College Trustees Look to the Future

THE largest and costliest building program ever undertaken at one time in the history of the College was adopted at the winter meeting of the Board of Trustees held at the Union League in Philadelphia on January 23. The program envisions the erection of three buildings on the Benjamin Rush Campus at the earliest possible date and perhaps also a central heating plant near South College.

The largest unit of the program will be a Student Activities Building, which might be called a hall or auditorium building, though it will be the student center. The second large building will be a new chemistry building and the third a new dormitory for men to be a companion piece to Drayer Hall, the new women's dormitory.

The new dormitory for men will be built if funds can be secured through a Federal agency, or other sources, and the cost of erection will be amortized over a period of 40 years from room rentals.

It appears that the first unit to be built must be the new chemistry building. This is true because in the plans for the development of the Rush Campus, the Student Activities Building would be placed where a part of Baird Hall now stands. This means that Baird Hall, which houses the biology department, must be razed. When the new science building is completed, the chemistry department and possibly also the physics department will move in and the biology department will move into the Tome Scientific Department which is now used for chemistry, physics and geology.

While the chemistry department's facilities were extended in Tome a few years ago when the old museum space was made into a modern laboratory, the present space is not large enough for the increasing number of science students. All the new equipment in the chemistry laboratories could be reinstalled in any new building.

When the new science building is completed and the departments housed in their new locations, it will be possible to raze the Baird Building and begin the erection of the Student Activities Building. That structure will provide a main auditorium with a seating capacity for the whole student body and the faculty, which means from 1,000 to 1,200 seats. It would also have a dining room and kitchens for from 400 to 500 persons so designed that it could be divided into smaller rooms. It would also provide a large lounge and meeting rooms for student use and offices for the various student activities such as the Dickinsonian, and the Microcosm.

The auditorium would be used for "chapel" but would not be designed primarily for worship services, as the long range plan for the development of the Rush Campus includes a chapel. It would have a large stage suitable for dramatic productions, glee club, choir and orchestral concerts. It would also be equipped for sound and silent movies for entertainment and instruction.

Because of the loss of the College Commons by storm damage, the condemnation and razing of that building, the college now lacks proper dining facilities for men students, who do not eat in fraternity houses. This raises the imperative need for a large dining room in the Student Activities Building. It is also expected that with enrollment at a high level there will be an increasing need for these facilities. This year, these men students are eating at the Snack Bar in South College or at various restaurants in town.

When the Student Activities Building is completed, the present Chapel in Bosler Hall will become the reading room of the library and all of Bosler Hall will be used for library purposes. The present reading room there will become a stack room to provide greatly needed space for new books. At the present time, there is no available storage space in the library, which now holds about 100,000 volumes and at the moment it is often necessary to discard an old book to make room for a new one.

All of the new buildings on the Rush Campus, when erected, will be built of native limestone, conforming with Old West, East, the Alumni Gymnasium, Bosler Hall, South College and Drayer Hall. What they will cost can only be very roughly estimated until plans are drawn and bids asked. Officers of the College believe the Student Activities Building will cost from $700,000 to $900,000 and that the new science building will cost from $300,000 to $500,000. A men's dormitory would likely cost about $500,000.

The plan for the development of the Rush Campus places the new science building between Drayer Hall and the Sadler Curtilage, the Law School Dormitory along College Street. The Student Activities Building would face northward with its front on a line near the southern end of Drayer Hall and extending backward where Drayer Hall now stands. The proposed chapel would adjoin this along Mooreland Avenue on the west side of the Rush Campus, and the men's dormitory would be built in the northwest corner opposite the Beta House. In the rear of the new science building and the student activities building there would be a large parking area for automobiles.

The Trustees face another difficult problem in whether to erect a central heating plant or not. An engineering firm has made a detailed study and recommended that the present plant be relieved of its load by the erection of a new plant adjoining South College, which would supply heat for the buildings on the south side of Main Street. Based on this study, the Buildings and Grounds Committee reported that this would cost $200,000. Staggered by this report, the Trustees have asked the committee to make further studies and to consider the installation of separate units for the buildings to be heated. Further action on this question will be taken when these studies are completed.

Sydney Martin, Philadelphia architect, who was the architect for Drayer Hall and some years ago was associated with the late William W. Emmert, in the rebuilding of Bosler Hall, has been engaged as the architect for the Student Activities Building, and the new science building. His firm started work immediately after the meeting of the board.

Trustees Elect Officers

Frank E. Masland, Jr., '18, was elected vice-president of the Board of Trustees of the College, and Dr. George Henry Ketterer, '08, was elected secretary at the winter meeting held at the Union League, Philadelphia, on January 23.

Mr. Masland, who is president of C. H. Masland & Sons, carpet manufacturers of Carlisle, was named to fill the vacancy created by the death of J. Henry Baker, '93, on January 7.

Dr. Ketterer succeeded Dr. William C. Sampson, '03, of Upper Darby, who resigned the post because of his health.

Plan New York Dinner

The Dickinson Club of New York promises a "bigger and better" program for the annual dinner on Friday night, April 23, in Stauffer's Restaurant, 5th Avenue and 44th Street, N. Y. C.

George M. Davey, '25, Staten Island, club president, announced that the executive committee, which is laying the plans, is shooting for a record attendance and will accord special recognition to two outstanding N. Y. alumni.

Trustees Give Green Light to Alumni Directory

GRANTING the request of the Alumni Council, the Board of Trustees agreed to underwrite the costs of printing a new directory of the living alumni at its winter meeting in the Union League, Philadelphia, on January 23.

The printer's bill will likely be about $5,000. This will be paid from College funds and the amount repaid when possible by the General Alumni Association. After the printing of the 1948 directory, the last one published the General Alumni Association was able to repay the entire amount to the college. Since then, however, printing costs have greatly increased and the funds of the association which come from the payment of annual dues and income from the Lemuel Towers Appold Life Membership Endowment are sometimes not enough to pay for the printing of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS.

The 1948 Directory and prior ones have all been given to members of the General Alumni Association. It has not been decided what will be done with the forthcoming issue. Alumni associations of some colleges send them free and others charge for them.

The printing of a biographical directory like the one published in 1905 appears out of the question. It is reported that Amherst College printed a biographical directory and it cost $50,000. While the final format of the new directory has not been finally decided upon, it will differ from the 1948 addition and it may include enough information to list occupations and both business and home addresses. Graduates and non-graduates will not be separated but will appear together in alphabetical listings under their respective classes.

There will be three listings in the directory, one by classes, a geographical classification and an alphabetical listing giving classes which would serve as an index.

Consideration is being given and estimates are being secured on the type of more complete class listing. For this purpose it will be necessary to send letters to all alumni as checks on the material to be published. Illustrations of this plan can be shown as would be printed under the Class of 1915.

Edel, William W., A.B. 1915; A.M. 1919; D.D. 1935; S.T.B. Boston 1921; LL.D. Gettysburg 1949; LL.D. Pennsylvania 1949; D.Hu. Boston 1950. Pres. Dickinson College, Carlisle. r. 212 W. High, Carlisle.

Hollinger, J. Frank, Pres. Hollinger Mills, Carlisle. r. Mt. Holly Springs.

Wagg, Ethel (Mrs. Howard W. Selby) A.B. 1915; L.H.D. 1952. r. 219 Chestnut St., West Newton, Mass.

Married names will appear only under the class listings. Thus in the geographical and alphabetical listings the name of the former Ethel Wagg would appear under West Newton as Mrs. Howard W. Selby, '15 and in the alphabetical listing as Selby, Mrs. Howard W., '15.

The first immediate task is to secure missing addresses of many alumni and also to correct any address errors. Alumni are urged to be on the lookout for these mistakes. All mail sent to alumni is addressed by the use of Addressograph metal plates. If any error appears on an envelope coming from the college—for example the envelope in which this magazine was mailed the receiver should cut out the address, mark the correction and send it to THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.

Alumni will greatly aid the alumni office in responding quickly to any request for information about themselves or when asked for help in locating a missing alumnus.

For some time, the alumni office has been at work getting biographical information from the later classes. The publication of so many personals in this issue of the magazine from 1946 to 1953 shows in part what this effort means and also that there is much information which is not sent in time to the magazine. Copies of wedding invitations, birth notices, business announcements, etc. should all be mailed to the editor. Alumni can also render great service by clipping from their newspapers items about Dickinsonians, writing the date of the newspaper on the clipping and mailing it to the Editor of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS.

Completes Set of Autographs of U. S. Presidents

A DOCUMENT signed by President Martin Van Buren, July 10, 1840, has been given to Dickinson College by Boyd Lee Spahr. It is the commission as Midshipman of Robert Harris Wyman, who was afterward to serve with distinguished bravery in Mexican waters and under Admiral du Pont in the Civil War. Still later, Admiral Wyman won scholarly renown as head of the Hydrographic Office in Washington. The document is signed also by James Kirke Paulding, American novelist, who was Secretary of the Navy under Van Buren.

To Dickinson, this little parchment has the added interest that it fills the last gap in the set of autographs of Presidents of the United States which Dr. Spahr began to collect for the College last year. All of the 33 Presidents are now represented, many of them in more than one paper. In the cases of Jackson, Taylor, and Theodore Roosevelt, Dr. Spahr purchased one manuscript, later added another of still greater interest. His search for Presidents unearthed 20 new Buchanan letters, and he bought them all for Dickinson. Three manuscripts of Buchanan's early speeches in Congress were also acquired by him, as were manuscripts of a Theodore Roosevelt message to Congress and a Truman address.

The George Washington letter is dated October 29, 1795, is to one of the General's agricultural correspondents, but reflects indirectly the hottest political issue of his Presidency, and one which has its exciting counterparts today. This was his dismissal of Edmund Randolph as Secretary of State on the charge of having betrayed government secrets to the French. Randolph had succeeded Thomas Jefferson as Secretary of State, and Dr.

Spahr's Jefferson letter is an official diplomatic dispatch from that office, March 18, 1792.

John Adams is represented by a letter of 1815 to his grandson, answering du Pont de Nemours' complaint that the English language needed a new word to express love of country, and John Quincy Adams by a resolution which the ex-President offered in the House of Representatives in 1840 at a crucial point in his long fight against southern "gag rule." James Madison's letter is a tender note to his wife, Dolly, written while at a University of Virginia trustees' meeting. Zachary Taylor, in 1815, is resigning from the army, almost incoherent in his anger at having come through the war with no promotion beyond that of captain. Jackson is muttering epistolary threats against Britain in one letter, and in another appealing for James Buchanan's aid after his insults thrown at the French had brought on an international crisis. The Lincoln autograph has Dickinson interest, for Lincoln's brief note grants a request of John A. J. Creswell, of the class of 1848.

The letters are selected primarily as historical source material, rather than for the most perfect signature. With this purpose, the duplicates, far from being unneeded, reinforce and greatly increase the value of the whole. Dr. Spahr's project had hardly been begun when other friends of the College, recognizing this, sent gifts of manuscripts of Presidents and other political figures. Other donors to the collection are: Charles Gilbert Beetem, Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., Mrs. John Bridges, Roscoe O. Bonisteel, Thomas Creigh, James G. Steese, and former Presidents Herbert Hoover and Harry S. Truman.

Death Claims Vice-President of the Board of Trustees

J. HENRY BAKER, '93, vice-president of the Board of Trustees of the College and a trustee since 1906, distinguished member of the Baltimore bar, died at his home in the Marylander Apartments in Baltimore on January 7. Interested all his days in the affairs of the College, he was a Life Member of the General Alumni Association and a past president of what was then called the Baltimore Alumni Association of Dickinson College, known today as the Dickinson Club of Baltimore.

His name was long linked with the prohibition movement as well as with the affairs of the Republican party and church groups.

An unwavering prohibitionist, he was a former president of the Liquor License Board in preprohibition days and acquired a reputation for closing about 300 saloons in a vigorous prosecution of the laws of Baltimore.

His father was the first Republican ever chosen to represent Kent County in the Maryland legislature. He, himself, failed to win the election to the State Senate in 1903 and the Supreme Bench of Baltimore city in 1911, but his influence in the counsels of the Maryland Republican party was always strong.

From 1925 until the time of his death, he was active in the affairs of the American Bible Society and served as its president at one time. For many years he was an official of the old Associate Congregational Church before affiliating with the First Unitarian Church.

Descendant of a Quaker family, he was born in 1872 at Pomona, Md. He attended Wilmington Conference Academy and received his A.B. from the College in 1893 and an A.M. in 1896. He continued his study of law at the University of Maryland, was admitted to the bar in 1894. In 1915 he joined Charles E. Orth to establish the legal firm of Baker and Orth. He relinquished his active practice some time ago.

A member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, he was also active in Masonry. Last October, Union Lodge No. 60, A. F. & A. M. of Baltimore marked his 50th anniversary as a Master of the Lodge at a special ceremony.

His wife, Louise Tull, of Somerset County, Md., died 10 years ago. A son, Dr. John Tull Baker, is now professor of philosophy at New York University.

To Hold Summer School

The College will conduct a summer school this year for the first time since 1951. There will be two six-week sessions, June 14 to July 24 and July 26 to Sept. 3.

Dean Frederic W. Ness and the faculty have designed a program for students who wish to enrich their regular winter study, accelerate work for the bachelor's degree or fill gaps in their college work.

It is also intended for high school graduates, who will find the summer program helpful in adjusting themselves to college standards.

A brochure outlining the course offerings has been prepared by the Dean's office and is available upon request.

FLAMES CONSUME ALLISON CHURCH

This photograph was taken after midnight by Lowell Colbus, '56, a few moments after the whole roof burst into flames. Later the tops of both steeples fell.

Fire Destroys Allison Memorial Methodist Church

WEST STREET SIDE OF CHURCH IN FLAMES

A DISASTROUS fire, which for a time threatened the President's House and the Phi Kappa Psi chapter house, completely destroyed the Allison Memorial Methodist Church, which stood on the southeast corner of High and West Streets in the early hours of January 20. The loss was estimated at more than $300,000.00.

The fire was caused by defective wiring, according to fire department officials and started near the furnace in the cellar under the sanctuary. Apparently it smoldered for some time and gas accumulated in the building for after firemen had been on the scene for some time and the fire appeared under control, there was a sudden burst of flame which enveloped the whole edifice and it was soon in ruins.

The Church Sanctuary was burned out leaving the walls standing only in part. The pulpit, organ, pews and the beautiful stained glass windows were all lost in the flames as well as the several memorial tablets on the walls.

Except for water and smoke the adjacent building south of the sanctuary formerly used as the church house, and before that as a parsonage, was undamaged. It cannot be used because of the lack of heating facilities.

The church and contents were covered with about $190,000 worth of insurance. Adjusters are at work determining the actual losses and damage. Only the four walls of the church now stand.

At one time early in the fire, it appeared that the President's House, which at one place is only 12 feet away, was doomed. In moments students, faculty and college officers sprang into action and in 22 minutes all the furniture, china, pictures, rugs and personal belongings of President and Mrs. Edel were carried into the Alumni Gymnasium and the adjoining Phi Kappa Psi house. A human chain was formed and every article was passed by hand to safety. The next morning when the fire was out, college workmen reversed the process and reestablished the Edel's in their home. In these movings, including hundreds of pieces of china and valuable ornaments, nothing was broken except one marble topped table. The only things which weren't out for the night were the grand piano, two heavy buffets, the refrigerator and carpet which was nailed to the floor.

Offers of assistance and facilities were immediately made to the pastor, the Rev. C. Gayle Norris and the congregation of Allison by other Carlisle churches. The Sunday following the fire and since worship services have been held in the Bosler Hall Chapel and the Sunday School activities in South College. A fellowship supper was held in the Stock Memorial Building of St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

For some years, the Official Board of the church has been considering various plans to remodel the property to meet pressing needs of the church school and it had been decided to install a new organ for which funds had been contributed. Immediately following the fire the principal architectural consultant of the Methodist Church met with the Official Board and offered suggestions.

Because of the limitations of the present site, consideration is being given to a suggestion made by people within the church and the college that a new edifice be erected on the Rush Campus in the southwest corner area about opposite the parsonage, which is on Mooreland Avenue. Discussions are taking place between the Official Board and the College authorities but no decision has been reached.

Prior to the erection of Allison Church in 1892, other sites were used. At one time, the church was located at High and Pitt Streets and later at West and Pomfret Streets. The ruined building was the gift of William Claire Allison, head of the Allison Car Works of Philadelphia, who had been a trustee of the college, and whose grandson, William C. Allison, '92, was a student of the college. The first wedding in the new edifice was that of the grandson to Lenore Mullin, of Mt. Holly Springs, whose sister, Mrs. Helen M. Bucher, of Boiling Springs, was matron of honor and is the only one of the group now living. The grandson also gave the college the Lenore Allison Tower of Denny Hall when that building was erected after first being destroyed by fire.

It is too early to know what final decisions will be made but it appears that a fine church plant will be erected on the Rush Campus and that the walls of Allison Church must be razed. Plans made for the trustees of the college in the development of the Rush Campus have all included the erection of a chapel on the site now suggested for the new Methodist Church. It would adjoin the Student Activities Building already authorized by the trustees.

What the size and cost of such a plant would be will not be known for some time. Anticipating the great need, some alumni have indicated their desire to aid the project by their gifts. Any desiring to make contributions to the building fund of the church may send their contributions to George Shuman, Jr., Treasurer, Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa. He is a member of the recently appointed building committee of the church.

Paper Features Barbary

"Portraits of the Legal Profession," a feature in the Daily Journal of Denver, Colo., was devoted recently to George F. Barbary, '43. "From the capital city of Pennsylvania to the capital city of Colorado is the route to success which has been traveled by a young Denver attorney," the columnist wrote of Barbary.

With a just-awarded Master's degree in political philosophy from Columbia University in his briefcase, Barbary landed in Denver in 1948, spent the next two years in public relations work there, then entered the Denver University Law School where he graduated cum laude in 1952. Upon admission the next year to the Colorado State Bar he opened an office in Denver and has a growing general practice there.

Barbary lived in Harrisburg while attending Dickinson. He spent three years in the U.S. Marines after graduating in 1943 and on his discharge entered Columbia. During his law studies at Denver U. he worked as a clerk for Chief Justice Jackson of the Colorado Supreme Court. He was vice-president of the student body, managing editor of the school's Law Review, won election to ODK and was nominated by his legal fraternity for Law Student of the Year. He is married to Euma Wilbert, formerly of Harrisburg.

Fire at Rush Home

"The Homestead," three-story stone residence, near Phila., in which Benjamin Rush, principal founder of the College, was born on Christmas Eve, 1745, was damaged in an early-morning fire on Jan. 10. Cellar joists and dining room flooring were charred. The dwelling, now part of a 57-acre estate, was originally a farmhouse in which generations of the Rush family were born and lived. Construction was begun in 1690.

Named to Top Post on Franklin Research Project

DR. WHITFIELD J. BELL, JR., '35, Spahr Professor of American History at the College and a faculty member for nearly 17 years, was appointed in January as the Assistant Editor of a monumental 15-year project to gather, edit and publish all of the papers of Benjamin Franklin.

The undertaking, which may result in 25 to 30 volumes on Franklin, has been described as one of the major literary-historical research ventures of the century, rivaling in magnitude and importance the publishing of the Jefferson papers. It is sponsored by the American Philosophical Society, which Franklin founded, and Yale University and will cost $600,000, covered by a grant by Life magazine.

One of Dr. Bell's first tasks will be to search early newspapers in America and Europe for articles signed by Franklin with a pen name and heretofore not presumed to be his. Such anonymous articles are thought to be one of the richest sources of new Franklin material.

Editor of the project is Dr. Leonard W. Labaree, Farnam Professor of History at Yale. The undertaking was announced and launched in Philadelphia on January 16 in celebration of the 248th anniversary of Franklin's birth.

Dr. Bell is the author of more than 30 articles on the history of 18th Century America, many of these on 18th Century American medicine. His researches for these writings and for his soon-to-be published biography of John Morgan, director of medical services in Washington's army, took him to England and Scotland for two summers in recent years. He is a research assistant of the American Philosophical Society for which he is editing Franklin's "Letters to American Newspapers," and he has been chairman of committees of the Pennsylvania Historical Association and the American Association of the History of Medicine.

Dickinson granted him a year's leave of absence last fall and since then he has been at Williamsburg, Va., as a visiting professor at the College of William and Mary while serving as acting editor of the William and Mary Quarterly, a journal of American history, and doing independent research as a member of the Institute of Early American History and Culture.

A graduate of the College in 1935, Dr. Bell was appointed to the faculty in the winter of 1937 when, on the sudden death of Dr. Leon C. Prince, he was named instructor in history to complete Dr. Prince's work. He has his Master's and Doctor of Philosophy degrees from the University of Pennsylvania.

After service in World War II, he was named associate professor and in 1950 was appointed a full professor and first occupant of the Boyd Lee Spahr Chair of American History.

He is one of the most respected members of the faculty and his classes were among the most popular in the curriculum. Dr. Bell has always been active in alumni affairs and for a number of years he was an associate editor of the DICKINSON ALUMNUS. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Sigma.

Presents John Drinkwater Collection to College

BY the gift of a loyal alumnus, Roscoe O. Bonisteel, '12, there has come to Dickinson College a unique collection of rare editions, manuscripts and letters of John Drinkwater, the English poet and playwright whose dramatization of the life of Lincoln brought him first to international fame.

The donor entered Dickinson College in 1908, transferring to the University of Michigan, where he graduated as Bachelor of Laws in 1912. He is now one of the leading lawyers of that state, with home and offices at Ann Arbor, and is chairman of the Board of Regents of the University. He holds a prominent place, too, in business administration and in politics. Dickinson recognized his wide range of achievement with the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, in 1952. Book-collecting has served as a relaxation in this very active career, but it has been pursued with the same thoroughness and zest. It has kept him over a long period of years in touch with book dealers and auction houses in this country and in Europe. The Drinkwater collection came into being in this way, as one by one he found and acquired items of the kind that often come on sale but once in a generation. The result is a bringing-together of more than a hundred and fifty books, leaflets and manuscripts, for the most part either unique or of the greatest rarity.

The first edition of the Abraham Lincoln, London, 1918, the author's own copy with a long inscription in his hand, is here. Here also is the original manuscript of the Robert E. Lee of 1923, and an inscribed copy of the play in its first appearance in print. Here also are two manuscript versions and two inscribed copies of Drinkwater's Oliver Cromwell. Sixty-eight autograph manuscripts of his poems are in the collection, many of them original or early drafts. Perhaps the most valuable single item is the personal notebook kept by him during the First World War and forming a complete record of his lectures on poetry in British and French camps during that period. It is inscribed, "To my darling Toby from John." The books, many of them also inscribed to friends, begin with the extremely scarce Poems, published in 1903 at Birmingham when the author was a young clerk in an insurance company there.

That the whole art and, in a sense, the very presence of John Drinkwater should be brought to our campus in this way is singularly both fortunate and appropriate. Few other writers could so serve to widen the horizon of an American college. Drinkwater was, first of all, a poet—a clear and authentic voice whose melody is within the great tradition of our language, and yet marked out by piercing originality. He is a contemporary, too, his career cut short by an early death seventeen years ago. His interest in America links him still more closely to us, though that was only one part of a feeling for truth and simple dedication in human character, as he saw it in Lincoln or Lee, in Hampden, Cromwell or Burns.

Drinkwater rose by sheer genius from a humble background. With very little formal education he became eminent not only in literature, but as literary critic, historian and biographer. The creative faculty has rarely had such breadth and intensity. An active career of about thirty-five years has more than eighty volumes as its monument. He could bring to any field the same feeling for humanity, the same imaginative art. Here in his work is the historic alliance of poetry and drama and with it a new use of recorded fact, a thoughtful appreciation of the poet's role in history.

Such gifts as Dickinson's John Drinkwater Collection reinforce the work of many colleges. They represent an advantage which a college can rarely acquire except by gift, and thus the private collector has shown again and again how great can be his influence on the development of our culture. Only his sympathetic, wise pursuit, infinitely patient and persistently watchful, can bring together the scattered fragments which reveal, at last, the whole. Only a generous sympathy for larger aims can induce him to relate to the lives of the young men and women of the future what he has brought together with such enthusiasm and at such cost.

Heads Bar Association

J. Douglas M. Royal, '17L, a practicing attorney in Harrisburg for 35 years, was elected president of the Dauphin County Bar Association in January and Robert D. Hanson, '42L, also a Harrisburg lawyer, was named treasurer.

The son of a one time mayor of Harrisburg, Royal graduated from Williams in 1914, and while attending law school and for two years after his graduation he was city editor of the Harrisburg Patriot. His brother, Donald K. Royal graduated from the law school in 1927.

Hanson is a partner in the firm of Hanson and Hanson, and the son of Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, former president of Gettysburg College.

Columbus Changes Name

The annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Columbus was held in the Fort Hayes Hotel on December 11. During the business session it was decided to change the name of the club to the Dickinson Club of Ohio, though there is a club in Cleveland, which will continue to be known as the Dickinson Club of Cleveland.

In planning for another event, probably in the fall of this year, the dinner may be held in Cincinnati.

Walter V. Edwards, '10, president of the club, presided as toastmaster, and Dr. C. Ross Wilhite, '19, offered the invocation.

Mr. Edwards was re-elected president and P. E. West, '13, who died a month later, was elected vice-president to succeed Col. J. P. Haines, Jr., '37, in that office. Robert S. Life Membership Total Rises to 1,322

WITH the addition of 21 subscriptions since the publication of the December number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, there are now 1,322 Life Members in the General Alumni Association.

The complete rosters of Life Members will be printed in the May number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, as has been done annually through the years. The names of all those who become Lifers up to May 1, 1954 will be included in that issue.

Life membership ends the payment of annual dues and carries a life subscription to THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, the right to vote for Alumni Trustees and members of the Alumni Council. It costs $40 which may be paid in one sum or in four $10 annual payments. Checks should be made payable to Dickinson College and sent to THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa. When a subscription is paid in full, a life membership card is issued and also a life membership certificate.

Because some alumni are confused it must be pointed out that a subscription to life membership or payment of annual dues to the General Alumni Association is not a contribution to the Alumni Annual Giving Fund. Payments to life membership are invested and the income with the payment of annual dues are handled by the Alumni Secretary and the treasurer of the General Alumni Association and are used principally to pay for the printing of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS. On the other hand contributions to the Alumni Annual Giving Fund go directly to the treasurer of the college and are used to offset any deficit in the cost of running the college, financial aid to students and other designated uses.

The first subscription in the new series came from Ensign Philip Anderson, '53, who visited the college a few days after his graduation from O.C.S. school in New London, Conn.

Early in December, Dr. Robert A. Grugan, '43, radiologist of the Springfield Hospital in Springfield, Mass., sent his check for eighty dollars for himself and wife, the former Marion VanAuken, '41. He mailed his letter to Professor M. W. Eddy saying "I am sending this through you, because while at Dickinson and since, you have been a constant inspiration to us through our eight years of medical education and training."

The next day a forty dollar check arrived from Harry E. Simmons, '19, attorney of Johnstown, Pa.

On the last day of 1953, a forty dollar check was received from Max R. Lepofsky, '34, attorney whose offices are at 11 N. Main St., S. Norwalk, Conn.

The first Lifer subscription in 1954 came from Lt. (j.g.) Louis A. Steiner, '52, who is aboard the USS Block Island, CVE 106, c/p FPO, New York N. Y.

Mrs. Gertrude S. Maffett, the former Gertrude E. Snyder, '37, became the next Lifer. She lives at 201 E. Marshall St., Falls Church, Va.

A few days later three subscriptions on the same day. One of these was from Mrs. Mildred Masonheimer Long, '21, who lives and teaches school in Westfield, N. J. The second came from Joseph A. Nacrelli, '25, who is practicing law in Washington, D. C. and conducts a Bar Review School for Law school graduates. The third was received from Dr. Paul E. Smith, '30, who is working under the Point Four Program at the American Embassy in Baghdad, Iraq.

One of the Christmas gifts received by John J. Sherman, Jr., '52, of Coopersburg, Pa., was a Life Membership in the General Alumni Association. Jack is doing graduate work at Syracuse University.

Another member of last year's graduating class became a Lifer when a forty dollar check was received from Paul W. Kendi, Jr., of Mt. Pleasant, Pa. He is associated with his father in the road construction business at Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

Frederick A. Miller, '29, became the next Lifer. Fritz is Manager of Industrial Relations of the United States Rubber Company, Mishawaka, Indiana, and says he is "still pitching a little baseball."

The next forty dollar check came from Mervin G. Coyle, '18, who lives in Carlisle and is head of the Coyle Lumber Co.

"I should have done this long ago," was the comment of Mrs. Wilson R. Ritter, the former Christine B. Stuart, '17, of Carlisle, when she called at the office with her forty dollar check for Life Membership.

The next forty dollar check came from Dr. Edwin C. Keboch, '05, who is director of Christian Education of the Beymer Memorial Methodist Church in Winter Haven, Fla. He is now in his 50th year in the ministry.

F. Robert Shoaf, '52, who is instructor in psychology at the college, became the next Lifer. His wife is the former Shirley J. Wicke, '50 and she is employed in the college library.

The first of February two Life Memberships were received. One of these was from John C. Ahl, '14, of Carlisle, Pa., and the other from John B. Carroll, '41, of Chappaqua, N. Y.

The next day a check came from Earl H. Biel, Jr., '49, to pay for Life Membership for his wife, the former Joan Clapp. They are now living in Puerto Rico.

A final payment of $549.50 from Merrill F. Hummel, executor of the estate of the late Miss Florence H. Bursk, was made last month. He had previously turned over $5,467.43, so the total amount received from her estate is $6,016.93.

Roosevelt Trial Judge

Judge Kurtz Kauffman, '21, '21L, of Los Angeles, Cal., is presiding at the court trial involving Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt which is being widely reported in newspapers and magazines.

A native of Blair County, Pennsylvania he is a nephew of the former Congressman J. Banks Kurtz, '98 for whom he was named. He went to the west coast following his graduation from the law school and was first appointed to the municipal court, then to the superior court, subsequently winning election to the six year post three times.

Judge Kauffman has gained nationwide attention through two other cases, once as a court commissioner in 1934 ordering a diamond and pearl necklace seized from actress Gloria Swanson in connection with a $37,000 judgment obtained against her by an agent and in 1946 ordering a child returned to its mother after the father had spirited it from California to Connecticut.

Named Memorial Curator

Lydia M. Gooding, '10, former librarian of the college, and recently librarian of Pembroke College, was named curator of the Annmary Brown Memorial of Brown University last month. The appointment was announced by Prof. David A. Jonah, Brown University librarian.

Miss Gooding has been a member of the Brown University library staff since 1946, when she was named librarian of Pembroke. In 1952 she became reference librarian at John Hay Library.

Before going to Brown she served on the faculty at Emory, Syracuse and Columbia universities, and has held appointments in the Princeton University Library and as librarian of Dickinson and Mt. Holyoke.

A daughter of the late Dr. William Lambert Gooding, who was professor of psychology at Dickinson for many years, she received her Ph.B. from Dickinson and the Bachelor of Science and Master of Science at Columbia.

Basketball Team Strong On Defense

THE College basketball team won only three of its first ten games, but it owned the best defensive record of any of the nation's small-college fives up to Feb. 4 when NCAA statistics ranked Dickinson No. 1 with a 53.9 defense average. The figures covered the first eight games of the 18-game schedule.

Hopes for a better won-lost record soared with the start of the second semester when a giant sophomore, Joseph Katchik, a Notre Dame transfer, became eligible for the varsity on completing a year's residence, but after two games he was lost for the season, having aggravated an old football injury. His height of six feet, nine inches made him the tallest player in Dickinson basketball history.

Coach A. C. Ransom's team started the season in good fashion with home-court victories over Bucknell, 68-43, and Johns Hopkins, 65-53, but lost to American U., 56-50, just before the Christmas holidays. The schedule was resumed in a home game with Albright, which rallied to win a thriller, 52-49, after the score had been tied eight times.

In the next game, also at home, Gus Lovett, one of the nation's small-college stars, put on a brilliant 28-point performance in pacing F. and M. to a 59-45 victory. At Juniata the next week, Dickinson trailed by as many as nine points and a fine rally just fell short, the Indians winning 51-49.

The team checked a four-game losing streak with a 68-41 victory over Susquehanna. Then came the big home attraction, a contest with nationally ranked LaSalle, which was witnessed by the first overflow crowd in the Alumni Gym in years. Dickinson played a great first half and trailed by only three points at intermission, 29-26, but LaSalle broke the game wide open in the third quarter and won, 78-51. Lee Huber, with 18 points, outscored all of the LaSalle stars, including the great All-American Tom Gola.

In the return match at Lancaster with F. and M., the team played one of its best games, only to lose by a 62-61 score after leading at several points. Then the lightning struck the Alumni Gym in the form of Lebanon Valley, last year's district NCAA champions. Howie Landa, the Dutchmen's little star, scored 42 points, breaking the gym record of 41 points which Weston Overholt, '50, had set in 1950 against Juniata. On his way to a floor record Landa made 21 foul shots without a miss, which may also be a record. The final score was 81-55.

The season's burden is falling largely on six players. Besides Lee Huber, leading scorer, they are Dick Johe, John Kohlmeier, George Varano, Sidney Kline and John Dudas. Only Johe and Kline are seniors.

Coach Lindy Lauro has a fine freshman team, which won eight of its first 11 games. The yearlings were undefeated in their first six games before F. and M. Frosh ended the string. George Swanson, star of the team, will not be around next year. He will enter the U.S. Naval Academy this summer on a Congressional appointment.

Defends Wild Life

Edwin W. Tompkins, '25, '27L, Emporium attorney, who has espoused many good causes in his several terms in the Pennsylvania General Assembly, is leading a movement to save elk from extinction in that state. In an open letter to the State Game Commission last month, he called for an end to the slaying of elk and the setting up of a refuge in Cameron and Elk Counties to save Pennsylvania's last remaining herd. He reported to the Game Commission that public indignation in his home county of Cameron is high because of the number of elk which are slain there every year. Tompkins has been in the State Legislature since 1947.

Becomes Vice-President of Engineering at Penn

DR. CARL C. CHAMBERS, '29, Dickinson trustee and widely known research scientist, inventor, electronics authority and educator, became vice-president of the University of Pennsylvania in charge of engineering affairs in December.

He has been on the Pennsylvania faculty for 21 years and head of the university's Moore School of Electrical Engineering for the past five. In his new position he will direct the university's educational activities in chemical, civil, electrical, mechanical and metallurgical engineering.

Dr. Chambers has been a leader in interdisciplinary research—the marshaling of the various sciences in a coordinated approach to research problems. An inventor with several patents in his name, he has been research director or consultant in a number of industrial concerns and has held numerous positions in professional societies. Three times he has been a U.S. delegate to world meetings of the Committee of Experts in Radio Interference of the International Electrotechnical Convention.

He joined the teaching staff of the Moore School of Electrical Engineering in 1933 with the rank of instructor. He became full professor in 1947, was named acting dean of the school in 1949 and dean in 1951.

His father, the late Dr. George Gailey Chambers, '02, preceded him as a member of the Pennsylvania faculty. He was professor of mathematics and director of admissions at the University. His father was a member of the Board of Trustees of the College for many years and was serving at the time of his death in 1933. He became a member of the board in 1952.

During World War II he guided the training of more than 6,000 students as educational director of the Moore School's Engineering, Science and Management War Training Program. While doing this he also organized and operated, in 1943, a research project of the Office of Strategic Services, for which he was awarded the Army and Navy Certificate of Appreciation. He was technical consultant in most of the Moore School's voluminous war research.

In Herald Tribune

A striking photograph of West College illustrated an article on Dickinson carried by the N. Y. Herald Tribune on the education page of its edition of Sunday, January 17.

The article was part of the Tribune's "The American Campus" series of college profiles. Spread three columns wide at the top center of the page, it was tied to the 150th anniversary of the construction of West College and dealt largely with the building's origin and historical background.

Goes From Yale To University of Georgia

DR. PAUL R. BURKHOLDER, '24, noted microbiologist, has left Yale University, where he was Eaton Professor of Botany and chairman of the Department of Plant Sciences, to head the Department of Bacteriology at the University of Georgia.

He is the second Dickinsonian in a top position at Georgia. Dr. Alvin B. Biscoe, '27, is Dean of Faculties there.

Dr. Burkholder is internationally famous as the discoverer of the mold that contains chloromycetin, one of the "wonder" drugs. For this contribution to the welfare of mankind and for other achievements, Dickinson awarded him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science in 1949 and gave him its annual Priestley Science Award last year.

The department he heads at Georgia is a new development in the university's instructional program, being the first university-wide department and joint-staffed in the College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Agriculture and the School of Veterinary Medicine.

Before going to Yale in 1940 he was a National Research Fellow at Harvard and Columbia, Curator of Biology at the Buffalo, N. Y., Museum of Science and a faculty member at Connecticut College and the University of Missouri.

His work with chloromycetin was done at Yale in 1947 when he succeeded in isolating from Venezuelan soil a mold-like actinomycete. From this organism he produced an extract he found to be potent in curbing the growth of many harmful forms of bacteria. The final product of his research proved to be one of the most effective weapons against typhoid fever, epidemic typhus, scrub typhus and other diseases.

Dr. Burkholder has also achieved recognition for originating new ways to produce riboflavin—Vitamin B2—in large quantities, and for important work in edible plant materials. His other scientific contributions include the ultraviolet "sun burning" of bacteria and X-ray mutation of bacteria and green flagellates.

At Georgia he continues to work on some of the urgent practical problems of human kind. Among these he has listed soil microbiology, crop production, animal and human nutrition, agriculture and public health.

Second New Zealander Weds

In December, he and the former Helen Mae Wollaston, '51, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wollaston, of Newark, Del., sailed from New York for Europe after their earlier marriage.

Whether there is something in the Carlisle air or whether such romances are exclusive to the classes of 1950 and 1951, time will tell. Just a year ago Eleanor Edna Cattron, '50, of Williamsport, Pa., sailed for New Zealand to be joined in matrimony there to John Greyson Main, '51.

Sailing from New York in December, the Stracks planned to spend seven weeks touring Europe and then to go via Port Said for stopoffs in India and Australia en route to Auckland, New Zealand. Dr. Strack will be lecturer on applied mathematics at the University of Auckland. Since graduating from Dickinson, he has received his master's degree from Yale University and his Ph.D. from Brown University. Mrs. Strack has received her master's degree from Columbia University.

After he became district agent there in 1950, the agency under his leadership moved from 115th to 31st place among the company's district agencies. He also has been a leading personal pro-

Tells Story of Chicago's Left Bank

ALSON J. SMITH, '30, can definitely wear the title of a prolific writer. Another of his books, "Chicago's Left Bank," recently tolled from the presses of Henry Regnery, Chicago and sells for $3.95.

Author of a number of books, among them the popular biography Brother Van, which was sold to the movies in 1950, he is a regular contributor to such magazines as Harpers, American Mercury, Tomorrow and The Woman. In addition he keeps up an active lecture schedule.

The jacket quotes Smith as saying "I am not a Midwesterner. I am a Connecticut Yankee who discovered Chicago in the early thirties. I divide my time between Chicago and the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts, with frequent periods of residence in New York, so no one can accuse me of being a Rotary Club fanatic. But, let's face it, I do love Chicago."

The Editor of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS asked Professor Ralph W. Schecter to review the book because he hails from the West, is a member of the English Department, teaches music and there is a paragraph in the Book headed "The Jazz Capital." He doesn't need many paragraphs to review a book as will be noted below.

A professor of economics once remarked that the Middle West was the backbone of the nation. Alson J. Smith, '30, in his book entitled "Chicago's Left Bank" (Regnery, 1935) suggests that a certain spot in the Middle West is also the nation's cultural center. In a breezy and entertaining fashion Mr. Smith not only treats of the "seven lively arts" in their relation to Chicago, but makes excursions into business and vice as well.

Since this reviewer has taught freshman English for some years, he is forced to wonder what it was that thousands of people in Ravina Park were laying in their blankets (page 130). This is probably just a conditioned reflex, for it in no way diminished the reviewer's pleasure in this racy, uninhibited account of a roaring, rambunctious city of the plains.

—Ralph W. Schecter
