Oldest Alumnus Preaches Sermon on 100th Birthday

THE oldest living alumnus of the College, the Rev. Dr. Alpheus S. Mowbray, of the Class of 1885, celebrated his 100th birthday on December 30, 1958 with flowers, cards, cakes and ice cream to fit the occasion at the home of his son, Edwin, in Belmar, N. J. Then to cap the event he preached a sermon at the morning service in the Wall Methodist Church, Spring Lake Heights, N. J.

In his sermon he used one of his favorite texts "They also serve who only stand and wait." Alert and in good health, another of his favorite themes is "Let your moderation be known to all men" for this is his creed. He attributes his long life to "a good inheritance from a wholesome long-lived family," to a "methodical life" and that "one should be careful, conscientious and temperate." He believes that a person should be cheerful and busy at all times.

Moderation, he says, is the real key to a long life. This was important to him for he began life with a weak stomach and for years was a vegetarian. "I have a favorite saying about food," Dr. Mowbray says "Taste it with a long throat."

Born on a farm at Preston, Md., near Easton, he was the son of William H. and Annie Sparklin Mowbray. He prepared for College at Wilmington Conference Academy, Dover, Del., now Wesley College, where Dr. J. Paul Slaybaugh, '21, is president. He entered Dickinson in 1881 and withdrew to enter the ministry in 1883. Dickinson College conferred an A.M. degree upon him in 1895 and awarded him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1902. At Dickinson he became a member of Theta Delta Chi.

Beginning his ministry in Oxford, Maryland, he served churches on the Eastern Shore until 1904 when he became district superintendent of the Wilmington District. For 13 years, he was secretary of the Conference. He also spent 12 years as secretary of the publishing board of the Methodist Church in New York City.

In 1911, he went to Washington, D. C., where he lived until about a year ago. There he was pastor of Chevy Chase Methodist Church and at Brookland Methodist Church, where the sanctuary and parsonage were built during his pastorate.

Dr. Mowbray retired in 1926 after 47 years of preaching two to four sermons every Sunday. Not long afterward, he was called to duty and for five additional years he was substitute pastor of Metropolitan Methodist Church and Gorsuch Church, both in Washington.

A former member of the Conference Book Committee, he collected many books and was the proud possessor of a fine library. He still has some of his books and he spends the greater part of his days among them.

Dr. Mowbray was married twice. Neither of his wives is living. He makes his home with his son, Edwin S. Mowbray, and a daughter, Mrs. Margaret G. Farnsworth, former librarian at Anacosta High School. He has a son, Alpheus S. Mowbray, Jr., a retired banker of Wilmington and a son, Donald, who is a banker in Washington.

Dr. Mowbray and members of his family have been invited to attend the Alumni Luncheon on June 6 and all the events of the Commencement weekend.

Trustees Ask President Edel to Stay Until June

BY unanimous action, the Board of Trustees asked Dr. William W. Edel to serve as the President of the College until the end of June at its winter meeting in Union League, Philadelphia, on December 13. Other business included the naming of a building in honor of former President George Edward Reed, consideration of the President's report and the reports of other officers and committees.

When Dr. Edel announced to the Trustees at the December 1957 meeting that he planned to retire when he reached his 65th birthday in March, 1959, he also stated that if his successor could not then enter upon his duties, he would be willing to serve until the end of the academic year, if the Trustees so desired.

Frank E. Masland, Jr., Vice President of the Board of Trustees, made the report for the Committee on Presidency at the December 1958 meeting. He said that progress was being made by the committee; that approximately 30 names had been submitted and considered and that the number had been reduced to five or six. He reported that some interviews had been held with some of these and that other interviews were planned. He then reminded the Board that President Edel had offered to serve until June, 1959 and made the motion that he be continued in office. Samuel M. Drayer seconded and the motion was adopted.

Approving the recommendation of President Edel, the Trustees voted that the present Church House, when occupied by the Department on Education and Psychology, be named Reed Hall. In his report he said "One of the outstanding and very effective Presidents of the College was Dr. George Edward Reed who held the office from 1889 to 1911, the longest term of office of any President. There is no memorial to him, save that it may be said of him, as it has been said of James Henry Morgan, that the College itself is his memorial."

Morgan Hall, the recently built dormitory for freshmen, is named in honor of Dr. James Henry Morgan, three times President of the College.

Work is now in progress in the interior of the former Church House of the Allison Church, which is now the property of the College. It is on South Pitt Street and abuts the President's House. This structure is being prepared for the use of the Department of Education and Psychology, which now uses the former Phi Delta Theta Fraternity House at College and Louthier Streets. It will be ready for use in a few months.

Approving another recommendation made by President Edel, the Board directed the officers of the College to enter into an agreement with the Commissioner of Education to provide for the establishment of a Student Loan Fund, as provided under the National Defense Education Act by Congress in 1958. This program in short, establishes in the institution of higher education which makes application, a loan fund, supplied 90% by the government and 10% by the institution, out of which loans can be made to needy and worthy students to the amount of $1,000 per year for each student, to total no more than $5,000 for any one student during his undergraduate and graduate education. Loans will be under the control and responsibility of the College and the plan of administration is virtually the same as that in operation of the College's own program for some years.

The Board also adopted a report of Sidney D. Kline, Chairman of the Development Committee, which held a dinner meeting the evening before the Board met. The report reaffirmed the duties of the Development Program (1) to continue concentration on science funds to pay the recent building program costs of the Althouse and Tome buildings, (2) to continue concentration on unrestricted funds giving to reduce indebtedness and (3) to plan tentatively for a major financial campaign during 1960-61.

Reporting for the Committee on Educational Program, Dr. Carl C. Chambers, Chairman, told of a meeting held the same morning by the committee with Drs. Edel, Wing, Ness, Prinz and Professor Nelson. The topic of discussion was the organization of the Faculty of the College for the purpose of preparing for the reappraisal of the College by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, which is to take place in 1960.

In his report Dr. Chambers said "The discussion was very enlightening and extended. However, two observations were significant, first, that the value of the introspection by the College of its programs in accordance with the requirements of the questionnaire gives rise to the necessary crystallization of plans which, without this requirement, might be nebulous. Being self-evaluation, it is also self-discipline with respect to the progress of the College; it is all to the good. The second observation is a sense of urgency, but not one of fear that Dickinson College may lose its creditation. Everyone is confident that the quality of the College is well above that which is necessary for accreditation. Overall, the preparation of this visit by the representatives of the Association is a very valuable operation for the College in contrast to the feeling that it is a chore to prepare for these people who want to accredit the College."

Boyd Lee Spahr, President of the Board, presided at the meetings of the Executive Committee in the morning and after luncheon at the meeting of the Board. Bishop Fred Pierce Corson offered the invocation at the Board meeting.

Faculty Members on Leave

One of the three members of the faculty on leaves of absence this semester is making a 25,000-mile lecture tour of the Middle and Far East for the Department of State. Dr. William L. Tayler, chairman of the political science department, will have spoken on American government and institutions to the faculties and students of major colleges from Iran to New Zealand by the end of his tour in June. Prof. Flint Kellogg of the history department is completing his doctoral work in history at Johns Hopkins University and Prof. Jed H. Taylor, assistant catalogue librarian, is working for his Ph.D. in political science at the University of Pennsylvania.

First Song Recital

The first song recitals ever given by Dickinson students as part of their regular college work were presented January 13 in Memorial Hall, Old West, before an appreciative audience of fellow students, faculty members and visitors.

This bit of Dickinson history was written by Ruth Gordon, of Lancaster, Pa., a senior; Emily Robison, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and John Shuman, of Allentown, Pa., juniors, and Elizabeth Graham, of Philadelphia, a freshman. Miss Graham has a music scholarship issued by the Philadelphia Board of Education.

They are the first students to receive private voice instruction which became available at Dickinson for the first time last September when the new Department of Music began functioning. A public performance is a requirement of some of the 14 courses offered by the department. It is now possible for a student to complete a minor in music.

Courses are devoted essentially to the historical and theoretical aspects of the field. Creative writing is strongly encouraged together with participation in the instrumental and vocal ensembles on the campus.

Teachers in the department are Prof. Lloyd Ultan, the chairman, Prof. Ralph Schecter, who also teaches in the English Department, and Mr. Jack Jarrett, a new member of the faculty this term.

Three Additions to Faculty of College

MRS. JACQUELINE SMITH OLIN, '54, who won distinction for scholarship and leadership as a student at the College, returned to the campus in January to teach in the Department of Chemistry. She has the rank of instructor.

Other new members of the faculty are Frank A. Miller, instructor in history, who was a Fulbright scholar at University College, London, and Mrs. Anna S. Naff, science librarian with rank of instructor, who holds advanced degrees in both organic chemistry and library science.

Mrs. Olin, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, majored in chemistry at the College and received the Hufstader Prize as the woman in the graduating class who contributed most to the good of the College for the entire four years. She also won the American Association of University Women Award.

She used an Ely Lilly Fellowship the next year to study at the Harvard University Division of Medical Sciences. Radcliffe awarded her a master's degree in medical sciences. She held a teaching assistantship in chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania in 1955-56.

She then worked as a biochemist in the Division of Chemical Pharmacology, National Heart Institute, at Bethesda, Md. Her special field of research has dealt with norepinephrine in brain and other tissues, and her findings have appeared in the Journal of Pharmacology and other publications.

In 1955 she married Lt. Charles H. Olin, '57, who is in the Marine Corps, and they have one child, Deborah Ann, born March 24, 1957. During the past year they lived at Twenty-Nine Palms, Calif., where Lt. Olin is stationed.

Mr. Miller took up his appointment at the start of the Spring semester. A 1949 graduate of Swarthmore College, he taught there and at the University of Pennsylvania. He spent the 1953-54 term at University College, London, under a Fulbright grant. He has completed most of his work for a Ph.D. degree in history at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Naff came to the faculty last October to set up the new science library, which is located in the Althouse Science Hall and which was made possible by a duPont gift. During the present semester she is devoting most of her time to the main library in Bosler Hall.

A University of Kentucky graduate, she holds a master of science degree in organic chemistry from that institution and a master of library science degree from the University of Michigan. She has taught chemistry at Kentucky and Oregon State and has served as circulation librarian at Western Carolina College.

Mrs. Naff is the wife of Dr. M. Benton Naff who came to the faculty in September as an associate professor in the Department of Chemistry.

Sales Director Retires

David Cameron, '14, director of industrial sales of the Victor Adding Machine Co. of Chicago, retired from active service December 31, President A. C. Buehler has announced.

After attending Cornell University and graduating from Dickinson College in 1914, Cameron started with McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. He left in 1933 as executive assistant to the President to join the McCaskey Register Co. with headquarters in New York City. When McCaskey merged with Victor in 1953, Cameron was appointed director of the Victor-McCaskey Industrial Control Division.

During an interim period while with McGraw-Hill, Cameron became an Air Corps pilot and second lieutenant with Pershing's American Expeditionary Force in World War I.

Cameron and his wife, Luella H., reside at 25 Fifth Ave., New York City, his permanent residence since 1923.

To Honor Noted Scientist On Priestley Day

DICKINSON'S annual Priestley Day celebration will be held this year on March 19 and, as in the past, distinguished men of science will join with the College in honoring the memory of the discoverer of oxygen.

Climactic event as always will be the presentation of the Dickinson Award in Memory of Joseph Priestley to a scientist for outstanding service to mankind through research, discovery or invention.

This year President Edel, who established the award in 1952, will present it to Dr. Willard Frank Libby, one of the world's leading authorities on radio-carbon dating. It was Dr. Libby, a nuclear chemist, who first found carbon-14 in nature and worked out a way to use it to date the distant past. He is a member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Lewis L. Strauss, the Secretary of Commerce and former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, who is an honorary Dickinson alumnus, will take part in the celebration for the third year. Philip H. Abelson, director of the famed Geophysical Laboratory, Wash., D. C., and chairman of radiation cataracts, National Research Council, will also have an active role.

Alumni and friends of the College are cordially invited to attend the various events of the day-long celebration. The complete program follows:

- 11:00 a.m.—Student Assembly, with address.
- 2 to 4 p.m.—Open House at the Althouse Science Hall and Tome Scientific Building; planetarium demonstration.
- 4 to 5 p.m.—Priestley Coffee Hour.
- 6:30 p.m.—Celebration Dinner, combined with March meeting of the Southeastern Pa. Section, American Chemical Society. Dr. C. Scott Althouse, presiding.
- 8:15 p.m.—Award Ceremony, with address by Dr. Libby, "Radiocarbon Dating." President Edel, presiding.

WILLARD FRANK LIBBY

Dr. Libby is professor of chemistry, University of Chicago, on leave of absence to serve on the Atomic Energy Commission. He was first appointed to the AEC by President Eisenhower in 1954 and reappointed for a five-year term last June. He has done a wide range of scientific advisory and technical consultant work with industrial firms participating in the Institute for Nuclear Studies, as well as with scientific organizations and universities. He holds many awards.

Reelected To Congress

Daniel J. Flood, '29L, attorney of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., won reelection to Congress from Pennsylvania on the Democratic ticket.

John P. Saylor, '33L, Republican, was re-elected as representative from the 22nd Pennsylvania District.

Mr. Leon H. Gavin, of Oil City, father of John R. Gavin, '50, was re-elected from the 23rd Pennsylvania District as a Republican.

Form Interfraternity Alumni Council

FRATERNITY alumni have joined hands in a new effort to solve common problems to the end that each of the houses and all of them together might be strengthened for a better College.

Prof. Alan Coutts, the dean of men, called the alumni advisers of the men's fraternities together last summer and out of this and subsequent meetings has come the Interfraternity Alumni Council of Dickinson College.

Carl B. Stoner, '23, a lawyer of Harrisburg, is the president; the Rev. Victor B. Hann, '28, vice president, and Prof. Coutts, secretary-treasurer. On the executive committee, which will function between meetings of the Council, are the officers and William B. Harlan, '50; Lester T. Etter, '34, and Dale O. Hartzell, '39.

Membership is composed of three alumni representatives from each of the 10 fraternities, which are free to choose their delegates as they see fit. Regular meetings are to be held semi-annually, in the fall and spring, and special meetings at the call of the president. There have been four meetings to date.

A number of committees are at work. One of these is seeking information on U.S. Government loans available to college and universities for fraternity house construction.

The objectives of the Council as set forth in the constitution are that it 1) serve as a forum for the discussion of problems of the college and the fraternities and evolve recommendations for their solution, 2) support and promote the educational social, financial and development programs of the college and 3) be a means of insuring that proposed changes of policies by the college and the fraternities will not affect adversely the legitimate interests of either.

In his original call, Prof. Coutts, who was at the University of Vermont for two years and at New York University for nine before coming to Dickinson in 1957, stated that there are certain areas where alumni with active interest in their chapters can do more with and for the undergraduates than anyone in the administrative family.

He felt there were some areas in need of "fairly urgent" attention. Among these are the physical condition of many of the houses, the lack of reserve funds for house repairs or new construction resulting from unrealistically low charges, and scholarship (five houses were below the all-fraternity average last term).

To these the Council has added other subjects for study, namely cooperative buying, the matter of housemothers, stronger alumni ties, revival of Greek Week, a better fraternity system through a stronger undergraduate Interfraternity Council, and others.

Members of the alumni Council feel that a good start has been made and that much can be accomplished for the good of the college and the fraternities.

The representatives are:

Phi Kappa Sigma—Dale O. Hartzell, Fred H. Specht and William Woodside. Phi Kappa Psi—Paul L. Strickler, James W. Evans and Benjamin D. James. Sigma Chi—Glenn E. Todd, Lester T. Etter and Howell C. Mette. Beta Theta Pi—Carl B. Stoner, Robert W. Crist and Roger H. Steck. Phi Delta Theta—Walter F. Bernard, William W. Ludwig and the Rev. Kermit L. Lloyd.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon—William R. Harland and Vance Smith. Kappa Sigma—Dr. Horace E. Rogers, George M. Briner and Henry L. Stuart. Alpha Chi Rho—William L. Johns, Homer M. Respass and the Rev. Victor B. Hann. Phi Epsilon Pi—Harold Tull, Stanley D. Adler and Irving Yaverbaum. Theta Chi—Dr. Albert W. Freeman, James R. Humer and Robert F. Smith.

In New Assignment

After having command of the USS Eversole, 2,200 ton destroyer, for sixteen months, Commander Frank M. Romanick, USN, '47, reported last month to Commander Destroyer Flotilla Three for duty on his staff. He now lives at 4502 Palo Verde Avenue, Lake-wood, Calif.

Commander Romanick had been the Navigator on the battleship USS New Jersey on an earlier tour of duty and Officer-in-Charge, Explosive Ordnance Disposal School, Indian Head, Md.

Dickinson Graduates Do Well In Graduate Schools

SOME interesting facts are coming to light in the early work of faculty committees studying the college in preparation for the re-evaluation by the Association of American Colleges in 1960 or 1961. Some are revealed in a report prepared by Prof. D. Fenton Adams, '47, member of the faculty of the Dickinson School of Law in a generous response to Prof. Arthur Prinz, Chairman of the Committee on Outcomes. Others are in studies of the biographical records of the classes of 1948 and 1949 in the office of the Alumni Secretary and tabulated by him.

In a table dated December 15, 1958 covering the school years from 1951 to 1958, the report of Prof. Adams shows that 85.7 per cent of the Dickinson College men, who had also graduated from the law school, had passed the Pennsylvania State Bar Examinations as against 77.5 per cent for all the law school graduates. Of the Dickinson College men 62.9 per cent passed the Pennsylvania bars on the first exam as against 52.9 per cent of the total law graduates. Of the 92 men who entered in September 1951, 75.8% passed the work of the year, and 85.2% of the Dickinson College men were successful. The All Law Middlers scored 85.5% the next May as against a lower Dickinson 84%, while 98.3% of All Law Seniors passed the work of their last year as against 98.8% of the Dickinson College graduates.

Turning to incomplete biographical records in the office of the Alumni Secretary (To the Person reading thus far: If you haven't returned your biographical Questionnaire, do it?) it is learned that 249 received their diplomas at the June, 1948 Commencement, 193 A.B. degrees and 65 were B.S. degrees. Of these 249, 88 have successfully completed graduate work. The 88 were law, 30; medicine, 17; theology, 14; business, 5; dentistry, 3; history, 3; osteopathy, 2; chemistry, 2; education, 2; languages and others, 10.

In June 1949, the class which will celebrate its 10th Reunion this year, 218 received diplomas, 160 A.B. degrees and 58 B.S. degrees. Of the 218, again on the basis of incomplete returns, 65 are known to have successfully completed work in graduate school. Of these medicine led with 19, then law, 16; theology, 5; business and social science, 3 each; education, 2; dentistry, biology, osteopathy and chemistry, one each while in languages and other fields, 13.

The list of graduate schools of these 153 graduates of 1948 and 1949 is almost too long to publish. While the Dickinson School of Law and four of the Philadelphia medical schools would lead, the list extends from London to New Zealand, from Harvard to Miami and across the country to California.

Become Law Partners

Nathan W. Stuart, '40, '41L, of Williamsport, Thomas Wood, '40L, of Muncy, and Bertram S. Murphy, of Montoursville, have joined as the legal firm of Wood, Stuart and Murphy, with offices in the Susquehanna Trust Building, 120 West Fourth St., Williamsport.

Nat Stuart is solicitor of the Williamsport school district and Tom Wood is a former assistant United States attorney for the Middle District. Mr. Murphy began his legal practice three years ago after graduating from the University of Pennsylvania Law School.

Named Bureau Director

Dr. Lester F. Johnson, '19, of York, Pa., was named director of the Bureau of Higher Education in the Department of Public Instruction last month. The post pays $9,923.

He joined the department in 1953 as coordinator of veterans' training and then later became supervisor of higher education. He is a former president of York Junior College.

43 Living Dickinsonians Are In "Who's Who"

A SURVEY based upon 30 occupational categories found in Who's Who In America, shows a greater proportion of educators, clergy, doctors and librarians from church-related colleges than from secular institutions.

WHO'S WHO, publishers of the survey, note that "with the exception of doctors, these occupations generally pay less than others and might be considered more dedicated.

"Today the medical profession is one of the highest paid of all," according to the publishers, "but here the time lag that occurs between college graduation and eventual inclusion in Who's Who must be considered, and a generation ago doctors absorbed many more losses."

"Nevertheless," the commentary continues, "the dedication of doctors has always been traditional."

Who's Who contains, as far as we know, the names of 43 Dickinsonians, not including honorary alumni.

Dickinson is third among Pennsylvania colleges in the number of new names in the 1958-59 volume of Who's Who.

The list of distinguished Dickinsonians includes four presidents of four-year colleges; several other high-ranking school and college officials; three Methodist Bishops; jurists; attorneys and educators.

A grand total of 1,163 lines is devoted to the biographies of Dickinsonians in Who's Who.

The following list of Dickinsonians in Who's Who may be incomplete. Anyone in Who's Who, whose name does not appear in this list, is urged to write to the editor of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS.

Three Spahr Lectures

The College community has had the pleasure of hearing three Boyd Lee Spahr Lectures in Americana this term. The first lecture, "John Dickinson, Historian," was given November 14 by Prof. H. Trevor Colbourn of the history department of Pennsylvania State University.

Prof. Stuart W. Bruchey of Northwestern University and a former Dickinson teacher, spoke January 9 on "Roger Brooke Taney and the Bank War." Taney, member of the Class of 1795, was Chief Justice from 1836 to 1864. The life of an early Dickinson trustee provided the theme for a lecture February 7 by Prof. Frederic S. Klein of Franklin & Marshall College whose subject was "Robert Coleman: From Immigrant Opportunist to Millionaire Ironmaster."

The Spahr Lectures were instituted in 1947 by the College library to explore the history of the College and to show the relation of the College with the general movement of American culture. Two or three are given each year.

To Honor Donor of One Millionth Dollar

THE Annual Giving Program will commemorate a milestone this June, when its singles out for special honors the contributor of the one millionth dollar, since the establishment of the Alumni Fund in 1935.

The only condition laid down by the officers of the Annual Giving Program is that the one millionth dollar represent an undesignated gift. This is to emphasize one of the basic purposes behind annual giving, that of serving as a source of regular income for current operational needs.

Plans for establishing an Alumni Fund first were announced in 1932, when the Alumni Council recommended to the Board of Trustees the adoption of a Loyalty Fund. The Trustees approved the plan, but before it was launched in 1935 the name had been changed to the Alumni Fund.

Four members of the first Executive Committee still are prominent in College affairs. Bishop Fred P. Corson, '17, then the President of the College and now a Trustee, was General Chairman. S. Walter Stauffer, '12, trustee, was Secretary of the General Alumni Association at the time. He served as Chairman of the Library Guild which was incorporated into the new Alumni Fund. Dr. Boyd Lee Spahr, '00, became Chairman of the Committee on Large Gifts.

Gilbert Malcolm, '15, Alumni Secretary, also served on the first Executive Committee, from where he was to coordinate Alumni Fund activities for many years.

In making its proposal for the establishment of an Alumni Fund, the Alumni Council cautioned against doing anything that would disturb the progress of the Library Guild. The Guild had been in existence since 1903, and by 1935 had accumulated an endowment of nearly $26,000.

The first announcement of the Alumni Fund described it as a continuing program with the following objectives:

1. To obtain contributions from alumni, honorary alumni, faculty, trustees, the public and corporations for annual needs, including the Library Guild.

2. To seek larger gifts, mainly for specific purposes, preferably for current needs, but also for debt-reduction or future needs, new buildings, new equipment, greater endowment.

3. To attract testators to Dickinson College and to obtain bequests.

These original objectives have remained unchanged over the years.

The value of each annual gift is calculated on the basis of income invested at approximately four and one-half per cent. Contributors are looked upon as "living endowment" and the value of each contributor is further increased by the fact that corporations, foundations and benefactors of higher education are impressed with this expression of alumni interest.

From its beginning the Alumni Fund depended for its success chiefly upon the efforts of class agents. First agents were Dr. James Henry Morgan, '78, who represented the classes up to 1880; Lemuel T. Appold, '82, for the classes from 1880 to 1885; and agents for each class through 1935. The agent for the Class of 1935 was Dr. Whitfield J. Bell, Jr., now an Alumni Trustee.

In the first year of the Alumni Fund a total of 549 persons contributed more than $11,000. By the end of the first decade in 1946, more than 1,000 persons annually contributed over $30,000. By this time, also, the Alumni Fund was beginning to attract persons other than alumni in increasing numbers.

In 1952 the Alumni Council assigned a special committee to study the alumni role in annual giving and to make recommendations. This committee was composed of Francis Simmons, '23; J. Monroe Ridgley, '26; Harry J. Nuttle, '39, and James McElfish, '43.

As a result of the work of the Committee additional emphasis was placed upon seeking gifts within the framework of the Alumni Fund from other friends of the College and supporters of higher education. Consideration also was given to the use of area representatives, in addition to class agents. A steering committee composed of alumni was established.

In 1954 John Milton Davidson, '33, became the first General Chairman of the Alumni Fund and served through the four years of its most rapid growth. Each successive year records were established in total gifts and number of contributors.

In 1955 the name was changed to the Annual Giving Program and the administration of the Program was transferred to the Development Office and to George Shuman, Jr., Financial Vice President. Mr. Davidson became General Chairman for alumni participation. In the same year the Fund passed the $100,000-mark in annual contributions.

When the College receives its one millionth annual giving dollar prior to June 1959, it will be a dramatic fulfillment of Professor B. O. McIntire's prophetic pronouncement upon the launching of the Library Guild in 1903. He said at that time:

"... contributions of moderate size are within the means of many alumni and in the aggregate consistently reach surprising goals."

The name of the contributor of the one millionth annual giving dollar will be announced during Commencement. The contributor and a guest will be invited to the College for the occasion. Through 1959-60 he or she will serve as a symbol of the living endowment of the College.

Winfield C. Cook, '32, now is General Chairman for alumni participation. The goals for 1959 are $200,000 in annual gifts of which at least $100,000 are to be undesignated gifts, and 2,500 in contributors.

Meet in Kansas City

Eleven Dickinsonians attended the banquet of the General Conference on Christian Higher Education of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church in the grand ball room of the Hotel Muehlebach, Kansas City, Mo., on January 9. Others attended sessions of the conference or met by chance in the hotel.

Among those attending the dinner were two bishops, four college presidents and two district superintendents. The two Dickinson bishops were Bishop Fred Pierce Corson, '17, of Philadelphia, former president of the College, and Bishop John Wesley Lord, '27, of Boston.

The college presidents were Dr. William W. Edel, '15, of Dickinson; Dr. J. Paul Slaybaugh, '21, Wesley College, Dover, Del.; Dr. William E. Kerstetter, '36, Simpson College, Indianola, Iowa, and Dr. D. Frederick Wertz, '37, Lycoming College, Williamsport, Pa.

The two district superintendents, both Dickinson trustees, were Dr. Alexander K. Smith, '23, of Philadelphia, and Dr. F. Lamont Henninger, '24, Harrisburg, who is also secretary of the Board of Trustees.

Dr. Frederic W. Ness, '33, Academic Vice President and Dean of the College, attended a session of the American Association of Colleges and Universities, which preceded the meetings of the Methodist group. He was a guest of the Association at gatherings of academic deans.

Many met C. Winfield Cook, '33, of Ambler, who was in Kansas City on business and ran into his friends in the hotel lobby.

Mary Dickinson Club Nearing Early Goals

THE Mary Dickinson Club expects to complete payments this June, for a $12,500-elevator which it purchased for Bosler Hall. The elevator, the most ambitious project approved by the Club to date, was installed in 1955. It is used to carry passengers to the second floor of Bosler Hall where the cultural events activities and assemblies are held. It also has proved invaluable to the library staff for transporting books to various parts of the library.

Mrs. Ernest A. Vuilleumier, '24, who assumed the national presidency of the Mary Dickinson Club last fall, appointed a committee to make recommendations for a new major project for the club. Members of this committee are: Mrs. Jed H. Taylor, past national president; Mrs. William H. Benson, national vice president; and Dean Victoria K. Hann, '50. Plans are being made by the committee to poll the membership of the Club to determine its wishes in the selection of a project.

The Mary Dickinson Club is within $2,000 of completing payments for the elevator. Funds have come from annual membership dues, fund raising activities and special gifts.

The Mary Dickinson Club was organized in February 1951, by women interested in the College. It has grown rapidly and now has over 800 members throughout the United States and abroad. Branch chapters also have been established in several strategic cities.

The first project approved by the Club centered appropriately enough in Drayer Hall, womens' residence, which was under construction at the time the Club was organized. The Club raised funds for the purchase of ornamental lights for Drayer Hall, a copy of the Charles Willson Peale portrait of Mary Dickinson which hangs in the entrance to Drayer Lounge, and pianos for Drayer Hall and Biddle House.

A portrait of Agnes Pettigrew Drayer also was purchased for Drayer Hall by the Baltimore Branch, and the Baltimore Branch makes annual student cash awards. The Carlisle Branch bought the furnishings for the Student Health Center and has made special contributions toward the purchase of the elevator.

Writes on Supreme Court

Alpheus Thomas Mason, The Supreme Court from Taft to Warren. Baton Rouge, Louisiana State University Press, 1958. $4.95.

This latest work of Alpheus T. Mason, '20, member of the faculty of Princeton University, joins the growing list of his general and biographical studies of American judicial and political thought and action. All have been noteworthy. His recent works on Justices Brandeis and Stone have received particular acclaim. This new book covers an area of crucial and rising importance in current history, and one which cannot fail to hold wide interest. Not only does the Supreme Court have now, as ever, a role of opening the way to the emergence of great events, but the dependence of its decisions upon the character and personal background of a few distinguished individuals makes its history inevitably dramatic reading.

In this our own turbulent era issues of the profoundest import have been tried before the Supreme Court, and the Court itself has been on trial. It is an aloof judicial authority. It is also an integral part of American life with complete involvement in our history and aspirations. It is, in a sense, the deep-rooted and active conscience of the American people, and so speaks for us all as no other authority could do. Dr. Mason tells the story with clarity and dramatic force, and readers of this book will view the Court, past and present, with a clearer and more sympathetic understanding.

“Comment on the Refugee Problem”

AN ADDRESS by Frank E. Masland, Jr., '18, “A Comment on the Refugee Problem,” delivered to the congregation of Allison Methodist Church, Carlisle, Pa., at the services on Sunday morning, September 28, and as reported to the Methodist Committee for Overseas Relief has just been published in pamphlet form.

During the past summer, Dr. and Mrs. Masland attended the Consultation of the Division of Inter-Church Aid and Service to Refugees of the World Council of Churches at Evian, France, on Lake Geneva. This division of the World Council concerns itself with inter-church aid and services to refugees. He was one of 74 delegates from 29 countries, a number of whom were from behind the iron curtain.

The title of his report “A Comment on the Refugee Problem” is not the correct one for he gave a very full report of what he had learned at the conference and later in his travels in many parts of Europe. He not only repeats in detail what he was told in the councils but what he saw afterward.

After discussing the migrating refugees in the Eastern Hemisphere by countries, he said that there are “twenty-five million displaced persons, plus the constant stream flowing into West Germany from East Germany and Poland. Russia through East Germany is evicting about 4,000 weekly and there are another 500 to 700 who escape each week. Nearly all of these are Germans or ethnic-Germans or those who have married ethnic-Germans. Because this is so, West Germany is attempting to absorb them.”

“Since 1945 over forty million people have been made homeless,” he said, continuing “Try to grasp that figure. It is about 25% of the population of the United States. The problem is not decreasing. As the Iron fist reaches out into more and more of the free world, those who prize their freedom, if they can do so, leave and seek a new way of life in the shrinking area that remains free. To possess any understanding of this worldwide dislodgement it is necessary to accept the fact that the economy of Russia and China is built on slave labor. In Russia there are 923 known slave camps inhabited by over 10,000,000 slaves. The cost of such labor is simply the minimum requirement of food, clothing and shelter. The Communist economies of Russia and China were incapable of supporting the population they inherited. Nobody knows how many millions were deliberately killed in Russia or in China, but it is reliably reported that at least twenty million Chinese were disposed of. If a choice is carefully made, expelling the excess is far more effective than killing them. Such a course places an added load upon the country receiving those expelled. It diminishes the burden supported by slave labor. It eliminates those who might cause trouble.

In his address, Dr. Masland said “Probably the primary consideration of the World Council of Churches is to keep channels of communication open between the Christian communities on both sides of the Iron and Bamboo curtains . . . The Ecumenical Movement, inter-church aid, all areas of WCC activities are confronted both with opposition of the atheistic Communist countries and with the aspirations of the newly awakened Nationalist countries. Many of these, though they may be Christian or if not are nevertheless theistic, erect roadblocks of such proportions that it is becoming increasingly difficult for missionary representatives of Western Religions to hurdle them."

"The work of church missions today," he said "is not primarily that of converting the heathen in the sense the term heathen was used a generation ago. The so-called heathen are frequently less in need of spiritual and material assistance than many who are the victims of civilization. Mission work today is primarily a problem of selling the civilized that Christianity has more to offer than Buddhism or Hinduism or Mohammedanism or Communism and is a better way of life."

Place Memorial Plaques on College Walls

CLARA PEFFER STEPHENS, WILLIAM S. STEPHENS, GILBERT MALCOLM AND H. E. ROGERS UNVEIL HARRY M. STEPHENS PLAQUE.

BRONZE tables in memory of eight men and women whose lives touched intimately that of the College have been unveiled on the campus in recent weeks. All but one of the plaques were placed on the walls of the Durbin Oratory, the prayer room in West College, where other such memorials hang.

In the entrance hall of the Baird Biology Building was placed a table in memory of Henry Matthew Stephens, '92, professor of biology from 1895 until his death in 1921. His son, William S. Stephens, '26, of Daytona Beach, Fla., unveiled the tablet, which pays this tribute to the late teacher, "In labors indefatigable, in service abounding, in character steadfast, in influence persuasive and abiding."

Professor Stephens' widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Stephens, who also lives in Daytona Beach, was unable to make the trip for reasons of health. Present with Mr. Stephens was his wife, the former Clara Peffer, '27.

The scientist's personality traits and his contributions to the College through his teaching were recalled by Dr. Gilbert Malcolm, '15, presiding, who was one of his students, and by Dr. Horace E. Rogers, '24. Prayer was offered by Dr. Herbert Wing, Jr., the only present member of the faculty who was also teaching during Professor Stephens' time.

The other tablets were dedicated by President Edel at a chapel service, where they were displayed and then placed permanently in the oratory. They memorialize the following persons:

Helen Leonard Wing (1884-1952), wife of Professor Herbert Wing, Jr., and organizing chairman of the Mary Dickinson Club. "Always abundant in good works, she furnished challenging leadership for college, church and community projects, yet could serve in the ranks with gladness. Among all her varied interests, her family was ever the first."

Russell Irvin Thompson (1898-1957), of the Class of 1920, Richard V. C. Watkins Professor, 1928-1954; dean of the College, 1947-1952; provost, 1952-

1954; emeritus, 1954. "Many and great were his talents in teaching, scholarship and administration, but none greater than his gift for human understanding."

Lionel Denis Peterkin (1888-1957), John Hay Whitney Visiting Professor of the Humanities, 1955-1957. "Lover of the classics, he moved among us with a dignity of a man of the Augustan Age."

Montague Frank Modder (1891-1958), visiting professor of English Literature, 1957-1958. "Lover of life and people, his enthusiasms many, his vision wide, his ability great, he was a truly cultured man."

Lucy Holt Doney (1900-1959), widow of Professor Hugh Doney; library assistant, 1943-1954; catalogue librarian, 1955-1958. "Devoted wife of a beloved professor, she made a tender ministry of her life in service to family and students alike."

Ernest Albert Vuilleumier (1894-1958), C. Scott Althouse Professor of Chemistry, chairman of the Department of Chemistry, 1920-1958; dean of the college, 1933-1947. "His life was gentle, and through firmness, wisdom and scholarship, catalyzed by humor, he won from students and colleagues both respect and love."

Forrest Eugene Craver (1875-1958), member of the Class of 1899, director of physical training, 1900-1905; adjunct professor of Latin, Greek and Mathematics, 1907-1919; professor of physical education, 1919-1946; emeritus, 1946. "Nuclear Threat and Soviet Russia"

THE article "Nuclear Threat and Soviet Russia," written by Haines H. Lippincott, '15, which appeared in the October 27, 1958 issue of Christianity Today has brought widespread response.

Commander Lippincott served as Chaplain with the United States Fleet in World War I. He received his A.B. and A.M. degrees from Dickinson College and the S.T.B. degree from Boston University. He served pastorates in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts and is now retired living in Morristown, N. J., at 26 Colonial Road.

"Nuclear Threat and Soviet Russia" is filled with explosive sentences, some of them quotations from world leaders of the past and of today. At the outset he writes of world conditions and dilemmas of "baffled and clumsy" leaders, that "people the globe over are afraid" and says "What a stage for people fumbling with nuclear explosives."

Attacking the position of those advocating "A Sane Nuclear Policy" he declares that there is a flight from martyrdom and that "The drift is to an all-time low of moral expediency. This belief, bluntly stated, says that the only summum bonum of existence is to make sure of staying physically alive."

"We are witnessing, perhaps, another copybook lesson from history," he writes, continuing "Recall the silly days in the 1930's when leaderships of great nations were so afraid of war that they shouted 'peace for our time' and submitted to anything. Out of those came the second World War." Then he adds "The sentimentalism of today which thinks it can insure humanity's survival by debasing the morality of existence can do nothing but disintegrate the race."

In a later paragraph he says "If the West stops in the nuclear race, the Soviet Union automatically is in nuclear command. In that situation, the United States would be turned into a Russian satellite with dizzy speed. Remember what happened to countries that put their trust in helplessness or thought they could do business with communism."

Concluding he writes "A World Government run by the Soviet Union is a terrifying thought! What is more amazing is the fact that there are free men ready to accept it."

Commander Lippincott has written numerous articles for religious, philosophical and literary journals. About a year ago, Christianity Today published his "World Government and Christianity," which is now being reprinted in New Zealand. He was born in Avondale, N. J., on July 21, 1891 and graduated from Pennington Seminary. At Dickinson, he became a member of Alpha Chi Rho Fraternity. He never married.

Cited for Leadership To Williamsport

JOHN E. PERSON, JR., '40, was cited in December for meritorious service to Williamsport, a city of 50,000 persons in northern Pennsylvania, where he helps run the Sun Gazette Company, a publishing firm long operated by his family.

President of the Greater Williamsport Chamber of Commerce and active in nearly a score of civic enterprises, he received the Grit Award for his "leadership in activities aimed at making Williamsport a better and more progressive city."

The recognition was not a new experience for John, who was named Young Man of the Year by the city's Jaycees in 1952.

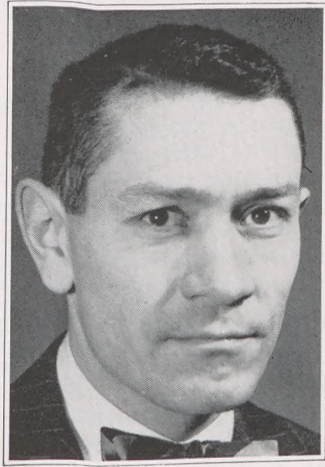

"Mr. Pearson may well in future years be called 'the civic leader who sparked Williamsport's mid-century renaissance,'" according to Grit, the weekly newspaper with national circulation of one million, whose publishers established the award in 1933.

At 40, John is one of the youngest men ever to receive the honor. Grit stated that he holds the trust and confidence of civic leaders many years his senior, who have "willingly accepted his leadership in projects of far-reaching importance." The paper used four full columns in describing his activities, which read like a directory of the city's civic organizations and programs.

The brother of Mrs. Mary Person Gates, '39, and Nancy Person Sauer, '45, he is secretary and business manager of the Sun Gazette Company of which his father, John E. Person, Sr., who received the Grit Award in 1939, is president.

His services to his native city, Grit stated, have been generous and untiring. Under his leadership, the Chamber of Commerce was reorganized, the Community Chest revitalized and seven communities were brought together to form the Greater Lycoming Regional Planning Commission.

He has directed fund campaigns for the Red Cross and Community Chest and was president of the latter in 1952. He was the prime organizer and first president of the Council of Community Services, an over-all planning group for the social agencies of the area.

He has been president of the Family Service of Williamsport, vice-president of the School Board, chairman of the City Traffic Commission and he spearheaded a successful movement to save the Little League World Series for Williamsport at a time when efforts were being made to take the series to New York City.

A bank director and member of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association, he is a leading Methodist layman and Mason. He is married to the former Charlotte Tepel and they have four sons, John III, Michael, Thomas and David.

Defends Gothic Architecture

Dr. Herbert E. Richards, '41, is the author of an article "In Defense of Gothic" which appeared in an issue of Together last year.

Remains in Cabinet

Robert L. Myers, Jr., '17, '21L, was reappointed Secretary of Banking of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by Governor David L. Lawrence last month.

Former Governor George M. Leader first appointed him to the post when he came into office in January 1955. In renewing the appointment, Governor Lawrence said that Secretary Myers was "remarkably well equipped for this responsible position" and that he was confident "he will continue to provide the same caliber of leadership and conscientious service as he has in the past."

In earlier years, during the term of Governor George H. Earle, he was Deputy Attorney General of Pennsylvania representing the Department of Banking in 1935. Then in 1936 he was Secretary to Governor Earle and in 1937-38 he served as chairman of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Board of Review.

He graduated from the College with Phi Beta Kappa honors in 1917 and returned to the Dickinson School of Law after service in World War I with the Army Signal Corps and graduated in 1921. He was Professor of Practice at the Law School from 1923 to 1931, while also engaged in the practice of law in Cumberland County.

He resigned as vice president, director and counsel of the Lemoyne Trust Company, as required by law, when he became Secretary of Banking in 1955. His brother, John E. Myers, '12, '13L, is the president of that bank.

Wins National Recognition

Mark May, '57, has written a paper which won a prize for the best undergraduate research paper completed by a medical student in nationwide competition. He is in his second year at Hahnemann Medical College, Philadelphia. Mark will receive a free trip to Cleveland to accept the "Rosenberg Award" offered by the Phi Lambda Kappa Medical Fraternity.

This paper is really a continuation of a paper written jointly with Professor E. C. Herber as honors work two years ago on "The Evolution of the Coronary Arteries." The title of the present paper is "Phylogenetic Study of the Extracardiac Arteries to the Heart" and will be published in the American Journal of Anatomy.

"Doctor Go Home"

Dr. John F. Vittrup, '53, heard the words "Doctor Go Home," but the yell was not from discontented natives, but from service men in Hawaii. The story was told in the November 7, 1958 issue of The Caducean, "Hawaii's oldest service newspaper, published at the Tripler U. S. Army Hospital, where Jack is serving a residency.

During the annual Carbine familiarization at the hospital, Dr. Vittrup had scored 135 out of 140, and, at the suggestion of a friend, he made arrangements to fire at Schofield for record.

When he arrived at the range he discovered that a change of plans had caused the pistol to be substituted for carbine firing that particular day. Faced with the prospect of shooting a .45 pistol or nothing at all, Dr. Vittrup decided to fire.

Bullseye after bullseye began showing up in rapid succession and the shouts from the other men on the line began. The shouts were even louder at the finish when the Doctor admitted that this was the first time he had ever fired a pistol, let alone a regulation .45. He had fired expert.

However, the pistol had always come easy for Dr. Vittrup's father, Maj. Gen. Russell L. Vittrup, DC/S, Plans and Operations, USARPAC, and the Doctor hopes the Carbine and the M-1 come just as easy for him when he tries those for record.

A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in 1957, "Jack" served his internship at Walter Reed Hospital, under the Army program. He is doing a residency at Tripler Hospital in obstetrics and gynecology.
