Our Best Football Season in 28 Years

“Wib” Gobrecht, in His First Term as Grid Coach, Posts a Seven and One Record, the Finest Since the Undefeated Eleven of 1937

“Blocks, Holds, and we want . . .” by Nancy McAneny, '66

“Dickinson’s only victory in a 9-game football season this year was disputed by Gettysburg, as they claimed a ‘stuffed eleven.’” The Gettysburg College newspaper indicated that Dickinson used ineligible players including: “a Gettysburg butcher, a Hanover sport, a Carlisle Indian, and other foreign matter.”

The year the above rationalization appeared was in 1892 and it was a highlight of a definitive statistical summary of the 77-year history of football at Dickinson recently compiled by coach Wilbur (Wib) Gobrecht, '52, and previous grid mentor, Donald Seibert.

“Goby” rewrote history again last year and restored prosperity to these ivy covered walls with the finest football record since the undefeated season of 1937 when Art Kahler skippered the Red Devils. Kahler posted seven victories, no losses and one tie.

And in winning seven games, losing only one, and collecting 223 points to its opponents' 60, Gobrecht's eleven established 40 new records! Truly a smashing performance!

Coach Gobrecht compares his squad to the ones of 1949, 1946 and 1937, generally looked upon as the best in modern Dickinson history.

Ralph "Dutch" Ricker coached the '49 team to a five-won, two-lost, and one-tie season.

Ricker also directed the '46 unit which won six games and lost only one. This team might have gone undefeated had it not lost the services of the great Doug Rehor, '48 who was injured in an auto accident enroute to the game with W. & J., lost by a 19-7 score. Steve Padjen, '49, the squad's leading ground gainer was also injured and sidelined. The highlight of the '46 season was the 7-6 conquest over Lehigh, in those days a gridiron power.

Six Land Berths on MAC All-Star Team. NCAA Salutes Averback and Rhody For Outstanding Scholarship.

BUT back to this '65 team that finished second in Conference play, lost only to Swarthmore (16-12) and won its last six games; the first time that many consecutive triumphs had been registered since 1898. "Wib" Gobrecht, in his first season as head coach, directed the team to its best season in 28 years, collecting a record total number of points, 223. The school's previous high was 219 gathered by the 1904 squad.

Dickinson held its eight opponents to 60 points and an average of 148.6 yards per game (a stingy 42.6 rushing and 106 passing).

At season's end quarterback Dennis Wachter, Hagerstown, Maryland, was named most valuable back and end Bob Averback, Philadelphia, and tackle Rae Butler, Narberth, the most valuable linemen.

Wachter, a lightly-regarded sub until this year, passed for 1125 yards and 14 touchdowns, new school records for a season. With 73 of his aerials finding the mark, he finished with a .510 average. Rehor held the former pass yardage mark of 1103.

Averback, one of 10 seniors on the squad, set a season mark by catching nine touchdown passes, bringing his career total to 13, another new standard. Both of the old records were held by Coach Gobrecht, star Dickinson halfback in his days.

The rushing leaders were Dick Katzenback, Wayne, who gained 410 net yards on 90 carries and Dallas Winslow, Wilmington, Delaware, who carried 82 times for 253 yards.

One of the team's unsung heroes was Daniel Frey, Hanover, the kicking specialist, who made good on 18 placements after touchdown for another school record. His six against Johns Hopkins tied the pre-game mark, held jointly by Robert W. Brooks, '54 and Carl W. Binder, '37.

Some other records that were matched or eclipsed included the following:

Most consecutive games scored points one season.

Robert S. Averback, seven

Ties John F. Harper, Jr., (63)

Most touchdown passes thrown one season.

Dennis L. Wachter, fourteen

Old record of eleven held jointly by John D. Mathewson, Jr., (52) and Robert L. Jones Esq., '54.

Most touchdowns scored on punt returns, career.

J. Dallas Winslow, two

Ties record held by William H. Penney, '64

Most field goals kicked in one game.

Daniel M. Frey, two

Ties record held jointly by Gustave Welch, '16, and John F. Harper, Jr., '63.

Among the season highlights were the following:

Six pass interceptions against Johns Hopkins, holding Muhlenberg and PMC both to minus yards rushing, and a most unusual extra-point play that followed an erratic snap from center. Dan Frey was prepared to kick a point against F. & M. but was trumped by the ill-aimed flight of the ball. Rich Lipinski, who held the ball for Frey, made an almost-impossible recovery of the loose ball and scrambled around until he spotted Frey, the intended kicker, in the end zone. Rich passed to Frey who caught the ball for two points as the stands erupted!

According to National Collegiate Athletic Association bureau statistics, Dickinson ranked ninth nationally in rush defense—better than Navy, for example!

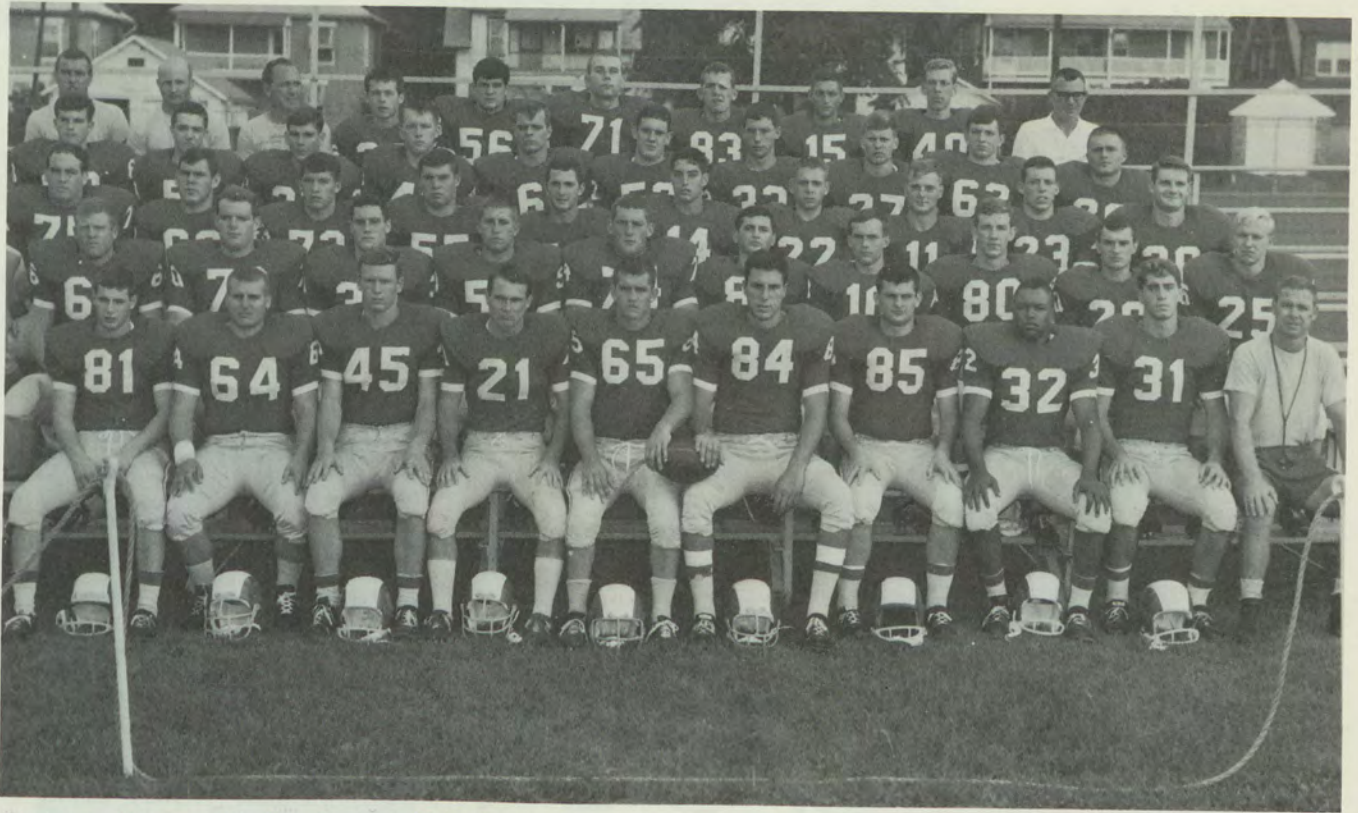

We placed six players on the coaches' 1965 Middle Atlantic Conference Southern College Division All-Star team—more than any other school in the circuit.

Averback, who led the league in scoring and Rae Butler were named to the offensive unit. On the defensive team were John Rhody, Drexel Hill, interior lineman; Joel Rome, Kingston, end; James Broughal, Bethlehem, linebacker; and Dallas Winslow, Wilmington, Del., defensive safety. (Winslow set a career mark of 14 interceptions.) Steve Overcash, Chambersburg, a tackle, received honorable mention. He is a sophomore. Averback, Rhody, Rome and Winslow are seniors and Butler and Broughal are juniors.

Averback brought additional compliments to the College as one of twenty-two student-athletes across the country selected by the NCAA for $1,000.00 postgraduate scholarships. He is a physics major with a near-perfect average.

JOHAN RHODY, who also anchors the wrestling team, was named third alternate in the college division by the scholarship committee causing Dickinson to become the only school in the country to have both a winner and an alternate on the NCAA list!

Averback wants to go on to Stanford for advanced degrees and become a college professor. He makes straight A's in mathematics and physics, his favorite subjects. An Associated Press all-state first team end, he ranks seventh in a class of 262 with an average of 3.83 out of a possible 4.00. This is Phi Beta Kappa range at Dickinson.

Third Row: Steve Overcash, Rich Mohlere, Garry Groff, Nick Delmore, Bob Jefferson, Andy Bogdanoff, Bob Warren, Dennis Wachter, Dan Frey, and Duane Ford.

A special luncheon in Washington for Congressmen and Cabinet members who were outstanding student-athletes in their days was the setting for the scholarship presentation to Averbach. With him from Dickinson were his coach, Gobrecht; David B. Eavenson, Director of Athletics and swimming coach; and Dr. Benjamin D. James, Dean of Students.

Vice-president Hubert Humphrey and Interior Secretary Stuart Udall (holder of an Honorary Degree from Dickinson) were among the scheduled speakers. The luncheon was a highlight of the NCAA's annual meeting.

While in Washington Gobrecht also attended the football coaches' meeting and with Don Seibert, Dickinson golf coach, was present at the football coach-of-the-year banquet. Joe DuCharme attended the sessions of the track coaches.

What explains the 1965 team's splendid performance? Coach Gobrecht says the answer is that the team is, indeed, a team and not just a collection of eleven fellows.

He added, "Also all of the boys are good players—some a little better than others, but all good. Another factor is that they wanted to win and were willing to undergo the sacrifice that makes victories possible, such as training, working hard at all practice sessions, and subordinating self for the team."

Gobrecht and his staff of Ed Ashnault, Bob Marshall and Bill Minnick also spoke highly of Co-Captains John Rhody and Joel Rome, who are described as the leadership type and capable of communicating with the other fellows.

The Hall and the Man CONWAY

by Walter E. Beach, '56

Conway Hall Resident, 1952-53, and Staff Associate, The American Political Science Assn.

"In honor of Dr. Moncure D. Conway, a distinguished alumnus of the College, in recognition of his great services in the realm of letters, of reform, and of humanitarian effort." Such was the feeling behind Andrew Carnegie's two gifts totaling $68,480 to cover the cost of construction of a building on the Dickinson campus in 1904. In naming Conway Hall, which was to serve first as the Preparatory School and later as a men's dormitory, the College also sought to honor Carnegie, not only for the generous gift, the largest to the College up to that time, but also for his brief service on the Dickinson Board of Trustees from 1892 to 1894. Thus the sign now long gone above the front door of the Hall read, "Conway Hall, the gift of Andrew Carnegie."

At the moment when this memorial to Moncure D. Conway of the class of 1849 is about to be razed for the much needed new College library, it seems appropriate to look back briefly at his life and accomplishments, to review the circumstances which led Carnegie to memorialize him, to recall the history of Conway Hall itself, and to appraise the manner in which the Conway heritage has been perpetuated throughout the years at home and abroad.

Moncure Daniel Conway was a man of engaging personality, great energy, and endowed with a superb ability to accept, develop, and espouse new causes and ideas. These talents he applied to theology, social reform and letters. Young Conway came to Dickinson at the age of fifteen, the son of an aristocratic slaveholding family of Fredericksburg, Virginia. His family was Methodist and this is no doubt the special link which brought Walker Peyton Conway, a Dickinson Trustee from 1848 to 1865, to send first his namesake and then his second son, Moncure, to Dickinson College.

Two events stand out in the young student's life at Dickinson, one serious and one quite hilarious. In a more serious vein, Conway was confronted for the first time with men who directly challenged his views on slavery. When Dr. McClintock of the faculty, later President of Drew Seminary, shielded a negro woman in the Carlisle Square against the anger of white men during a run away slave episode, Conway was at first incensed at the professor's action. Soon, however, he found himself swayed by the teacher's view on freedom and dignity for the Negro; the effect was lasting and grew in intensity. Another event demonstrated Conway's sense of humor if not his maturity. In 1848, annoyed with the new President of the College, Dr. Jesse Peck, Conway, upon learning that the President was to address a Methodist Conference in Staunton, Virginia, wrote under an assumed name to the head of the lunatic asylum in Staunton that a fool calling himself the President of Dickinson would soon present himself. To Conway's astonishment, or perhaps not, Peck was incarcerated upon entering Staunton!

"A REMARKABLE FOREGROUND OBJECT"

Conway as sketched in a letter from Edwin Austin Abbey to another well-known artist, George H. Boughton, August 12, 1879. They had been touring the English lake country together. "We got along admirably—he didn't want to wait, ever, when I wanted to sketch—and he did keep raking up buried old hermits of scientists who live up in that region. But Lord! as Mr. Pepys would say, to see him read guide-books and 'Cincinnati Commercials' (he brought three million copies of the latter with him) would make you turn cold. He only stayed with me a week, and I was sorry to see the old cuss go. He was a remarkable foreground object for that week. A little felt hat—a long brown overcoat—open waistcoat—and a bed-tick sort of shirt and white collar—over which was tied a thin ribbon that would hitch up in the back."

Methodist Circuit Rider in Rockville, Maryland. However, his growing skepticism, his contact with Quakers in Sandy Spring, and his reading of Emerson soon lead him to make a change. The turning point was a lecture by the Unitarian Minister of Baltimore, Dr. Burnap, at the Union Philosophical Society meeting at the Dickinson commencement exercises in 1852 where Conway and other members of the class of 1849 were awarded M.A. degrees. In the fall of that year, much against the wishes of his family, Conway undertook studies at the Harvard Divinity School. He immediately attached himself to the liberal wing of Unitarianism, worked earnestly, and developed friendships with leading New England intellectuals such as Alcott, Holmes, Longfellow and Thoreau. He joined Theodore Parker in visits to the homes of freed Negroes and went to see Emerson. Of this he wrote in his diary on May 3, 1853, "the most memorable day in my life: Spent with Ralph Waldo Emerson."

Upon graduating from Harvard, Conway evolved his lifetime pattern of serving a church, writing extensively, and promoting social causes. In Washington he served as minister of the First Unitarian Church, now All Souls Church. So fervently did he advocate the cause of abolition that it became necessary for him to leave the Church. In Cincinnati he served a church and edited the Cincinnati Dial, a monthly magazine devoted to literature, philosophy and religion. Soon after the outbreak of the Civil War, Conway moved to Boston to devote his energies to an anti-slavery publication, The Commonwealth, and in 1862 he sailed for England on an anti-slavery mission, armed with a letter by William Lloyd Garrison stating that this southern born abolitionist "cannot fail at this time to make something of a sensation."

What was to be a mission for Conway turned out to be almost a lifetime stay.

Attracted to London, he added a new twist to his formula of theology, writing and social reform; to the British he explained American life, and to Americans he interpreted England. It became an exciting and stimulating venture. Already friendly with New England intellectuals and reformers, Conway had extended his circle before coming to England to include Walt Whitman, Mark Twain, Susan B. Anthony and others. He became the promoter and protector of American authors and reformers in London. In turn, he came to know the leading intellectuals of England: Browning, Carlyle, Rustin, Ford, Huxley, Darwin, and Mill.

He wrote articles for Harper's, The Atlantic, The Fortnightly, The Radical, and Fraser's; columns for the New York Daily Tribune and the Cincinnati Commercial; and weekly sermons for his new congregation, South Place Society. He wrote books, too, some twenty-three in all. These included biographies, novels, and works devoted to theology and social causes. The most famous are his autobiography and his two-volume study of Thomas Paine. The result of such prodigious activity may well be guessed. Conway the writer was more prolific than profound, more anecdotal than analytical. And as in all his undertakings, Conway the writer was an advocate. His study of Paine manifests the weakness of Conway the man of letters. As a recent biographer of Paine, Alfred Owen Aldridge, has suggested, Conway deserves great credit for doing original and extensive research, but in his desire to create a more favorable public image of Paine, which he succeeded in doing, he committed errors of fact and lacked impartiality.

Moncure Conway was an advocate by nature, whether it was in his abolitionism, his literary efforts, or his theology. And he was an advocate, too, in his most enduring monument, his quest for peace, or more specifically, his efforts to develop effective means for the peaceful settlement of disputes between nations. Again and again Conway spoke and wrote on the need for world peace. In his address to the Paris Peace Congress of 1900 one can see in Conway's suggestions for effective worldwide machinery for the settling of disputes, the genesis of world bodies such as the League of Nations and its successor, the United Nations. It is not surprising that Andrew Carnegie, long deeply interested in world peace, would be attracted and nurtured by the work of Conway and would feel it right and proper to honor his efforts in a significant manner.

The heritage of Moncure Conway has been perpetuated in a number of ways since his death in Paris in 1907. In London the Humanist Centre, the South Place Ethical Society at Red Lion Square, calls its building Conway Hall and continues to conduct its Conway Memorial Lectures. In Unitarian circles Conway is revered for his contribution to social reform and liberal theology. A biography of Conway was published in 1952 by Mary Burtis, and a large collection of Conway papers is maintained at Columbia University. His descendants in Fredericksburg and elsewhere have showed a continuing devotion to his memory.

Dickinson College has also remembered Conway. Before his death the College conferred an honorary degree upon him. And then there is Carnegie's gift, Conway Hall itself, in the beginning an elegant structure used as a preparatory school. It was large, four stories high, with ample room for over one hundred students, teachers rooms, administrative offices, recitation rooms, a dining room, and a chapel. In 1917 the school was closed and the Hall became a dormitory familiar to generations of Dickinson men. The College has also developed a growing Conway Collection of letters and memorabilia, thanks in large measure to the interest and generosity of Dr. Boyd Lee Spahr.

All this interest and devotion to Moncure D. Conway seems appropriate, for although a worldly figure of significant fame in his century, the ninetieth, his demand for dignity for the Negro and his quest for world peace make him seem surprisingly up-to-date to men in the second half of the twentieth century.

Two thousand seven hundred and twenty-four formal applications for admission to last Fall's freshman class were processed down to 404. Of this number 82 were alumni children. 50 were accepted and 24 of these entered as witnessed herewith. The percentage of alumni children accepted (61%) may seem quite high, particularly in comparison to the percent of the total applicant group accepted (15%) but whenever possible, preference is given to alumni children.

He Called Signals on Largest Amphibious Operation in Pacific Since Korean Conflict

Capt. Frank M. Romanick Heads Navcomstaphil

THE LARGEST amphibious operation in the Pacific since the Korean War reached its culmination when elements of U. S. fighting forces crossed the beaches at Chu Lai, South Vietnam.

Charged with providing instant communications for the mighty Seventh Fleet is the United States Naval Communications Station in the Philippines, known in Navalese as Navcomstaphil.

Its commander is Captain Frank M. Romanick, '47.

Capt. Romanick has experienced many "firsts" during his tour at San Miguel. "But none," he insists, "gave me so much personal satisfaction as the first Boy Scouts of America summer camp held in the Philippines."

The following quote was obtained from an issue of The South China Sea Sentinel and was attributed to Capt. Romanick: "Traditionally, being a good citizen in one's community has been a part of the military duties of the armed forces. Each officer and enlisted man is expected to make at least some small contribution to the welfare of his community. The scouting program presents an opportunity for such a contribution at this Naval Communication Station.

"We have provided a suitable site and facilities for summer camp for scouts from military activities throughout the Philippines. Named Camp Apache, the site is an isolated area of the station specifically designated for scouting purposes. It is on the shores of the South China Sea with a natural wilderness background where, with their troops, scouts can get their fill of fun and adventure and at the same time, live comfortably out-of-doors."

Admiral Donald W. Wulzen, who commanded the Chu Lai landing, was so moved by Capt. Romanick's dedicated involvement in scouting that he presented to the camp through the most junior tenderfoot scout and the most senior eagle scout, the American Flag that flew from the Admiral's flagship, the Estes, during the record Vietnam assault.

Capt. Romanick described the transfer of flag ceremony to the scouts at a special campfire and explained that during battle, navy ships always hoist their colors. He said, "To all seafaring men the national flag is symbolic of the nation. The national flag constitutes the only mark which distinguishes the nationality of a ship. The mere presence of a warship flying the Stars and Stripes in Southeast Asia reminds, in the most vivid fashion, the people of the world of our democratic principles which we hold so dear."

Captain Frank M. Romanick, '47

He continued, "During all encampments this historical flag will be hoisted daily high over the campsite to show our pride in America and to remind each one throughout the camping day of their duty to God and to our Country."

Captain Romanick took with him from Dickinson a deep awareness of the values of education. Defined, education to him is "knowledge—a power tempered by tolerance."

Upon his arrival at San Miguel he found 118 men of the station did not possess a high school diploma. Today, these men, less eight, do possess a diploma, through his making available the opportunity to acquire a diploma and then gently but forcefully directing his men toward that end.

"They have gained personal satisfaction, prestige, and certainly offer increased readiness to this station, the Navy and our country," Capt. Romanick claimed.

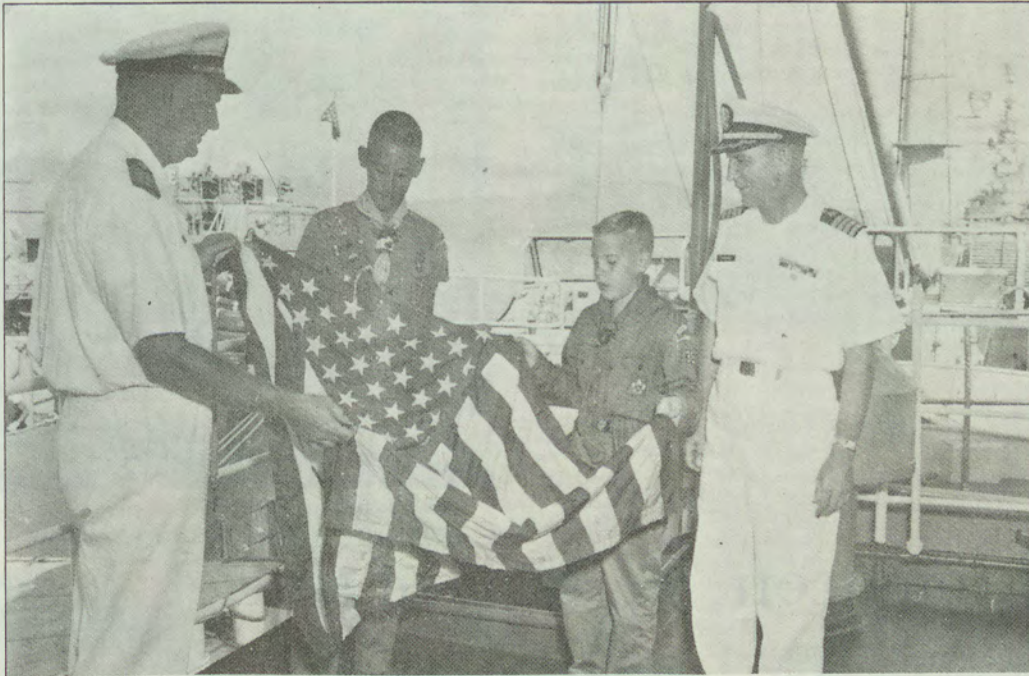

Captain Romanick has a rather imposing assignment at San Miguel. On him rests the entire responsibility for the station and whether a mission ends in success or failure.

He must accept the penalty or the glory. In either case his discipline and training have shaped the actions of the personnel under him.

He must demonstrate the superior qualities of judgement, leadership, moral courage, initiative and professional ability essential in high command assignments and be responsible for coordinating the work, exercise, training and education, operational plans, schedules and maintaining high morals.

His immediate goals are always results through performance of duty, good order and discipline.

Scouts Presented "ESTES" Battle Flag

The commanding officer of the USS Estes, Captain W. H. Pellett, in behalf of Admiral D. W. Wulzen who commanded the Chu Lai landing, presents scouts Jeff Bellamy (left) of Subic Bay's Troop 360, and Larry Bethurum of Troop 362 San Miguel, the flag which flew from the Estes during the record amphibious assault in Vietnam. Looking on is Captain F. M. Romanick, '47, commanding officer, U.S. Navcomstaphil.

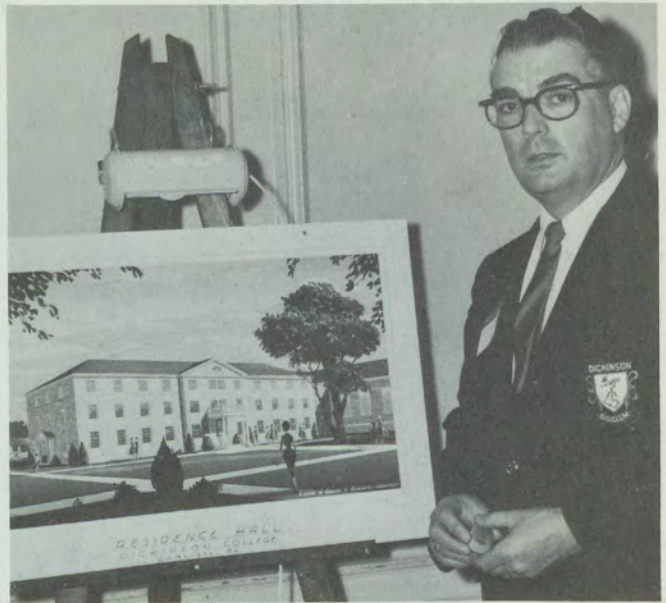

Pedro Garcia receives his certificate of achievement from Capt. Romanick at the closing exercises and graduation program related to summer camp.

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, former Chief of Naval Operations stated, "A well-disciplined organization is one in which all the members of the organization are taught to work willingly, enthusiastically and skillfully as individuals and as a group to fulfill the mission of the organization with an expectation of success."

The ultimate test of discipline is combat. The only discipline which will surely meet the test of combat is one that is based on the fact that all hands have pride in a great service, a belief in its purposes, a belief in its essential justice, and complete confidence in the superior character, skill, education and knowledge of its leaders.

It is good to know that a Dickinsonian is so deeply and so successfully involved in the business of directing the affairs of the United States at this super-strategic outpost.

Rev. Robert J. Thomas, '40, pastor of the Sherrill Cooperating Churches (Oneida, N. Y.) and artist's drawing of one of the new buildings planned for the College. Thomas, along with his wife, the former Beatrice Pennell, '39, is serving as district chairman of the capital campaign. Almost four million dollars have been raised during the first phase of the campaign entitled "Six Million for Dickinson." Funds are earmarked for increased faculty salaries, student aid and buildings.

Ted Lippincott, '44, Named to Del. Judgeship

Edwin E. Lippincott II, '44, is the new judge of Delaware County's Sixth Court of Common Pleas, by edict of Governor Scranton.

His appointment came as no surprise because he had unanimous support from over 200 members of the county bar association in addition to that of the Republican Board of Governors.

Ted is also a graduate of the Dickinson School of Law. He served 10 years in the State House of Representatives, held assorted chairmanships, officiated as Hearing Examiner for the Liquor Control Board, and still actively pursued his law practice in partnership with John B. Hannum Donaldson (Lippincott and Donaldson).

Member and director of Rotary; a founder and former vice-president of the Media Junior Chamber of Commerce; member of the Presbyterian Church; he is married to the former Martha Louise Short and has two children, Martha (22) and Nicholas (17). The Lippincotts reside on Sycamore Mills Road, Upper Providence Township.

Bill Thomas, '35, Metropolitan Vice-President

William S. Thomas, '35, of 121 Weyford Terrace, Garden City, has been appointed senior vice-president in charge of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's group insurance operations.

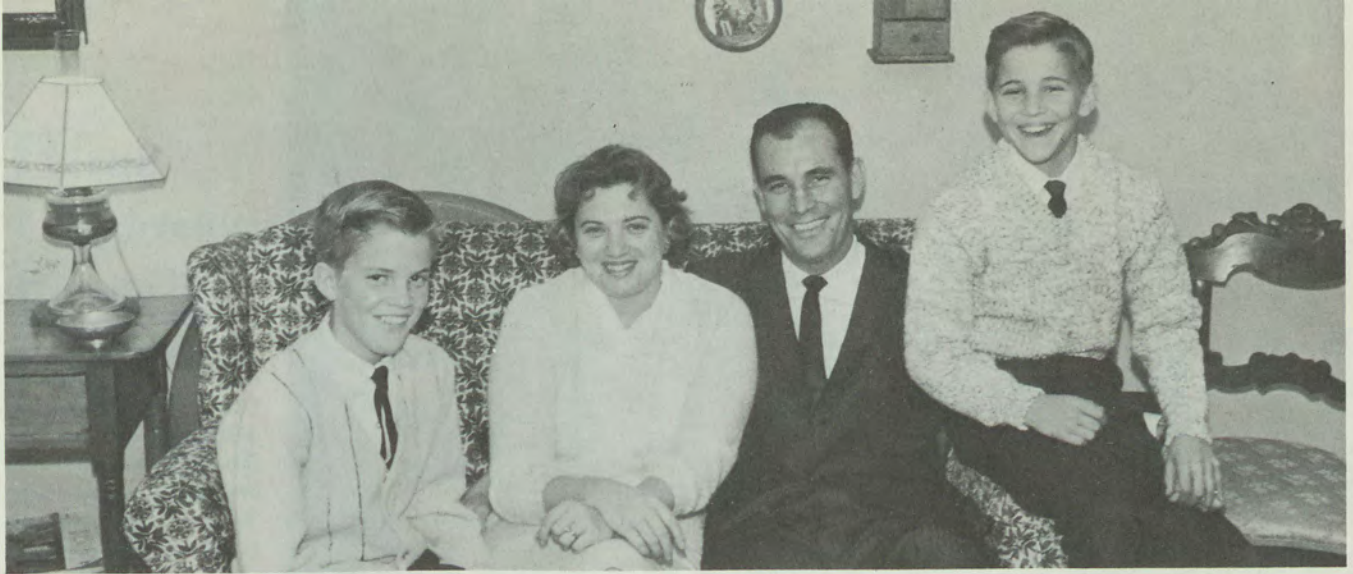

Mr. Thomas, a native of Wilkes-Barre, joined Metropolitan Life's actuarial division in 1937. He was appointed assistant actuary in 1952 and associate actuary the following year. In 1958, he was advanced to actuary and given prime responsibility for the actuarial aspects of the company's group life and health coverages. He was appointed vice-president in group insurance on May 1, 1964.

In his new post, Mr. Thomas has executive and administrative responsibility for Metropolitan Life's operations in the field of group insurance. Based on the amount of insurance in force, Metropolitan Life's group division, were it a separate company, would rank among the top 10 insurance companies in the United States and Canada.

He is a Fellow of the Society of Actuaries and served as chairman of the Actuaries Club of New York from 1960 to 1961.

Mr. Thomas and his wife, Kathleen, have three sons.

The National Vulcanized Fibre Company of Kennett Square, has named James K. Abbott, '50, manager for its materials handling product line. Abbott will be responsible for the Kennett Square plant's production and engineering efforts in addition to his duties as sales manager for the materials handling division of the company. Abbott joined NVF in 1950 as a sales trainee and held several supervisory posts in the accounting and billing department before going to the Philadelphia sales office. He went to Cleveland, Ohio, in 1962 to become sales manager in that office of the materials handling division. In 1962 he won the J. K. Johnston award given annually by NVF to its outstanding salesman of the year. Mrs. Abbott is the former Ann Einstein, '52. Son Jeff is 14 and Greg, next to his father, is 11.

John H. Clough, '62, and Valerie Simmons, '65, are married and residing at 1607 Princess Avenue in Pittsburgh. John is an associate attorney with the law firm of Dickie, McCamey and Chilcote specializing in trial defense. Valerie is working towards her Ph.D. in Philosophy at Duquesne University. John is a '65 graduate of the Dickinson School of Law.

Eight American colleges and universities have Dickinson graduates currently serving as their president. Recently in Philadelphia, a dinner gathered six of the eight for the purpose of recognizing this distinguished service to higher education. Shown below in a lighter moment, singing one of the more popular "Mermaid" ballads, are (left to right) D. Frederick Wertz, '37, Lycoming College; James M. Read, '29, Wilmington College; George H. Armacost, '26, Redlands University; President of Dickinson College, Howard L. Rubendall, '31; Robert L. D. Davidson, '31, Westminster College; and Frederick W. Ness, '33, Fresno State. Unable to attend were William E. Kerstetter, '39, Depauw; and John W. McConnell, '29, New Hampshire. During the same weekend Dr. Wertz was elected president of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of The Methodist Church, and Bishop Fred P. Corson was honored by the General Board of Education of The Methodist Church.

As former California Governor Goodwin J. Knight looks on, Mrs. Gustave A. (Eva Cass, '07) Jahn accepts a commendation from Assemblyman L. Stewart Hinckley. Mrs. Jahn was saluted by the California Legislature for her service to state and community. The dinner took place at the University of Redlands, where another Dickinsonian, Dr George H. Armacost, '26 serves as president. Mrs. Jahn is known in California as "Mrs. Republican."

A Night for Mrs. Republican of California

Last November, former Governor Goodwin J. Knight of California and numerous other Republican notables gathered at a special dinner in Redlands to honor Eva Cass Jahn, '07, known affectionately throughout the state as "Mrs. Republican."

Over 275 friends, many civic leaders, applauded a resolution adopted by the California Assembly which cited Mrs. Jahn for her service to the state and her home community.

Dr. George H. Armacost, '26, President of the University of Redlands, where the affair was held, asked the invocation to begin the evening which saluted Mrs. Jahn's efforts spanning a third of a century. A parade of speakers "painted her portrait."

Among the many messages of congratulations were those from General Dwight D. Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Senators Thomas Kuchel and George Murphy, William F. Knowland and George Christopher, former Mayor of San Francisco.

Mrs. Jahn, the widow of G. A. Jahn, a mining engineer, came to Redlands with her husband in 1926. They were natives of New York State and lived in mining camps until making Redlands their home.

Mrs. Jahn's interest in politics began in the '30's and she has been on the Republican State Central Committee, county committee, and has served as state public relations chairman and state organizer. She considers working in politics an act of patriotism and has always encouraged young men and women to take an active interest in politics.

She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority and the Redlands branch of the American Association of University Women. She has served on the boards of the Redlands Community Hospital and the Young Women's Christian Association and is an honorary member of the Assistance League.

A surprise reunion occurred when Major General Richard H. Ellis, '41 (left) USAF, arrived at the Army War College in Carlisle and met Colonel Sidney Gritz, '41, whom he hadn't seen since they both graduated from Dickinson 25 years ago. Gen. Ellis addressed students and faculty (Feb. 4) on the subject of "Capabilities Planning." He is deputy director for Plans and Policy, J-5, Joint Staff, Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. A native of Harrisburg, Col. Gritz is a member of the War College Class of 1966. (War College Photo)

Health Opportunity for People Everywhere

Dr. Jan Safer, '57, is Radiologist on "Hope"

The youngster had a chest problem. His father had brought him to the S. S. Hope for X-rays. The American goodwill hospital ship was tied up in a harbor in Guinea, Africa.

Dangling from the boy's neck was an amulet, a small leather charm worn by up-country Guineans to keep away evil spirits.

As technicians focused the X-ray machine on the lad's chest, the amulet swung in front of the lens. The father quickly yanked it out of the way, breaking the cord which held it.

"I guess you could say it was symbolic of the Africans' enlightened attitude toward medicine," said Dr. Jan Safer, '57, a radiologist who recently returned to Philadelphia after two months of duty aboard the Hope.

"When the chips were down, the father threw away the old beliefs and put his hopes on—well, the Hope."

Dr. Safer—tall, tanned and 29 lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Safer, at 3886 Conshohocken St. He proceeded there as soon as the big white Hospital Ship docked at Pier 82.

The ship was opened to the public, then steamed to the drydock in Chester for repairs. Now she is off on her next assignment—Nicaragua.

The ship was built at Sun Ship in 1944 and commissioned as the Navy hospital ship Consolation. She reached Okinawa two weeks after the Japanese surrender.

During the fighting in Korea, helicopters landed 400 wounded on her decks in six weeks.

In 1960, the Navy turned the 15,000-ton vessel over to a private group called HOPE—Health Opportunity for People Everywhere.

She was renamed the Hope. Since then she has made goodwill visits to Indonesia, South Viet Nam, Peru, Ecuador and—for the ten months prior to returning home, in Guinea.

Her primary mission is to train doctors, nurses and technicians in foreign countries. But, as Dr. Safer noted, she is equipped to handle "anything you'd expect to find at any Philadelphia hospital."

In the past five years, she has trained more than 3,000 physicians, dentists and nurses; treated more than 100,000 persons; conducted some 6,000 major operations and vaccinated about one million persons for polio, typhoid, tetanus and diphtheria.

"I worked in the X-ray laboratory, of course," said Dr. Safer, a Central High School and Penn Medical School graduate.

"But on weekends, I would join other doctors and nurses on immunization trips into the up-country areas.

"We would round up as many as possible, young and old, and vaccinate them by the hundreds.

"At first, the kids were afraid of the needle—just like kids everywhere. But we showed them how to make a whistle out of the cap from the disposable needles, and that made them happy."

The Hope is the equivalent of a 230-bed hospital. She carries a permanent staff of about 95 doctors, nurses and technicians who serve at minimal salaries.

In addition, "rotator" physicians—like Dr. Safer—are flown to her for two-month tours of duty from all over the United States. At any time, there are between 25 and 30 "rotator" doctors aboard who serve without pay.

Dr. Safer emphasized that the ship's work does not end with her departure.

"Teams from the Hope remain in the area to continue medical and training programs long after the ship has gone," he said.

Dr. Safer attended the University of Pennsylvania Medical School ('57-'61), took his internship at Mt. Sinai Hospital in San Francisco, and completed his residency in Radiology at Temple. He will serve one more year aboard the Hope.

The Alumnus is grateful to the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin for assistance in compiling this article.

Dr. Safer, '57, prepares patient for chest X-ray on ship HOPE.

Letters To (And From) The Editor

To the Editor:

Thanks to the sneaky way the months slip by, this letter is long overdue, but the thought remains fresh to me—and, I hope, to others. Primarily, it is written to thank Mary Lou Speidel and second her motion (in this column) that the passing of Mrs. Josephine B. Meredith deserved far more than a perfunctory notice.

To many classes of resident girls, Mrs. Meredith was the essence of daily life at Dickinson. We all knew her "grim-look" and squirmed at the uncomfortable truths in her "fireside chats." We learned that, under her firm hand, crime was inevitably followed by punishment. But we also grew a little older and wiser—and it was then we noticed the twinkle in her eye. And remember it still.

I'm sure I'm not alone when I find myself unconsciously quoting her salty wisdom to my own children. On a slight bending of the truth: "It's not the literal truth of your words that counts, but the picture you form in the listener's mind." On a request to go to a dubious place: "It may be true that 'a lady can go anywhere', but a lady doesn't want to go just 'anywhere'." On the need to close window shades: "As our night watchman once told me, 'Those girls don't know how much you can see and how many's a-lookin' and who!' " Even on smoking: "You don't want to pull all that filthy, dirty smoke into your lungs!"

Yes, her firmness and wisdom and humor must have spread farther than any of us have ever guessed. It seems fitting that we mention it aloud at last, and wish for other generations of Dickinson girls the rewarding experience of feeling the guiding hand of such a person as Mrs. Meredith.

Edie Lingle Hollan, '44

To the Editor:

I'm finally getting around to saying "thanks" for the very fine article about myself and the ill-fated Bajour in the May issue of the Dickinson Alumnus. Shortly after we closed I did six weeks of "Lt. Cable" in South Pacific in stock—a poor excuse for waiting so long.

Kind words have found their way to my good friend, Dave McGahey, for his generous treatment. (McGahey authored the article entitled "Dickinsonian on Broadway.")

Please find enclosed check for $5.00 to cover the cost of the Alumni Directory and a small gift to annual giving. Wish it could be more but this presently unemployed actor has no choice.

Harry Danner, '61

(Editor's note.—"Bajour," a tale of a band of gypsies stranded in Manhattan, ran 232 performances on Broadway with an additional 50 in Boston and Philadelphia prior to New York. Harry played two singing and dancing roles in "Bajour," the policeman and the waiter. Once before he played "Lt. Cable" with the American Light Opera in Washington, D. C.)

Dear Dr. Prinz:

It was with great interest that I read your article on Poland in a recent issue of the Dickinson Alumnus. It is a superb job. You really should do more writing of this type.

Looking forward to seeing you and your charming wife in the near future, I remain,

Cordially yours,

E. Donald Shapiro, Esq., '53

Dear Dr. Prinz:

Just got the Alumnus. Good article! Best wishes for your new book!

Vicki Hahn Reynolds, '50

To the Editor:

I enjoyed Dr. Prinz's "Polish Paradoxes" in the last Dickinson Alumnus. It is refreshing to be able to accept something you read at face value without having to discount or read between the lines for the truth.

William Mudd, '50

Dear Arthur:

I truly enjoyed "Polish Paradoxes." It gave me new insight into life in the so-called Iron Curtain countries. I hope you have offered the article for reprint in some journal of national distribution. I would be more astonished about the paradoxes in Poland if I were less conscious of those we are fashioning in our own federal government complexes. Congratulations and thanks.

H. G. Kenagy (not an alumnus)
Bryan, Texas

To the Editor:

This is only a token gift to show my appreciation of the broad view of life Dickinson gave me—it sent me into college teaching which gave me many things of value but not much financial advantage. I shall be 80 years old in April next, and am still teaching at American University as an Emeritus Professor.

Walter F. Shenton, '07

(Editor's note.—Walter Shenton is in the last semester of his 41st year of teaching mathematics at A. U. and is completing his 55th year of teaching college math!)

Dr. Howard L. Rubendall
President
Dickinson College
Carlisle, Pa.

Dear Dr. Rubendall:

We would like to thank you for the exceptionally fine team which represented Dickinson College on the G. E. College Bowl and for all the cooperation and enthusiasm we received.

Intelligent, alert and very personable, the students did an excellent job and they should certainly be commended for their outstanding series of victories.

We appreciate also the wonderful cooperation we received from Mr. Sanford Smoller and would like to thank him, Mr. Vincent Schafmeister, Jr. and all those who worked with the team in preparation for the program.

We are mailing 12 gift sheets to Mr. Smoller so that the four team members, alternate and coach may select 2 appliances for their participation in the program.

We hope the students enjoyed their weekends in New York and their appearances on the program, and that in the future we may once again call upon Dickinson College to participate in the "College Bowl."

Sincerely,

John Cleary
Executive Producer
College Bowl

(Editor's note.—We will be ready to go!)

Around The Campus

Another Winning Hoop Season

The basketball team closed out another winning season with a thrilling 69-61 conquest over Gettysburg (Feb. 22) before a standing room crowd of over 1,500 in Alumni Gym. But even more exciting was the conquering of Gettysburg for the second time in one season—the first this has happened since 1946-47!

Ed Ashnault thus closes out his second year as hoop pilot with a 13-6 record and a two-year slate of 29 victories against 11 losses.

Don Smith, senior forward from Radnor High School, rewrote scoring records with his career total of 1,082 points (Ray Weaver, '58, held the old mark of 1,043), 414 points in a single season, and 184 field goals in one year.

Students Rally to Vietnam Bloodmobile

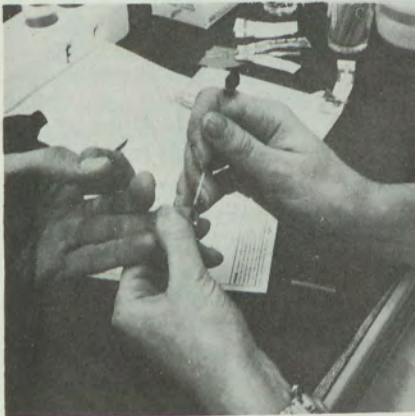

A student committee distributed the following letter to Dickinson students: "Whether we like it or not, men are being killed and wounded every day in Southeast Asia. They are making sacrifices for us in a land so far away that sometimes Vietnam ceases to be a reality for us at Dickinson.

"We can bring that reality closer to Dickinson by making a small but significant sacrifice through donating a pint of blood to the Department of Defense for Vietnam."

This student committee hoped for a response of 150, sufficient to attract a Red Cross bloodmobile to the College. 280 signed up and then followed through when the Cumberland County Chapter of the Red Cross arrived on campus last month!

Members of the committee were: Barry C. Beringer, Steven Fishman, Dallas Winslow, Ryan Jones, Carol Heym, Donald H. Smith, and Jane E. Parks.

"This business with the end of the finger is the roughest of all."

"I didn't know there were this many people over 21 at Dickinson."

"One can't permit a little thing like giving blood delay learning."

Personal Mention

Florence Ralston Belt, '07, a Pi Beta Phi since 1904 and a Phi Beta Kappa since 1906, graduated from the College as a Valedictorian and went into teaching until her retirement in 1951. Her career in public education ended, she devoted her life entirely to the Church and to the Harrisburg Hospital, where, known as "Aunt Florence," she has logged more than 8,200 hours in the hospitality room in the hospital. She is pictured, left, below, receiving a Golden Arrow Pin emblematic of her years of volunteer service. She still teaches an adult Sunday School class and tutors in Latin and English.
