Just about the time our little fight commenced I thought of sending Harley and Charles Palmer to this side of the river as they had no guns and I did not want them to be in any danger. The latter came to this side but Harley ran off and got a gun and accoutrements from some one who managed to get sick just as the fight commenced. He seemed to enjoy the trip very much, and did not manifest the least fear. He is now with Maj. Frier at Marietta. The Major was anxious to have him along with him.

Yours Truly

Jacob Frier
