The Dickinson Alumnus is published quarterly in October, January, April and July. Entered as second class matter May 23, 1923, at the post office at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

ON THE COVER—The new residence for women students will bear the name Adams Hall as the result of a $250,000 gift to the College by Rolland Adams, '27 (shown here with his wife). The largest gift ever received by the College during the lifetime of a donor will be used to furnish the new dormitory which will open in September.

Since it now costs us ten cents to have the Post Office Department return each copy of the Alumnus for a wrong address, we reluctantly decided to abandon our customary practice of automatically remailing the Alumnus to the well over 300 alumni whose copies are returned for a wrong address. Hereafter, returned magazines will be discarded unless you send us a card asking for yours. So when you move, or preferably before you move, please send us your new address. This will insure delivery of your Alumnus and will save us some money.

COMMENCEMENT—ALUMNI WEEKEND REPORT

Thursday, May 30

THE BUSY weekend began at 9:30 a.m. on Thursday, May 30 with the convening of the faculty for the final meeting of the academic year. In addition to the normal business of recommending those members of the senior class who had satisfied all the requirements for their degrees, the faculty took time to pay tribute to three members of the College family who retire at the end of the academic year. The three honored were William Drum Gould, who completed 26 years as a member of the Dickinson College faculty. Upon his retirement he was chairman of the department of philosophy and religion; Charles D. Kepner, a member of the faculty since 1946, who, upon his retirement, was chairman of the department of sociology; and Gilbert Malcolm, about whom it is sufficient to say that the Dickinson family regards him affectionately as "Mr. Dickinson." Red retires with the title of President Emeritus.

The third annual distinguished teaching award of the Lindback Foundation was presented to Horace E. Rogers, '24, Alfred Victor duPont Professor of Analytical Chemistry and chairman of the department of chemistry at Dickinson College. The award carries with it a $1,000 honorarium.

The activity of the weekend picked up beginning again at 6:30 p.m. in the Morgan Hall dining room. The occasion was the annual trustees-faculty dinner. Following the dinner, the gathering of more than 120 was enlightened and entertained by the following remarks of the chairman of the Academic Steering Committee, Professor Amos B. Horlacher.

Academic Study Report

PROFESSOR AMOS B. HORLACHER

MR. PRESIDENT, ladies and gentlemen of the board of trustees, and esteemed colleagues of the faculty, I have been called upon to report to you on the work of The Academic Study which was planned and authorized in the spring of 1962, its personnel chosen then or shortly thereafter, and its implementation begun in late September. Hence, The Academic Study has been just nine months in gestation (a not uncommon period of expectation) and we have produced. Our off-spring was not, alas, any star-betokened child such as Virgil looked for. Our was merely a formal action by the faculty taken two weeks ago (albeit by unanimous vote) that we would NOT follow that Bellwether, Dartmouth, and other unsuspecting sheep like Earlham, Coe, and Goucher into the so-called three-three organization of courses in the academic calendar. The mountain labored and brought forth—a mouse!

Here my report could end, but if it did, you would carry away a grossly distorted view of why this study was planned and implemented, of what meetings were held and studies made and projected, of what work is in progress and planned, and of what lies before us in the critical year ahead, which will get underway not many hours after this year's graduates return to their homes, degrees in hand.

So, if I am to tell you more, I shall use what I have just said as a kind of outline.

— I —

Beyond any question, the most important thing to report about our academic study is that it is in being; and the second most important is WHY it was brought into being. I have touched on this second matter in my prior report to you, but it is of such importance that some repetition, I believe, is justified.

During the current year at your gatherings and through the mails, great stress has been placed on the physical reconstruction of the college. This is understandable because these needs were concrete, palpable, easily recognized and understood. But no sensible person would confuse college buildings with a college, any more than he would confuse a house with a home. Our ancestors knew the difference (although some real-estate people appear not to), and they provided us with two distinct words to insure clarity.

Something not unlike this distinction was in the psalmist's mind when he said:

Except the Lord build a house,
Their labor in vain who build it.

Now I would not identify my colleagues of the faculty, however much I love them, nor even the members of this august board, however much I revere them, with the Almighty; yet the parallel between the operation of the Creator's wisdom and our own is true in function, however grossly impious it would be to go beyond this simple comparison. Ours too is a task of creation or re-creation—nothing less.

What is it, then, that we seek to create or re-create? A liberal arts college that realizes the best potential that any and all of its constituents possess, now or in the future.

I shall make no attempt to delineate what the qualities are or will be, for the simple reason that I do not know. To find out and report to the faculty is the first object of this study. And to find out has occupied the major portion of our time and effort in the months that have passed. But we know enough now to know that no one of us, or at most few of us—student, faculty member, administrator, alumnus, or trustee—is now contributing to this college up to his highest potential.

Dr. Rubendall congratulating Professors Rogers, Kepner and Gould.

Let me be specific in a few areas:

1. Students are not sufficiently motivated as a group; nor, with notable exceptions, do they do the amount and quality of work of which they are capable. As a group, they have not created a vigorous intellectual climate here, nor do they sustain it where it exists as an occasional island in a sea of sophisticated indifference. Generally speaking, they have not yet learned that the best education is self-education and that conversation on intellectual matters is a valuable form of learning. Small talk there will always be, but it cannot be the stock-in-trade of an alert and vigorous academic community.

2. The faculty (including the speaker) is either too enamored with, or too used to what John H. Finley has called:

A market place for the exchange of those negotiable elective tokens (and I might add, hermetically sealed, that they should not contaminate each other) by which one, through skillful barter, might come to his degree and yet remain a versatile ignoramus.

We are a small college, gentlemen, but how different are we really from those vast educational factories of the state: Apart from somewhat smaller classes and more frequent contact of professor and student, how much do we eschew the academic treadmill with its courses and hours and blue books and often meaningless grades? How much do our procedures advance learning per se, and how far, on the contrary, are they dictated—and accepted—by and for the convenience of academic bookkeeping? To paraphrase old Omar, sometimes we feel like saying to each other:

Ah, friend, could you and I in wrath
conspire

To wreck this sorry scheme of things entire

Would we not shatter it to bits

And then remold it to the heart's desire.

But then we remember that bombs and bulldozers are not instruments of precision; but the mind is, if we will use it. Hence, our study.

3. I was once an administrator, but through the irresistible grace of a power I can no more name than could Goethe, I found salvation. Men and women with oil cans and crowbars, we must have; but let them know their true function, which is to provide for and facilitate the maximum intellectual exchange between the student and the teacher, the student and his fellow student, and the student and his book. All else is peripheral.

4. A trustee, if he is worthy of his name, makes all this happen. He does so by providing the means and making the necessary decisions required for so vital a program—to get it underway and have it carried on successfully. Then too, often in the history of this college, trusteeship has been an empty honor: Empty, not because the task was unworthy of his best, but because he did not give it.

Next year you may be presented with some ideas on collegiate education that may make you blanch. Some, in your eyes, may appear radical, others outlandish, and still others to demand substantially higher costs than you are accustomed to think of. Your mettle as trustees may be tested on these matters as no mere building program has ever tested it.

For the nonce, I shall forget the alumni and what we are pleased to call our constituency. Solomon said there is a time for everything under the sun, and I believe him.

So much then for the reasons why this study was planned and is now in being.

— II —

NOW what about its implementation? What have we done? My answers must be confined to rattling the bones of statistics.

We have held twenty-five scheduled and unscheduled meetings of the steering group of the study, at which we have heard reports from the subcommittees, read and considered communications from faculty members, administrative officers, and persons neither directly nor indirectly connected with the college. We have made and set in motion plans both for ourselves and for the subcommittees. By newsletters and memoranda we have tried to keep the faculty informed of our activities and our thinking. We have brought three experts to the campus to consult with us on particular problems.

The three subcommittees have held a total of not less than ninety meetings. In addition, small groups working on specific problems for study and report have been meeting all over the campus. I have no accurate figures to document my statement, but I would estimate that at one time or another, fully half of our faculty and very likely three quarters of the administrative officers of the college have been involved.

In the matter of travel, four of our members visited Franklin and Marshall College to study its new program. Two of us visited Dartmouth. One spent four days in Chicago at the annual conference of the Association for Higher Education. One traveled to a conference on the liberal arts in the small college, held at Pomona College in California. One visited New York City, another Buck Hill Falls, and another Washington, D. C., in pursuit of the objects of our study.

Of the questionnaires devised to study our own educational attitudes, theories, and practices, and of the numerous communications sent to the faculty, I shall say little, for time will not permit. I have copies of these instruments and communications with me for your examination, should you care to see them after this meeting.

We have constituted ourselves and have acted as the watchdogs for the faculty on the building program to see to it that in so far as it is possible, these buildings—projected and some now abuilding—will be designed, not for the present program of the college, but in accordance with a reasonable projection of the academic program that is to be.

Let me be specific in two instances. We regard the library as the most important facility on the campus. We want our students to read books—lots of books—and to work with them with maximum convenience and comfort. We want books to be easily accessible and attractively displayed. We want as many carrels as we can possibly get—certainly not less than would provide one third of our student body with study space for independent study. We do not wish to suit our recommended program to a building; we want our new buildings (in so far as they can be projected) to serve our new program. If you cannot build such buildings now, our counsel is to wait until you can.

Much the same thing could be said about classrooms and especially about seminar space and facilities. But time forbids further specification in this telescoped report.

This afternoon at a less formal meeting than this, I and my associates on the steering committee were able to go into some detail on the work we have done, are doing, and plan to do. Questions were asked and answered in a way not feasible in so large a meeting as this. Yet I would whet your curiosity and procure your interest, if I cannot satisfy your thirst to know all!

But first, I should like to introduce my colleagues in this study, whose names I shall mention as I discuss the work of the three subcommittees.

COMMENCEMENT—ALUMNI WEEKEND REPORT

In many of the tribal governments of Africa, I am told, there is an interesting practice of using what is called a "talking chief." It works like this: After the hard work is done by the working and responsible chiefs, the talking chief is brought in to set forth a decision or policy. It must never be assumed that he has either brains enough nor energy enough to evolve such a policy or accomplish useful work; he merely talks about it. His one and perhaps only virtue is that he is glib of tongue.

So as I introduce the real chiefs, let the distinctions I have named be remembered.

Professor Howard Long of our Department of Physics; Howard is chairman of the subcommittee on curriculum.

Professor Warren Gates of the Department of History; Warren is chairman of the subcommittee on the learning process.

Professor Bruce Andrews of the Department of Political Science; Bruce is chairman of the subcommittee on the Dickinson Community.

I, as talking chief, you will no doubt be surprised to learn, teach in the Department of English.

Professor Long has worked with great energy and success with his committee on the educational program to acquaint the faculty with curriculum patterns in other colleges and to formulate in detail what changes, accommodations, or entirely new structures would be required if we were to adopt any one of three widely discussed plans. To this end, he has talked with department heads individually and in groups. He has invited all teachers in one department after another to sit in with his committee to see how these plans would affect courses and teaching in each department. My judgment is that we have made large strides in this area.

Professor Gates did not assume the leadership of his committee until the new year. His committee is concerned with the learning process, both in what it appears to be and what it might be at this college. Each department has been interviewed and a formal report has been made on what it conceives of as its purposes under the general purposes of the college, how and to what extent it seeks to realize these purposes, and what factors at the college impede their realization. Later, students who are majors in these departments will be asked to give their criticisms on all these matters to the best of their ability.

In addition, every member of the faculty has received a lengthy, detailed, and carefully devised questionnaire, which invites him to declare for himself how he seeks to carry out his own and his department's purposes.

There is more, but time beckons.

Professor Bruce Andrews' subcommittee on The Dickinson Community has held fifteen formal meetings and a large but undetermined number of study-group or task-force meetings. I have not done this for the two other subcommittees, but let me list the concerns of this group; not all, of course, can be studied in depth, but the following will give some idea of the breadth and importance of its undertakings:

Honors systems and honors houses, advance placement, extracurricular activities, active student participation in class, athletic programs, chapel and religious affairs, assembly, student-faculty judicial committee, freshman orientation, fraternity rushing, fraternity interactions, alumni, admissions, scholarship, counseling, academic advising, foreign students, health service, recreation space, cultural affairs, and town-and-gown relations.

You have heard something of our attempt this year to deal with the social problems of our college, and of course the whole matter of where and how the fraternity complex should be built have been the immediate concerns of this committee—not for some future date, but now! Nonetheless, this committee, with all the pressure of immediacy upon it, has also devised useful questionnaire instruments and will continue to do so to arrive at hard facts about Dickinson as a community of learning. Let me cite one of their studies that must stand for others. We have been concerned at Dickinson why good students who have been formally admitted somehow elect not to come; and why others come but leave; and why still others who come and remain to graduate, not infrequently feel that they have received less than the best. Where does the trouble lie? With these students themselves? With the faculty? With our admissions policy? Or with something intangible, the identity of which we have not yet been able to determine?

This is but a sample of the kinds of questions this committee is asking, the activities it is pursuing to find the answers, and the expectations it entertains that by hard work and the operation of intelligence, factual answers can and will be found.

— III —

I HAVE come now to the year that lies before us. What plans have we?

Briefly, they are these. Our steering committee will, as soon as the shouting dies, begin six weeks of full-time, intensive work. During this period we shall try to pull together all the data we have amassed both from the college and from outside sources. This, hopefully, will give us a basis to lay plans for the year ahead, in which I shall be relieved of all teaching and my three colleagues of half their normal schedule. When college reopens in the fall, we shall pursue our work with the greater intensity—that increased time affords—on a carefully devised plan and calendar. By April of 1964 we hope to present our conclusions and recommendations to the faculty for its action. Hopefully, the necessary actions will be taken on our recommendations—or our recommendations as modified by the wisdom of the faculty—so that we may report to you at this time next year on the Dickinson that is to be as it opens its One Hundred and Ninety-Second Year—by Edelian Chronology, or its One Hundred and Eighty-second, by mine—but at all events, in the fall of 1965.

President Lowell is reported to have said, "What needs doing today should have been done yesterday." And so it should; but failing that, we are doing what must be done—soon or late.

For The Steering Committee then,
Vostri servi, sic semper fidelis

Amos B. Horlacher

Friday, May 31

THE day long semi-annual deliberations of the Board of Trustees of the College began at 10:30 a.m. The following report is submitted by J. Milton Davidson, '33, who, following an illustrious four-year term as alumni trustee, was elected to full membership on the board at this meeting.

Trustee's Report

J. MILTON DAVIDSON, '33

BEING a trustee of Dickinson College is indeed an honor. But when Commencement weekend rolls around, the glamor quickly concedes to the hard facts of college business. The mad whirl started on the afternoon of Memorial Day when the Finance, Educational Program, and Grounds and Building Committees deliberated their specialities. That evening the faculty and trustees enjoyed dinner together at Morgan Hall, approving heartily Professor Horlacher's brilliant delivery of an exciting report on Dickinson's current curriculum study.

The annual meeting was called to order by President Sidney D. Kline, '24, at 10:00 a.m. on Friday. Following Bishop W. Vernon Middleton's, '28, invocation, the action was voluminous and vigorous.

(1) President of the College Rubendall's report was approved. Faculty changes, promotions, honors and leaves showed a healthy academic condition. The recently innovated college social rules were discussed in depth and delegated to the Steering Committee for study and report at a September meeting.

(2) Roger Nelson's resignation as Dean of the College was accepted but only after the trustees indicated high praise for the "Admiral's" effective labors. Professor Nelson, for he is now a full professor, moved into a situation three years ago that was bleak with misunderstanding, shadowed by censure, and shrouded with a postponed accreditation certification. His dynamic leadership was evident from the outset. Roger Nelson's short term as Dean will go down in Dickinson history as a profoundly devoted and productive service. President Rubendall announced the appointment of Dr. Samuel H. Magill, Chaplain of the College, as Dean to succeed Mr. Nelson.

(3) Weston C. Overholt, Jr., '50, former president of the Alumni Association, was welcomed as the newly elected Alumni Trustee. Officers were re-elected: Mr. Kline, president; Frank E. Masland, Jr., '18, vice president; F. La-Mont Henninger, '24, secretary; and George Shuman, '37, treasurer. Glenn Todd, '12, chairman of the Nominating Committee, presented the nominations.

(4) Mr. Robert Conway, Executive Vice President of John Price Jones, Inc., presented the firm's preliminary survey results. Action on a major campaign to achieve the planned physical improvements and additions was scheduled for a later meeting.

(5) The Finance Committee Chairman, W. Gibbs McKenney, '39, presented the budget and explained the many interests that his group must confront during this program for growth.

(6) Walter Stauffer, '12, as Chairman of the Grounds and Buildings Committee, knowing every nook and cranny of Dickinson, reported conditions excellent. Mr. Stauffer is also chairman of the "Special Committee on Building." This group is particularly active with the fraternity quadrangle and the student union building. The busy Mr. Stauffer, who chaired the Committee on The Women's Dormitory, indicated the completion of this project. (It is a beautiful place inside and out.)

(7) The President of the College revealed that Trustee Rolland Adams, '27, of Allentown, had presented to Dickinson the largest non-bequest contribution in the history of Dickinson College. The amount, $250,000, will finish and furnish the new women's dormitory which will now bear the name Adams Hall. Mr. Adams' remarks were humble, profound and practical. He pointed out the businessman's dilemma, wherein, unlike the professional man, he has little opportunity to administer personally to his fellow man's welfare. His generosity was a gesture of his desire to help.

(8) The Committee on Education Program, Dr. Carl Chambers, '29, chairman, is in the midst of devising a new faculty leave policy. This committee meets with the Dean and various members of the faculty. They plan a report for the fall meeting.

(9) Dr. Shuman's treasurer's report revealed a busy man. Practically every move made has a complementary financial action. With our building programs in full flower, there is little idle time for the person responsible for balancing budgets and financial rapport. Acquisition of property is not the least of his problems.

(10) Because bids to move Filler Hall were excessive, it was decided to raze it. Filler houses the language laboratory, but it is on the land needed for the student center. This posed an immediate problem. The Steering Committee, composed of three trustees, three from administration, and three faculty members met at 8:30 a.m., prior to the trustees convening, to study the situation. Chairman Davidson reported their recommendation to make an overture to the Dickinson School of Law for permission to use the basement of the new Law Library. This solution was considered the best and least expensive of the alternatives.

(11) David Wallace, '15, Chairman of the Special Committee on Revision of

By-Laws, reported continuing study toward its goal.

(12) Edward Raffensperger, '36, reported progress in absentia for his Committee on Trustee Membership.

(13) Metzger Hall, long the home of Dickinson women, will serve no more in this capacity. The new Adams Hall will take over the chore. (There was little wailing, perhaps a wistful look or two.)

(14) Counsel for the Trustees—local attorney Boyd Landis, '31—is nobly handling the inevitable and unlimited negotiations with the Carlisle town fathers that result from building, parking, zoning, etc. The Borough of Carlisle has been most helpful and cooperative during this period of growth.

(15) The meeting adjourned at 4:00 p.m. with the feeling that Dickinson, though faced with many difficult judgments and unsolved problems, was in capable Presidential hands, Dr. Rubendall's. There is certainly a spirit of excitement prevalent.

This trustee had the pleasure of joining his classmates on the occasion of our 30th Reunion. This made Saturday a full day of wonderful surprise and exciting experiences long to be treasured. Then on Sunday he had the happy experience to represent Classmate Ben Epstein to President Rubendall for the conferring of the honorary degree of Doctor of Human Letters.

Yes—a Commencement weekend, laced with a Reunion, at Dickinson is surely an exhausting but vibrant experience for a Trustee.

ALUMNI returning for the weekend began to make their appearance at the registration tent during Friday. Many of the parents of members of the graduating class also began to arrive early on Friday in order to be on hand for the annual Dean of Women's Tea honoring the female members of the senior class.

—Congratulations and best of luck.

COMMENCEMENT—ALUMNI WEEKEND REPORT

The activities for the entire senior class began on Friday evening at a dinner at Allenberry, which was attended by 205 members of the senior class and members of the faculty who were their guests, and who also provided entertainment for the evening. Arrangements for this affair were made by senior class president Jerry D. Bole.

THE semi-annual meeting of the Alumni Council was held in Morgan Hall beginning at 7:00 p.m. Following dinner, the meeting was called to order by acting chairman Robert G. Crist, '50, vice president of the Council, who performed these duties in the absence of retiring president of the Council Weston C. Overholt, Jr., '50. Wes was elected to serve a four-year term as an alumni trustee. Among the first items of business was the introduction of the newly elected members of the Alumni Council who were: Katherine Coulter Brougher, '27; Harry E. Hinebauch, '34; Austin W. Brizendine, '39 (elected to fill the unexpired two-year term of Weston C. Overholt); Margaret Burt Burtnor, '41; James M. McElfish, '43; George G. Lindsay, '48; Howell C. Mette, '48, who was re-elected; and George C. Hering, III, '53. After hearing reports from the Alumni Secretary, Thomas H. Young, Jr., '53, the treasurer of the College, George Shuman, Jr., '37, Annual Giving Chairman, Samuel J. McCartney, Jr., '41, the Development Director, Richard D. Cheshire, Alumni Trustee, John Milton Davidson, '33, and President of the College, Howard L. Rubendall, '31, the Council heard reports from the various working committees. Sidney D. Kline, Jr., '54, presented a report for the Nominating Committee. The following slate, selected by the Nominating Committee, was elected to serve as officers of the Alumni Association as well as the Alumni Council for the ensuing year: Robert G. Crist, president; Howell C. Mette, vice president, and Margaret McMullin Morrison, '51, secretary. The Life Membership Committee, chaired by Helen Dickey Morris, '33, in its report indicated that after considerable deliberation they felt that they were not able to give a final recommendation and asked for and received an extension of time. Newly elected president Crist made the following committee chairmen appointments: Alumni Fund Committee, Samuel J. McCartney, Jr.; Alumni Clubs, Howell C. Mette; and Alumni Events, Sidney D. Kline, Jr.

Saturday, June 1

THE festival like air of this day was aided by the clear, bright weather. A new feature of alumni weekend was introduced into the traditional activities. Four of the newer members of the faculty participated in Alumni Symposium during which the subject of "Progress" was discussed as it affected each of the four men's disciplines.

Traditional senior class activities were conducted on the Old Stone Steps. A record number of the members of the senior class participated in these activities, which were conducted by the president of the senior class, Jerry D. Bole, and the class secretary, Linda Goodridge. Robert G. Crist, newly elected president of the Alumni Council, welcomed the

"We hereby bequeath to the junior class . . ."

Class of 1963 into the General Alumni Association and presented a challenge to accept the responsibilities of alumnihood. Members of Ravens Claw, the senior men's honorary society, welcomed the Ravens Claw of 1964 into their group at the traditional ceremonies in front of the Old Stone Steps.

THE Alumni Luncheon was moved to the outdoors on the Benjamin Rush Campus. The program following the luncheon included the recognition of the Class of 1913, which was celebrating its 50th reunion, the Class of 1963, as the newest alumni body, and the gifts of the classes celebrating their five year reunions. Robert G. Crist then presented to Gilbert "Red" Malcolm a silver bowl as a token of the appreciation of the Alumni Association for the devoted service which Red rendered to the Association in his 41 years association with that body. In addition, Crist announced the naming of Red as the honorary president of the General Alumni Association. Alumni Secretary Thomas Young brought the meeting to a close by recognizing three members of the Class of 1903 who had returned to celebrate their 60th reunion, and John Yost, of that same class who had travelled to the Alumni Weekend in Carlisle from his home in Arizona.

"You can't mean that!"

Following the luncheon an open forum meeting of the General Alumni Association was held in Memorial Hall. Members of the College administration answered questions posed by alumni in a meeting chaired by Alumni Association president Robert G. Crist. Questions varied from those concerning fraternity housing to the social experiment which had been conducted on the campus during the past semester.

Continuing the "outdoors" feature of the weekend, the President of the College and his lady entertained the returning alumni and parents of the senior class at a reception at the President's House. Saturday was brought to a close by the fraternity dinners, the annual dinner of the Mary Dickinson Club, the five year reunion class dinners and the traditional band concert.

Sunday, June 2

THE weekend was climaxed by Sunday's activities which included the Baccalaureate service, the commissioning of the members of the senior class who had completed the ROTC program, and the Commencement exercises.

The Baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Samuel Hays Magill, the Chaplain of the College and recently appointed Dean of the College.

A Sense of the Transcendent

CHAPLAIN SAMUEL H. MAGILL

ON April 16 Dr. Martin Luther King wrote a letter from his jail cell in response to a statement by eight clergymen (including a rabbi, one Episcopal, one Roman Catholic and two Methodist bishops) calling the Birmingham demonstrations "unwise and untimely." Dr. King took strong exception to the counsel of patience and prudence and went on to say:

We have waited more than 340 years for our constitutional and God-given rights. The nations of Asia and Africa are moving with jet-like speed toward the goal of political independence, and we still creep at horse-and-buggy pace toward the gaining of a cup of coffee at the lunch counter.

I guess it is easy for those who have never felt the stinging darts of segregation to say "wait." But when you have seen vicious mobs lynch your mothers and fathers at will and drown your sisters and brothers at whim; when you have seen hate-filled policemen curse, kick, brutalize and even kill your black brothers and sisters with impunity; when you see the vast majority of your 20 million Negro brothers smothering in an airtight cage of poverty in the midst of an affluent society; when you suddenly find your tongue twisted . . . as you seek to explain to your six-year-old daughter why she can't go to the public amusement park that has just been advertised on television, and see tears welling up when she is told that Funtown is closed to colored children, and see the depressing clouds of inferiority begin to form in her little mental sky, and see her begin to distort her personality by unconsciously developing a bitterness toward white people; when you have to concoct an answer for a five-year-old son asking, "Daddy, why do white people treat colored people so mean?"; when you take a cross-country drive and find it necessary to sleep night after night in the uncomfortable corners of your automobile because no motel will accept you; when you are humiliated day in and day out by nagging signs reading "white" men and "colored"; when your first name becomes "nigger" and your middle name becomes "boy" (however old you are) and your last name becomes "John," and when your wife and mother are never given the respected title of "Mrs."; when you are harried by day and haunted at night by the fact that you are a Negro, living constantly at tip-toe stance never quite knowing what to expect next, and plagued with inner fears and outer resentments; when you are forever fighting a degenerating sense of "nobodiness"—then you will understand why we find it difficult to wait. There comes a time when the cup of endurance runs over, and men are no longer willing to be plunged into an abyss of injustice where they experience the bleakness of corroding despair. I hope, sirs, you can understand our legitimate and unavoidable impatience . . .¹

WHAT MORE can one add to this eloquent plea for human rights. Yet many, if not most, Americans continue to maintain that law and order are the most important issues in these difficult days. In other words, there is in America—and in most of the Western and free world, I might add—more concern for judicial procedures and the twin concepts, prudence and pragmatism, than there is for the substance or content of justice. We have since the 1954 Supreme Court desegregation order seriously neglected the heart of the matter which is the grave injustice to millions of Negro Americans the nation over. Somehow too, we, north of the Mason-Dixon line, have come to regard the fact of discrimination more as a problem to be adjudicated in the courts, much as one would present a claim for damages in a commercial suit, than as the inhumanity of man to man.

But this concern with the means, as opposed to the ends, is present in other forms too. The sad plight, for example, of thirty to fifty million of our citizens who live in poverty, obscured by our affluence—the aged, the economically dislocated, the inadequately trained, the sick and physically incapacitated, and so on—is passed over lightly by those preaching increased production as the means to economic well-being for all. For a number of years we have been counseled by pragmatic liberals to rely upon a sufficiently expanding Gross National Product as the solution to the legitimate needs of our society, both private and public. However, it is quite clear to many that such a naive confidence has allowed us to be diverted from the pressing matters of social and economic justice. By assuming a larger economic pie as the panacea for our ills, we have ignored the very real necessity for morally sensitive and responsible public policy decisions. It occurs to me that what hinders us most of all is not the lack of technical "know-how" but the absence of moral sensitivity among us.²

NOW my criticism of our preoccupation with the means, that is, the criticism of the counsels of prudence, of adjudication, of what really works in social life, is not intended to deny the validity and necessity of prudential and pragmatic considerations. Indeed, they have been at the heart of Anglo-Saxon political thought and, for example, have made possible the growth of a viable constitutional form of government. But let me add that the British and American Founding Fathers' insistence upon procedure was informed by a lively sense of the meaning of justice. There was never complete agreement upon what constituted a just society, but the political actors engaged in the political arena with rather clear ideas of their own as to what constituted justice. Moreover, for most of this nation's history, particularly in the first century of that history, there was a sense of a transcendent moral order or Reality which provided a moral referent and guide for the policies and actions of statesmen and men of affairs. Because they were aware of conflicts of interest, because they had a sense of humility born out of political and religious struggles of previous centuries, and because they valued individual human beings more than the realization of some temporal truth—for at least these reasons Americans stressed due process and related civil liberties.³

But something has been happening in our collective consciousness, if there is such a thing, which has caused us to become less certain of those moral truths for which men fought and died and of which Paine, Jefferson, Franklin and others wrote so eloquently. Perhaps it is because we have become more humble and perhaps it is due to the clashing interests in the market place of ideas. Whatever the case, it has become such a problem that the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court called a few months ago for ethical counselors to government, business and other organizations involved in public policy. As a Yale professor of social ethics observed respecting his suggestion: "On the face of it the proposal is worthy of serious reflection, for it is born of a sense of need, namely the apparent inability of the policy-maker to think in terms of moral values, social responsibility or public welfare."⁴ I would feel, however, that this is hardly the answer. After all, who would check on the ethical counselors?

WHAT has happened to us? Why do we ignore moral values in our economic activity? How is it that we have depersonalized justice in our time and in this land? Dean Samuel Miller of the Harvard Divinity School claims it is as if a geological fault had been taking place for the past three hundred or so years so that the strata on one side representing the moral and spiritual heritage of the past, had slipped away and no longer met the strata on the other side which is the scientific twentieth-century world. For most of the past three hundred years there have been important points of contact between the moral and spiritual dimensions of existence and man himself, between the Church, if you will, and the world. But it is only in the past fifteen to twenty years that the extent of the fault has become so apparent. And it is legitimate to ask whether, indeed, we have not entered a post-Christian era, even a post-religious era where the meaning of human existence is sought in a horizontal, linear dimension.⁵

For modern man, by and large, transcendence has lost its meaning. As Dean Miller observes, "everything has become 'thingified.'" Modern men are often more humble than the man of traditional faith because they know they have lost something. They see that the Church has hidden God behind ecclesiastical structures, legalism, moralism, and false piety. Morality becomes relative and loses itself in prudence for it has no transcendent touchstone or authenticating source. Albert Camus saw life in terms of the Myth of Sisyphus. When life loses its meaning the result is boredom; such an existence is intolerable for modern man, and he seeks some outlet. For Hemingway the outlet was violence; for Fitzgerald it was reckless abandon; for Arthur Miller it is suicide. "Man has lost his soul," says Miller, "(and) the trends of (our) time point to the eclipse of the individual man."

But the problem is not only with modern man; the Church too is a guilty party to the estrangement from the Transcendent. Already I have alluded to the manner in which the Church hides God. Let me say one other thing: what has been called "Christian love"—agape or self-emptying, disinterested, compassionate love—has become collectivized in the Church "so that as individuals we no longer take the risks of loving, for it may hurt one's reputation and the reputation of the Church."^{6a} This leads one to observe that the Church all too frequently acts to protect its own institutional interests and to rationalize its actions by appeals to "time," to "moderation," and other such palliatives. It idolatrously identifies itself with the Kingdom of God; yet, almost unbelievably, it continues to witness to its transcendent Lord Who both judges it and reconciles it to Himself.

Now we stand in a world cut off from the roots of our heritage. We hear religious language and ideas, but we do not understand them from within our single dimensional perspective. And the human situation, with all of its paradoxes, its ironies, its moral ambiguities, is bereft of any moral claim upon it from either a transcendent moral order or from a God who seeks justice and mercy.

Are the words of the moral philosophers and theologians simply emotive expressions, as some philosophers would have us believe? Or are they symbols of a reality which is Ultimate and Absolute? Can we act any longer on the assumption that men are responsible to a Transcendent Being, or must we accept the implications of Nietzsche's plaintive observation that for modern man "God is dead"? Are we irrevocably caught up in the topsy-turvy world suggested by Howard Mumford's assertion that the "seven cardinal vices of the Middle Ages (have) become the seven virtues of the modern world"?

BY WAY of an answer, (let me suggest to those of you who soon take up new responsibilities in the world, and to those who continue on with the same ones, one or two preliminary notions for your reflection. First, more than ever before you and I need to remain open in mind and spirit to the Word from the other side of history. We must resist giving our final and absolute loyalty and allegiance to any human institution or to any human pretension to absolute truth in order to reserve it for Him who transcends history and all human achievements.) Whenever man has given himself up completely to such temporal loyalties he has been tyrannized in mind and spirit as well as in body.

(But, second, I would hope that you might devote yourselves, in your daily thinking and decisions, to a persistent attempt to discern the content of justice and its source. Perhaps part of the problem of our time is that we lack any adequate criteria which can inform us as to what is due to ourselves and to others. In the history of mankind there has been, it seems to me, a "rosetta stone" which has given a clue for all time to the meaning of man's existence in the world and has placed in some perspective the relative worth of ideas and human relationships. That "rosetta stone" is the mighty act of God in the person of Jesus Christ, and try as the World might, it cannot forever hide, nor can it ignore, the countenance of the God of Jesus Christ which is revealed in the selfless death of Jesus on a tree. In that life and death we are given a glimpse of God's indiscriminate love for His creation. There is a telos, an end, toward which we move. And that end is community, characterized by mutual love—between Him who is Transcendent, who is greater than any of our conceptions of Him, and the persons, the human beings that now live in hostility, suspicion, callousness, fear, and need of each other.)

True it is that the Transcendent is beyond empirical verification. Moreover, God cannot be demonstrated to exist by the traditional rational proofs. But, nonetheless, "In the totality of existence," as a noted Jewish theologian has put it, "something must be affirmed as ultimate; some primary commitment must be made; some attitude to the universe must be taken; some answer to the question of existence must be given."⁶ We are called to some decision by that life and death; we are called to a decision for God, a "leap of faith," which is not a leap of despair but a leap of triumph over despair. Will Herberg of Drew University has asserted that,

We must dare to make the leap if the gulf is ever to be crossed; but once the decision of faith has been made, it is seen that the leap was possible only because the gulf had already been bridged for us from the other side. The reality of the decision remains, but we now see that what we had to decide was whether or not to accept the out-stretched hand offered us over the abyss as we stood bewildered, anxious and despairing at the brink.⁷

It is from the perspective of faith that the whole universe is transformed, and we are able to see new meaning, purpose, and value in the world. In reality, our human valuations are transformed by the Source of all value, the Lord of History. And justice is transformed by love into a creative justice which places the well-being of co-humanity before the self's security.

If there is one thing I would hope you might carry with you from this college, it is an openness to the eternal possibility of the transcendent God breaking into your own existence and, in the meantime, that you might engage with true openness in an on-going dialogue with the biblical witness and with the spokesmen of the Judeo-Christian heritage across the centuries so that the relationship of justice and love might have greater clarity and urgency in our time. For we are responsible, whether we like it or not, to One who claims us—black and white, rich and poor—for His own.

"Yes, it does rain in Carlisle occasionally."

THIRTY-SEVEN members of the senior class were commissioned second lieutenants in the United States Army Reserve at exercises held in Bosler Hall immediately preceding the Commencement exercises.

The only dark cloud of the entire weekend necessitated the moving of the Commencement exercises from the John Dickinson Campus in front of the Old Stone Steps to the Alumni Gymnasium on Sunday afternoon because of a rain storm. Among the 254 members of the senior class who were awarded diplomas, 38 were graduated with honors. Of this number, six were graduated summa cum laude, 14 magna cum laude, and 18 cum laude. In addition, 27 members of the class walked off with honors in their departmental major field. A complete profile of the Class of 1963 and their post graduate careers will appear in the October issue of the Dickinson Alumnus.

THE Commencement address was delivered by The Honorable Stewart L. Udall, Secretary of Interior of the United States. During his remarks, Secretary Udall stated that his department of government "is one of the few that is not preoccupied with the task of holding the dark forces of the world at bay. We have the happy function of planning the future of America and are working to conserve the national resources which sustain its life." He went on to discuss the conservation of man and his environment. Later he stated that "at no time has the society achieved as much as we have with as little satisfaction in its achievement and with so much doubt about the future. One of the vital things we have lost is our relationship with our land—our feel for and our love of the land on which we live. We are conquering outer space and neglecting the earth that is our home. Accelerated emphasis upon technology has widened the dichotomy between science and humanism, and resulted in enthusiastic material development without the guiding wisdom of ecological sensitivity." The Secretary concluded by saying "the signature we affix on the land will be largely determined by the land conscious which we evolve. We need a conservation concept and will give full sway to the finest and highest human impulses, will make visible our love for the land and declare our respect for the rights of the unborn."

Following Udall's remarks, honorary degrees awarded were conferred upon six individuals. A copy of their citations appears on page 10.

Of particular significance to Dickinsonians was the honorary degree of doctor of laws conferred upon retiring President Emeritus of Dickinson College, Mr. Dickinson himself—Gilbert Malcolm.

Thus, with a tribute to a man who means Dickinson to so many alumni, the 190th Commencement-Alumni Weekend of Dickinson College was brought to a close.

Honorary Degree Recipients

GILBERT MALCOLM
Doctor of Laws

Gilbert Malcolm, affectionately known as "Red" to our college family, your life has been Alma Mater's. Beloved for your seemingly solemn manner salted with playful humor, you distinguished yourself as a student here by your talent for pranks. Nearly expelled once, but happily only suspended by the Solomons of Old West, our college happily tapped you for administrative service. Since 1922, you have served Dickinson in a dozen administrative posts, from its humblest as Superintendent of Grounds and Buildings to its highest as President of the College, the widest range of responsibility and the longest period of service ever performed in Dickinson's venerable history. Verily, paraphrasing the Psalms, the stone nearly rejected as a student has become the cornerstone of the college!

And now, a newlywed in retirement, undergoing a season of illness, you and your lovely bride beam hope to many far younger in years and stronger in health than yourselves. Good Neighbor Malcolm, scion of hardworking Scottish immigrants, Alma Mater sounds for you the skirl of bagpipes, triumphant and proud.

BENJAMIN ROBERT EPSTEIN
Doctor of Humane Letters

National Director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, you are a true Son of the Covenant. Born into a family of immigrants who endured prejudice, poverty, hostility, and fear, it was among the turbulent and discordant elements of a Pennsylvania steel mill town that you caught the vision of brotherhood. Nurtured in this vision at Dickinson, you were sent to Germany by Alma Mater for postgraduate study, where you witnessed the rise of Hitlerism. Returning to America you dedicated your life to the cause of human dignity and brotherhood. In 1953, in a time of character assassination, you provided the occasion for President Eisenhower's first denunciation of McCarthyism, lighting a hopeful flame in the black silence of fear, and propelling the Anti-Defamation League, a Jewish human-rights organization, into concern for the total welfare of mankind.

Sad in the knowledge that bigotry is virulent, ubiquitous, and Hydra-headed, you happily teach us that freedom and equality will prevail. Alma Mater today wishes you Shalom, peace, and hopes some day to add Mazel Tov, your mission is completed, happy day!

STEWART LEE UDALL
Doctor of Laws

Stewart Lee Udall, Secretary of the Interior, you are serving your state and nation in the spirit of your western pioneer forebears. During World War II you met our enemies in battle, and you are now facing with equal courage the issues of your postwar years. First in Congress, and now in the Cabinet of the President of the United States, you have continued to defend our land and its people, your mind sensitive to the world about you and to its far horizons. You have taken your stand for the preservation of our priceless but imperiled natural heritage, for the advancement of living standards, and for the exaltation of education. Yours is the vision of a strong, enlightened America, true to her past, and responsive to her future in the sisterhood of nations.

GEORGE REILY BAILEY
Doctor of Finance

George Reily Bailey, we are told that in medieval times, bailies were men of service, "charged with public administrative authority." Those forebears of yours, however, served only the lord of the manor—you, the public at large.

A graduate of Yale University, you have been true to her ideal of enlightened leadership. As President of the Harrisburg National Bank and Trust Company, you have established over a wide region a structure of financial wisdom, prudence, and security, and always, openly and freely, have given your administrative talents to the organizations raised to meet the needs of the young, the aged, the sick, the churches, and the cause of education.

Dickinson honors in you a strong mind and a dedicated heart.

LEONARD WOODS LABAREE
Doctor of Literature

Leonard Woods Labaree, professor of history at Yale University, your life has been dedicated to study of the founding of this nation, the origins of its government, its culture and its aspirations. Within your long experience as teacher and writer of American History, you have achieved the acme of accomplishment in your editorship of The Papers of Benjamin Franklin. You are establishing lofty standards of scholarship for graceful presentation to a world-wide audience, offering students of today and tomorrow priceless guidance. You have brought the emerging America of the present and the future into a firmer, clearer unity with the great men and deeds of her past.

GILBERT L. BENNETT
Doctor of Divinity

Superintendent of the Williamsport District of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Church, worthy churchman, you have supported the cause of your faith—with vision, pluck, and integrity—for the last thirty-five years. Since your graduation from Bucknell University you have served, with memorable success, six Pennsylvania churches. As District Superintendent, since 1961, you have inspired and harmonized the various voices of your faith. You are revered for your administrative ability, for your eloquence as a preacher, for your spiritual gifts.

Dickinson is honored to greet a distinguished servant in the House of Our Lord.

The Class of 1913 proudly adorns the platform at the Alumni Luncheon.

A family of Dickinsonians. Newly elected Alumni Association President, Robert G. Crist, '47, with his wife, Christine Myers Crist, '46, his mother, Alice Grant Crist, '23, father, Robert W. Crist, '23, and his children.

Thomas R. Stretton, Jr.—the top academic student in the graduating Class. Tom finished his four years at Dickinson with a straight A average!

COMING EVENTS

In May 1964 we will publish a new list of Life Members. If your name is missing from this list, you can insure it appearing in 1964 by a full payment of $50.00 or a first installment of $12.50. Checks should be made payable to The Dickinson Alumnus and sent to:

Alumni Secretary
 Dickinson College
 Carlisle, Pennsylvania

George A. Bobletz, assistant treasurer and bookstore manager at Dickinson College since 1946, died on April 28 in the Polyclinic Hospital, two days after a heart operation. George, who was 51, devoted his life to Dickinson and her students. His service to undergraduate organizations led to his election to membership in both Phi Kappa Sigma social fraternity and Omicron Delta Kappa service fraternity. A memorial service for George was held on May 18 in Memorial Hall. Participating in this memorial service were his friends and colleagues. A George A. Bobletz Memorial Library Fund has been established at Dickinson. His body was willed to the University of Pennsylvania Medical School for research.

With the completion of Adams Hall for residence by the co-eds in September, the College relinquished its lease at Metzger Hall. At fitting ceremonies held in late spring at Metzger, Dr. Rubendall turned over the key to Metzger Hall to E. Gardner Hayes, President of the Metzger Estate Board of Trustees (and retired College tennis coach). Shown here at the ceremony are Financial Vice President George Shuman, '37, and Metzger House Council President Priscilla Hinebauch, '66. Alumnae are now allowed one minute for reminiscing and tears.

Construction of the new fraternity complex began in late spring. The new fraternity residences are scheduled for completion in September 1964. The scene here is from West Louthier Street looking toward West High Street.

The last picture of the North College Street houses before their razing to accommodate the new student college center. From left, they are Filler Hall (former Paul Masland home), the Phi Kappa Sigma house, the Phi Epsilon Pi house, the Jackson House and the former Sadler home. Construction of the college center began in early summer. Completion is scheduled for September 1964.

Biddle Field is also the scene of summer construction as Dickinson is building a new facility on the athletic field. Decision to go ahead with this long needed locker room facility was hastened by the signing of a five-year lease with the Washington Red Skins professional football team. The Redskins will train on Biddle Field from July 25 through August 29.

PERSONAL MENTION

The Class of 1908 deserves a spot up front.

Louis Hieb, of Ponca, Nebraska, was recently presented with a 50-year Masonic pin by the Ponca Lodge F. & A. M. A retired Congregational minister, he is living at the Elms Nursing Home in Ponca and is a member of the Omaha Lodge No. 1, F. & A. M., and a member of the 32nd degree Oriental Consistory of Yankton, South Dakota.

1907

W. Alan Wallis, son of Willson B. Wallis, was inaugurated as president of the University of Rochester on May 17. Dickinson College was represented at the inauguration by L. Holland Taylor, '48.

J. Frank Jones retired last year following 53 years of teaching and administration at the college and secondary school level. His most recent job was vice president of Harcum Junior College, Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania. During his career he also served as assistant professor of English at Pennsylvania State University and head of the English department at the Abraham Lincoln Junior High School. He has also served continuously on the board of directors of the Junto School since its opening in 1941. He is a member of the board of trustees of Harcum Junior College.

Col. Fred H. Bachman has recently completed a term as president of the Hazleton Area Chapter of the American Red Cross.

1917

With her contribution to the 1963 Alumni Fund, Miss Nora M. Mohler, of Warren, Maine, reported that she is retired and "loving it."

Robert E. Woodward retired last June as principal of the Summit, New Jersey, Junior High School.

Fred P. Corson, Bishop of the Methodist Church, received the honorary degree of doctor of civil law at the 49th Commencement of the American University on June 10. On that occasion, he shared the platform with the President of the United States, John F. Kennedy, who also received an honorary degree.

Jasper Deeter, founder and director of the Hedgerow Theater in suburban Philadelphia, was the guest of Dickinson College students during their annual Arts Festival from May 2-4. Jasper attended the student production of Thurber Carnival, was the guest of honor at a luncheon sponsored by the Belles Lettres Society sponsors of the Arts Festival, and delivered one public lecture and spoke informally before a number of classes, both dramatics and in English.

The climax of an outstanding coaching career was reached recently by Andrew Kerr, '00, of Hamilton, New York, when he was awarded the Amos Alonzo Stagg Award. The award is the highest honor conferred upon a football coach by the American Football Association and finds a place in his den in Hamilton along side an impressive collection of other awards including those from the National Football Hall of Fame, The Helms Hall of Fame, the New York Touchdown Club, and the Shriners Award and many others. In reporting this to the Dickinson Alumnus, Mr. Kerr indicates that "I have been fortunate in that I have received the major awards that are available to a coach of my generation. In a small way this reflects honor and prestige on my Alma Mater." The plaque on the Stagg Award read as follows: To Perpetuate the Example and Influence of Amos Alonzo Stagg in American Life and Sport This Award is Made to Andrew Kerr by The American Football Coaches Association in Recognition of Outstanding Service in Advancement of the Best Interest of Football.

The coach displays his medals—Andy Kerr finds a blank space on his wall for his newest honor.

Nell H. Marvil retired from the Juvenile division of the County Court of Philadelphia where she served as district supervisor for 20 years. She has been re-elected to the Board of Directors of the Philadelphia Home for Children after serving as chairman of admissions for six years.

1919

Charles E. Davis, of Woodcrest, Delaware, retired on April 30 after serving as associate pastor of the Peniel Methodist Church, Newport, Delaware since 1957. He retired from the Conference in May 1957 after 36 years of service.

1920

Albert E. Weston retired from the principalship of Cheltenham, Penna., High School after 38 years of service as a teacher and administrator. He is now director of the Evening College at the Philadelphia College of Textiles and Sciences.

1921

Sarah McCrea Chapman will attend the annual meeting of the U. S. Conference of the World Council of Churches as a consultant. She is a member of the committee on Interpretations and Support. In this capacity she attended the assembly held in New Delhi, India last year.

1922

Herbert W. Glassco has been appointed Administrative Assistant to the Administrator of the Methodist Home for the Aged in Tyrone, Pennsylvania. He began his post as assistant to Elvin Clay Myers, '24, on July 1.

1923

B. Harry Barnes, of Narberth, Penna., has served since 1957 as chaplain and field secretary of the Methodist Home for the Aged in Philadelphia.

S. Elizabeth Jones, of Trenton, New Jersey, retired this June as head of Business Education Department of Central High School of Hopewell Township. She is currently serving as financial secretary of the new Trinity Methodist Church, Trenton.

Horace E. Rogers, senior member of the Dickinson faculty, represented Dickinson at the inauguration of John McConnell, '29, as president of the University of New Hampshire on May 25.

Andrew J. Smith, of Union Springs, New York, retired from service in the public schools of New York state. He indicates that he probably will continue to reside in Union Springs.

On April 7, 1963, Dorothy Valiant was married to Charles C. Grater, at Lycoming College. The ceremony was performed by Dr. D. Frederick Wertz, '37, president of Lycoming. Dorothy resigned her position as vice principal of the Daniel Boone Senior High School in Reading to accept a position as Latin teacher in the Pottstown Senior High School. The Graters live in Royersford.

Mary Elizabeth Hartman, of East Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, is an instructor of Spanish and French at East Stroudsburg State College.

George W. Meyer, of Ocean City, N. J. is serving a second term as a member of the National Council of the National Honor Society. The National Council sets the policy for the National Honor Society for the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Dr. George Armacost, president of the University of Redlands, was elected vice president and president-elect of the Council of Protestant Colleges and Universities. He has been an active member of the council's executive committee.

With her contribution to the 1963 Alumni Fund, Margaret S. Steele, of Johnstown, reported she took a motor trip to Alaska during the summer of 1962. This trip covered 12,000 miles and lasted for 10 weeks.

Flora W. Smiley, counselor at the South Philadelphia High School, was recently honored by the Philadelphia public school system with the presentation of a Legion of Honor award. The honor was bestowed upon her for assisting students in obtaining study courses best suiting their abilities, and in winning scholarships and jobs for the students. Miss Smiley has been a counselor in the Philadelphia school system since 1942. She started her counseling work at Hollidaysburg High School, Hollidaysburg, Pennsylvania, where she also served as head of the language department.

Alfred C. Fray, pastor of the Beach Haven, Pennsylvania Church, announced the completion of a new $60,000 educational unit which was consecrated by Bishop W. Vernon Middleton, '28, on March 24.

Everett F. Hallock, pastor of the Little Falls, New Jersey Methodist Church since 1960, retired from the active ministry in June. In addition to pastorates in the Northern New Jersey area, he served as district superintendent of the Newark District and also as director of the southwestern area of the American Leprosy Missions, Inc.

The Class of 1928 finds a shady spot under the trees for their reunion.

W. Donald Whetsel, pastor of the First Methodist Church, New Kensington, reports that Bishop W. Vernon Middleton, '28, consecrated the renovated church and the new education unit on March 17. The renovations and construction cost $260,000.

Harry C. Shriver has been appointed Hearing Examiner by the Federal Power Commission in Washington. He joined the agency as assistant to the commissioners on January 28, after serving as general counsel of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation.

Edwin Kephart, of Norristown, is a member of the executive council of the Pennsylvania State Education Association. He represents the southeast region.

Virginia Bentley Macpherson reports that she is extremely busy and happy substituting and tutoring in the schools of Lower Merion Township.

OBITUARIES

1902—Florence Peters Rothermel, of Reading, died on May 27 at the Maple Farms Nursing Home in Akron, Pennsylvania, at the age of 87. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Dickinson, she also attended Bucknell before beginning her long teaching career in Philadelphia. She was a life member of the General Alumni Association and a member of Omega Psi social sorority. She is survived by a brother and five nieces and nephews.

1907—William Maguire Hoffman of Linthicum Heights, Maryland, died at Maryland General Hospital, Baltimore on May 5, 1963 of a heart attack at the age of 85. Prior to coming to Dickinson College, he graduated from Williamsport Dickinson Seminary and taught in the public schools of Pennsylvania. He entered the ministry of the Methodist Church in 1908 and served for 41 years as an active minister in the Baltimore Conference. He lived in retired relations with the conference for 14 years. He served his last charge, Baldwin Memorial Methodist Church, for 17 years and retired from there in 1949. Besides his degree from Dickinson, he earned an M.A. degree from George Washington University in 1926. For 12 years he served as secretary of the Baltimore Annual Conference of the Methodist Church. He was a member of Kappa Delta Pi and Phi Delta Theta. On June 17, 1908 he married Lillian Harriet Shaffer, who died October 7, 1951. He is survived by a daughter and three sisters.

1909—Ella P. Davis died in the Carlisle Hospital on April 29, 1963. She had taught in the Carlisle public schools for many years and was a member of the First Presbyterian Church. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. J. Frank Briner, of Carlisle.

1909—Ellsworth H. Mish died on April 16 in the Strong Memorial Hospital, Rochester, New York, at the age of 74. He was a native of West Virginia and served with the USNRF as a supply officer during World War I. For the past 15 years he had been a salesman with the Ripley Bowling Division of Rochester. He was a member of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers and a life member of the General Alumni Association. He is survived by a sister and a brother.

1910—Frank G. Mardis died on April 1, 1963 at Memorial Hospital in Johnstown at the age of 75. He was a general agent for the Equitable Life Insurance Company for 50 years prior to his recent retirement. He was a member of the Franklin Street Methodist Church, Phi Kappa Psi fraternity and a charter member of the Bachelor's Club of Johnstown. He is survived by his wife, three sons and two daughters, a sister, eight grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

1914—Helen Rachael Langfitt died at her home in Pittsburgh on March 7, 1963 at the age of 71. A native of Pittsburgh she attended Allegheny High School before matriculating at Dickinson, where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi. She was for many years head librarian at the Old Woods Run Branch of the Carnegie Free Library until it was closed several years ago. During her long service there, she became the friend of many book-loving school children and adults. She was a member of the McClure Avenue Presbyterian Church and a Life Member of the General Alumni Association. She is survived by a brother, Joseph, in Indianapolis.

1918—Eugene Thomas Flood died on March 19, 1963 of a heart attack at the Union Hospital in New York City at the age of 67. A retired teacher and coach, he was chairman of the health education department at the William Howard Taft High School, New York City upon his retirement in 1957. Prior to going to New York, he taught at North Plainfield High School where his baseball and basketball teams were many times champions. He received the master of arts degree from Columbia University. Since his retirement in 1957, he was associated with the Albert A. Swanson, Inc., realtors, in Scarsdale. He was active in the American Legion, the Volunteer Fire Department of Scarsdale, the St. Pius X

Church Men's Club and was a member of the Scarsdale Realty Board and of the Westchester Realty Board. He was a member of Beta Theta Pi. He is survived by his wife, Kathryn, a son and a daughter.
