contributed many articles to Zion's Herald, the Christian Advocate, the Christian Century, and the Journal of Bible and Religion, some of which have been reprinted in other publications.

Mrs. Kerstetter is the former Leona Frances Bateman, of Norwood, Mass., who studied at Boston University and the New England Conservatory of Music. The Kerstetters have two children, William Edward Kerstetter, Jr., born April 13, 1944, and Laura Lamson Kerstetter, born May 2, 1948.

Death Claims Pennsylvania Supreme Court Justice

ASSOCIATE Justice Marion D. Patterson, '05L, of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, who received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the June, 1940, Commencement, died suddenly of a heart attack in Philadelphia on January 6.

A former Blair County District Attorney, Judge of the Common Pleas Court there and at one time mentioned for the governorship, Justice Patterson was widely known throughout Pennsylvania.

He broke political precedence and set a record never matched in Blair County political history when he first won the office of district attorney over a field of seven candidates and then was thrice re-elected, serving for a total of sixteen years as district attorney. He was first elected judge of Blair County Courts in 1927 and was re-elected ten years later, each time defeating the late Robert A. Henderson, '94L.

A life-long republican, Justice Patterson, in the Spring of 1934, was one of the unsuccessful aspirants for the republican nomination as candidate for governor of Pennsylvania.

In the election of 1939, he was chosen for the 21-year term as a justice of the Supreme Court and assumed his place on the bench on January 2, 1940.

Born on October 20, 1876, at Williamsburg, Pa., he attended a private school and then became a school teacher at the age of 19 and taught for six years. He then began the study of law but finances compelled his withdrawal from the Dickinson Law School and he later graduated from the University of Pittsburgh.

He was a member of the firm of William F. Gable Company, a large department store in Altoona for the past fifteen years and was a vice president and a director of the store and took an active part in the management.

A member of the First Presbyterian Church of Hollidaysburg, he was a Mason and a Past Master of Juniata Lodge of Hollidaysburg. He was also a member of Bloomsburg Consistory, Jaffa Shrine, Mountain Commandery of Knights Templar, and the Altoona Court of Jesters. He held membership in the Union League of Philadelphia, the Scotch-Irish Society of Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Society of New York, the Sons of the American Revolution and Delta Chi Fraternity.

He also held memberships in the Judicature Association, the American Bar Association, the Pennsylvania Bar Association and the Blair County Bar Association.

On June 23, 1925, he married Gertrude Gable Stewart, who survives. He is also survived by a son, Marion Dean Patterson, Jr., of Philadelphia, and a step-daughter, Mrs. Frances Stewart Logan, wife of George T. Logan, of Philadelphia, and by three brothers, President Judge George G. Patterson, of the Blair County Courts, James T. Patterson, of Hollidaysburg, and J. Carl Patterson, of Williamsburg.

Resigns at Lebanon Valley

Andy Kerr, '00, who never played football but became one of its greatest coaches and strategists, resigned on February 11 as head coach at Lebanon Valley and announced that he would not accept a new coaching position again.

The "dean" of Eastern coaches said his only future contact with football would be the annual Shrine East-West charity game, of which he has been a coach for 23 years. He retired to his home in Hamilton, N. Y.

Kerr went to Lebanon Valley in 1946 after resigning as Colgate head coach, a post he held for 17 years. He has also coached at Pittsburgh, Stanford and W. and J. He developed the double spinner and was a pioneer of the lateral pass and other razzle-dazzle techniques.

Oldest Trustee of College Dies In 92nd Year

JOHAN M. RHEY, '83, '96L, a practicing attorney in Carlisle for over half a century, a trustee of the College and one of its oldest alumni and a founder of the Library Guild, died on February 8 in Carlisle Hospital after a brief illness. He was 91 years old.

He had entered the hospital from his home, half a block from the campus, after a severe head cold brought on complications. In recent years he had been confined to a wheel chair as the result of a fall, but this handicap had not dimmed his intense interest in the affairs of the College or the community.

He was the last of a trio of warm college friends whose devotion to their alma mater was expressed in many benefactions in their lifetime. Like Lemuel T. Appold, '82, and Charles K. Zug, '80, the other members of this "triumvirate", Mr. Rhey had never ceased in his love for the College.

He was first elected to the Board of Trustees in 1920 and at his death was the secretary of the executive committee of the Board. He helped found the Library Guild in 1903 and was one of its original directors, a post he continued to serve for many years. Himself a frequent and generous contributor, he saw the Guild's fund grow from a few hundred dollars to its present $50,000.

Mr. Rhey was a life member of the General Alumni Association and a former member of the Alumni Council.

In tribute to the man and in recognition of his devotion to Dickinson, a number of his friends presented an oil portrait of him to the College at the 1946 commencement. It hangs in Bosler Hall.

Mr. Rhey was born August 9, 1858, in Ebensburg, Cambria County, Pa., the son of John Sylvester and Anna Mac-Feely Rhey. The family moved to Carlisle when he was two years old. He attended the local public schools and at his death was believed to be the oldest alumnus of Carlisle High School.

JOHN M. RHEY

It was not until after he had been out of college for some years that he decided to enter the field of law. Graduating from the Dickinson School of Law in 1896, he began to practice that year. Prior to that he had been the official reporter of the county courts for several years and from 1897 to 1906 was the journal clerk of the Pennsylvania State Senate. He was the district attorney from 1908 to 1911 and he also served a term on the school board but these were the only public offices he ever held.

He was president of the County Bar in 1939. The profession held him in high esteem and on his 88th birthday he received a scroll bearing the signatures of all members of the Bar.

Mr. Rhey identified himself with every worthwhile community enterprise. He helped organize the old Carlisle Oratorio Society and was its president for eight years. He was an organizer and trustee of the Community Chest, president of the Y. M. C. A., an incorporator and long a director of the J. Herman Bosler Library and for many years an officer of the local historical association. Over a period of 60 years he held one or another lay position in the Second Presbyterian Church. He was the oldest living past master of St. John's Lodge, No. 260, F. and A. M.

A simple funeral of his own arranging was held in his church, with President William W. Edel, the Rev. Charles H. Davis, pastor, and Rev. Dr. Glen M. Shafer officiating. Burial was in Westminster Cemetery.

Becomes Pastor in Cincinnati

After serving for six years, the Rev. Clarence E. Miller, '33, resigned as pastor of the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Lebanon, Pa., last month to become pastor of the First Lutheran Church in Cincinnati.

Going to the Ohio city on a special assignment from the Board of American Missions "to establish Christian work" in a downtown area, the Rev. Mr. Miller will also fill the pastorate of the Lutheran Church there.

When he resigned, he was president of the Ministerial Association of Lebanon, a member of the Kiwanis Club, chaplain of the Rescue Hose Fire Company and active in the council of Social Agencies.

A native of Harrisburg, he graduated from the College in 1933 and from the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg in 1936. He spent a year as a student at the University of Strasbourg and two years at Union Theological Seminary. Before going to Lebanon, he served a pastorate at Downingtown, Pa.

His wife is the former Naomi Gibson, '36. She was program chairman of the Women's Missionary Society of the Church; teacher of the Leadership Training Class of the Bible School; president of the Women's Missionary Union of Lebanon for two years; and secretary of the Lancaster Conference Missionary Society, of which Lebanon is a part.

They have three children, Carol, 8; Paul, 6; and Lois, 4. Their new address is 1677 Rose Place, Bond Hill, Cincinnati 37, Ohio.

Heads Oklahoma City Schools

Dr. Fred W. Hosler, '20, who was superintendent of schools at Allentown, Pa., from 1942 to 1948, is superintendent of schools in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Transferring from Dickinson College, he graduated from Pennsylvania State College in 1921, received his M.A. degree from Columbia University in 1931 and the degree of Doctor of Education there in 1938.

From 1921 to 1932, he was a teacher and principal at various Pennsylvania schools and then from 1934 to 1940, was dean of the Canal Zone Junior College and then from 1940 to 1942, was chief of the Public Service Institute, Harrisburg, Pa.

Last year, he published "The Challenge of School Board Membership" and he has been a frequent contributor to various educational journals. He is a veteran of World War I, having served in the Chemical Warfare Service with the 80th Division and on one occasion spent seven months in Europe with several leading Americans, including Vice President Barkley, Senators Wheeler and Cutten, and Charles Taft, II.

He is a member of S.A.E. Fraternity and various Masonic bodies, the Kiwanis Club, Phi Delta Kappa, and Delta Kappa Phi. In 1921, he married Grace Seely, of Benton, Pa., and they have one child, Wen Hosler.

Form Law Firm

Three Dickinsonians have recently formed a law firm of Hurwitz, Klein & Meyers with offices at 301 Keystone Building, 22 South Third Street, Harrisburg, Pa.

Solomon Hurwitz graduated from the College in 1926 and from the Law School in 1928; Macey E. Klein graduated from the Law School in 1928; and I. Emanuel Meyers graduated from the College in 1937 and from the Law School in 1940.

Writes on Religious Child Training Programs

AS A DICKINSON student in the mid-thirties and later as a public and church school teacher, Lois Eddy McDonnell, '35, had no thought of becoming an authority in the religious education field or, least of all, a writer for children and their teachers. Today she is both, although she modestly claims only a passion for teaching and a love for children.

For 12 years she has been writing pupils' books and teachers' manuals for the church school and also articles and stories for church magazines. The center of all her writing is the religious training of the child in the home and in the church.

She lives in Carlisle with her husband, Fred V. McDonnell, '37, who is secretary-treasurer of the Carlisle Trust Company, and their two children, Mary, who is five, and Milton Eddy, three. The son is named for his grandfather, Dr. Milton W. Eddy, head of the biology department at the College. Not infrequently photographs taken by Dr. Eddy, a camera enthusiast, are used to illustrate his daughter's articles and books.

After graduating from the College in 1935, Mrs. McDonnell spent the next year earning a master's degree at Columbia in childhood education, a training she put to use as a public school teacher in Carlisle and as a Primary Department worker in the Allison Memorial Methodist Church.

She gave up school teaching six years ago, but her interest in the church school deepened and widened and for some years she has been the superintendent of the Primary Department. She gives liberally of her time and experience to summer workshops for teachers and laboratory work in child education. Her frequent association with church editors and writers at these workshops and laboratories was, in fact, the beginning of her writing.

They liked her effective manner with children and her teaching skill, and in their search for stimulating, instructive stories for children and fresh teaching and guidance helps for parents and teachers persuaded her to write for their publications. "Until then I had never thought of writing", Mrs. McDonnell has said.

Articles and stories began to appear in church magazines. Soon also she was writing church school textbooks for children and teacher's manuals. Typical of the books are "Children and Churches in Latin America" and "Children of the Congo", which are used for missionary education, and "Friends At Home and In the Community", for the vacation church school.

Three years ago Mrs. McDonnell was one of eleven writers chosen to prepare the new Primary Closely Graded Courses for use in the Methodist and Congregational Churches. The first of these texts came out last October. She has done four units for this series.

She is presently doing a vacation school book for the Abingdon-Cokesbury Press for publication in 1951. The Christian Home will carry one of her articles in the April issue. Child Guidance has published a number of her articles. Pictures and Stories is another magazine for which she writes.

Continuous contact with children has enriched her writing and makes it possible for her to test out her suggested teaching helps during the process of writing.

"I've always loved children and teaching", Mrs. McDonnell remarks, "but my writing has, like Topsy, 'just grown'."

To Present Two Portraits

Portraits of President William W. Edel and the late Dean Montgomery P. Sellers will be presented to the College on Alumni Day, June 3 by reunion classes.

The Class of 1915 meeting in the 35th reunion will present the portrait of President Edel, who is a member of that class. It will be hung in the President's Gallery in Old West.

The Class of 1925 celebrating its silver anniversary will present the portrait of "Monty" Sellers.

Wilbur Fiske Noyes, noted Boston artist, has been commissioned to do the two portraits and is now at work on them. He was also recently commissioned by the Cumberland County Bar Association to paint a portrait of the late Judge Fred S. Reese, member of the Dickinson Law School faculty, which will be hung in the Cumberland County court house.

Former Faculty Member Dies

Dr. Francis A. Waterhouse, from 1930 to 1935 professor of romance languages and chairman of the department at Dickinson College, died suddenly last November 30 at Daytona Beach, Florida, where he resided.

He graduated at Harvard in 1905 and received his master's there the next year and a Ph.D. in 1910. He headed the department of romance languages at Kenyon just prior to coming to Dickinson in 1930. He had taught earlier at Dartmouth, University of Pennsylvania, University of Texas, and Hamilton. Later he taught at Stetson University and for two years was president of the Jacksonville Junior College.

Dr. Waterhouse wrote two books, "Our Education Racket" and "Albert Sidney Johnson and the Battle of Shiloh," and at the time of his death was engaged in writing a book of reminiscences of his school days in Paris, Geneva and Berlin.

He is survived by his wife, Marie M. Waterhouse, and two daughters, Mrs. Gilbert F. Ransley, '38, Madison, Wis., and Mrs. Eric Williams, '38, Mariano, Cuba.

Wins Time's Praise

James R. Shepley, '39, chief of Time magazine's Washington bureau, won praise from rival journalists and Time publisher James A. Linen for two important Washington news "beats" in January.

He "scooped" all other publications with the story that the Joint Chiefs of Staff had decided to dispatch a military mission to Formosa and that the President has asked the Cabinet to produce an affirmative Asia policy for a meeting of the National Security Council. The next week Shepley was the first to report that the President had reversed the Joint Chiefs of Staff on the Formosa decision and to give the details of Secretary Acheson's new program for Asia.

"A magnificent job of reporting" was the manner in which Shepley's enterprise was described by a New York Herald Tribune newsman. Publisher Linen in the January 16 Time used two columns with Shepley's photo to give details of the "scoops," which he said were "due to nothing less than old-fashioned, doorbell-ringing reporting."

Jim, who lived in Camp Hill during his days at Dickinson, had an early start in journalism, having worked for the Harrisburg bureau of the United Press and Harrisburg papers while attending college.

Coaches Laud Goldstein as All-Time Great

GLLEN S. "Pop" Warner, one of the great football coaches of all-time, who is known personally to many Dickinsonians for the years he spent in Carlisle as coach at the Indian School, has placed Hyman Goldstein, '15, '17L, among the outstanding quarterbacks he knew in his long and intimate association with the game.

Warner was talking football recently at his California home with one of his former Stanford players, Edward Walker, a Philadelphia lawyer and close friend of Simon F. "Si" Pauxtis, Dickinson coach in 1911 and 1912.

Commented football's "Old Fox:" "One of the outstanding quarterbacks was a young fellow at Dickinson named Goldstein who played under 'Si' Pauxtis. In addition to being a star kicker, passer and ball carrier, he had the rare qualities of fine judgment and generalship."

That appraisal by a noted coach who saw all of the great ones in an active career spanning four decades comes as no surprise to Goldie's campus mates who saw him lead Dickinson to many a victory in a period when the College played many of the big teams in the East, nor to "Si" Pauxtis, his old coach.

When Pauxtis, now a Philadelphia lawyer, heard Warner's praise he glowed with pride in his old quarterback. He exclaimed: "I am especially pleased because it so nicely expresses my own estimate of my 1911 and 1912 quarterback. I have often said that Goldie rates at the top of all the quarterbacks I coached in the 35 years I devoted to coaching." Pauxtis coached at Penn and other schools after leaving Dickinson.

Warner had ample opportunity to observe the Dickinson quarterback, for the College in those days scrimmaged the Indians at least once a week and also engaged them in regular games. The period was one of the most colorful in Dickinson gridiron history.

HYMAN GOLDSTEIN

The fleet and rugged Goldstein was also one of Dickinson's greatest catchers and went on to quite a baseball career in the old Tri-State, Blue Ridge, North Carolina and Atlantic Leagues.

Goldie today is just as erect and trim as he was in his playing prime. A successful law practice in Carlisle and a highly respected position in the community would indicate that he has never lost those "rare qualities of judgment and generalship" which so impressed "Pop" Warner so long ago on the gridiron.

“Bulwarks of Defense”

THE FOLLOWING ARTICLE BY DR. WILLIAM DRUM GOULD, PROFESSOR OF PHILOSOPHY AND RELIGION AT THE COLLEGE, APPEARED IN THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. THE INDEPENDENT CHURCH-RELATED COLLEGES, STATES DR. GOULD, CONTINUE TO COUNTERACT FORCES THAT WOULD DESTROY DEMOCRACY.

TODAY more than one-third of all our colleges and universities are related in some way with one or another of our Protestant denominations. To be sure, many of these schools are relatively small, with an enrollment of 1,000 students or fewer. But there is no doubt about their secure place in American education. And that prompts the question: Why?

In endowment and equipment the large university is far ahead. Yet, even in times of depression, as in times of prosperity, our smaller church-related colleges have continued to flourish. Again: Why?

Any investigation shows, first of all, that there is something characteristically American about the small college related to the church. Harvard, William and Mary, Yale and Princeton all began as small church schools, and they have had a profound influence on American life. They, and others like them, have set the pattern.

Furthermore, our church-related colleges have trained more than their share of our American leaders—in business, in the professions and in public life. To give examples by killing a fraction of the roll would be to omit some who ought surely to be named.

Then there is the fact that, from the standpoint of Christian education, the church-related college enjoys a number of advantages of its own. Its restricted enrollment makes it possible for a personal relationship between teacher and student. Here there is a chance for faculty members to treat the undergraduate as a bundle of possibilities, with his own peculiar doubts and problems, standing in need of friendship and encouragement. The development of personality can be placed at the center, with all other values considered a means to this end.

This means quality rather than quantity in education.

In some places there is a tendency to over-emphasize useful knowledge at the expense of liberal knowledge, but not in the small church-related college. True enough, utilitarian education has made a great contribution to human happiness, but it is not the whole of education. So, the church-related college places stress on the real art of living.

While preparation for one's vocation can never be forgotten, the church-related college is even more concerned about providing its students with a broad cultural training. As a matter of fact, there is a danger in vocational training for specific professions, for students frequently change their choice of careers while in college.

Teachers at church-sponsored colleges believe that it is far more important to teach students how to live than how to make a living. Such a college has no desire to turn out a standardized product of information and intelligence. It proceeds on the basis that personality cannot be standardized. It encourages the student to think for himself, believing that once a man has learned to think clearly and correctly, he can in large measure educate himself. In fact he is the only one who can do it!

Each student should be encouraged to study himself and adjust himself to the universe. He needs instruction in the romance of living. Courses in philosophy and history are offered to furnish him with an understanding of life's meaning.

Through a study of music, art and the humanities, there is a ministry to his emotions. He can, for a time, forget the mere utilitarian and be thrilled by the voice of Homer or Dante or Shakespeare. He can learn with Ruskin that there are few pleasures in life greater than "the mighty joy that is to be found between the covers of a great book." And all this is part of the task of the church-sponsored college.

Furthermore, the church-related college recognizes a responsibility to the youth who needs to be awakened to an interest in knowledge and in himself. It frequently happens that the one who does not "come to himself" until late in his college career develops into an influential man of affairs. To exclude or neglect this type of student would be a mistake. True, he cannot be trained as a scholar, but he can be awakened and stimulated to make a man of himself.

But a cultural education, leaders in our church-sponsored colleges believe, does more than teach men and women how to live. It has its distinctively practical values. It was Pres. William J. Tucker of Dartmouth college who pointed out that, while Germany's educational system produced scholars and England's system produced cultured gentlemen, the emphasis in the United States was on qualities of leadership.

Surely we should not minimize the ideal of scholarship. Nor should we neglect the ideal of the cultured gentleman. But, above all else, we are interested in the cultivation of character and leadership, and that requires cultural training.

While cultural training does not prepare the student for any specific vocation, it does give him a valuable general preparation for whatever vocation he may enter. It must be conceded that the most successful men in any vocation are the men with marked creative abilities. And the greater the number of reaction mechanisms established, the more creative the individual will become. Now it only stands to reason that the man with a well-rounded education will have a greater number of ways of reacting than the man who has been educated only along specific lines.

In addition to the exaltation of personal values, the church-related college aims to interpret the commonplaces of life in their spiritual significance. Of course, we realize that science is not Methodist, that mathematics is not sectarian, and that piety cannot be substituted for scholarship. Yet, while insisting upon complete academic freedom, leaders in church-related colleges also recognize the fact that, even in the laboratory and classroom, the personality of the instructor may stimulate faith and hope, or the opposite. Vital Christianity in a teacher colors all he teaches, even mathematics and science.

We believe that, in these days when a humanistic philosophy is exercising such great influence, it is the opportunity of the church-related college to bring to its students a theistic and spiritual interpretation. We live in a changing world and must adjust ourselves to it, but it is also well to remember that fundamentally human nature has changed but little with the centuries, and that spiritual realities remain the same.

In too many colleges religion is regarded as but one department of knowledge and often of subordinate importance. Courses given in this field all too frequently fail to carry a positive conviction. Pres. William Preston Few put it well when he said that each college "ought to be a home for idealism, a place where youth can bask in the sunshine of life, in the sunshine of hope, in the sunshine of idealism."

Now the only way to put Christianity into life is to make it live in persons. The church-related college is not satisfied merely to discourage moral lapses. It seeks to build up a positive character which will prevent such lapses and provide the student with an incentive to noble living. The instructor has a moral as well as an intellectual responsibility. He is expected to be a wholesome example of Christian manhood.

The church-related college also exalts service as an objective. It expects its graduates to be a blessing to the world, not selfish exploiters. We would measure the worth of our college, not only by the ideals it gives its students, but also by the part they play in the great forward movements of mankind. No calling is overcrowded with men and women of great character and vision. It is the task of the church-related college to develop such men and women and send them out to serve.

Democracy is deeply rooted in the Christian faith. Only where Christian influence has been at work do we find a substantial faith in the worth of the individual, and only as Christian faith becomes strong can democracy be expected to survive.

Ever since their founding, our independent church-related colleges have been a bulwark of defense against all kinds of threatening philosophies and systems. Today they are needed as never before.

Law School Graduates 48

The Dickinson School of Law graduated a class of 48 seniors, including 16 former students of the College, at the annual mid-year dinner held on February 3 at the Hotel Hershey for members of the graduating group, their parents and wives and alumni. Nearly 300 persons were present.

The address was delivered by Dr. Harvey D. Hoover, dean of the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Gettysburg. Dean Walter H. Hitchler presented the seniors for diplomas, which were awarded by Judge W. C. Sheeley, president of the Board of Trustees. President William W. Edel, who made the invocation, and Dr. Gilbert Malcolm were present from the College.

All but two members of the class were war veterans, and one was a woman. Alumni of the College in the class were: Salvatore John Avena, '48; Joseph Anthony Barlock, '48; Bernard F. C. Brominski, '47; Edward Vincent Cherry, '51; E. Charles Coslett, '49; George F. Douglas, Jr., '50; William George, '48; Oliver N. Hormell, '48; Robert E. Horner, '47; Thomas Hampton Lane, '47; Thomas

Edward Munce, Jr., '39; Warren H. Spencer, '48; J. Eugene Stumpf, '47; John L. Sweezy, Jr., '48; Charles Russell Welsh, Jr., '49, and George Fleming Young, Jr., '49.

Works Beyond Retirement

To Dr. John F. L. Raschen, German scholar and honorary alumnus of the College, the Goethe bicentennial meant an unusually busy year and also one of honors.

Early last year the Thrift Press of Ithaca, N. Y., brought out his translation of Goethe's Faust which has found favorable acceptance. He was called on to deliver lectures at several universities and colleges in connection with the Goethe celebrations and in June he received the honorary degree of L.H.D. from Baldwin-Wallace College.

Dr. Raschen has been a lecturer at the University of Michigan since his retirement at the University of Pittsburgh after 35 years of teaching. Dickinson gave him the honorary degree of Litt.D. in 1912.

To End Terms In Congress

Robert F. Rich, '07, a trustee of the College, who has been a member of the House of Representatives for nearly 20 years, announced last month that he will retire from active politics with the close of the Eighty-First Congress. Now 66 years old, Mr. Rich said that his decision was based on reasons of health and his desire for a vacation after 15 years without one. He and Mrs. Rich plan an extended sojourn in Florida and California.

A resident of Woolrich, Mr. Rich has extensive manufacturing and banking interests there. He is a prominent Methodist layman and the president of the board of trustees of Lycoming College. In 1942 Dickinson gave him the diploma he missed by leaving College before graduating. He has been a Dickinson trustee since 1917.

Bishop Hughes, Trustee and Methodist Leader, Dies

DR. Edwin Holt Hughes, Trustee of the college since 1932, honorary alumnus, retired Bishop of the Methodist Church and former president of DePauw University died in Washington, D. C., on February 12 at the age of 83.

He was awarded the degree of Doctor of Laws at the 1940 Commencement, at which he was the speaker. He was then senior Bishop of the Methodist Church.

He was Bishop of the San Francisco area, 1908-16; Boston, 1916-24; Chicago, 1924-32, and Washington, 1932-40. He retired in 1940, but was called back twice. In 1942 he again served the Washington area for two years, upon the death overseas of Bishop Adna W. Leonard, and later he was Bishop of the Wisconsin area for six months in 1948.

Dr. Hughes, who had occupied a lecturer's platform in many universities, published his autobiography, "I Was Made a Minister," in 1943. He was the author also of "Letters on Evangelism," "Thanksgiving Sermons" "The Teaching of Citizenship," "A Boy's Religion," and "The Bible and Life."

Born in Moundsville, W. Va., he was the son of a Methodist Bishop, the Rev. Thomas B. Hughes. He was ordained in 1892 and was pastor of churches in Newton Center and Malden, Mass., before assuming the DePauw presidency.

Dr. Hughes attended West Virginia University, Iowa College and Ohio Wesleyan University, from Ohio Wesleyan receiving an A.B. in 1889, an A.M. in 1892 and a D.D. in 1904. Boston University conferred on him a degree of Bachelor of Sacred Theology in 1892, Syracuse University, a Doctor of Sacred Theology degree in 1903 and DePauw an LL.D. in 1908. He was president of DePauw from 1903 to 1908, the year he was consecrated a bishop in Baltimore.

An advocate of prohibition, he was a leader in the fight against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment in the early Thirties. While at DePauw he was a member of the Indiana State Board of Education and president of the State Teachers Association of Indiana. Dr. Hughes was a moving spirit in the merger in 1936 of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Protestant Church.

His wife, the former Isabel Ebbert, died in 1938.

He leaves five children, Mrs. Walter S. Harban of Chevy Chase, Md., with whom he had lived for twelve years; Mrs. William H. Remy and Francis M. Hughes of Indianapolis; Ebbert M. Hughes of San Marino, Calif., and Dr. Edwin H. Hughes Jr. of Paul Smiths, N. Y.

District Attorney In Clearfield

From law maker to prosecutor of law breakers. Joseph A. Dague, '35, '38L, made the transition last month on becoming the district attorney of Clearfield County after three terms as Representative in the Pennsylvania General Assembly.

He had won the Republican nomination for the office in a primary election that was strictly a Dickinson "family affair," for his rivals were William C. Chase, '26, '29L, and John B. Gates, '38, '43L. All three live and practice in the town of Clearfield.

Dague, who has his offices in the Clearfield Trust Company Building, has been practicing law for 10 years, six of which saw him representing his district in the General Assembly. He was first elected Representative in 1942 and re-elected in 1944 and in 1946.

As a member of the Clearfield County Republican executive committee, he is one of the political leaders at home. He is a member of the Methodist Church and a Mason and, of course, belongs to the county and Pennsylvania Bar Associations. Phi Kappa Psi is his college fraternity.

Seeks Pennsylvania Governorship

Charles S. Williams, '26, '29L, judge of the Common Pleas Courts of Lycoming County since 1944 and a former district attorney of that county, announced last month his candidacy for the governorship of Pennsylvania after the Lincoln Club of Williamsport had unanimously adopted a resolution urging him to run.

The announcement was made in Williamsport at a Lincoln Day dinner attended by 600 persons, including many prominent Republican leaders in the northern part of the state. Judge Williams has been a public figure since the early days of his practice. He was a United States Commissioner from 1931 to 1935, then was elected district attorney and re-elected in 1939. Four years later he was elected to the judgeship.

The son of a Methodist minister, Judge Williams financed his education by working as a newspaper reporter and sports editor on a Harrisburg newspaper while attending the College and the Law School. His work made it necessary for him to commute nightly between that city and the campus.

Basketball Team Continues To Win Games

THE basketball team, with a record of eight victories and three defeats at the three-quarter mark on the schedule, appears to be headed for a successful season. Return games with such strong opponents as Gettysburg, Albright and Bucknell remained to be played when this issue of THE ALUMNUS went to press.

The campaign has been marked by the brilliant offensive play of Capt. Weston Overholt, senior forward, who has an average of 17 points per game, and William Zilling, a sophomore playing his first varsity season, whose 19-point average is tops for the team. Between them they contributed 404 of the 727 points amassed by the team in the first 11 games. Ziling's 26 points against Juniata is the best one-game individual effort.

The team, which usually employs the zone defense, has a per-game scoring average of 66 points to 65 for the opposition.

After the opening game defeat by Wagner, 44-39, the team took the next three, against Bucknell, 60-56, Western Maryland, 70-57, and Allegheny, 66-58, before bowing to Virginia, 79-62, early in January in the first appearance by any Dickinson team in Charlottesville. Zilling had 25 points in this lost cause.

Then came a four-game winning streak. F. and M. was defeated, 66-58, but a great fourth-period rally in which the team overcame a late 11-point deficit was needed to stiffen Albright, 73-71. Johns Hopkins was an easy victim at Baltimore, 72-58, and when Juniata was subdued, 73-69, on its small floor, Dickinson appeared to be ready for the big test with Gettysburg at Gettysburg. The Bullets' indifferent 9 and 5 record was disappointing to their followers who had been expecting a banner year on the basis of pre-season forecasts. But against Dickinson they finally caught fire and in an amazing demonstration of accurate shooting sped to a 95 to 66 victory. Gettysburgians said it was by far the best game played by their team. The victor's total set a record for this old court rivalry.

Coach Kennedy's varsity rebounded from the Gettysburg reversal to sink Elizabethtown, 80 to 72, later in the week at Carlisle.

The freshman team (yearlings have been ineligible for the varsity for the past two seasons) is turning out to be a strong one. Since opening game defeats by Carlisle Barracks and Bucknell frosh, the team has lost only once, to F. and M. frosh, and is currently on a six-game winning streak, victims of which have been Albright frosh, West Nottingham Academy, Juniata junior varsity, Mercersburg Academy, Gettysburg frosh and Elizabethtown junior varsity. William Stark, Camden, N. J., leading scorer, is averaging 22 points.

Seven Game Schedule

Gettysburg is one of seven opponents on the 1950 football schedule as arranged by Director of Athletics Charles "Chick" Kennedy. With the exception of Drexel and Allegheny, all of last season's opponents will be met again this Fall.

Four games will be played on Biddle Field, including a November 4 meeting with Gettysburg. Other home opponents will be Grove City, F. and M. and Juniata.

Although competing in other sports, Dickinson and Gettysburg have not met in football since 1942. The Athletic Council in December, 1948, authorized games in 1950 and '51.

The 1950 schedule: Sept. 30, Grove City, home; Oct. 7, F. and M., home; Oct. 14, Ursinus, away; Oct. 21, Western Maryland, away; Oct. 28, Juniata, home; Nov. 4, Gettysburg, home; Nov. 11, Johns Hopkins, away.
