My Dear Judge

I have at last discovered - (and almost to my own surprise) the purchase of the note, it was a man by the name of Moss a Broker in Walnut St. near Dock St. Edward sold the note, as I understand it to this man from whose hands it

I suppose missed the money when he missed - Saw Stockton's name - made the note good - examine this length, I could not see clear and certain.

Yours truly

doubtless passed into the depositions. Early, I obtained the information without giving my husband the slightest clue as to why I wished to know, or his having the slightest idea that I would tell you - so please let it be entirely between ourselves - I did not mention Early's name to him, or say that I knew anything about the note, I was loyer enough to stick to my point, which was to obtain information, not give it, Now I have no doubt made his paper upon the note. I called upon a man of that name when Edward was in England; before his residence was there in France he was I do not I called upon him as that time in reference to a loan he was anxious to raise, & Mrs. Lee Edwards I had seen him, I had not had the opportunity then I have now. And said nothing to Mrs. about Henry. Now is a few &
