College Runs Smoothly Under New President

By Roger H. Steck

THE proudest Scot since Charles Nisbet," as Red Malcolm was billed when a featured performer with the Dickinson Glee Clubs of his student days, has put a sure and practiced hand upon the helm of the College.

The man who served with six Dickinson presidents and helped "steer" five of them—Filler, Waugh, Corson, Prettyman, Edel—during his first 37 years of administrative work at the College, has needed no steering himself. It can be reported three months after his election and installation as 23rd president in June that he has made the transition from vice-president smoothly and that he is running his new office with the same energy, devotion and ability he gave to his many former positions at Dickinson.

And it can also be reported that he is the same old Red Malcolm. He's as democratic, informal and approachable as ever, if not more so. He has told many audiences since his election: "I was always Red Malcolm and I'll always be Red Malcolm. Being president hasn't changed me a bit."

The action of the Trustees has met with universal approval. Congratulatory messages from hundreds of alumni and other well-wishers have descended upon his desk in Old West from many parts of the world—England, Scotland, France, Nepal, New Zealand among others, and, of course, from throughout the U.S.A.

When the rain of letters and telegrams became a deluge in July, the man who is known intimately to more of Dickinson's 8,000 living alumni than any other person exclaimed: "I never realized I had so many friends or that so many would take the time to write."

Faculty and students were pleased. The Dickinsonian exclaimed in the Commencement issue editorial that the Trustees "couldn't have made a better choice."

The election resulted in a number of Dickinson firsts. Dr. Malcolm became the first alumnus ever to succeed a classmate in the presidency, and '15 became the first class to produce two presidents. Never before had a Dickinson administrator other than a dean been elevated to the high office.

Never before had a new president served virtually every important non-academic administrative position, from acting president, vice-president, fund raiser, alumni secretary and editor of the magazine to treasurer, executive secretary, superintendent of buildings and grounds, etc. Dr. Malcolm is the first Dickinson president to have come up through the chairs, as it were.

Little wonder that his predecessor, William W. Edel, was moved to exclaim in 1957 when Dr. Malcolm was being honored for 35 years of devoted service to the College and the General Alumni Association:

"Red's service has been marked by his abiding love for his Alma Mater and his unusual ability to perform every administrative task well. He has a great fund of knowledge about Dickinson affairs and knows and is loved by every living alumnus. He has been of invaluable assistance to six successive presidents and, I am happy to note, he has served longer with my administration than any other."

The General Alumni Association spoke for every Dickinsonian when it put these impressive words upon an illuminated scroll which it gave to Dr. Malcolm in 1957:

"Because of his sincerity of purpose,

President Gilbert Malcolm looks ahead even as he works to dispose of current tasks. Here he attacks the hundreds of congratulatory letters that descended upon him after his election and other paper work that has a way of piling up on presidential desks.

his thoughtfulness of others, his diligent and faithful devotion to duty, he has carved for himself a niche among the great leaders of Dickinson College and has won the unending affection of all her alumni."

One of the president's friends said of him long ago, "Here is a man with the energy of ten men who uses it up every day in service to the College."

So well known is the new president and his Dickinson background that Boyd Lee Spahr, '00, president of the Board of Trustees, in apprising the 186th Commencement audience of the election by unanimous action of the Board on June 4, found it necessary simply to say, "His administrative experience qualified him for the position."

The installation took place at the Commencement exercises, Sunday, June 7. Dr. Malcolm in an informal, 300-word inaugural speech spoke proudly and humorously of his Scotch blood and of his delight at saving the College a lot of money by combining his installation with the Commencement program and its built-in audience.

"You see," he said, "the Scotch in me is showing already."

His two-point platform was that he would seek God's help in running the College and that he would "keep on trying to make the College a fine one, as I've been doing for 37 years."

The only other participants in the shortest inauguration in Dickinson history were Mr. Spahr, who administered the oath; Dr. Edel, the retiring president, who slipped off the official purple robe of the president to put it on his successor and Dean Frederic W. Ness, who helped with the robing. The academic procession left the Alumni Gymnasium with the new president at its head.

With his new responsibilities pressing in upon him, Dr. Malcolm has given up the work of alumni secretary and editor of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, twin posts he served for 37 years, but he is keeping a watchful eye on it until a successor can be named, perhaps in November when the Alumni Council holds its Homecoming meeting.

It is characteristic of the new president that his thoughts turn often to the three men who played the largest part in shaping his early life into a career dedicated to service to the College—Virgil Prettyman, '92; James Henry Morgan, and Lemuel T. Appold, '82. All three are now dead.

In 1911 when Dr. Malcolm was about to graduate from Horace Mann School, New York City, it was Virgil Prettyman, the headmaster, who persuaded the likeable red-headed senior to enter Dickinson. When the College needed help in 1922 with a $1,200,000 endowment drive known as the Dickinson-Pennington Movement, President James Henry Morgan decided that Red Malcolm was the man for the job. Red was then a specialist with the Tax Audit Company, Philadelphia.

When the campaign was brought to a successful conclusion, President Morgan persuaded Red to stay on. His contact with alumni during the drive had whetted his interest in organized alumni work, then virtually non-existent at Dickinson. Red and others knew that the College needed an active alumni body to help it grow strong.

Working with Mr. Appold, a wealthy Baltimorean, who was to become one of the great benefactors of the College through many large gifts of money and his active personal interest, he reorganized the General Alumni Association in 1923 and was appointed alumni secretary, the first at the College. In that year also, he

A few days after his retirement as 22nd president of the College on June 7, William W. Edel left the campus with Mrs. Edel for their attractive seaside home in the Naples section of Long Beach, Calif.

The president emeritus was back in the East again in time to keep a preaching engagement at the Arch Street Methodist Church, Phila., on Aug. 30. A few days later he took up an appointment with the State Department that will keep him in Washington, D.C., until mid-December.

He is serving on one of the Department's selection boards which annually evaluate the personnel of the foreign service and indicates those to be promoted. Dr. Edel is a so-called public member of the board, which also includes persons from the Departments of State, Commerce and Labor.

He has lots of others things to keep him busy in retirement. Not long before leaving the campus he told a group that he had "many books to write, boats to build, and fish to catch." The permanent address of the Edels is:

7 Neapolitan Lane, West
Naples, Long Beach, Calif.

and Mr. Appold and Dean Hoffman, '02, a newspaper executive in Harrisburg, Pa., founded THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS with Red Malcolm as the editor.

By then his career at Dickinson was off and running. He became treasurer of the College in 1925, executive secretary in 1934, vice-president in 1946. From time to time he served as superintendent of buildings and grounds. After 1946, whenever the president of the College was absent for more than 10 days, Red was the acting president.

He was one of the first college executives anywhere to advocate continuing, year-round fund-raising programs but it was not until 1934 that the Annual Giving Fund was organized at Dickinson, with Red Malcolm, of course, as the director. He continued in that role until 1956.

The 23rd president, like Charles Nisbet, the first one, is Scotch to the core. He was born October 13, 1892, in New York City, the son of Thomas Duff Malcolm and Annie Elder Bissett, natives of Scotland. As a boy growing up in the Bronx, he made many visits to his parents' former home overseas and once stayed in Scotland for a year.

He came to love the songs and stories of Scotland and by the time he was ready for college he could sing Scotch songs and tell Scotch jokes by the hour. The Dickinson Glee Club welcomed him with open arms. His imitations of Sir Harry Lauder, the great balladeer and humorist, were an immediate hit. The club billed him as "Holler Louder" and the "proudest Scot since Charles Nisbet arrived to become the first president of the frontier college."

Red also studied at the Dickinson School of Law and after graduating there in 1917 he immediately joined the editorial staff of The Harrisburg Patriot, a newspaper, and worked there until April, 1918, when he enlisted and went overseas with the 79th Division.

In France he and James Cain, who was to become famous as the author of The Postman Always Rings Twice and other books, established the Lorraine Cross, a weekly newspaper for the division, and they served as the co-editors. They became warm friends and one of the first letters of congratulation received by Dr. Malcolm after his election came from Cain.

Dr. Malcolm went back to The Patriot after the war and in May, 1920, left newspaper work permanently to accept a position in Philadelphia with the Tax Audit Company as a tax specialist. It was there that President Morgan found him in July, 1922.

Red married his College classmate, Helen F. Bucher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bucher, of Boiling Springs, Pa., on Nov. 6, 1919. He never remarried after her tragic death in 1921. For many years he has made his home at Highland Terrace, the beautiful Bucher home in Boiling Springs.

He serves the church with devotion. Forty years ago he organized a men's Bible class in Boiling Springs and is still its teacher. He sang in the choir for many years and has been president of the official board.

Red has been identified at one time or another with practically every good cause in Carlisle—Community Chest, Y.M.C.A., Red Cross, etc. He is a past president of the Carlisle Kiwanis Club which he helped organize, an honorary member of the Carlisle Rotary Club, a director of the Farmers Trust Company.

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Beta Theta Pi, Omicron Delta Kappa, the St. Andrews Society of Philadelphia, the Harrisburg Scottish Society and many Masonic organizations. He is an honorary alumnus of Western Maryland College which gave him the LL.D. degree in 1947.

There have been vast changes at the College in 37 years. Some one said that everything about the campus has changed except Red and Old West. It could be that time's kindly treatment of them is due to the fact that both have been so very adequate from the beginning.

To Serve As Delegate

Dr. Lewis H. Chrisman, '08, Chairman of the Department of English at West Virginia Wesleyan College, Buckhannon, W. Va., will serve as delegate of Dickinson College at the inauguration of Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., as president of West Virginia University in Morgantown on October 3.

New Chair Is Filled, 11 On Faculty Promoted

FREDERIC W. NESS, '33, the academic vice-president and dean of Dickinson College, was named to fill the new William W. Edel Chair in the Humanities and 11 other members of the faculty were advanced in rank, by actions of the Board of Trustees in June. Harold W. Weigel, '30, was among those promoted.

The Edel Chair, created by the gift of a Trustee and his wife who wish to remain anonymous, commemorates the many achievements of Dr. Edel as president of the College from 1946 until his retirement last June. The gift was announced at a community dinner for Dr. Edel in March and was among many honors heaped upon him at that time by the citizens of Carlisle and other persons.

In nominating the chair's first occupant, Dr. Edel told the Board that Dean Ness was "one of the real scholars of the faculty, a gifted and inspiring teacher, a wise administrator and a man whose writings have brought the name of Dickinson College to favorable notice in every college and university in the United States." He said he was sure few colleges have so able and effective a dean.

Prior to coming to Dickinson in 1952 as dean, Dr. Ness was at New York University as assistant to the vice-chancellor and as a teacher of advanced courses in English literature at the university's Washington Square College. He has also taught at Yale, the U.S. Naval Academy and the University of Cincinnati. He has his Ph.D. degree from Yale.

Prof. Weigel of the German Department was advanced to the rank of full professor as were Amos B. Horlacher and William R. Bowden, both of the English Department; Caroline H. Kennedy and W. Wright Kirk, Modern Languages, and Ferdinando D. Maurino, Romance and Classical Languages.

Promoted to associate professor of physics was Richard M. Sia and to assistant professor were Paul A. L. Smith, Political Science; James W. Carson, History; Andrew C. Houston, Economics, and Charles R. Ream, Physical Education.

Teaching at University

Emory University, in Georgia, announced in June the appointment of Dr. Richard F. Staar, '48, as associate professor of political science. For the past two years he was chief of the program analysis section, Radio Free Europe, in Munich, Germany. He has also served with the Central Intelligence Agency and as intelligence research specialist with the U.S. Department of State.

Bishop Corson Honored

The honorary Doctor of Arts degree was conferred on Bishop Fred P. Corson, '17, in May by Willamette University, in Oregon. This was the eleventh honorary doctorate for the former Dickinson College president but his first Art.D. An honor of another nature was conferred upon Bishop Corson when he was chosen by MacMurray College, in Illinois, to deliver its Willson Lectures in March.

Charles Irwin Heads Alumni Association

CHARLES F. IRWIN, JR., '27, business man and school teacher, was elected president of the General Alumni Association at the commencement meeting of the Alumni Council in June to succeed C. Wendell Holms, '21, who held the office for nine years.

Holmes resigned to accept election to the Board of Trustees. He was on the Council for 22 years. Irwin, who had been vice-president, was succeeded in that office by C. Weston Overholt, '50, Philadelphia, an attorney. Homer M. Respass '17, the secretary, and Hyman Goldstein, '15, the treasurer, were reelected.

It was an epochal meeting, which saw Dr. Gilbert Malcolm, '15, who had just been elected president of the College, making his final appearance before the Council as alumni secretary and editor of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS. He had served both posts for 36 years or since 1923 when he helped to reorganize the association and to found the magazine.

As he rose to make his final report he received a round of applause that was both a spontaneous expression of thanks for his long years of service to the Association and a warm endorsement of the Trustees' selection for the presidency.

In characteristic manner, he told the Council that he was not at all changed by his election, that he was still just "Red" Malcolm and would so remain.

He reminded the Council that he had often suggested that it find a full-time alumni secretary who could also serve as editor of the magazine. The selection could be put off no longer, he said.

The appointment of a committee to find a successor was then authorized. A report will be made at the Council's Homecoming meeting November 6. On the committee are C. Richard Stover, '36, chairman; William M. Young, '21; Mrs. Mary Snyder Hertzler, '42; Mrs. Kathryn S. Carpenter, '26, and Weston Overholt.

CHARLES F. IRWIN, JR.

Holmes' resignation left a vacancy on the Council. This was filled by the election of Clarence B. Henderickson, '38, of Lancaster, Pa., an insurance executive.

The tellers announced that the successful candidates in the mail balloting for five places on the Council were Irwin and Overholt, who were reelected; Mrs. Mary Snyder Hertzler, '42, of Carlisle; Dr. C. Law McCabe, '43, member of the faculty of Carnegie Tech. and Robert G. Crist, '47, Camp Hill, Pa., a public relations counsellor. The Class of 1959 name Leonard Wood as its Council representative.

Brief reports were made by Mrs. Helen Douglass Gallagher, '26, as one of the Alumni Trustees; George Shuman, Jr., '37, financial vice-president of the College, and Winfield C. Cook, '32, chairman of the highly successful 1959 Annual Giving Fund, which at that time stood at $226,320, a new high. Cook said the chairmanship was a rewarding experience for the opportunity it gave him to attend alumni club dinners around the country and meet hundreds of Dickinsonians.

Dean Frederic W. Ness, '33, a guest, commented on the high quality of students at the College ("As a member of the 1933 Class, it pains me to report that the freshmen are smarter every year") and said that academic standards of the College steadily go up.

Irwin, the new president, pledged his best efforts in carrying forward the fine work of Wendell Holmes, his predecessor. He was directed to have a citation prepared for presentation to the former president at the Homecoming celebration.

Irwin, who lives in Emmaus, Pa., has been on the Alumni Council since 1956. A teacher of mathematics in Emmaus Junior High School, he is also president and treasurer of Charles F. Irwin, Jr., Inc., cold storage firm; secretary-treasurer of the Retail Division of the Emmaus Chamber of Commerce, and member of the executive committee of the Lehigh Valley Industrial Development Corporation.

A member of the Moravian Church and a Mason, he is a life member of the Alumni Association and has been active in the Dickinson Club of the Lehigh Valley. He is a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

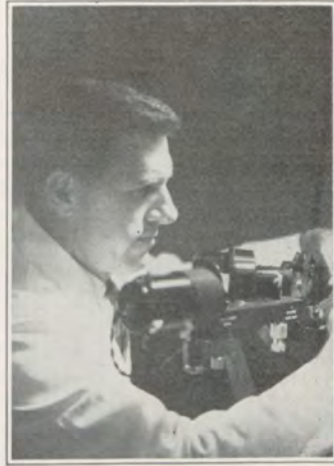

He is the father of Mary Ellen Irwin, '53, and brother of Harold S. Irwin, '23.

Good Year In Sports

Dickinson's composite record in nine varsity sports for the 1958-1959 term was an impressive one of 56 victories, 39 defeats and one tie. Top achievements were in swimming (9-0), track (9-0), tennis (10-1) and cross-country (5-1).

The wrestlers also won more contests than they lost, 5-3-1, while the footballers broke even in eight contests. Basketball (7-13), baseball (5-10) and lacrosse (2-7) were the only deficit sports. Biggest disappointment was the collapse of the lacrosse team which the year before shared the national Class C championship with M.I.T.

Teacher Wins Recognition

ROBERT M. CELLO

Dr. Robert M. Cello, '47, a veterinarian engaged in teaching and research at the University of California, has been cited by the university for "distinguished teaching."

He was selected for citation from a state-wide list of faculty members with less than five years in the university's Academic Senate. The honor was conferred at the commencement in June.

Dr. Cello is associate professor of veterinary medicine at the Davis campus. He also serves the university as associate veterinarian in the Agricultural Experiment Station at Davis and as research associate in ophthalmology at the Medical Center in San Francisco.

After graduating from Dickinson with a bachelor of science degree in 1947 he studied at the University of Besancon, in France, and earned the Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree at Cornell University in 1951. While at Cornell he was an assistant in physiology in the Veterinary College.

He had two years of private practice as a veterinarian and in 1954 joined the faculty of the School of Veterinary Medicine, University of California.

Experienced Team Makes Coach Hopeful

COACH DON SEIBERT is more optimistic this fall than in any year since he took over the football reins at the College in 1957. His hopes are based on the greater experience of his holdovers, an unusually promising group of freshmen and the new spirit on the campus engendered by the four victories of last season, the largest number at Dickinson in 10 years.

Fifty players were invited to pre-season practice, which began 10 days before the beginning of classes. The list included 16 lettermen, seven backs, nine linemen), a dozen other players with some varsity experience and 20 freshmen. Judged on the basis of their high school performance, the freshman group is the strongest at the College in years.

The ball-carrying department should be stronger than usual. Dave Wachter, the passer, was the only backfield player among the six regulars lost by graduation. Bob Worthington, last year's leading ground gainer, heads a fine group of halfbacks. Fullback will be in the experienced hands again of Jan Skladany and Bob McNutt who alternated at the position a year ago.

The squad has no one of Wachter's stature as a passer, and this presents the coaches with a problem. They would like to use Bob Harlowe, a sophomore, who was Wachter's understudy, as a ballcarrier because of his fine speed, but this switch will be possible only if they can find a good quarterback among the freshmen.

Barring injuries, the starting line should be a capable one but will lack depth except at the tackle positions where lettermen Charles Zwally, Alex Collins, Bob Crawford and Dave Morrissey all top 200 pounds. Roger Smith and Harry Packard are the chief prospects at end and Sonny Shoff and Allen Fluke at guard. Center will be a strong position if Durbin Wagner, sophomore,

Oct. 10	Haverford	Away
Oct. 17	F. & M.	Home (Parents Day)
Oct. 24	Wagner	Away

Nov. 7	Lebanon Valley	..	Home (Homecoming)
Nov. 14	Johns Hopkins	...	Home
Nov. 21	Ursinus	Home

lives up to the promise of his freshman year.

Dickinson will again operate from the split T with "belly" series. The fine supply of halfbacks and fullbacks should provide a strong ground offense and offset the lack of an experienced passer.

The schedule as arranged by Athletic Director David Eavenson, who is also one of the four assistant coaches, is an attractive one. Washington & Lee, the opening game opponent, is being met for the first time. The Parents Day game Oct. 17 with F. & M. will be the 51st with this oldest of all Dickinson's football rivals. Lebanon Valley is back on the schedule after a lapse of 13 years and will be played in the Homecoming game Nov. 7.

Harriers' Prospects Good

With last year's strong team virtually intact, 1959 should result in another fine cross-country season for Dickinson, which opens its schedule Oct. 7 in Carlisle against Juniata. Coach Joe DuCharme's runners have lost only one meet over the past two years. The schedule: Oct. 7, Juniata, home; Oct. 10, F. and M., away; Oct. 14, Elizabethtown, home; Oct. 21, P.M.C., home; Oct. 24, Albright, away; Oct. 27, Gettysburg, home; Nov. 20, Middle Atlantic championships.

Becomes Vice-President of Boston U.

DR. LEWIS H. ROHRBAUGH, '30, reached a new peak in an already distinguished career in education when he assumed the vice-presidency of Boston University over the summer.

He went to Boston, one of the country's largest privately supported institutions with some 18,000 students enrolled in 15 colleges and graduate and professional schools, from the University of Arkansas where he was vice-president and provost for five years.

John Tyler Caldwell, Arkansas president, said that Dr. Rohrbaugh's departure was "a great loss to the university and to the state of strong and high-quality educational leadership." He paid particular tribute to Dr. Rohrbaugh's contribution to university development.

During the period of his tenure numerous new graduate programs were inaugurated and there was a general upgrading of student admission and performance standards, the university announced.

Dr. Rohrbaugh established the Industrial Research and Extension Center, Graduate Institute of Technology and the Technology Campus, all in Little Rock, and the Bureau of State and Local Government, a state-wide City Planning Program, a school relations program with the state's high schools and colleges, and the consolidation of all student services into the Division of Student Affairs.

He went to the University of Arkansas in 1954 from Wash., D.C. where he was special assistant to the president of the American Council on Education. His earlier experience included a variety of responsible educational positions, including two tours of duty as director of the Graduate School of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, service as deputy chief of missions to the Balkans and to Greece, and chief of the U.S. Mission to Iraq.

In the summer of 1958 his services were borrowed by the World Bank as a consultant in connection with the assistance that Bank gave the Republic of Peru in a reorganization of the government.

Honored By Princeton

E. Laurence Springer, '24, headmaster of the Pingry School, in New Jersey, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters from Princeton in June on the 35th anniversary of his graduation from the university. Marian Anderson, the singer, and Prime Minister John Diefenbaker of Canada were among others honored at the same exercises.

The degree citation referred to Dr. Springer's school as one of the oldest and best country day schools in the nation and that under his leadership Pingry has made new additions to its century-old renown by the continuing pursuit of excellence.

Dr. Springer has been headmaster of the school since 1936. He is vice-president of the Headmasters Association of the U.S., an organization of 100 secondary school leaders; a delegate to the College Entrance Examination Board and a member of the governing board of the National Council of Independent Schools.

Six Become Dickinson Trustees

J. MILLARD TAWES

GOV. J. MILLARD TAWES of Maryland and four well-known Dickinson alumni—Roscoe O. Bonisteel, '12; C. Wendell Holmes, '21; John B. Peters, '22, and Rev. Dr. Lester A. Welliver, '18—were elected Trustees of the College at the June meeting of the Board.

Seated as an Alumni Trustee at that time was J. Milton Davidson, '33, who was elected for a four-year term in the annual mail elections of the General Alumni Association. He succeeded Dr. J. Watson Pedlow, '29, who served two terms.

J. Millard Tawes

Gov. Tawes is a member of a Dickinson family long identified with banking, shipbuilding and other business interests on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. He is the brother of Arthur W. Tawes, '12, and Marvin "Bert" Tawes, '26, both of Crisfield, Md.

Prior to his election last year as Governor, he held public office connected with finance, serving Maryland with distinction as State Bank Commissioner for three years and State Comptroller for 16. He is past president of the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers.

Gov. Tawes is a member of the Board of Visitors of Washington College, a trustee of Wesley College and president of the Board of Trustees of Immanuel Methodist Church, in Crisfield. He is a Mason and a charter member of the Crisfield Rotary Club.

Roscoe O. Bonisteel

Mr. Bonisteel is one of the leading lawyers of Michigan and a resident of Ann Arbor. A former president of the Michigan State Bar Association, he has been a member of the American Bar Association's House of Delegates and for seven years served on the Michigan Board of Law Examiners.

He is a director of many corporations and of welfare and health organizations on state and local level. Since 1946 he has been a regent of the University of Michigan, where he earned a law degree in 1912. He is also a regent of Wayne State University and a trustee of Cleary College.

A generous supporter of the College, he is the donor of the handsome new planetarium on the campus bearing his name and of a large and valuable collection of manuscripts and other papers of John Drinkwater in the Library. He has been president of the Dickinson

C. WENDELL HOLMES

Club of Michigan since its inception.

Member of the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity and a Presbyterian, he is a 33rd degree Mason and a Past Grand Master of the Michigan Grand Lodge. Dickinson made him an honorary Doctor of Laws in 1940.

C. Wendell Holmes

Wendell Holmes, school and church man of Drexel Hill, Pa., gave up the presidency of the General Alumni Association in June to accept election of the Board of Trustees. He headed the association with conspicuous success for the past decade following a like period as secretary of the Alumni Council. Few graduates have been so intimately identified with alumni work over so long a time.

He is vice-principal and registrar of the Upper Darby Senior High School, one of the largest in the Philadelphia area, and is frequently selected by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools to serve on evaluating teams.

A devoted church man, he has been lay pastor of the Crosierville Methodist Church for nine years and was superintendent of the large Broad Street Methodist Sunday School for 13. He serves on the educational committee of the Philadelphia Council of Churches.

Holmes entered Dickinson with the 1919 Class and graduated in 1921 after World War I service as an officer in the Marines. He began his teaching career in 1921 at the Pennington School and went to Upper Darby in 1924. He is a member of the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity and of numerous educational associations. One of his two daughters, Helen Anne Holmes, is a 1951 graduate of the College.

John Peters is a leading orchardist and canner residing near Gardners, Pa., in the heart of one of the nation's fruit-growing centers. Besides his own large orchard operations, he is president and general manager of the Cooperative Fruit Growers of Adams County and vice-president of the Knouse Foods Cooperative, Inc., processors of apples and other fruit, whose products are sold nation-wide under the "Lucky Leaf" brand name.

The National Apple Institute honored him in 1950 as "the man who contributed most to the apple industry" that year. A director and former president of the National Red Cherry Institute, he has also headed the Pennsylvania Association of Farmers Cooperatives and given his active support to numerous other farm alliance groups.

J. MILTON DAVIDSON

He is the lay leader and a trustee of Allison Methodist Church, Carlisle. After fire razed the old church building in 1954, he served on the building committee for the imposing new structure now serving both the congregation and the College. He is a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity and past president of the Carlisle Rotary Club.

Peters comes of a family that has contributed students to the College for three generations. He himself is married to an alumna, the former Mary E. Koller, '26. Three of their seven children are Dickinsonians, Mary K., '50; John F., '52, and William K., '54.

Lester A. Welliver

Rev. Dr. Welliver, Methodist minister, has served the Methodist Church with marked distinction as pastor, educator and administrator. Since 1955 he had been superintendent of the Williamsport District and before that was president of Westminister Theological Seminary for 12 years.

After graduating from Dickinson with Phi Beta Kappa honors, he earned a bachelor of divinity degree at Drew and entered the pastoral ministry in 1922, serving Central Pennsylvania Conference charges in Altoona, Bellwood, Lewisburg and Clearfield until 1943 when he was appointed superintendent of the Harrisburg District, an office he held until becoming head of the seminary in 1943.

Since 1955 he has been vice-president of the Judicial Council of the Methodist Church and a member of the executive committee of Methodist Historical Societies. He has served on the General Board of Education and was a delegate to the World Methodist Council in England in 1951 and at Lake Junaluska in 1956.

The College gave him the honorary Doctor of Divinity degree in 1940 and Western Maryland conferred the LL.D. degree upon him in 1944. He is a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity.

He is married to the former Eleanor F. Yeaworth, '22. Two of their five children are Dickinsonians, the Rev. L. Allyn Welliver, '48, and Glenn Welliver, '44.

J. Milton Davidson

J. Milton Davidson, the new Alumni Trustee, is best known to alumni generally as chairman of the successful Annual Giving Funds from 1953 to 1958 and to Dickinsonians of his era in College as a varsity football, basketball and track star. He served two terms on the Alumni Council, 1933-36, 1946-49.

After graduating in 1933 he taught school in New Jersey and New York and earned a master of education degree at Temple University. In 1939 he became a salesman for the T. A. Edison Company, Phila., and after World War II, in which he served as a Navy commander, he went with the Pennsalt Chemicals Corporation as a salesman and is now the sales manager of its Metal Processing Department, with offices in Phila.

He lives in suburban Stafford-Wayne and is active in church and civic affairs. An elder of the Wayne Presbyterian Church, he is a trustee of the Philadelphia Presbyterian Homes, Inc., and serves on the Philadelphia Council of the Boys Scouts of America as chairman of the camping committee. He is a Sigma Chi.

He is the father of three daughters and two sons.

At 87, He Rests After Three Careers

AT 87, GEORGE W. CISNEY, '01, can number himself among the oldest living alumni of the College and from the garden of his home in Florida look back on productive careers in the law, horticulture and real estate.

He is retired now and living in St. Petersburg, which has been his home since the mid-1930s when he gave up the practice of law in New York City to grow gardenias in Florida on a commercial scale. He developed the Cisney Gardens, largely by his own hands, and the gardens became a St. Petersburg landmark.

Last June, he was the subject of a feature article in the St. Petersburg Times. He gave up growing gardenias long ago and turned the Cisney Gardens into one of the city's first close-in subdivisions. His former lands are now thickly dotted with nice homes, some of which he built. He lives in one of them at 5001 29th Avenue N.

According to the articles, he expects to stay there the rest of his life, and awaits the time when he will be joined permanently by his daughter, Lenore A. Cisney '30, who works for a N.Y.C. publicity firm whose clients include Bob Hope and other Hollywood stars.

George Cisney was older than most of his class mates when he entered the College in 1897 from the old Dickinson Preparatory School. After graduating in 1901 he went on to the Dickinson School of Law and received his LL.B. in 1903. He first practiced in Pittsburgh and then went to New York.

Walking was one of his hobbies as a young man. He once entered a walking race from N.Y.C. to Philadelphia and covered the distance in the winning time of 21 hours and 50 minutes. According to the Florida paper, he is "hale and hearty" and brisk walks about the neighborhood constitute one of his pastimes.

Named to Faculty Chair

Dr. Craig R. Thompson, '33, has been appointed first occupant of the Bergstrom Chair in the Humanities at Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis., where he is chairman of the English department. He holds his advanced degrees from Princeton and taught at Cornell, Yale and Elmira Women's College before going to Lawrence 10 years ago.

In New Faculty Appointment

James H. Soltow, '48, who has been at Harvard, has accepted an assistant professorship at Michigan State for the academic year to begin this month. He will teach Economic History and a general American course. While there he will also do research work.

His wife is the former Martha Jane Stough, '46.

Daughter Writes of Frontier Preacher

By James Stewart Leslie

Visiting Associate Professor of Religion

Tales of a Frontier Preacher by the Rev. Benjamin F. Hilbish and edited by Florence M. Hilbish. (Pageant Press, Inc., $2.75),

The revival hymn "I'll go where you want me to go, Dear Lord" almost haunts this autobiographical study of Benjamin Hilbish, a Methodist minister who felt called to serve God in the hills of West Virginia.

The book, edited by his daughter, Dr. Florence Hilbish, '23, visiting professor of English at Marietta College, in Ohio, is a series of anecdotes about Mr. Hilbish's various churches and relates many amusing and some almost unbelievable episodes of the parsonage family's dealings with communities and parishioners in the back woods of the mountain country.

Salary was a term reserved for the dictionary, but hardly descriptive of the honoraria given to the Hilbish family. In one charge the total giving for the year was thirty-five cents, while the full salary from many churches over a period of two years reached the astronomical figure of less than $300. On one occasion at the time of a thank offering the collection plate yielded a total of candy, toothpicks, matches, buttons and a one-cent piece.

Thus, the reader sees the devotion of a man of God who, confronted by hostile and rough men, moonshiners, and even a murderer, felt the power of his faith in God strongly enough to know that he was in no danger.

In an early period of his ministry, Mr. Hilbish covered a parish of 60 miles, all by foot. He could not afford a horse, for his only source of income was what he could gain from his garden.

One church boasted an auditorium held up by wooden posts, making it possible for pigs and chickens to find shelter beneath the sanctuary. This kept the floor fairly dry, but also permitted considerable noise to reach the ears of the worshippers. At one period Mr. Hilbish became increasingly aware of pig odors, and found that one particularly large animal had died some time before. Its removal assisted the cleric in preaching without benefit of offending odors.

The baked bean supper incident reveals that the West Virginians were not fond of trying new dishes (and baked beans could be included in that category), so the diet of the parsonage for some days to come turned out to be (yes, you've guessed it) beans baked by Mrs. Hilbish! Fortunately, she was a good cook, and the menu, while having little variety, did have taste.

The book reads well, and is an indication of the fidelity to the cause of Christ and the personal love of a man of God for "his people." As Mr. Hilbish says at one point, "If anyone needed faith in God, we surely needed it, and that is the only thing that carried us through."

Dr. Florence Hilbish, the book's editor and very largely its writer, has spent the large part of her life studying and teaching. She holds an M.A. degree from the University of Pittsburgh and a Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania. Her teaching has been on all levels, from one-room schools to graduate students in top-ranking colleges.

Born in Shamokin, Pa., her girlhood was spent on the West Virginia hills which figure in the book. There the days were filled with hardship, but even more full of shared happiness and love, she has said.

Dr. Hilbish's previously published works are Charlotte Smith, Poet and Novelist, which was her doctor's dissertation, and a textbook, The Research Paper.

Writes His 10th Book

By Charles C. Sellers
The College Librarian

Robert D. Abrahams, '26, is the author of a biography, The Uncommon Soldier: Major Alfred Mordecai (Covenant Books, $2.95). It is one of a series written for young people of the Jewish faith, and tells the story of one of the brilliant figures of the Corps of Engineers, United States Army.

Major Mordecai would hold a far more conspicuous place in our history today but for the heart-rendering decision which brought his resignation from the army when North Carolina, his native state, seceded from the Union. His son, just graduating from West Point, carried on in his stead as an officer in the Federal Army while he, in civilian life, laid the foundations for a second, equally eminent career.

The story is told with a charm and simplicity revealing the warmth of Jewish family life, and the sense of high dedication derived by a young man from this and from his religion.

Robert Abrahams is a native of Philadelphia, where Alfred Mordecai spent his later years. He is a graduate and a trustee of the Dickinson School of Law, and a member of the faculty of the Temple University Law School. He has also been active in civic affairs and in the diplomatic service.

The Uncommon Soldier is his third biographical novel and tenth published book. His poems have appeared in The Saturday Evening Post and other magazines.

On Randolph-Macon Faculty

Howard E. Davis, '55, has received an appointment as Associate Professor of Political Science at Randolph-Macon College and began his work there on September 1.

Following his graduation from the College summa cum laude with honors in political science and election to Phi Beta Kappa, he began graduate work at Yale University. He received his A.M. degree there in 1956 and will submit his Ph.D. dissertation for approval during the coming year.

While an undergraduate, he also won the James Fowler Rusling Prize and the William Hufstader Senior Prize. In 1955, he was awarded the Falk Fellowship at Yale University. He is a member of S.A.E. fraternity, Omicron Delta Kappa and Pi Delta Epsilon.

His wife is the former Elizabeth Forbes, a 1957 graduate of Wilson College. They announced the birth of a daughter, Lisa Jeanne, on December 30, 1958. They now reside at 208 Maiden Lane, Ashland, Va.

Earns Doctorate in Psychology

Maxim F. Young, '51, was awarded the Ph.D. degree in psychology by Temple University in June and is now on the staff of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Mental Health Center in the Philadelphia General Hospital. The title of his dissertation was "An Investigation of Narcissism and Correlates of Narcissism in Schizophrenics, Neurotics and Normals." Dr. Young also holds a master's degree in psychology from Temple. He interned at the Philadelphia State Hospital.

Two Receive New Church Positions

DR. EDGAR A. HENRY, '27, is the latest of many Dickinsonians to become superintendent of the 133-congregation Harrisburg District of the Methodist Church. He succeeds Dr. F. LaMont Henninger, '24, in June. The term is for six years.

At the same meeting of the Central Pennsylvania Conference, Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam appointed Dr. Henninger executive secretary of the Inter Board Council of the conference. This is a new position, created to coordinate the work of all conference boards, agencies and institutions.

One of Dr. Henninger's responsibilities in his new role will be to edit and publish a quarterly news bulletin for the Inter Board Council. He and Mrs. Henninger will continue to reside in Harrisburg. Dr. Henninger is the secretary of the Board of Trustees of Dickinson College.

Dr. Henry stepped into the superintendency after eight highly successful years as pastor of the large First Methodist Church, York. In five of these years his congregation had the highest per capita giving to missions of any church its size in American Methodism. In the other three years his church ranked second.

For 20 years he has served on the conference's Commission on World Service and Finance and has been its president for the past three years. He is also a member of the Commission on Christian Higher Education.

In addition to York, he has had charges in Wallaceton, Nescopeck, Broad Avenue Church, Altoona; Tyrone; Mount Union, and First Church, Altoona, all in the Central Pennsylvania Conference.

Active in alumni affairs, he has long been the chaplain of the Dickinson Club of York. He is a Life Member of the General Alumni Association. The College conferred the honorary degree of

EDGAR A. HENRY

Doctor of Divinity upon him at the 1958 commencement.

He and Mrs. Henry, the former Esther Pauline Brubaker, of Carlisle, will make their home at 2426 North Second Street, Harrisburg.

Retires But Doesn't Quit

The Rev. Trago W. Lloyd, '21, a Methodist minister for 39 years, was officially retired by the Baltimore Conference on June 7 but remains very much in harness. On that date he became associate minister of the large St. Mark's Methodist Church, Baltimore.

The St. Mark's news bulletin, in announcing the appointment of Rev. Lloyd, stated, "He stayed five or six years in each of his last five churches, which is some indication of his success and popularity." These churches were in Walkersville, Woodlawn, Waverly, Catonsville and Parkside, all in Maryland.

His early charges were in Hagerstown, Md., and his native West Virginia. He and Mrs. Lloyd, a graduate of Goucher College, are living in Catonsville. They have a married son and daughter and two grandchildren.

Heads Department At Carnegie Tech

DR. CHARLES LAW McCABE, '43, became head of the department of metallurgical engineering at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, in July after eight years on its faculty.

After graduating from Dickinson with Phi Beta Kappa honors, he worked on the Manhattan Project at Oak Ridge, Tenn., both as a civilian and with the army during World War II and then earned his doctorate at Carnegie Tech.

He was an instructor in the department of chemistry at Harvard from 1948 until 1951 when he joined the staff of the Metals Research Laboratory at Carnegie Tech. He became a member of the teaching staff three years later.

Living as he does in one of the country's great steel centers, Dr. McCabe has done extensive research in the physical chemistry of steelmaking and high temperature thermodynamics and kinetics. He is the author or co-author of 15 articles appearing in scholarly publications.

Dr. McCabe has been increasingly active in Dickinson affairs. A Life Member of the General Alumni Association, he began a three-year term on the Alumni Council in June. He serves on the committee of scientists which makes nominations for Dickinson's distinguished Joseph Priestley Memorial Award.

In his undergraduate days he was a varsity track and basketball performer, served on the Microcosm staff and was active in the Mohler Science Club. He became a member of Kappa Sigma and Omicron Delta Kappa.

Three Get Medical Degrees

CHARLES LAW McCABE

Dr. Malcolm Sheds A Job

One of Dr. Malcolm's first appointments after becoming president of the College in June was to name Roger Steck, '26, as acting editor of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS. Steck, one of the magazine's two associate editors, will serve until an editor is elected by the Alumni Council, probably at its Homecoming meeting in November. Dr. Malcolm was editor from the inception of the magazine in 1923 until his election to the presidency. Every issue through 36 years came out under his immediate supervision.

Receives Ph.D. in Chemistry

Forrest C. Grimm, '55, received the Doctor of Philosophy degree in chemistry at the University of Illinois in June and is now working at Oak Ridge, Tenn. During his four years of graduate work at the university he served as a research assistant and majored in bio-chemistry. He is the son of Prof. John C. M. Grimm of the Dickinson faculty and Mrs. Grimm, the former Margaret Craver, '29.

Becomes Head of Children's Hospital

DR. ROBERT W. SAUNDERSON, JR., '47, has been appointed Medical Director of the State Hospital for Crippled Children, Elizabethtown, a 210-bed institution operated by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the foothills of Lancaster County. He had been in private practice in Salisbury, Maryland, since 1954.

Dr. Saunderson is a native of Rochester, N. Y., but moved with his family to Dover, Del., in 1937. He entered Dickinson College in 1941 and became affiliated with Alpha Chi Rho fraternity. Due to the war his education was accelerated, and he finished his pre-medical credits in late 1943 after enlistment in the Army Medical Department. He entered the University of Rochester School of Medicine in 1944, where he met Emily J. Reynolds, a nurse of that city and a graduate of the University of Rochester, whom he later married.

Dr. Saunderson interned at Albany Hospital, N. Y., and did his residency in pediatrics at the Medical College of Virginia Hospitals in Richmond. He returned to the Army, where he served a total of eight years. He saw service as a pediatric duty officer at the Station Hospital, Ft. Benning, Ga., and Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Dr. Saunderson is a member of Wicomico County Medical Society and on the attending staff of Peninsula General Hospital. He is certified by the American Board of Pediatrics and is a Fellow in the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Dr. and Mrs. Saunderson have four daughters, Ellen Jean, 11; Carol Anne, 8; and twin girls, Martha Jo and Mary Janet, born March 27.

Dr. Saunderson is a life member of the General Alumni Association.

ROBERT W. SAUNDERSON

History His Sideline

Robert G. Crist, '47, presented his third paper on a Cumberland County historical subject at the spring meeting of the Hamilton Library and Historical Society of Cumberland County, Carlisle. His subject was "Captain William Hendricks and the March to Quebec."

Crist has been doing research on this subject for several years. He became interested in it while digging out facts for his two previous efforts, "The Land in Cumberland Called Lowther" and "Robert Whitehill and the Struggle for Civic Rights." Both have been published.

William Hendricks recruited one of the first companies of Pennsylvania to join the fighting in the Revolutionary War. His march from Carlisle to Boston and later through the wilds of Maine to Quebec is one of the little known and dramatic stories of the war.

Crist started his historical diggings near home. The Whitehill and Hendricks homes are right in his neighborhood in Camp Hill, Pa. In addition to writing history, he serves as a director of the historical society and president of the Camp Hill Library Association.

Crime and Punishment Is His Field

DR. MARVIN E. WOLFGANG, '48, a sociologist on the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania, has won recognition in this country and abroad as a leading authority on crime and punishment.

He is the author of several articles on criminology, and his book "Patterns in Criminal Homicide" is regarded as a complete and authoritative study of homicide with special reference to the post-war period in the city of Philadelphia.

In 1957 he received a combined Fulbright-Guggenheim grant for research in Florence, Italy, where he gathered material on crime and punishment in renaissance Italy. In 1953 he was the guest of the Italian government and studied 14 penal institutions. He also spent 1958 abroad in research professional interviews in Rome and Stockholm.

Dr. Wolfgang, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Dickinson, has been teaching at the University of Pennsylvania since 1952. Before that he was at Lebanon Valley College as chairman of the department of sociology and political science.

Pennsylvania promoted him to the rank of associate professor last June. His wife is also an instructor in romance languages at the university.

Receives Commendation

D. Paul Rogers, '16, chief of Sanitary Engineering Division's Laboratory Services of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, received a framed certificate of appreciation from Eastern Pennsylvania Sewage and Industrial Operators Association at a recent meeting in Buck Hill Falls. A charter member of the group, Rogers, chief chemist, was commended for his "long years of service and leadership."

A Clash of Careers

The political careers of two Dickinsonians serving in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives from different parts of the state came together with a crash in June. They fought right down to the wire in what political writers termed a "knockdown and dragout fight" for the post of Republican whip of the House.

Edwin W. Tompkins, '25, Representative from Cameron County, and Edwin E. Lippincott, III, '44, from the populace Delaware County, outlasted seven other candidates to the final ballot on which Tompkins led Lippincott by a single vote. At that point Lippincott withdrew and moved that his opponent be elected unanimously. Both are lawyers.

The new whip has served in the Legislature at Harrisburg, Pa., since 1947. Before that he was district attorney of his county for 17 years and was president of the Pennsylvania District Attorneys Association in 1933-34. Edwin E. Tompkins, Jr., '53, also a lawyer, is a son. Lippincott is serving his fourth term in the House.

With Armstrong Cork

John W. DeGroot, Jr., '48, was named chief chemist in the paint laboratory of the Lancaster floor plant of the Armstrong Cork Company on July 1.

John R. Maddix, '32, is a chemist in the floor division in the Research Development Center at the Lancaster plant of the company.

John S. Heckles, '38, is manager of the chemistry department in that laboratory and Dorothy Edwards, '35, is in the personnel department of the company.

New Dean of Women Named By The College

THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS in the May, 1959, issue announced the appointment of Dr. Katharine A. Bonney of the faculty as dean of women to succeed Victoria K. Hann, '50, who had resigned.

In June the unforeseen resignation of Dr. Raymond J. Wells of the department of philosophy and religion made it necessary to continue Dr. Donney, who is a member of that department, on a full-time teaching schedule. She came to the faculty a year ago with the expressed desire to teach only, although she has had much administrative experience at Furman University, Connecticut Teachers College and elsewhere.

The position of dean of women has been filled by the appointment of Barbara T. Stevens, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, who came to the campus in August from Southern Illinois University where for the past two years she was engaged in testing and student personnel work.

A native of Wildwood, N.J., she graduated from the University of Pennsylvania with a B.A. degree and honors in psychology in 1955 and spent the next two years at Indiana University which awarded her a Master of Science degree in guidance in 1957.

BARBARA T. STEVENS

She was assistant supervisor of psychological testing at Southern Illinois University last term following a year as assistant coordinator of student activities there.

Miss Stevens is a member of Mortar Board, a national honor society for women; the American Personnel and Guidance Association and the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors.

New Faculty Salary Scale Goes to $11,425

A NEW faculty salary scale ranging $5,000 to $11,425, including fringe benefits, went into effect at the College on July 1 with start of the new fiscal year.

The schedule as approved by the Board of Trustees has resulted in increases for all faculty members, in some cases up to $1,200, and places Dickinson among the top three per cent of American colleges in teachers' pay. The last previous raise at all academic grades was made in 1957.

By placing its salaries more nearly on a level with the other professions and making them competitive with pay teachers might expect to get at comparable rank in business or industry, the College has strengthened its position to attract and hold the best teachers.

With fringe benefits included, the salary range at each faculty rank is now as follows: professor, $8,750 to $11,425; associate professor, $7,000 to $8,650; assistant professor, $6,000 to $7,540; instructor, $5,000 to $6,430.

Sigma Chis To Mark Their Centennial

DICKINSON'S Omicron chapter of Sigma Chi will observe its centennial with a three-day celebration on the campus and at Allenberry, Boiling Springs, Nov. 13 to 15.

The chapter was the first chartered by the fraternity east of the Allegheny Mountains, and of the 128 chapters around the country, only Indiana and Depauw are older in point of continuous existence. Sigma Chi was the first of the famous Miami Triad to have a Dickinson chapter.

The celebration will get under way Friday evening, Nov. 13, with an "open house" at the chapter house and at Allenberry. Saturday will be a full day, opening with an initiation ceremony in the morning, continuing with the Dickinson-Hopkins football game at which the Sigma Chis and their friends will have a reserved section in the stands, and closing with a banquet and dance at Allenberry.

Banquet speaker will be Robert M. Collett, grand historian of the fraternity and Denison University alumnus. John Milton Davidson, '33, will be the toastmaster. On Sunday, the group will attend the morning service in Allison Methodist Church, joining in the observance of Laymen's Sunday. Speaker will be Samuel W. Witwer, '30, a leading Methodist layman, a Sigma Chi and Dickinson trustee. A luncheon will follow in the chapter house.

The first chapter of Sigma Chi was founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in 1855, and one of the founders was James Parks Caldwell whose father, Dr. William W. Caldwell, a native of Carlisle, was graduated from Dickinson in the early 1830s.

Omicron chapter was formally installed at the College Dec. 12, 1859, by two students from Jefferson College, now Washington and Jefferson College, who initiated the petitioning group of undergraduates. The first three initiates were Thomas M. Williams, '62, regarded as "father" of the chapter, George W. Caruth, '62, and Joseph B. Parker, '60.

Shortly afterwards five others were added to the roll, Thomas N. Booker, '62; George R. Garner, '62; James L. Crook, '60; Thomas S. Parker, '60, and William M. Travers, '63, who, with the other three, are now listed as the charter members. The first meeting was held secretly late at night at the home of the Parker brothers, 166 West Pomfret Street, now the residence of Prof. Milton E. Flower and his mother. Within the next six months 10 more names were added to the chapter roll and the place of meeting was transferred to the upper floor of what was then a rooming house at the southwest corner of Pomfret and East Streets. The house still stands and is a private residence.

The present chapter house at 41 South College Street was acquired from the Berg estate in 1924. An addition is planned for the near future to provide more adequate facilities for the increased membership.

Planning the centennial are a committee of John C. Arndt, '31, the chairman; Lester T. Etter, '34, president of the Sigma Chi alumni of Dickinson; A. H. Allison, '16; Samuel W. Witwer, '30; J. Milton Davidson, '33; Wayland A. Lucas, '35, and Nelson F. Lebo, '60.

Receives Mellon Fellowship

Alan M. Smith, '59, of Silver Spring, Md., is one of eleven Fellows named to receive an Andrew Mellon Fellowship for graduate study at the University of Pittsburgh for the 1959-60 academic year. He will do his graduate work in history.

The Fellows were chosen by a faculty committee of the University of Pittsburgh on the basis of past academic records and the likelihood of distinguished achievement in graduate study.

Twenty Names Added to Life Member Rolls

TWENTY names have been added to the roster of Life Members in the General Alumni Association since the publication of the May number of THE DICKINSON ALUMNUS, bringing the total to 2,126.

Three of these came from members of the class of 1951, which jumps that class to seventh place in the top ten classes.

Through the gift of his son, Colonel James B. Stein, '18, of Tullahoma, Tenn., a memorial subscription was entered in the name of the Rev. Dr. James B. Stein, of the Class of 1887, who died on July 16, 1938. For 44 years, Dr. Stein was a member of the Central Pennsylvania Conference and from 1922 to 1929 was corresponding secretary of the Board of Philanthropies. During the seven years of that assignment, he raised over $1,250,000, built an addition to the Home for the Aged at Tyrone, played a large part in the design and building of the Children's Home at Shiremanstown and the establishment of the Wesleyan Foundation at State College.

The other new lifers are as follows:

The Rev. William H. Robinson, who after 42 years in the pastorate, is now serving his third term as a Director of the Methodist Social Union of Philadelphia and vicinity.

1915

Rev. James E. Leaman, who lives in Butler, Pa., and is a retired clergyman.

1924

Walter H. E. Scott, who is in the Customer Relations Department of Lawyers Title Insurance Corporation.

1927

Raolland L. Adams, who is president and publisher of the Globe Publishing Company, Bethlehem, Pa.

1929

Col. R. Wallace White, who was a lawyer until 1942, when he became a career soldier, is now Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, Fort Monmouth, N. J.

1934

Thomas F. Lazarus, of Tunkhannock, Pa., who is associated with the Daystorm Instrument Company.

1943

Norman R. Olewiler, attorney, who practices law at 39 East King St., York, Pa.

1949

Two classmates became Lifers last month. They are Thomas D. Caldwell, Jr., who is a member of the law firm of Caldwell, Fox and Stoner, with offices at 23 South Third Street, Harrisburg, Pa., and his wife, the former Lenore Shadle.

1949

Joseph Hlywiak, who is a special agent for Naval Intelligence and lives with his wife and two children at 318 Beverly Road, Camp Hill, Pa.

1950

Richard E. Eisenhour, of Harrisburg, Pa., who is chief counsel for the Auditor General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

L. G. Krieger, who is a banker, and now has moved to 450 Nome St., Aurora, Colo.

Rev. P. Dale Neuffer, who is associate minister of the College Avenue Methodist Church, Somerville, Mass.

George W. Heffner, who is a member of the firm of Burke, Bowe, Doblin & Heffner with law offices at 501 West Market St., Pottsville and other offices in Tamaqua and Shenandoah.

Mrs. Paul T. Reed, the former Suzanne Horner, whose husband has been transferred from West Virginia to be manager of the General Brodhead Hotel, Beaver Falls, Pa., where she now lives with him and their five year old daughter, Elizabeth Suzanne.

John J. Shumaker, who practices law in Harrisburg with offices in the Blackstone Building.

Dr. H. Robert Gasull, who is doing an Army tour of duty at Fort Knox, Ky., and his wife the former Helen Patricia Haddock, both became lifers.

Honorary

Dr. Lee H. Bristol, Jr., who received the honorary degree of Doctor of Music at Commencement last June.

Honored By Phi Beta Kappa

Prof. J. William Frey, '37, chairman of the department of German and Russian at Franklin & Marshall College and a leading authority on the Pennsylvania Dutch, was elected to alumnus membership in Phi Beta Kappa by Dickinson's Pennsylvania Alpha Chapter in June.

A popular lecturer on Pennsylvania Dutch history, customs and music, he is coordinator of the Pennsylvania Dutch Folklore Center, in Lancaster, Pa., and co-editor of The Pennsylvania Dutchman. He is the author of many linguistic articles on Pennsylvania Dutch in learned journals and wrote the first grammar in the dialect ever to be published.

At F. & M., where he has taught since 1944, he introduced the college's first credit course in Russian and pioneered in the use of tape recordings of that language as a teaching aid. His library of tapes in Russian is said to rank with the best in colleges in the East.

From Dickinson, where he graduated with general honors and special honors in German, he went to Geissen University, Germany, for a year and then earned M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in German at the University of Illinois. He has also done graduate work in linguistics at the University of North Carolina and Cornell.

Washington Club Meets

Prof. Benjamin D. James, director of admissions, was the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Dickinson Club of Washington, which was held in O'Donnell's Restaurant, Bethesda, on May 12. There were 68 present to enjoy an excellent dinner.

Dr. Robert N. Coale, '39, who completed his two-year term as president of the club, presided at the dinner. The Rev. Marion S. Michael, '39, offered the invocation.

William J. Batrus, '38, made a report as chairman of the Committee on Scholar-

Heads Law Trustees

Harry W. Lee, '18L, an attorney of Reading, Pa., and a trustee of the College, became president of the Board of Trustees of the Dickinson School of Law in June, succeeding Judge William C. Sheely, '26L, who resigned at that time for reasons of health.

Mr. Lee had been the vice-president for seven years. Elected to succeed him in that office was Judge Dale F. Shughart, '34, '38L, of Carlisle.

Judge Sheely, the president for 19 years, will continue on the board. The College gave him the honorary LL.D. degree in 1952 and lauded him in the citation for playing important role in maintenance of the high ideals and standards of the School of Law.
