COLLECTION DESCRIPTION

The Scott Blum Collection was donated in 1981 by Scott Blum. The collection reflects his interest in the sciences, particularly computers. The documents and materials relate to Blum's time at Dickinson College, particularly his academic career. This collection is housed in four document boxes and one artifact box, and is organized into three series: Notes, Miscellaneous, and Artifacts. The first series, Notes, is comprised of loose notes, notebooks, and other related papers for twenty-six classes taken by Blum as a Dickinson student. These notes include Blum's personal notebooks, lab manuals, syllabi, quizzes, and exams. The materials in this series are organized chronologically by semester and then alphabetically by class within each semester. Loose-leaf notes are filed before bound notebooks. Enclosed is a listing of Blum's classes as he took them.

The second series, Miscellaneous, consists of miscellaneous papers which do not fall into the organizational scheme of the first series. These materials include correspondence, programs for theatrical performances, freshman orientation documents, and ephemera. These files are organized chronologically.

This collection originally included a single artifact, a stuffed teddy bear holding a Dickinson pennant. This item was removed from the collection with permission from the donor on Jan. 7, 2016. More information about this deaccession is available in the collection register folder housed with the document folders.
